POTTER NAMES 10 "BEST PICTURES"

As the 10 best pictures of the year, Merle Potter, drama editor of the Minneapolis Journal, has named "The Love Parade," "Outward Bound," "Sunny Side Up," "Floradora Girl, "Vagabond King," "White Hell of Pitz Palu," "All Quiet on the Western Front," "Journey's End," "Ladies of Leisure" and "Liliom."

The list was contained in an article on the Sunday drama page of the Journal.

Mr. Potter said he missed "Abraham Lincoln," "Applause," "Lummox" and some of the other outstanding pictures which might have replaced several of those named by him.

"Divorcee," "Holiday," "With "Byrd at the South Pole," "Common Clay," "Manslaughter," "Old English," "Grumpy," "The Rogue Song," 'Sarah and Son," "Young Man of Manhattan," "Whoopee" are named by Mr. Potter as other outstanding films.

ROUSH AND ROUSH BUY AT AUDABON

Audubon, Ia.—J. C. Roush of Fort Dodge and L. C. Roush of Onama have purchased the new Audubon Theatre here from J. H. Spoon who had bought it only a few weeks before from Ed. F. and Edwin B. Johnson. The Roushs are father and son. The elder has been engaged for a number of years in public relatons work.

WOMEN'S CLUB MAY TAKE OVER AFTON THEATRE

Afton, Ia.—Providing that the town will allow Sunday movies, the Business and Professional Women's club will take over the ownership and management of the Afton Community Theatre and install sound equipment. It is the only movie house here and has been a community enterprise, operated by local business men. It has been open two nights a week and a 10c admission price has prevailed for the silent pictures shown. The increasing difficulty in obtaining silent pictures makes it necessaary for the business men to dispose of the theatre.

LORCH SAYS "U" BUSINESSS GOOD

A Minneapolis visitor of the week was Harry S. Lorch, western division sales manager for Universal. He was here to confer with J. E. Garrison, local exchange manager, on routine business matters.

Mr. Lorch reported record-breaking sales of Universal pictures throughout the country. At every exchange, he declared, business has run far ahead of 1928 and 1929 and the 1931 outlook is considered very promising.

W. B. MILWAUKEE HOUSE READY SOON

Milwaukee — The contractors erecting the new theatre and its 12-story office building annex in Milwaukee for Warner Bros. reported last week that they could insure the opening of the office building in February. The elaborate equipment of the theatre proper, which will be furnished by Continental Theatre Accessories, Inc., will deter its completion until March.

Warner Bros.' new holdings in Milwaukee are at Wisconsin and Third streets and seem admirably located both for theatrical and business purposes. The calls for space in the office building are such at this time that it seems certain that it will be opened with over sixty per cent of its space occupied.

An organization of dentists has already taken considerable space in the new building and it promises to become the dental headquarters of the city.

In the lease of one of the floors for restaurant purposes there is an innovation in the lease which calls for the owners to supply all of the refrigeration necessary for the business. This will be an easy matter. There is to be an elaborate plant for the cooling of the theatre in summer and this plant will be able to supply all of the necessary refrigeration for the restaurant.

Managers See Best Pictures in History Early in 1931

Exchange Heads Outline Big Features Ready for Early Part of This Year; Quality Highest in History

Imbued with the firm belief that early in 1931 will bring the best product in the film industry's history, heads of Minneapolis film exchanges have set the stage for a record-breaking concentrated sales' drive.

"Exhibitors throughout the territory are clamoring for good pictures," assert the exchange managers. "Outstanding pictures are drawing big business everywhere. The quality of pictures now coming up has never been equalled since the dawn of sound. "We therefore are equipped to go after business and just watch us go."

MOVIE AGE cannot recall a time when exchange managers have been so enthusiastic over their pictures. If half the managers' predictions come true, box office records should be shattered right and left throughout the northwest during the ensuing three months.

C. A. Roeder of Paramount expects new attendance records to be set by Gary Cooper's "The Fighting Caravan," Emil Jannings and Marlene Dietrich's "The Blue Angel," Clara Bow's "No Limit," Ruth Chatterton's "The Right to Love," William Powell's "His Past" and George Bancroft's "The Scandal · Sheet."

L. E. Goldhammer of Warner Brothers predicts that "Illicit" will be the box office sensation of 1931 and also expects Otis Skinner's "Kismet," Richard Barthelmess' "The Lash," "Mother's Cry" and Winnie Lightner's "Sit Tight," a few of the forthcoming Warner Brothers and First National releases, to pack 'em in wherever shown.

J. E. Garrison of Universal declares that "Dracula," John Boles' "Resurrection," Lewis Ayres' "Fires of Youth" and "The Iron Man," "Strictly Dishonorable" and the screen version of the next story by Remarque, the author, "All Quiet on the Western Front" are all sure to establish themselves as sure-fire knockouts.

Al Hoffman of United Artists is pinning high hopes on Charlie Chaplin's "City Life," D. W. Griffith's "Abraham Lincoln," John Boles' "One Heavenly Night," Douglas Fairbanks and Bebe Danels' "Reaching for the Moon" and Ronald Coleman's "Devil to Pay."

Harold Johnson prophecies great box office accomplishments for Sono Art's "Jaws of Hell" and "Damaged Love" and the Sennett comedy" "Dance Hall Marge" and Lloyd Hamilton's latest side-splitter, "Village Rows."

M. A. Levy of Fox declares that the public will flock in droves to see Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell's "The Man Who Came Back," Edmund Lowe's "Men on Call," George O'Brien's "Seas Beneath" and Dorothy Mackaill's "Once a Sinner."

M. Frisch of Radio is convinced that Wheeler and Woolsey's "Hook, Line and Sinker," "Cimaron," "Beau Ideal" and "The Royal Bed" will knock 'em for a goal in all parts of the territory.

Ben Marcus is confident that Columbia will be right among the leaders with "Charley's Aunt," "The Criminal Code," "The Lion and the Lamb" and "Dirigible."

Tom Burke of Tiffany says that outstanding magnets will be "The Command Performance," "Caught Cheating," "The Girl of the Limberlost," "The Keeper of the Bees" and "The Drums of Jeopardy."

M. E. Montgomery of Pathe says that film fans all over the territory will be demanding Bill Boyd and Helen Twelvetrees' "Painted Desert," "Ann Harding's "Rebound" and Bill Boyd's "Beyond Victory."

W. H. Workman knows that M-G-M will be one of the leaders with Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery's "Min and Bill," Joan Crawford's "Paid," Marie Dressler and Polly Moran's "Reducing," Greta Garbo's "Inspiration" and Lawrence Tibbett's "The New Moon."

Allied Votes Against M.P.T.O.A. Affilliation--$80,000 Subscribed

Leaders Cannot See How Consolidation would Benefit Allied or the Independents; Finances Arranged

Allied will not consolidate with M. P. T. O. A.

By unanimous vote, the national board of directors of the Allied States Association, meeting in executive session at the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, on Saturday, January 3, 1931, decided definitely and finally that they would enter into no agreements, mergers, or consolidations whatsoever with the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America.

Fifty-five men, representing eighteen state organizations affiliated with Allied, were present at the meeting, presided over by Abram F. Myers, president, and every one who could be reached expressed complete satisfaction both with the decision arrived at and with its unanimity.

The meeting, which was held behind closed doors, lasted the entire day, and at all times was said to be in complete harmony, the usual fire-eating, and bombastic tactics being conspicuous only by their entire absence.

The reason for the stand taken by Allied with respect to M. P, T. O . A. was summed up by H. M. Ritchie, a leading light of the organization, as follows: "We just can't see," said Mr. Ritchie, "where any benefit could possibly accrue to the strictly independent exhibitor by such an amalgamation. The policies of Allied with respect to the protection of the interests of the independents cannot be made to go hand-in-hand with what we know to be the underlying policy of the M. P. T. O. A."

Col. H. A. Cole of Texas had the following to say on the subject: "I am highly pleased at the stand taken by everyone. The convention at Toronto showed very plainly where we would be headed if we affiliated ourselves with M. P. T. O. A. We are for the independent exhibitor first, last and always and if we approved the proposed consolidation Allied would most certainly be headed for that same subsidized oblivion which their Philadelphia convention so aptly demonstrated to be true."

Aaron Saperstein, head of the Chicago group, said: "It all suits me perfectly. When we started the Illinois Independent Theatre Owners we felt we were right; when we joined Allied we felt we were right; and now we are positive that Allied holds the key to the future for us and that those things for which it strives will triumph."

Approximately $80,000 was subscribed among the 55 men present, partly from individuals and partly from affiliated state groups as additional funds with which to carry out the purposes of Allied.

FOX DEVELOPS NEW RECORDING

New York—Sound film with an absence of ground noises and perfect tone reproduction is on public exhibition for the first time at the Roxy Theatre, beginning Christmas day. The picture, "The Shepper-Newfounder," has been recorded by a new process invented by Fox Film Corporation engineers.

For many months sound engineers of various companies have been engaged in an effort to secure absolute silence on the screen when silence is desired and perfect tone reproduction. The absence of surface noises makes complete enjoyment of sound film possible for the first time.

For officials are so enthusiastic about the process that a large part of the 1931 product is to be recorded with it.

Earl I. Sponable and Theodore Case invented the AEO light which became known as Fox Movietone, and it is a refinement of this recording system which is now being used. Under this system light flashes make horizontal lines of varying densities on the sound track of the film. By the refinement of the process the sound track becomes entirely black when no sound is desired and this completely eliminates the cracking and snapping which often issued from theatre screens in the past. It also does away with extraneous noises.

"U" COMPLETES ITS 20 SPECIALS

Hollywood—Mary Nolan, Universal star, has completely recovered from her illness of several months, and was last week assigned by Carl Laemmle, Jr., to the leading role in "On the Up and Up," the Broadway stage success by Eva Kay Flint and Martha Madison, which will be filmed as a special this season at Universal City. Edward Laemmle will direct, and the supporting cast will be announced shortly.

Complete Cast

Hollywood—Complete cast of "The Secret Six," which George Hill is directing for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, now includes Wallace Beery, Jean Harlow, Ralph Bellamy, Marjorie Rambeau, Johnny Mack Brown, Clarke Gable, Paul Hurst, Fletcher Norton, DeWitt Jennings and John Miljan.

MACY WINS SUITS IN PATENT TILT

Brooklyn, N. Y. — Macy Manufacturing Corporation is the victor in a two-year legal tilt with the Racon Electric Co. of New York City involving the exponential type of horn used extensively by theatres for talking picture systems.

By unanimous decision the first department of the appellate division of the New York supreme court affirmed the decision of the court below. The original complaint charged the Macy company with appropriating the Racon formula and design in the manufacture of the former horn.

BEN TURPIN IN RADIO FEATURE

Hollywood — Because they believed him to be the best "cockeyed" aviator in the world, Radio Pictures unhesitatingly signed Ben Turpin for a stunt-flying sequence in "Assorted Nuts," co-featuring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey.

The picture, incidentally, reunites the loose-eyed comedian and Edward Cline, director. The two were together in the heyday of Mack Sennett two-reelers.

Franklin and Hughes Start New Circuit

Los Angeles — Formation of a national theatre circuit with an initial capitalization of $5,000,000, is announced by Harold B. Franklin, recently resigned head of the Fox West Coast chain.

Howard Hughes, producer of "Hell's Angels," will be associated with Franklin in the new enterprise. The new circuit which will embrace important communities throughout the country, will be known as the Hughes-Franklin Theatres. The capitalization of $5,000,000 has already been subscribed, according to the announcement, and there will be no public offering of securities. Franklin will be chief executive of the new company.

"There is a need for an independent circuit of theatres in this country," he said. "Under present conditions some theatre chains are conducted by motion picture producing organizations as secondary undertakings, and every constructive element in the industry will welcome a movement that will bring gack to theatre operation the intitiative and individual efforts that it lacks today."

Independents to Hold National Meeting

In addition to the principal topic of discussion at the Allied directors' meeting at Chicago, January 3, plans were formulated for a national convention of independent exhibitors.

The convention will be held in Chicago on February 10 and 11, and all members of all Allied units as well as all other independent exhibitors will be invited to attend.

The convention is to be non-social and non-political. No elections will be held, and the entire convention will be taken up with discussion of common problems.

According to Allied leaders, the convention will decide on a positive and aggressive program relating to such important subjects as protection, block-booking, zoning and arbitration.

Future policies will be determined with regard to legislation, censorship and national regulation.

Four hundred and fifty independent exhibitors are expected to attend.

PICTURE BUSINESS

A NEW YEAR'S resolution that a number of theatre managers ought to adopt is one to refrain from overplaying the sex angle in their newspaper advertisements.

Some of the copy that has resulted from this trend toward the sensational has been downright vulgar. And, where it may have brought in a few more admissions through its lurid appeal, it has done a damage to the motion picture screen that the small dollar and cents gain for the moment will come far from repaying.

A great deal has already been said on this subject. Yet, too much cannot be said about it, when there are still some who are not far-sighted enough to see the injury they are bringing on for themselves and for their industry.

The Fox West Coast Theatres have issued a mandate to their managers to stay absolutely clear of the sex theme in their advertising. They have declared no middle ground in this order, which is a fine example to follow.

The appeal of motion pictures from the sensational sexy theme is but a temporary flurry. The public may seem to want this for a time, but the lure is quickly lost. Selling motion picture entertainment strictly on its merits; selling the theatre on its appointments and comforts; selling the theatre as an institution; these are efforts that have a permanent value and will bring a more profitable result when the books are balanced at the end of the year.

We believe that the first-run houses are in the main to blame for the censure that has been brought upon the industry by the sensational advertising that has appeared. They are the users of display space. The theatres in the smaller towns and the suburban theatres in the larger cities have been the least offenders of the code of advertising ethics that was producer-created. The first-run houses in the key locations of the country, producer-controlled houses, should be made to more strictly adhere to the Hays' advertising creed. Fox West Coast has set an example and it can be followed to the letter by the other circuit houses.

Ever since we've been in this industry we have been aware of the great fear on the part of its components for censorship. The dangers and heavy costs of censorship are known to everyone. Yet so much is done to flaunt it that we are puzzled by it all; puzzled especially when the industry's leaders sit idly by and see their invested millions endangered and not make a move until it is almost too late. Some day, unless a halt to this ridiculous and wanton carelessness is called real soon, it is going to be too late.

WHENEVER we think of censorship we think also of other forms of state legislation. There's a lot of it going to loom up against the motion picture industry this year. And it's going to take a strong defensive to ward it off. We've spoken about the need for an united exhibitor front many times before. Now it seems steps are being taken in that direction—to cement into one strong body the two that have scattered their aims. Maybe it's just a rumor. But rumors have had a habit of becoming facts of late.

A strong cast is being assembled for George Arliss's next Warner Bros. starring picture, which bears the temporary title "The Ruling Passion." Among the players thus far assigned to the production are Tully Marshall, Noah Beery, James Cagney, Sam Hardy and Ivan Simpson—the last of whom has appeared in over a dozen stage plays and motion pictures with Mr. Arliss. As previously announced, David Manners and Mrs. George Arliss are also to have prominent roles.

It has been decided by Warner Bros. to release in a number of American cities the German language film, "Der Tanz Geht Weiter." This is the picture originally released here under the title, "Those Who Dance," and in which Monte Blue was the star. Immediately after its completion at the First National studios the film was sent to Germany, where it scored a decided hit.

Announcement is made by the Bureau of Navigation of the U. S. Navy department of the establishment of sound motion picture technicians' schools at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, the Naval Training Station, San Diego, Calif., and the Navy Yard at Cavite, Philippine Islands. Comprehensive courses of study in the operation of RCA Photophone sound reproducing equipment will be conducted under the supervision of Photophone engineers.

An appeal to the mothers of Germany to work for the lifting of the ban on "All Quiet on the Western Front," the motion picture recently prohibited in that country after becoming the storm center of a political controversy, is being made by Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, operatic counsel of the National Broadcasting Co., who herself lost a son on the German side.

" QUOTES "

C. C. PETTIJOHN

"Business in the United States is intelligent; it is resourceful and being typically American, if let alone and permitted to do it, can safely be expected to work out its own salvation. All forms of business will do that very thing for themselves if the Federal and State governments will give them a chance to do so."

New Year Week Pulls Big Grosses

Minneapolis (week ending Jan. 2)—Business was good at every showhouse the past week, with the Minnesota and RKO Orpheum leading the field. Special midnight shows on New Year's Eve and the extra holiday helped to swell receipts and the totals were the largest in some time. It was "comedy week," with every theatre excepting three, boasting an unusually good laugh provoker. The rib ticklers included "Just Imagine," "Hook, Line and Sinker," "Sunny," and "Sea Legs." The trio of serious dramas were Ruth Chatterton's "The Right to Love," "Ex-Flame" and "A Lady's Morals." "The Right to Love" went over especially big and drew splendid patronage to the Minnesota.

Aster—A Lady's Morals (M-G-M), Grace Moore and Wallace Beery. Business: Good. Summary: A gripping and dramatic story of a great singer and her love affair. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, serial, comedy.

Century—Just Imagine (Fox), El Brendel. Business: Good. Summary: Laughs galore in this snappy musical comedy which depicts life in New York 50 years hence and carries the spectator to the planet Mars. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News and Grantland Rice Sportlight.

Lyric—Sea Legs (Paramount), Jack Oakie. Business: Good. Summary: Oakie and his supporting cast garner many laughs in the amusing story of the experience of a pair of American sailors in a mythical nation's navy. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Sennett Comedy, Screen Vaudeville.

Minnesota—The Right to Love (Paramount), Ruth Chatterton. Business: Big. Summary: The brilliant Miss Chatterton scintillates in a triple role in this powerful drama of a woman's love. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, sound news.

RKO Orpheum—Hook, Line and Sinker (Radio), Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey. Business: Good. Summary: This likable and popular pair of funsters make merry again in a laugh-provoking farce dealing with their efforts to run a hotel and foil a gang of crooks. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville and sound news.

RKO Seventh Street—Ex-Flame (Tiffany), Neil Hamilton and Marian Nixan. Business: Good. Summary: Plenty of human appeal and heart tugs in this modern and sexy version of the popular old melodrama, "East Lynne." Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, screen vaudeville.

State—Sunny (First National), Marilyn Miller. Business: Good. Summary: The tuneful and amusing romance of a young and pretty circus performer. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Laurel and Hardy comedy, screen vaudeville.

PATHE'S 1930 RECORD MARKED BY FOUR CONSECUTIVE SUCCESSES

New York—Pathe stepped high in the ranks of the major producers of 1930 with four distinguished successes in the consecutive order of their release. "Holliday," the picture which starred Ann Harding, had its Broadway premiere last July and is still showing in New York as well as throughout the country. In nearly every critical list prepared by reviewers, "Holliday" is rated among the first ten pictures of the year.

"Her Man" followed in October, with Helen Twelvetrees in the leading role. It scored immediately, not only in New York, but in the provinces. This picture is showing at the present time and indications are that it will be playing for at least another year.

"Big Money" was released on the Pathe November schedule. Eddie Quillan was featured with Robert Armstrong and James Gleason, and only last week he was signed by Pathe on a long-term contract as a result of this success.

"Sin Takes a Holiday" was Pathe's fourth consecutive picture to strike favorably. This Constance Bennett feature ran at the Mayfair and Cameo Theatres in New York and broke records in Boston and is being acclaimed at the moment from coast to coast.

TOM MOORE JOINS COLUMBIA CAST

Hollywood—Tom Moore, famous stage and screen star of many years standing, has been assigned to an important role in Columbia Pictures' forthcoming de luxe "special," "The Last Parade." Erle C. Kenton is directing this thrilling drama of the modern racketeer, with an imposing cast that includes Jack Holt in the featured male role and Constance Cummings in the feminine lead.

Mr. Moore makes his debut under the Columbia banner in "The Last Parade." He is a member of one of America's greatest theatrical families, equally famous on stage and screen. His outstanding screen achievements include, "Toby's Bow," "Dubs," "The Great Accident," "Stop Thief," "The Love Thrill," "Mr. Barnes of New York," "The Wise Wife," "The Siren," "Yellowback," "Side Street" and "The Woman Racket."

RCA PHOTOPHONE INSTALLED MORE THAN 3,000 EQUIPMENTS IN 1930

New York—With more than 3,000 installations of sound reproducing equipment contracted for during 1930, as against slightly more than 900 to its credit at the beginning of the year, RCA Photophone, Inc., has registered more than a 300 per cent increase in business in its domestic and foreign commercial departments during the last twelve months. In addition thereto, RCA Photophone recording division in both domestic and foreign fields showed by far the greatest number of new installations of recording apparatus of any company engaged in the manufacture and distribution of sound equipment, it is reported.

In commenting upon the outlook for 1931, Mr. Ross made the following statement:

"Continued refinements in recording and reproducing apparatus, the simplification of operation and the standardization of installations to reduce expense, will receive primary attention during the coming year. Prices of equipment will not materially change, due to the high cost involved in the manufacture of standard equipment. Improvements will be made, however, and the number of models will be reduced.

"There are at least 10,000 unwired theatres of the smaller type in the United States and at least 5,000 of these will install sound reproducing equipment, in addition to several thousand others that will replace unsatisfactory apparatus with dependable equipment. In my opinion, there will not be many new theatres built during the year.

"The non-theatrical field will see increased activities. The principal drawback in that field has been lack of suitable productions to meet the market. Ways and means are being discussed to bring about a solution of that problem. Wide film will probably be standardized and progress will be made in the development of more perfect color in pictures. Color, will only be used in certain types of pictures. In my opinion 'the play is the thing,' and if the sound and the picture are good, the rank and file of motion picture patrons will support it generously regardless of wide screen or color embellishment."

Outstanding among the achievements of RCA Photophone, Inc., during 1930, in addition to the acquisition of the large number of contracts for sound reproducing equipment from exhibitors of theatres in the ordinary course of the commercial department's activities, were the two large government awards—one providing for the installation of sound apparatus in 71 U. S. army posts (a contract for eleven additional installations was awarded early in December) and the contract for the placing of sound reproducing apparatus aboard the ships and in all shore stations of the U. S. navy, totalling approximately 300 installations. Ten army installations, not included in the above, were made in army post theatres in the Canal Zone, making a total of 80 for that branch of the government.

DOROTHY HERZOG JOINS COLUMBIA

Hollywood — Dorothy Herzog, newspaper woman, motion picture columnist and novelist, has been signed by Columbia Pictures to do the adaptation of "Virtue's Bed," a forthcoming special feature based on Courtenay Savage's New York stage success.

Miss Herzog, who began her writing career as motion picture editor of Movie Weekly, was also screen critic of the New York Daily Mirror and conducted widely read columns for the Los Angeles Herald and King Features Syndicate. She recently authored her first novel, "Some Like It Hot," Which was published in the early part of last spring and was the object of much comment.

Hoover's Twin

Universal City — Universal's search for doubles for Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Hoover to appear in "Fires of Youth," the Lew Ayres' starring picture now in work, has proved completely successful. Two remarkable doubles of Mr. and Mrs. Hoover in the persons of Tom Jensen and Jessie Perry are now before the cameras. Miss Perry is an actress, while Jensen is a member of the Los Angeles police department, who is an exact duplicate of the president, to the pound and inch.

FOX COMPLETES 24 FEATURES FOR RELEASE UP TO AUGUST

New York—Twenty-four of the Fox Movietone productions scheduled for release to theatres up to August of 1931 have been completed and shipped to New York.

Four are being edited. Nine are being filmed. Eleven are in preparation.

The entire season's product of 49 films will have been completed by February 15.

This is a record in Hollywood motion picture production, according to reports.

This does not mean a cessation in operations at the Fox Film Corporation's two California studios is in sight. It means merely that the studios will be enabled to get a head start on the 1931-32 product.

The completed pictures are "Common Clay," "Man Trouble," "Last of the Duanes," "Song O' My Heart," "On Your Back," "The Sea Wolf," "Soup to Nuts," "Liliom," "Up the River," "Scotland Yard," "Renegades," "The Big Trail," "The Dancers," "A Devil With Women," "Just Imagine," "Are You There?" "Lightnin'," "Oh, For a Man!" "The Princess and the Plumber," "Men On Call," "Under Suspicion," "The Man Who Came Back," "Part Time Wife," and "Once a Sinner."

The pictures in production are "East Lynne," an additional and special picture; "A Connecticut Yankee," "Girls Demand Excitement," "Wine, Women and Sin," "3 Rough Diamonds," "Mr. Lemon of Orange,' "More Than a Kiss," "Doctors' Wives" and "Three Girls Lost."

In the cutting rooms are "The Seas Beneath," "The Spy," "Their Mad Moment" and "Fair Warning."

In active preparation are "Merely Mary Ann," "Women of All Nations," "Skyline," "Charlie Chan Carries On," "Young Sinners," "The Cisco Kid," "Philippa," "The Painted Woman," "Six Cylinder Love," "Miss Adventure," "Good Gracious, Annabelle" and "She Wears the Pants."

These productions feature not only the outstanding Fox Movietone contract players, including Will Rogers, Janet Gaynor, Chas. Farrell, George O'Brien, Warner Baxter, Myrna Loy, Victor McLaglen, Edmund Lowe, Maureen O'Sullivan, El Brendel, Fifi Dorsay and the others, but also include other prominent players such as Dorothy Mackaill, Clive Brook, Ann Harding, Lew Cody, Greta Nissen, Conrad Nagel, Joan Bennett, Neil Hamilton and Loretta Young.

"CIMARRON" IS GIVEN PREVIEW

Los Angeles—"Cimarron," previewed by Radio Pictures at a Los Angeles theatre last week, was acclaimed by the Hollywood press and previewers as one of the greatest motion pictures.

A local film paper believed it so vital a piece of news that it issued a special edition, describing "Cimarron" as "an outstanding event in motion pictures."

The review said it was "a magnificent, human, thrilling and intense saga of the growth of an American city. It is a classic that will thrill its audiences, that will entertain them and give them renewed pride in the achievement of their people."

Columbia Inaugurates Exhibitors' Contest

CASH prizes totalling $1,875 are being offered by Columbia Pictures Corporation in a nationwide advertising and exploitation contest on "Dirigible," the Jack Holt-Ralph Graves picture scheduled for late winter release.

The prizes will be given to the exhibitors and theatre managers turning in the best ideas and suggestions which might be applied to the advertising or exploiting of the film.

The contest is divided into five classes, each class carrying a total of $375 in prize money. The divisions are: Class A, newspaper advertising campaigns; class B, newspaper publicity campaign; class C, ideas for the decoration of lobbies and fronts; class D, suggestions for window displays and merchandise tieups, and Class E, suggestions for catch-lines, slogans and heralds.

First prize in each class is $150. Second prize is $100, third prize $75 and fourth prize $50.

Judges in the contest will be Joe Brandt, president of Columbia; J. H. Goldberg and J. H. Gallagher, general sales manager and director of public relations respectively for Columbia, and W. Livingston Larned, advertising counsel.

The best ideas and suggestions received from the contestants will be passed along to exhibitors with the general advertising matter on the picture. This, according to a statement by Joe Brandt, is in line with Columbia's announced policy of giving full service and exploitation co-operation to all exhibitors playing the company's product.

The contest is open to all theatre managers and exhibitors in the United States and Canada. Entries will be accepted until midnight, February 1, 1931, and the list of winners will be made public as soon after that date as possible.

Nine Subjects

Hollywood—Nine subjects will be released by Educational during the first month of the new year, with an array of comedies and comedy stars of unusual interest.

FIRE CHIEFS TO CO-OPERATE ON "THIRD ALARM"

TIFFANY has completed a national tie-up with the International Association of Fire Chiefs, consisting of six thousand fire chiefs throughout the United States, who will co-operate to the fullest extent in exploiting "The Third Alarm."

Fred Shepard, headquarters manager and editor of "Fire Engineering," a weekly magazine, after reviewing the picture, stated in his notice to the fire chiefs throughout the entire country, that "The Third Alarm" is the finest fire picture from every standpoint, produced to date, and asks that they co-operate with the exhibitors throughout the country in tie-ups of every sort.

Special exploitation material is being distributed by Tiffany to every exhibitor playing this production, which will enable him to get the fullest of co-operation from the fire department in his town, who is also being notified directly by the International Association of Fire Chiefs to work hand in hand with the exhibitors.

Special benefits for the Firemen's Fund have already been planned by exhibitors, who have also secured fire engines and other fire apparatus in the exploitation of the picture.

COLUMBIA BUYS A FABIAN NOVEL

New York — Warner Fabian's "The Men in Her Life," one of the most sensational of the season's "best sellers" has been secured by Columbia Pictures for production during the coming season. This is the first literary vehicle to be acquired by Columbia since Harry Cohn, vice-president in charge of production, arrived in New York, to inaugurate the company's new policy of having the production head personally supervise the purchase of fiction and stage material, in the East.

SIMPLE STUNT GETS PUBLICITY

A MOVIE tie-up was effected by the staff of the Circle Theatre in Indianapolis recently which involved a newspaper and a shoe manufacturer as well as the theatre.

Staff photographers of the Star at the noon hour snapped groups of men in different sections of the city. Five groups were snapped daily for six days. One of the members of each group was selected to be given a pair of shoes and his photograph was marked by a ring drawn around his head. The photographs were reproduced in the Star and the lucky men in the groups on proving their identity at the theatre got an order for the shoes.

The stunt was considered a circulation booster for the newspaper, it brought the shoe manufacturer a lot of publicity and it helped swell the crowds at the Circle Theatre. And best of all it was one of the most inexpensive tie-ups in comparison with the great amount of interest it occasioned.

MERCHANTS HELP "LIFE OF PARTY"

A most effective advertising tie-up in connection with the showing of "The Life of the Party" in Vancouver was put over recently. The tie-up was brought about by the advertising staff of the Daily Province, and combined the Brunswick Radio, a number of the important shops and the Strand Theatre, at which the Warner picture was presented. The result was a page of commercial advertising in which Winnie Lightner and "The Life of the Party" were featured. It was the biggest co-operative ad ever run in Vancouver in connection with a picture and created a good deal of talk.

It must be said of "The Life of the Party" that it seems to be a "natural" in securing co-operative advertising. The American ran two pages of co-operative advertising on the picture while it was being shown in New York and the idea carried out there has been successfully used in several other cities.

UNUSUAL STUNT PUTS OVER SHORT

H. E. WILTON, manager of the Strand Theatre in Hamilton, Canada, is responsible for an ingenious idea in exploiting a Vitaphone Varieties attraction. The title of the presentation is "A Bad Boy From a Good Family," starring Phil Baker, accordian player and comedian. Here's how he did it:

Baker plays the accordian and sings. He requests a man in the fourth row to sing the chorus while he plays it for him. At this point in the act, Wilton had a tall man in the fourth row stand up, and the operator put a "spot" on him. With the exception of those surrounding the man, the rest of the audience thought he really was doing the singing. And the result was a riot!

Hollywood — Richard Wallace, maker of "Innocents of Paris" and "The Right to Love," has been assigned to direct William Powell's next picture, "Cavalier of the Streets," according to an announcement from B. P. Schulberg.

At the same time Schulberg stated that Wynne Gibson, former stage actress who last week was given a long-term contract by Paramount, will have one of two feminine leads in "Cavalier of the Streets." Miss Gibson came to Hollywood from Broadway following her engagement with Richard Bennett in "Jarnegan" and in the title role of "Little Jessie James." She recently enacted an important part in the Jack Oakie vehicle, "The Gang Buster."

"DAYBREAK" FOR RAMON NOVARRO

Hollywood — "Daybreak," an adaptation of Schnitzler's story of the same name, has been definitely selected as Ramon Novarro's new starring picture. Jean Hersholt is the first player to be selected for the supporting cast of this film, which will be directed by Jacques Feyder. Since the completion of "Call of the Flesh" Novarro has been busy directing and acting in Spanish and French versions of this vehicle.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PICTURES

PICTURE OF THE WEEK

Cimarron

Radio

Cast: Richard Dix, Irene Dunne, Estelle Taylor, Nance O'Neill, Roscoe Ates, Stanley Fields, Geo. Stone, William Collier, Jr., and many others. Directed by Wesley Ruggles.

Radio has delivered an epic in "Cimarron." Its scenery, direction, acting, story—in fact, everything that has gone into the picture has been treated with the finest care.

A complete review of the picture will appear on this page next week.

Universal—68 Minutes

Cast: George Sidney, Charles Murray, Vera Gordon, Kate Price, Frank David, Lloyd Whitlock, Nick Cogley, Ed Kane. Directed by Vin Moore.

This is practically all ivory. First off, Messrs. Cohen and Kelly are in need of it as piano manufacturers—they are losing sales as a result of having no ivory for keys. So they take the wives and sail for Africa to round up a supply of 100 per cent ivory from the cannibals, and so on and so forth. This picture decidedly could have been better done or left undone. Still, there are more laughs in it than in many a comedy that has gotten by to box office tinkles, and probably it won't be as much razzed as praised. There's a harem and a sho-nuff sheik in it, and you'll like the harem better. There's a little Ingagi stuff in this one for good measure, but bad taste. Murray gets little chance to gag, but Sidney is able to do his usual dialect stuff acceptably.

But wait 'll Trader Horn sees this. He'll never go back.—R. G. T.

Triangle—80 Minutes

Cast: Henry Walthall, Miriam Cooper, Josephine Crowell, Mae Marsh, Spotiswoode Aiken, Ralph Lewis, Lillian Gish, Elmer Clifton, Robert Harron, Wallace Reid, Mary Alden, Joseph Henabery, Raoul Walsh, Donald Crisp. Directed by D. W. Griffith; adapted by Frank Woods; recording by Campbell McCullough.

Millions to whom the phrase, "The Birth of a Nation" is as familiar as "Yes, We Have No Bananas," but who have never seen Griffith's epic of the original Ku Klux Klan, will line up at box offices everywhere to see, for the first time, this immortal of the old —and the new—screen. To those millions will be added other millions who have seen the picture once, twice or many times before; there is an enduring magic about this production which in itself gave the motion picture art its first glimpse of the great heights to which that struggling art might aspire.

Musical accompaniment and careful adapting, with an occasional touch of speech and massed voices in mob scenes, lend poignancy to the remembered glories of the original silent production and detract nothing from the effectiveness of this re-issue. We say "this re-issue" advisedly, for there will be others in years to come; we wonder a little that no one thought of the chance to tie the somewhat abruptly moving scene-changes of the original together in this re-issue with a Technicolor sequence of symbolic figures amplifying the terrifice suggestion of the picture's famous title. And doesn't this revival, with the renewed interest which will focus on Walthall as the "Little Colonel" and on the perennial Lillian Gish, point to an opportunity for some producer to return these favorites together to the screen?—R. G. T.

The Criminal Code

Columbia—85 Minutes

Cast: Walter Huston, Constance Cummings, Phillips Holmes, Mary Doran, DeWitt Jennings, John Sheehan, Boris Karoff, Otto Hoffman, Clark Marshall, Arthur Hoyt, Ethel Wales, Paul Porcasi, Nicolas Soussanin. Directed by Howard Hawks.

Columbia seems to be delivering the product it promised this year. Here is an excellent example of what that company has produced and if your fans aren't fed up on crime pictures, you should make money on "Criminal Code." Even if they are fed up on the type, they will like this picture because of its even distribution of comedy, pathos and drama. Walter Huston cut another nitch into the gallery of outstanding stars of the day with his performance in the production and Howard Hawks seems to have made a thorough study of prison life in order to reproduce it so effectively. However, this reviewer has never been to prison so he cannot vouch for the authenticity of some of the episodes. However, the scenes seem plausible and it would be difficult to pick flaws in technicalities.

Phillips Holmes should come in for considerable praise for his contribution to the entertainment merits of the feature. Holmes delivers a nicely acted role as a young chap in prison who falls for the warden's daughter. The warden, played by Huston, formerly was the district attorney who sent Holmes to prison for political reasons and Holmes is given an opportunity to make a comeback following the murder of a stool pigeon.

Constance Cummings makes a very acceptable and satisfactory leading lady and the cast has been ably selected and directed.—K. W. C.

NEW LABORATORY FOR RKO STUDIO

Hollywood—Spurred on by the lifting of zoning restrictions, Radio Pictures plans immediate construction of a modern high-speed film laboratory to be erected near its Hollywood studio.

The plant will have a working capacity of 60,000,000 feet of film annually, according to Joseph I. Schnitzer, president of Radio Pictures.

Previous efforts to build the laboratory were delayed because the studio's property was in a residential area. Zoning restrictions were lifted when it was disclosed that an average of 200 men would be employed regularly.

The laboratory will augment a $6,000,000 studio building program during the last sixteen months.

☆ indicates productions that have received A-P Merit Award.

Africa Speaks—Columbia (75). Actual photographic records of the Colorado-African expedition; truly an achievement. (Oct. 7)

Along Came Youth — Paramount (75). Amusing story starring Charles (Buddy) Rogers which should get over big with most audiences. Comedy honors go to Stuart Erwin. (Dec. 16)

A Lady's Morals — M-G-M (83). Grace Moore and Reginald Denny in an elaborate and, at times, a dazzling production of the story of "Jenny Lind." (Dec. 2)

Bachelor Father—M-G-M (76). A wow of a comedy in which Marion Davies injects her best talents; first class entertainment despite the title. (Dec. 30)

Big Trail—Fox (125). Impressive epic of pioneer western days with love interest provided by John Wayne and Marguerite Churchill; first rate entertainment. (Nov. 4)

Brothers—Columbia (78). Talker version of the stage success of the same name; sure-fire entertainment with Bert Lytell giving a splendid performance. (Nov. 11)

Boudoir Diplomat — Universal (72). Sophisticated comedy of diplomacy and loves, gorgeous costumes and gowns; Ian Keith and Betty Compson gives excellent portrayals. (Dec. 23)

Cat Creeps — Universal (76). Mystery thriller expertly produced with an excellent cast headed by Helen Twelvetrees and Raymond Hackett. (Nov. 18)

Charley's Aunt — Columbia (87). The popular story remade with Charlie Ruggles as the center attraction; 100 per cent entertainment for those who don't take their picture fare too seriously. (Dec. 16)

Check and Double Creck—Radio (75). Amos and Andy are the whole show working every minute to keep the laughs at a steady flow. Should be a money-maker anywhere. (Oct. 28)

Derelict—Paramount (75). Thrilling sea story which rates better than average entertainment. George Bancroft and William Boyd (of stage fame) play the leading parts. (Nov. 25)

Devil With Women—Fox (65). The picture has the usual McLaglen flavor and can be counted for entertainment. (Nov. 11)

Devil to Pay—United Artists (78). Subtle comedy-drama which gives Colman his best role; can be classed as one of the finer pictures of the current season. (Dec. 23)

Doorway to Hell — Warner (77). Realistically portrayed melodrama of racketeers and gang wars; Lew Ayres gives another outstanding performance. (Nov. 25)

East Is West—Universal (72). Talkie version of the popular stage play having been made before in silent form. Lew Ayres registers in his first dramatic role while Lupe Velez is well cast. (Nov. 18)

Ex-Flame—Liberty (72). Modernized version of "East Lynne"; Marian Nixon displays marked ability in the leading role. (Dec. 30)

Fast and Loose — Paramount (71). Light farce which rates only as a fair programmer with the cast practically unknown to movie fans. (Dec. 16)

Feet First—Paramount (93). Sure fire entertainment for the whole family, the familiar Lloyd stunts predominating. (Nov. 18)

Fighting Through — Tiffany (60). Ken Maynard and his horse, Tarzan, should be liked in this fast moving western thriller. (Dec. 30)

Fourth Alarm — W. Ray Johnston (60). Thrilling melodrama of fire fighting with Nick Stuart as the hero and Ann Christy as the girl he rescues. (Dec. 16)

Girl of the Golden West — First National (80). Appeal to present day audiences questionable; might serve to satisfy the old timers. Ann Harding good but does not fit her part as a saloon proprietress. (Nov. 11)

Last of the Lone Wolf—Columbia (71). Bert Lytell again impersonates the character created by Joseph Vance and gives a very able performance. Pretty fair entertainment. (Nov. 4)

Laughter—Paramount (97). Well acted and directed picture, offering the best in sophisticated drama and human emotions, featuring Nancy Carroll and Frederic March. (Nov. 11)

Life of the Party—Warners (70). Typical Winnie Lightner offering that gets away to a slap-bang start and doesn't let up. (Nov. 4)

Lightnin'—Fox (80). Excellent piece of entertainment enhanced by the brilliant dialogue of Will Rogers. (Dec. 9)

Madonna of the Streets—Columbia (75). Better than average program material with satisfactory performances played by Robert Ames and Evelyn Brent. (Dec. 23)

Maybe It's Love—Warners (74). Good entertainment with timely football angle; most of the comedy is furnished by Joe E. Brown. (Nov. 4)

Morocco—Paramount (83). Story of the French Foreign Legion which marks the first appearance of Marlene Dietrich, new German star. (Dec. 9)

Night Work—Pathe (94). Human interest drama which rates as good entertainment for the whole family. Eddie Quillan furnishes most of the laughs. Dec. 2)

Oh, for a Man—Fox (86). The feature is good for many laughs; Reginald Denny and Jeanette MacDonald gives good performances. (Nov. 18)

Princess and the Plumber—Fox (72). Charles Farrell in a made-to-order part as the plumber, while Maureen O'Sullivan delightfully fits the part of the princess; should satisfy anywhere. (Dec. 30)

Remote Control—M-G-M (66). Will please even those patrons who are tired of Bill Haines and his wisecracking; re-instates the comedian as a favorite. (Nov. 25)

Reaching for the Moon — United Artists (—). A modern story of genuine fun which should register well at the box office for the Douglas Fairbanks' fans. (Dec. 30)

Right to Love—Paramount (80). An outstanding production expertly directed and featuring Ruth Chatterton; its appeal is mainly for adults. (Dec. 23)

See America Thirst—Universal (72). Good action comedy that should please generally; plenty of funny doings by Harry Langdon and Slim Summerville. (Dec. 9)

Scandal Sheet — Paramount (75). Newspaper yarn, well directed and well acted, but a bit far-fetched, with George Bancroft as the managing editor of a daily newspaper. (Dec. 30)

Scotland Yard—Fox (71). Improbable story but the picture packs a wallop and is loaded with entertainment and sustains an element of suspense throughout. (Oct. 28)

Sinner's Holiday—Pathe (60). Story of amusement park life which makes good entertainment anywhere; Grant Withers and Evelyn Knapp play the leading roles. (Dec. 2)

Sins of the Children—M-G-M (90). Story of a German-American whose life and love are centered around his children. Good entertainment with a moral. (Aug. 19)

Soup to Nuts—Fox (65). Rube (Cartoonist) Goldberg story which will bring many laughs; Ted Healy heads the cast. (Nov. 4)

Sunny—First National (75). Another musical, although not outstanding, turns out to be a pretty fair piece of entertainment with Marilyn Miller as the star. (Dec. 9)

Third Alarm—Tiffany (79). Popular appealing action drama glorifying the fighters of the flames; Anita Louise and James Hall play the leading parts. (Dec. 2)

Tol'able David—Columbia (75). A screen classic which spells box office in a big way and puts Richard Cromwell on the road to fame. (Nov. 18)

Tom Sawyer — Paramount (75). The famous Mark Twain story expertly interpreted on the screen by Jackie Coogan in the title role with an excellent supporting cast. (Dec. 2)

Trails of Danger—Big 4 (60). Will please where westerns are still popular; cast of favorites including Wally Wales, Jack Perrin, and Pete Morrison. (Nov. 11)

Unholy Three—M-G-M (72). Lon Chaney and Lila Lee in the talkie version of the silent success made a few years ago. Chaney ably displays more of his talents in his first audible attraction. (July 15)

Up the River—Fox (92). Plenty of laughter in this opus of jail life. Tracy and Hymer make a good laugh combination. (Oct. 28)

Utah Kid—Tiffany (60) Rapid fire action western that should satisfy the cowboy fans; Rex Lease and Dorothy Sebastian are the pair involved in the love plot. (Dec. 2)

AFFILIATED THEATRE SUPPLY DEALERS

A Nation-Wide Organization of Independently Owned Stores

Are You An "EASY" Buyer of Theatre Equipment?

WHEN a theatre supply house tells you this or that piece of equip- is "better" what is your reaction?

If you are an "easy" buyer you take the claim hook, line and sinker—but there are mighty few such "easy" buyers left in the theatre field. Affiliated Theatre Supply Dealers, doing business with over 80 per cent of the theatres throughout the country, offer equipment on a price-and-quality-comparison basis. The wise buyer of theatre equipment makes sure, before he buys, that what he pays his money for is the equipment he needs, the quality he needs, and that the price is right, in line with quality and performance.

EVERY Affiliated Theatre Supply Dealer buys for his store stock with these thoughts uppermost in mind: To sell equipment we must buy right, ourselves. We have the whole theatre equipment manufacturing field to choose from. We are bound by no rigid ties to any manufacturer. We are obligated only to our customers. We must deliver to our customers theatre equipment that will stand every test of price and quality—equipment on which we can fearlessly tell our customers, compare this, quality for quality, price for price, with anything else that may be offered you. Let our merchandise, not our salesmanship, be the deciding factor in what you buy from us.

You can buy higher-priced equipment, from booth to screen, than you will find in any A. T. S. D. store—but higher prices do not prove higher quality, nor does paying the higher price prove you to be a wise buyer. You will depend on the independent in the end!

STEFFEN TO KEEP CLOSED SUNDAYS

Wessington Springs, S. D.—R. J. Steffen, who operates the local movie theatre, has lost his hard and long fight for Sunday movies. Denied a permanent injunction to restrain the city from interfering with his Sunday shows, Steffen says that he will keep his theatre, the Lyric, closed on Sundays henceforth. Judge F. B. Smith in district court at Mitchell decided against Steffen, holding that the city ordinance prohibiting the Sunday shows is not in conflict with the state constitution, as claimed by the theatre owner.

At the same time, however, Judge Smith, in his opinion, took a left-handed rap at Wessington Springs.

"The city has a right to vote and pass such an ordinance, and if the people are so narrow-minded as to vote for it, the city has a right to enforce it," said Judge Smith.

Steffen continued to keep the Lyric open on Sundays even after the passage of the ordinance which he claimed to be illegal. He was arrested seven times and released without bail six times. A jury, which heard the case, acquitted him the seventh time. Following this acquittal, he sought the injunction which Judge Smith denied him.

TWO ADDED TO "LAST PARADE"

Hollywood—Edmund Breese and "Vivi" have been added to the cast of Columbia's Pictures' post-war drama of gangland and the modern racketeer, "The Last Parade." Erle C. Kenton is directing and an imposing cast includes Jack Holt and Tom Moore, teamed for the featured male roles, and Constance Cummings, new Columbia discovery, in the leading feminine part.

"Vivi" is a former Chicago newsboy, who by his natural talent and ability to entertain, earned enough money to finance a college career for himself at the University of Chicago. Upon graduating "Vivi" decided upon a theatrical career and so became a club entertainer at Chicago, specializing in character impersonations. Vaudeville engagements followed until he was offered his initial picture opportunity in "The Last Parade."

"CRIMINAL CODE" GIVEN 5-A RATING

Ben Marcus, manager of the Minneapolis Columbia Film Exchange, is elated over the fact that the Columbia release, "The Criminal Code," starring Walter Huston, was given a 5-A rating by Merle Potter, drama editor of the Minneapolis Journal, in the latter's revue in the Sunday Journal. This is the highest rating possible under Mr. Potter's system and denotes an "extraordinary picture." It is one of the few releases to win such a tribute from the Journal drama editor.

The picture packed the RKO Orpheum all through last week and Mr. Marcus is confident that it will "mop up" all through the territory. It is a gripping drama of life behind the prison bars and exposes the weakness in both the American system of dispensing legal justice and the manner of punishing offenders.

Reopening

Sheboygan, Wis.—The Van der Vaart Theatre here has been reopened by the B-J-M Amusement Co. of this city. Timothy Johnson, president of the company, and John Van der Vaart, acting in behalf of the Van der Vaart Realty company, completed the deal for a long lease. The house has been closed since the Blumberg enterprises, its former operators, quit in 1929.

INCREASE CAST OF "THE FLOOD"

Hollywood — Frank Sheridan, well known character actor, will depict the role of David Bruce, Sr., and William V. Mong, also celebrated for his character delineations, will portray the role of Colonel Marshall in Columbia's tale of life in the Mississippi Valley, entitled "The Flood." James Tinling is directing with Monte Blue in the leading role and Eleanor Boardman in the featured feminine part.

UNABLE TO STOP "BIRTH" REISSUE

Efforts of Mayor W. F. Kunze and a group of Negroes to halt the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Lyceum Theatre in Minneapolis and the Garrick Theatre in St. Paul proved unavailing last week. The Triangle Film Co., distributors of the picture, carried their fight into court and obtained orders prohibiting interference with the performers.

Mayor Kunze served notice on Hugh Andres, manager of the Minneapolis Lyceum, forbidding the showing of the picture. His action followed complaints from delegations of Negro citizens who alleged that the picture would provoke race hatred. Mr. Andres, however, was successful in securing a restraining order from the district court, preventing the police department or mayor from stopping the picture.

The picture, re-issued with sound equipment, did a big business both in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

EMIL JANNINGS TO RETURN HERE

New York—Emil Jannings, eminent German actor, has been signed again to a contract by Paramount, for whom he worked in American-made films back in the silent days. He will come to this country to appear shortly in a talking picture called "The Man I Killed," from a play by Maurice Rostand.

This film will be made at the Paramount New York studio, under the direction of Ernst Lubitsch, under whom Jannings achieved some of his most notable triumphs, beginning with "Passion." This will be the first time that Jannings has worked in the East. After adding to his laurels in "The Patriot" and "The Last Command," Jannings left the Hollywood studios, where his last picture was "Betrayal," and returned to Germany when talking pictures developed.

New Fox Exchange to be Erected Here Soon

Further indications of the prosperity of the film industry in the Northwest and its confidence regarding the future outlook are found in the announcement of M. A. Levy, manager of the Fox exchange in Minneapolis, that a new $50,000 building is to be constructed immediately to house the Fox Film Company which now is located at 38 Glenwood avenue.

The new quarters, providing twice as much space as the present building, are made necessary by the enormous growth of business during the past year and the prospects of even better results during 1931, according to Mr. Levy.

"We have outgrown our Glenwood avenue quarters where we have been located for the past eight years," says Mr. Levy. "The additional space is required to handle our business properly and to enable us to give Northwest exhibitors the finest of service."

The new exchange will be located on First avenue north, opposite to the Paramount exchange. Plans for the structure already have been drawn and work will start within 30 days. It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy by May 1.

The building will be two stories in height and 50 by 100 feet. It will be modern in every respect, including the finest and most up-to-date equipment available. A theatrette, seating 40 people, will have Western Electric sound equipment.

Other new film exchanges built in Minneapolis during the past year include those of Warner Brothers, Columbia and Tiffany. The buildings occupied by Paramount, United Artists and Educational also are comparatively new. All together they constitute evidence of confidence in the future for the film industry in the Northwest, it is pointed out.

M P T O A Consolidation to be Discussed Again in Chicago

Allied Calls Independent Convention for February 10 and 11; To Be First National Meeting of Body

Although Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors has been organized more than two years, its first national convention will be inaugurated February 10 and 11 in Chicago. An Allied convention has been expected since its inception in 1928, but it was necessary to lay the groundwork for a national body before an effective conclave could be called.

The Chicago convention is not limited to Allied members, it is understood. Every independent exhibitor in the United States is invited to attend. Among the important matters that will confront the meeting will be the amalgamation of M. P. T. O. A. and Allied States. The consolidation, reported last week as off, is not cold entirely, according to those who are well informed, despite the fact that the Allied directors rejected the proposal in Chicago two weeks ago. Their reasons for putting thumbs down on the merger are said to be due to their fear that the independents would be in the minority.

The feasibility of the consolidation is still under discussion. Advantages and disadvantages have been attacked from all sides and a definite stand on the proposition is expected to be reached at the Allied meeting in February.

MAGAZINE AWARDS FOR GOOD FILMS

New York—Motion pictures of outstanding merit, considered suitable and interesting to both adult and child audiences, will be awarded an approving seal by "The Parents' Magazine."

The first awards of this seal of approval have been made to the current films: "Abraham Lincoln," "Tom Sawyer," "A Lady's Morals,," "At the Bottom of the World," "Grumpy," "Lightnin'," "Around the World with the Graf Zeppelin," "Once a Gentleman," "The Silent Enemy," "Song O' My Heart," "With Byrd at the South Pole."

Officially interested and cooperating in the publication of "The Parents' Magazine" are Teachers' College, Columbia University, University of Minnesota, University of Iowa, and Yale University.

PUBLIX COLUMBIA DEAL IS CLOSED

New York—Publix and Columbia Pictures have announced the closing of one of the most important film contracts consummated this season, involving bookings in more than 500 theatres.

Through the terms of this agreement Publix has contracted for the entire 1930-31 Columbia product of twenty features and seven series of shorts to be exhibited in the circuit's theatres from coast to coast.

According to the agreement, Columbia is assured an outlet in every city and important community in the United States through the vast Publix circuit of playhouses. The contract provides that in addition to the theatres now owned or controlled by the Publix circuit, representation will be given Columbia's product in any additional theatres, control of which shall be acquired, where the Columbia service is available.

NEW CONTRACT TO MELVILLE BROWN

Hollwood—Melville Brown, who just completed "Private Secretary" for Radio Pictures, has been signed to a new term contract, according to announcement by William LeBaron, vice-president in charge of production.

Since joining the studio's directorial forces a little over a year ago, Brown has filmed six features, among these the Amos 'n' Andy starring film debut, "Check and Double Check."

Brown started his directing career with Charlie Chaplin, for whom he made "A Dog's Life" and "Shoulder Arms."

PARA. TO MAKE "UP POPS DEVIL"

Hollywood—"Up Pops the Devil," light-hearted comedy of modern marriage in Greenwich Village currently being presented on the New York and Los Angeles legitimate stage, will be produced by Paramount as a talking picture co-featuring Carol Lombard and Norman Foster.

MAY ROAD SHOW "EAST LYNNE"

Hollywood—Road showing for "East Lynne" in advance of its regular release are under consideration by J. R. Grainger, vice-president in charge of distribution for Fox Films. After viewing scenes from the picture during his visit to Hollywood, Mr. Grainger announced that he was seriously studying the advisability of making an exception to the policy inaugurated about three months ago by which Fox Films would road show no more pictures.

The entire picture has been filmed in sequence, and Director Frank Lloyd predicts that there will be no cutting when it is completed.

"MUSKETEERS" FOR CHAS. ROGERS

Hollywood—"Manhattan Musketeers," describing the rise and fall of an idolized jazz band leader, is to be filmed by Paramount at the Hollywood studios as a comedy talking vehicle for Charles Rogers, Skeets Gallagher and Stuart Erwin and as a companion picture to the successful "Close Harmony," in which the two first named players appeared.

Rogers, who has just returned to the West Coast following a European vacation and an appendicitis operation en route homeward, has been cast as a syncopating man of the hour whose affairs of the heart in "Manhattan Musketeers" cause trouble for his manager, Gallagher, and his drummer, Erwin. Edward Sutherland, codirector of "Close Harmony" and director of the Jack Okie films, "The Social Lion" and "The Gang Buster," has been assigned to the new production, Lasky stated.

NO PRICE REDUCTION IN SIGHT FROM ERPI, SAYS SALES MANAGER

New York—There is no prospect of lower prices for sound picture equipment, according to C. W. Bunn, sales manager of Electrical Research Products, Inc., in an authorized interview.

Said Mr. Bunn: "I am sometimes asked by exhibitors when the prices of reliable sound apparatus for theatres are going to come down. My answer is that, so far as our company is concerned, there is no prospect of any reduction. Believing as we do, that the future of the sound picture depends upon a high standard of quality, the resources of our company are being principally devoted to maintaining and improving that quality.

"The public is simply not willing to stand for poor sound, and if more people are to be attracted to theatres, a lot of theatres which are now giving indifferent reproduction have got to improve it, and theatres which have not yet bought, might just as well not buy if the price consideration is to be foremost.

"As evidence that it is impossible to try and manufacture adequate equipment to meet a price basis, it is only necessary to point to the records. Over 116 manufacturers have gone out of business trying to manufacture on a policy of cheap prices with no service.

"Such reductions in price as our company was able to put into effect in 1929 and 1930 came about as a result of economies in large scale manufacture and the fact that the widespread installations of our equipment throughout the country enabled us to service them at a lower cost per theatre. Lower costs to be expected from simplified design are not in the picture at present because the tendency in the studios as a result of the introduction of noiseless recording is to make pictures even better than before, and this throws even greater responsibility on the projecting apparatus in the theatre to reproduce such pictures up to the standard. Our service organization right now is tuning up Western Electric installations in theatres all over the country so that they will be able to do justice to these new pictures as they come from the studios, and the problem for the exhibitors, therefore, as I see it, is to set their minds to giving their patrons the best, and not waste time waiting for bargain prices on equipment.

"It is natural for exhibitors to want to buy at the lowest possible price, but many of them who are now awaiting lower figures lose sight of the fact that since the introduction of sound, prices have been reduced to a point where reliable equipment can now be bought for less than the average theatre used to pay for suitable musical accompaniment for their silent pictures.

"Our own company's policy has been to make only a reasonable profit over and above our costs. Prices will not be reduced simply to meet competition. Indeed, looking ahead to 1931, it seems to me that if we are to maintain a fair margin of profit this year, the trend of prices on theatre equipment capable of providing the new standards of reproduction is more likely to be upward than downward."

PICTURE BUSINESS

RECENTLY M. A. Lightman, president of the M.P.T.O.A., made the statement that to be successful the smaller theatres will have to become de luxe houses. Now comes a letter from an erstwhile showman, who not only concurs with Mr. Lightman's views, but who also gives some pertinent facts. The letter is from Charles J. Giegerich, director of advertising and publicity for Pathe, who has had considerable experience as a showman in many sections of the country. We quote Mr. Giegerich's letter:

"The constant improvement in the scenes and settings of motion picture shave educated the public to an appreciation of artistic surroundings and the de luxe motion picture theatres have furthered and made real the desires of the public for comfort and refinement in places of amusement.

"Under analysis it will be found that the small neighborhood theatre can offer its patrons everything that the big town de luxe house can serve with the exception of an augmented orchestra and a stage show and it is extremely doubtful if the public desires stage shows to the extent that they will travel downtown and pay higher admission prices than are charged in the neighborhood theatre.

"With good sound equipment and adequate projection the neighborhood theatre can give its patrons the same high class music, the same dialogue and the same pictorial action and beauty that the de luxe house offers. And all that remains for the small house to more successfully compete with the big theatre is to make the neighborhood house more attractive in point of decoration and general style.

"The small house cannot install a great ornate lobby nor a towering starry dome over the orchestra pit, but artistic ingenuity and the expenditure of a reasonable sum of money can transform many small theatres into most attractive miniature picture palaces with appearances quite as alluring as the gigantic downtown theatre.

"Artistically arranged little theatres will be preferred and generously patronized by the public, but it should be remembered that the average showman is not necessarily an artist and the matter of decoration and redecoration of theatres should be placed in competent hands."

Those who have been contemplating improvement of their theatres will find no time like the present to begin this work. Investigation has brought out the fact that labor and materials are now much cheaper than in a long time. And, those who have not given a thought to the modernizing of their houses, may find it a worthwhile subject for their consideration.

ANYTHING worth while takes time to accomplish. True, there are wrinkles that will have to be ironed out before a merger of Allied and the M.P.T.O.A. is effected. But, somehow, we feel confident that these wrinkles will be ironed out. However, with the strong legislative programs that are mapped out against the industry in nearly every state in the Union and with the necessity for an united front in defense of exhibitors' interests, time is the essence of this merger. All that is necessary to be done, without undue delay, should be done to expedite the welding of the two national exhibitor organizations into one strong body.

The title of the new Richard Arlen vehicle has been changed by Paramount from the working title of "The Westerner" to "Gun Smoke." Mary Brian has the feminine lead in this audible picture, which is from an original story by Grover Jones and William Slavens McNutt, dealing with Eastern bad men who go out to shoot up the West.

" QUOTES "

ARCH REEVES

Publicity Director, Paramount Hollywood Studios.

"To me, the essential thing in any publicity or advertising campaign, is to peg the dominating factor, the strongest sales argument in that production and then to shoot the entire works on that peg."

"Min" "Paid" "Code" High Grosses Here

Minneapolis (week ending Jan. 9)—Three outstanding attractions brought prosperity to the showhouses that housed them the past week. They were "Min and Bill" at the Century, "Paid" at the Minnesota, and "The Criminal Code" at the RKO Orpheum. Each of the above trio won high praise from the critics and the enthusiastic approval of the fans. "Min and Bill," in particular, was an outstanding magnet, drawing packed houses at every performance and holding over for a escond week.

Aster—The Truth About Youth (First National), Loretta Young. Business: Fair. Summary: The romance of a noble-hearted guardian who wins the heart of his pretty young ward while trying to arrange her marriage to the man whom he thinks she loves. Entertainment Merits: 70 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, "Indians Are Coming" Serial.

Century — Min and Bill (M-G-M), Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery. Business: Very big. Summary: A knockout comedy-drama concerning a happy-go-lucky rough-house couple. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, Screen Vaudeville.

Lyceum—The Birth of a Nation (Triangle), Lilian and Dorothy Gish. Business: Good. Summary: The old thriller improved by sound effects. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent.

Lyric—Scarlet Pages (First National), Elsie Ferguson. Business: Fair. Summary: Highly artificial melodrama concerning a woman attorney who unknowingly defends her own daughter on trial for murder. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, Screen Vaudeville.

Minnesota — "Paid" (M-G-M), Joan Crawford. Business: Big. Summary: The dramatic story of a pretty shopgirl who serves a prison sentence for a crime which she did not commit and then seeks revenge by marrying the son of the wealthy store owner responsible for her plight. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage Show, Sound News.

RKO Orpheum—"The Criminal Code (Columbia), Walter Huston. Business: Big. Summary: A thrilling, gripping and moving drama of life behind the prison bars; intensely realistic. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, Sound News.

RKO Seventh Street — Hook, Line and Sinker (Radio), Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey. Business: Fair. Summary: Second consecutive week in loop of this mirth-provoking comedy.

State — The Bat Whispers (United Artists), Chester Morris. Business: Fair. Summary: A mystery thriller chock full of scares and laughs. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy and Screen Vaudeville.

PROMINENT STARS WITH EDUCATIONAL

Hollywood—Educational's early 1931 product will offer a striking lineup of box office names with a number of players of distinct priminence scheduled to appear in Educational's new comedies.

Glenn Tryon, of "Broadway" fame, was recently signed by Al Christie for an Educational-Vanity Comedy, "Happy Little Honeymoon," which has gone into production under the direction of Harold Beaudine.

Louise Brooks is another full-fledged star who has been signed for a two-reel Educational laughmaker. She will be seen in a Mermaid Comedy, titled "Windy Riley Goes Hollywood," based on an original story by Ken Kling, creator of the famous "Windy Riley" newspaper comic strip. In this same comedy will appear also Johnny Shaw a name more familiar to legitimate fans than movie fans. Mr. Shaw made his screen debut in Eddie Cantor's "Whoopee," and will essay an important role in the new Mermaid.

Although he made a large number of silent comedies for Educational, Clyde Cook was only recently signed for his first Educational Talking Comedy—a Mermaid—which has just been completed and titled "The Shooting of the Duck." Cook achieved remarkable success as comic relief in some of the biggest feature talking pictures, and his faculty for making even the smallest comedy part stand out in a picture has made him one of the most popular talking comedians.

Yola D'Avril is another big feature name to appear in a new Educational Comedy. The well-known French damsel was so highly successful in the Sennett Comedy, "A Hollywood Theme Song," that she was cast for an important role with Andy Clyde in the latest Mack Sennett Comedy, "The College Vamp."

FIVE FEATURES NOW IN WORK AT RADIO'S STUDIOS

Hollywood—Establishing a mark which shatters all previous records for simultaneous production, five pictures are being filmed at the Radio Pictures' studio, with two others in preparation.

Usually the accepted studio policy in Hollywod is to curtail production until after the holidays, but Radio's continued activity is in pursuance of the enlarged program recently announced by William LeBaron, vice-president in charge of production.

In the midst of production at the studio is the Bert Wheeler-Robert Woolsey comedy, "Assorted Nuts," which features Dorothy Lee and a strong supporting cast under the direction of Edward Cline. "Assorted Nuts" is an original story by Douglas MacLean and Al Boasberg, with dialogue sequences by Ralph Spence.

"Ladies for Hire" is being directed by George Archainbaud, with Betty Compson, John Darrow, Margaret Livingston, Gilbert Emery and Edgar Norton. The story is an original by Robert Milton and Guy Bolton. Wallace Smith prepared the script.

"Kept Husbands," featuring Dorothy Mackaill, Joel McCrea, Ned Sparks, Mary Carr, Clara Kimball Young, and Florence Roberts, is being directed by Lloyd Bacon.

The last of the "Broadway Headliner" series, produced by Lou Brock, is nearing completion at the studio, with Rosco Ates and Hugh Herbert heading a cast of celebrated stage stars.

"Private Secretary," an original story by Alan Brener Schultz, is in the first stages of rehearsal, with Melville Brown directing. The cast is composed of Mary Astor, Robert Ames, Ricardo Cortez, Kitty Kelly, Noel Francis, William Morris and Catherine Dale Owen.

Preparing are "Madame Julie" from the stage play by Irving Kaye Davis, which Victor Schertzinger will direct, and "Bachelor Apartment," featuring Lowell Sherman and Irene Dunne, with Sherman also directing.

"Bachelor Apartment" is a story by John Howard Lawson, adapted by J. Walter Ruben.

PICTURE OF THE WEEK

The Blue Angel

Para.—100 Minutes

Emil Jannings and Marlene Dietrich star in a picture of beauty and impressiveness. Each is a drawing power and should pull well. It is the story of a professor who falls in love with an entertainer in the Blue Angel cafe. It traces his hardships and humiliations in a most dramatic way. Excellent performances are put over by the two stars.

ASSOCIATED MERIT AWARD PUBLICATIONS

The Man Who Came Back

Fox—80 Minutes

Cast: Charles Farrell, Janet Gaynor, William Holden, Kenneth McKenna, Mary Forbes, Ulrich Haupt. Directed by Raoul Walsh.

We generally think of the Gaynor-Farrell team in a musical. In their latest vehicle is a dressed up version of the stage play of the same name and it is far from a musical. It is a melodrama entertaining in spots and should make money because of the popularity of the stars. However, there are a few shortcomings in some over-melodramatic sequences, but they are incidental to the general appeal of the picture.

Charles Farrell plays the part of a wayward son of a rich man, who after several attempts at making good, starts a drinking life in San Francisco. There he meets Janet. Just as the romance is starting, Farrell is shanghaied and soon finds himself a dope addict in China. Janet follows him there and he makes an effort to stage a comeback in order to save her from following in his footsteps. They go to Hawaii where he becomes successful and at last there is a reconciliation with the father.

Raoul Walsh has done better directing in his career, but the presence of the popular pair should save it at the box office.—G.

The Dawn Patrol

Columbia—61 Minutes

Cast: Buck Jones, Charles Morton, Miriam Seegar, Erville Alderson, Ed LeSaint, Charles King, Hank Mann, Vester Pegg, Slim Whittaker, Charles Brinley. Directed by Christy Cabanne.

If your fans want action, romance, hard riding and some gun play, here it is. "Dawn Trail" has all the ingredients of a first rate western. Buck Jones is right there and so is the story and the direction. It's a well-mounted feature.

Buck is the sheriff in the sheep and cattle country where there is a squabble about a watering place in a valley. The hero is in love with Miriam Seegar, but when her brother kills a sheepherder, he has to decide between his love for the girl and his duty. He decides in favor of duty and goes after the brother to enforce the law. Then follows a series of incidents which dress up the picture for the appetite of the action-craving fans. And the appetite should be satisfied for there is action galore.

Everything works out nicely when the girl's father accidentally kills his son and Buck is relieved of his duty to prosecute his sweetheart's brother.

"The Dawn Trail" is good entertainment.—A. F. S.

Paid

M-G-M—85 Minutes

Cast: Joan Crawford, Robert Armstrong, Marie Prevost, Kent Douglas, John Miljan, Purnell Pratt, Hale Hamilton, R. E. O'Connor, Hyrrell Davis, Gwen Lee, George Cooper, Isabel Withers. Directed by Sam Wood.

"Paid" is a picture version of the celebrated stage play "Within the Law." It has been successful in silent form and its appeal is still strong. The new version follows the play accurately, although there have been a few additions.

Joan Crawford proves her dramatic ability in this feature. She should be more strongly entrenched as a star as a result of "Paid." She puts over a highly commendable performance. The cast has been selected with care and Director Sam Wood has given his best efforts. You can recommend "Paid." It should not disappoint.

Although crook stories are running wild at present, this picture is individual enough to overcome any similar ideas in plot. Joan Crawford takes the well-known role of Mary Turner, who works in a department store. Although innocent of a larceny charge, the store owner has her sent to prison for three years. When she is released she is bent on revenge and she gets it. She marries the owner's son among other ways of vengeance, but finally really falls in love with him. In her escapades she manages to stay just within the law at all times.

Cimarron

Brief comment was made on this picture last week. Radio has a picture here which is a top-notcher. Scenery, story, direction, acting and suspense combine to make one. of the most interesting productions in many moons.

Richard Dix as Yancey Cravat tops his career. He gives a smooth, human, convincing performance. Irene Dunne, a newcomer, is splendid as Sabra Cravat, Dix's wife. The others in the cast are excellent. Wesley Ruggles has interpreted Edna Ferber's novel with a clear insight on all details and his efforts have been rewarded.

Yancey and Sabra settle in Oklahoma in the early days of its settlement. In the town of Osage Yancey becomes the owner and editor of a newspaper, the Oklahoma Wigwam. He becomes the leading light of the town—a powerful and constructive influence. But he is of a restless nature and when the government opens new land he goes to it alone. Ten years later he returns and defends one of the "looser" women of the town, despite the fact that Sabra had been compaigning against her. Sabra and Yancey again are together and his influence is again felt in the ever-growing community. Many years later, after Oklahoma has become a state and the modern trend has gripped it, Sabra is elected to Congress and while on a tour of the state she again finds her restless husband. He dies, but when a statue symbolic of the pioneer is unveiled, it is a statue of Yancey.

The picture is absorbing from the start and one which should be classed as one of the most outstanding of the season.—E. G.

Short Subjects

High C's

M-G-M—25 Minutes

Charley Chase has been hiding his light behind a bushel. This boy has a good voice and uses it much to the audience's delight in his latest Hal Roach comedy. And this comedy, by the way, is a pip; a near riot of fun and laughter. Charley is one of the draftees in the war and has a weakness for close harmony. And the gage that are built around this are most amusing. His ruse to capture a German sniper to replace the tenor in his quartet who has been shot is a riot. After the armistice has been declared he deliberately gets himself thrown into the guard house just to be with his quartet and they do some great hormonizing. Of course there's a French girl in the comedy, Thelma Todd, who is okay in and how!—J. S.

EXHIBITORS FACE CRUCIAL PERIOD SAYS JESSE LASKY

New York — To exhibitors the first six months of 1931 will be the most important period, as far as pictures are concerned, in the history of the motion picture industry, Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of Paramount-Publix Corporation in charge of production, declared just before he left New York on his annual mid-winter trip to the Paramount studios in Hollywood.

"Producers must not be content to produce pictures just because they were planned last spring and summer," Mr. Lasky explained. "Rather they should be in a position constantly to improve their product. Fortunately Paramount has not been committed to a fixed production policy and can devote all its production energies in this crucial six months period to developing a series of pictures that will surpass all previous efforts. Every one of our new pictures is being produced with the thought in mind that this six months tells the story between success and disaster for many theatre owners. We have changed our production plans several times in the last few weeks to meet the demands of the box office. Pictures which we planned as late as last fall have been discarded and others substituted so that we could give theatres the newest and finest screen entertainment.

"Also, while next year's product is important, September is a long way off, and the theatre owner, whether chain or individual, wants to know what attractions he will have in January, February, March and the other months before the new season opens on Labor Day. So studios, just because their present program is either finished or laid out for them, must not neglect the present crisis. Six big weeks' grosses now may mean to many theatres more than a prosperous season next year."

PRACTICAL SHOWMANSHIP
AND PICTURE SELLING
METHODS OF EXHIBITORS

"Cimarron" to Have Extensive Campaign

"THE story comes through." This is the slogan adopted by Radio Pictures for their grand scale campaign on "Cimarron," which is rapidly shaping into form as one of the most impressive merchandising efforts in the history of the industry.

The tie-ups to be effected promise to be unique in that the copy, pictorial and typographic appeal will depart from conventional and accepted standards. They promise to strike a new and stirring note in the effective realization of Radio Pictures' ambitions for the Titan attraction, and invoke a new appreciation amongst great commercial enterprises for the vast possibilities that lie in parallel effort with the merchandising of motion pictures of exceptional importance.

Outstanding among the important nation-wide campaigns for "Cimarron" are those being effected with the Texas Oil Company, The Underwood Typewriter Companl, The Lee Mercantile Company, The National Hairdresser's Association, one of the major automobile companies (yet to be announced), the North American Newspaper Alliance, The Doubleday Doran Company. A further announcement is to be made on a series of tie-ups with organizations of nation-wide membership which are designed to line up twenty million school children as well as their parents.

The Texas Oil Company, represented from coast to coast by forty thousand distributors, is to distribute heralds, vital in appeal and vivid in treatment, to the millions who patronize their stations. The Texas will also make available to showmen the full series of "A" board. In some cases these boards will be open to local showmen at no cost to them. Displays and other national material are now in work. Texas Oil Company is known as one of the most aggressive and energetic merchandising companies in America, and their accession to the ranks of show promotion is regarded as a valuable coup for "Cimarron" and exhibitors playing it by Radio Pictures.

The Underwood Company will provide flash display material for their thousands of distributors in addition to national promotional material. As thousands of these Underwood dealers are located in the busiest commercial locations of their various communities, this means that these window displays will reach a transient traffic of many millions of people.

The Lee Mercantile Company, manufacturers of workers' apparel, are rated as the largest organization of their type in the world of business. They have been identified with Radio Pictures promotion on "Danger Lights." Their access to many thousands of dealers will gain for "Cimarron" window tie-ups of exceptional value and coverage. New stills of Roscoe Ates in Lee Unionalls are being utilized for this tie-up.

Emile Beauvais has created a new 1931 bob for Irene Dunne. Stills on this subject will be made available and the National Hairdressers' Association are hooked in for this tie-up. A large volume of publicity has already been acquired for "Cimarron," with pictures of Irene Dunne coverini this subject through various newspaper syndicates reaching many millions of readers.

The North American Newspaper Alliance, which has already syndicated "Cimarron" to a great number of the most important newspapers throughout the country, is cooperating with the Titan organization in exploiting the serialization of Edna Ferber's epic for the intensive circulation wherever the picture is to be shown.

AUSTINS EXPLOIT "LET US BE GAY"

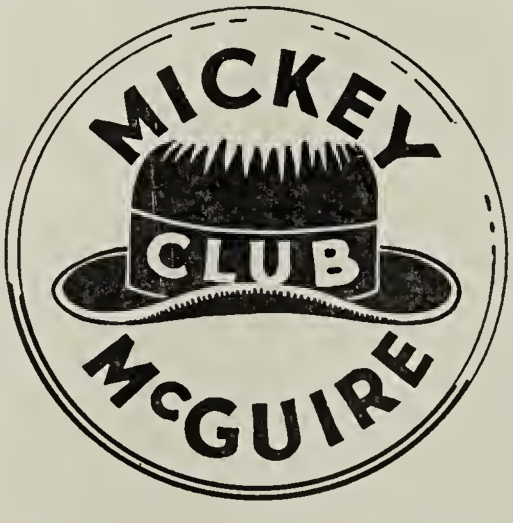
ARNOLD KATZENBACH, manager of the Indiana Theatre, Terre Haute, Ind., used the new Austin cars as a novel means of exploiting his showing of "Let Us Be Gay.

Katzenbach arranged with the Indianapolis distributor of the Austin cars to have two of the small models sent to Terre Haute, which were used as a novel ballyhoo on the picture. Each of the cars carried a framed banneron the roof, one with the caption: "Norma Shearer In," and the other with the caption: " 'Let Us Be Gay,' Indiana Theatre." Both cars followed each other closely and paraded the entire city. As ther are no distributors for these cars tin Terre Haute, they are a novelty and caused considerable comment. Two ushers from the theatre distributed a great number of heralds as the two cars paraded the streets.

25,000 KIDS JOIN "McGUIRE CLUB"

OVER 25,000 children were installed as members in the new Mickey McGuire Club, organized at the Pantages Theatre in Kansas City during Christmas week. The club has its inception producers of the Mickey (Himself) McGuire comedies, and was formed for the purpose of interesting children in a return to the theatre.

This newest stimulant for the movie theatre's business bears indications of being one of the most vitalizing exploitation ideas conceived in some time. Although officially started but a few weeks ago, when the first club was organized at the Wilshire Theatre in Santa Monica, the demands for plans on this idea are coming in with a rush from exhibitors all over the country.



Each child wearing the membership pin in the Mickey McGuire Club is the recipient of many concessions from the theatre and again from merchants cooperating with the theatre. Thus the value of the button remains indefinite and the child wearing one becomes again a steady patron of the movies.

TWIN STUNT GETS GOOD PUBLICITY

USING the twin brother idea of "Brothers" as the tie-up, Harry Martin, manager of the Brown Theatre in Louisville, invited all twins that look alike to see the Columbia production as his guests. All the twins had to do was to apply at the box office.

Further exploiting the Bert Lytell feature, Mr. Martin conducted a "Brother Contest" in the Herald-Post, to find: "How Many Famous Pairs of Brothers Have There Been in History?"

Replies ranged from Cain and Abel to the Smith Brothers. The idea of the contest spread like wildfire, helped the newspaper, and gained tremendous word of mouth advertising for Bert Lytell and "Brothers."

As Mr. Martin ran the contest, the person listing the greatest number of pairs of famous brothers won the first prize, $10. The winner handed in a list of 20 0sets of celebrated brothers. Second and third prizes were $5 each and three pairs of passes. Free admissions were given as other awards.

Both of Mr. Martin's "Brothers" stunts have a universal appeal.

RADIO TIE-UP ON "MADAM SATAN"

A NOVEL radio tie-up was employed by I. Wienschienk, manager of the Majestic Theatre, La Salle, Ill., as part of the explotation campaign he used to help succeed in his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Madam Satan."

Wienschienk arranged with radio station WJBC for a Lucky Number Contest. Three thousand heralds were imprinted and numbered serially from one to three thousand, and distributed from house to house and in various stores. For two days, at a certain hour, twenty of these numbers were announced over the radio, and those holding the lucky numbers were admitted to the theatre by merely presenting the herald at the box office. The announcer at WJBC announced the contest three days before it took place, also mentioning theatre, production and playdates.

THE TREND OF THE TIMES

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Published in the Motion Picture Industry
Only by Associated Publications, Inc.

WITH news events in the business world passing in daily review, some of them favorable and some unfavorable, it has been difficult to maintain a perspective. And yet looking back over the last few months and looking forward to the fateful months of 1931, we are bound to admit we see more clearly with each passing day the great tasks of reorganization now in process.

Stabilization is like a panorama. Its compelling force has gripped industry after industry, and although we may not perceive it immediately in our day by day outlook, we know full well that commodity prices are slowly but gradually being stabilized and that money rates, at least, have found a natural level.

But what shall we say of public confidence? Has that been stabilized? The closing weeks of 1930 revealed a surprising lack of faith on the part of many people. It was mostly because they saw here and there a mortality in banks which they did not understand. There was really nothing surprising about the number of bank failures—the real surprise was that some of those banks which failed had held on so long. Back last February, the Comptroller of the Treasury, John W. Pole, told a congressional committee in open session that at the rate at which banks were failing at that time of the year, 1930 would see the largest number of bank failures in recent history.

So there was no secret about the number of bank failures expected for 1930. The usual rate of bank failures is about six hundred. 1930 had in the neighborhood of one thousand! Nor was it particularly unexpected to find occasionally a fairly large institution caught in the maelstrom of frozen credits or imprudent investments. Individual bank officers themselves, here and there, participated in the bull movement of 1928 and 1929, and it was only natural that some of the enthusiasm which carried them away in individual speculation should have affected their judgment as bankers.

But is it all attributable to imprudence? How many of the self-same loans which gave the banks so much trouble were the direct consequence of a period of inflation in which all values went sky-high? Certainly in examining some recent bank failures, we find that real estate played no inconspicuous part. One might say it is a faulty economic structure which permits of such wide fluctuations in the value of real estate.

Lessons were taught in 1930, nevertheless, which will not soon be forgotten—at least not by the present generation. Appraisals which seemed good in 1928 and 1929 faded away in the brass-tacks appraisals of 1930.

To those who wonder at the length of the present depression, one must refer back to economic cycles of other periods of American history. I was talking with Secretary Mellon recently about the depression which began in 1873. It was just as fresh in his mind as if it had happened yesterday. He said it was much worse than anything we are experiencing today. Out of an abundance of experience with depressions, he says real estate is usually the last thing affected.

We may infer, therefore, that the storm which at first shattered the building of light construction has now swept with hurricane strength some of the stronger buildings. We may infer, also, that we are coming through the storm now and that the next few months will see the end of the most severe winds of trade.

What are the things that lift a country out of its depression and start it forward on the road to real recovery? Turning back the leaves of history, we find that new industries frequently arise to take the place of those that have lagged behind. We talk of "construction" as perhaps furnishing a stimulus to the whole business situation. It is a broad term covering many kinds of building, covering repairs, replacements and even the rebuilding of cities.

Some large plans have been suggested. It may be, for instance, that the rebuilding of the slums in many cities will completely restore the value of central sections accessible to business and convenient from a traffic viewpoint.

If building costs are low and money can be borrowed on a long-time basis, guaranteed by governmental units, and building is done where private capital would not think of venturing, a stimulus can be given to real estate.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve System with its low rediscount rate, the slow but sure stabilization of many commodities at price levels that are attracting buyers, and lastly, the strengthening of public confidence, can not but give the beginning of 1931 a much more cheerful prospect than the nervous moments experienced by the financial world in December, 1930.

The final thing to remember is that it took nearly a year to wash out some of the troublesome situations which had been overhanging the business world, and that pessimism is a sequel to untoward developments rather than the precursor of unfavorable occurrences.

If one has the perspective of a long depression begun in the summer of 1929 and continuing perhaps for another couple of years, true encouragement can be derived from the gradual upturn of business during the new year. For even the pain of a three-year depression can be borne if we can know definitely that each month is an improvement upon the preceding month, however minute the improvement be. It is uncertainty which is bewildering and perplexing whereas certainty begets careful planning and intensive reorganization for the painful but necessary process of readjustment.

THUMBNAIL REVIEWS OF CURRENT RELEASES

Numerals in parenthesis indicate minutes of running time; dates refer to issue of complete review in this publication.
☆ indicates productions that have received A-P Merit Award.

Africa Speaks—Columbia (75). Actual photographic records of the Colorado-African expedition; truly an achievement. (Oct. 7)

Along Came Youth—Paramount (75). Amusing story starring Charles (Buddy) Rogers which should get over big with most audiences. Comedy honors go to Stuart Erwin. (Dec. 16)

A Lady's Morals—M-G-M (83). Grace Moore and Reginald Denny in an elaborate and, at times, a dazzling production of the story of "Jenny Lind." (Dec. 2)

Bachelor Father—M-G-M (76). A wow of a comedy in which Marion Davies injects her best talents; first class entertainment despite the title. (Dec. 30)

Big Trail—Fox (125). Impressive epic of pioneer western days with love interest provided by John Wayne and Marguerite Churchill; first rate entertainment. (Nov. 4)

Billy the Kid—M-G-M (95). Colorful saga of one of the old West's most dangerous of men; excellent cast headed by John Mack Brown. (Oct. 21)

Brothers—Columbia (78). Talker version of the stage success of the same name; sure-fire entertainment with Bert Lytell giving a splendid performance. (Nov. 11)

Boudoir Diplomat—Universal (72). Sophisticated comedy of diplomacy and loves, gorgeous costumes and gowns; Ian Keith and Betty Compson gives excellent portrayals. (Dec. 23)

Cat Creeps—Universal (76). Mystery thriller expertly produced with an excellent cast headed by Helen Twelvetrees and Raymond Hackett. (Nov. 18)

Charley's Aunt—Columbia (87). The popular story remade with Charlie Ruggles as the center attraction; 100 per cent entertainment for those who don't take their picture fare too seriously. (Dec. 16)

Check and Double Creck—Radio (75). Amos and Andy are the whole show working every minute to keep the laughs at a steady flow. Should be a money-maker anywhere. (Oct. 28)

Derelict—Paramount (75). Thrilling sea story which rates better than average entertainment. George Bancroft and William Boyd (of stage fame) play the leading parts. (Nov. 25)

Devil With Women—Fox (65). The picture has the usual McLaglen flavor and can be counted for entertainment. (Nov. 11)

Devil to Pay—United Artists (78). Subtle comedy-drama which gives Colman his best role; can be classed as one of the finer pictures of the current season. (Dec. 23)

Doorway to Hell—Warner (77). Realistically portrayed melodrama of racketeers and gang wars; Lew Ayres gives another outstanding performance. (Nov. 25)

East Is West—Universal (72). Talkie version of the popular stage play having been made before in silent form. Lew Ayres registers in his first dramatic role while Lupe Velez is well cast. (Nov. 18)

Ex-Flame—Liberty (72). Modernized version of "East Lynne"; Marian Nixon displays marked ability in the leading role. (Dec. 30)

Fast and Loose—Paramount (71). Light farce which rates only as a fair programmer with the cast practically unknown to movie fans. (Dec. 16)

Feet First—Paramount (93). Sure fire entertainment for the whole family, the familiar Lloyd stunts predominating. (Nov. 18)

Fighting Through—Tiffany (60). Ken Maynard and his horse, Tarzan, should be liked in this fast moving western thriller. (Dec. 30)

Fourth Alarm—W. Ray Johnston (60). Thrilling melodrama of fire fighting with Nick Stuart as the hero and Ann Christy as the girl he rescues. (Dec. 16)

Girl of the Golden West—First National (80). Appeal to present day audiences questionable; might serve to satisfy the old timers. Ann Harding good but does not fit her part as a saloon proprietress. (Nov. 11)

Last of the Lone Wolf—Columbia (71). Bert Lytell again impersonates the character created by Joseph Vance and gives a very able performance. Pretty fair entertainment. (Nov. 4)

Laughter—Paramount (97). Well acted and directed picture, offering the best in sophisticated drama and human emotions, featuring Nancy Carroll and Frederic March. (Nov. 11)

Life of the Party—Warners (70). Typical Winnie Lightner offering that gets away to a slap-bang start and doesn't let up. (Nov. 4)

Lightnin'—Fox (80). Excellent piece of entertainment enhanced by the brilliant dialogue of Will Rogers. (Dec. 9)

Madonna of the Streets—Columbia (75). Better than average program material with satisfactory performances played by Robert Ames and Evelyn Brent. (Dec. 23)

Maybe It's Love—Warners (74). Good entertainment with timely football angle; most of the comedy is furnished by Joe E. Brown. (Nov. 4)

Morocco—Paramount (83). Story of the French Foreign Legion which marks the first appearance of Marlene Dietrich, new German star. (Dec. 9)

Night Work—Pathe (94). Human interest drama which rates as good entertainment for the whole family. Eddie Quillan furnishes most of the laughs. Dec. 2)

Oh, for a Man—Fox (86). The feature is good for many laughs; Reginald Denny and Jeanette MacDonald gives good performances. (Nov. 18)

Princess and the Plumber—Fox (72). Charles Farrell in a made-to-order part as the plumber, while Maureen O'Sullivan delightfully fits the part of the princess; should satisfy anywhere. (Dec. 30)

Remote Control—M-G-M (66). Will please even those patrons who are tired of Bill Haines and his wisecracking; re-instates the comedian as a favorite. (Nov. 25)

Reaching for the Moon—United Artists (—). A modern story of genuine fun which should register well at the box office for the Douglas Fairbanks' fans. (Dec. 30)

Right to Love—Paramount (80). An outstanding production expertly directed and featuring Ruth Chatterton; its appeal is mainly for adults. (Dec. 23)

See America Thirst—Universal (72). Good action comedy that should please generally; plenty of funny doings by Harry Langdon and Slim Summerville. (Dec. 9)

Scandal Sheet—Paramount (75). Newspaper yarn, well directed and well acted, but a bit far-fetched, with George Bancroft as the managing editor of a daily newspaper. (Dec. 30)

Scotland Yard—Fox (71). Improbable story but the picture packs a wallop and is loaded with entertainment and sustains an element of suspense throughout. (Oct. 28)

Sinner's Holiday—Pathe (60). Story of amusement park life which makes good entertainment anywhere; Grant Withers and Evelyn Knapp play the leading roles. (Dec. 2)

Sins of the Children—M-G-M (90). Story of a German-American whose life and love are centered around his children. Good entertainment with a moral. (Aug. 19)

Soup to Nuts—Fox (65). Rube (Cartoonist) Goldberg story which will bring many laughs; Ted Healy heads the cast. (Nov. 4)

Sunny—First National (75). Another musical, although not outstanding, turns out to be a pretty fair piece of entertainment with Marilyn Miller as the star. (Dec. 9)

Third Alarm—Tiffany (79). Popular appealing action drama glorifying the fighters of the flames; Anita Louise and James Hall play the leading parts. (Dec. 2)

Today—Majestic (80). Good entertainment for intelligent trade; Conrad Nagel gives a splendid performance. (Nov. 25)

Tol'able David—Columbia (75). A screen classic which spells box office in a big way and puts Richard Cromwell on the road to fame. (Nov. 18)

Tom Sawyer—Paramount (75). The famous Mark Twain story expertly interpreted on the screen by Jackie Coogan in the title role with an excellent supporting cast. (Dec. 2)

Trails of Danger—Big 4 (60). Will please where westerns are still popular; cast of favorites including Wally Wales, Jack Perrin, and Pete Morrison. (Nov. 11)

Unholy Three—M-G-M (72). Lon Chaney and Lila Lee in the talkie version of the silent success made a few years ago. Chaney ably displays more of his talents in his first audible attraction. (July 15)

Up the River—Fox (92). Plenty of laughter in this opus of jail life. Tracy and Hymer make a good laugh combination. (Oct. 28)

Utah Kid—Tiffany (60) Rapid fire action western that should satisfy the cowboy fans; Rex Lease and Dorothy Sebastian are the pair involved in the love plot. (Dec. 2)

War Nurse—M-G-M (82). War picture emphasizing the woman's side of the world conflict; excellent cast headed by Robert Montgomery, June Walker and Anita Page. (Dec. 16)

Widow from Chicago—First National (64). Racketeer story with the action paramount; Alice White is seen in a different characterization while Edward G. Robinson chalks up a brilliant performance. (Dec. 23)

WALKER, PIONEER SHOWMAN, DIES

Aberdeen, S. D. — Henry Leon Walker, pioneer local showman, known in the theatrical world in the early days as "the Czar of the West," died at his home here following a paralytic strike. He was 59 years old.

Walker started his theatrical career 30 years ago and, at one time, controlled and owned more than 166 northwest theatres, then the largest independent circuit in the United Stated. He retired from active business last May when Publix purchased his theatres here. He is survived by his widow and eight children.

HOUSE DESTROYED AT GILMORE CITY

Gilmore City, Ia. — Fire completely wrecked the interior of the Metro Theatre here, causing a loss of $10,000. An overheated furnace is believed to have caused the blaze which occurred late at night several hours after the last performance. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sandham operate the house which was remodeled and redecorated and equipped for sound last January. No plans have been announced relative to re-building.

Theatre Closed

Oskosh, Wis. — Fox Midwesco has closed the local Rex Theatre, which it took over on Jan. 1 from the J. J. Company of Milwaukee| The closing is for an indefinite period. Frank Cook had been house manager.

MAN IDENTIFIED AS BANDIT-KILLER

Mike J. Mozie, doorman of the New Southern Theatre, Minneapolis uptown independent house, on the witness stand in district court, identified Albert (Scarface) Sarako as the man who shot and killed Peter Hofman, an employe of the theatre, during a holdup of the box office on Nov. 22. Sarako is on trial for murder.

Mozie testified that Sarako came from the theatre into the foyer and asked if the manager was in. The witness said Sarako then stuck a gun in his ribs and marched him to the ticket office, demanding that he open the door.

Mozie said he told Sarako that he had no key and that the bandit then rapped on the door which was opened by a woman ticket seller. While Sarako was talking to her Hofman appeared and asked what was going on. Sarako then shot at Hofman, Mozie testified.

Cross-examination developed the fact that a crime picture was being shown at the theatre the night of the murder and that a pistol shot in sound occurred just before the bandit actually fired his revolver.

STRONG TO BUILD AT FARMINGTON

Farmington, Minn. — R. F. Strong, of St. Francis, Minn., has announced plans to erect a new, modern, fire-proof theatre here on the site of the old Star Theatre and adjoining property. The house will have the latest and best sound equipment.

"BIRTH OF NATION" HALTED

Mayor W. F. Kunze finally succeeded in halting the showing of "The Birth of a Nation" on Monday night of its second week at the Lyceum Theatre, Minneapolis, where it was doing big business. The theatre's inability to obtain a permanent injunction restraining interference on the mayor's part enabled the city's chief executive to close the attraction.

The district court, which had issued a temporary restraining order, refused to make the injunction permanent. The matter was carried to the federal court in Minneapolis where the theatre also lost out.

Undaunted by two setbacks and the closing of the theatre, the management continued its fight and appealed to Federal Judge John B. Sanborn at Fergus Falls, Minn., for a permanent injunction.

Mayor Kunze gave as the reason for his action in stopping the exhibition of the picture the belief that "it might tend to create racial prejudice." He took action after a delegation of Negro citizens had protested to him against the showing.

Improved Business Seen Since January 1

Indications that the backbone of the business depression might have been broken are found in the fine business that Minneapolis theatres have been enjoying since the first of the year.

Grosses of the Minnesota, Century and RKO Orpheum and State Theatres, the three largest and foremost loop houses, have exceeded those of the corresponding 1930 period so far in the current year.

The quality of the pictures shown at these theatres during the past three weeks undoubtedly has had considerably to do with their splendid patronage. Conceding, however, that this is the factor responsible for the spurt and that no fundamental change has occurred in basic trade conditions, it at least is being demonstrated that, bad times or not, strong attractions still are capable of drawing highly profitable business, Minneapolis theatrical executives point out.

In its first week at the Century Theatre week before last, "Min and Bill" broke the house record for receipts, piling up the largest seven days' profit ever enjoyed by the theatres. The picture opened with a midnight New Year's Eve performance that was a complete sell-out at $1 prices.

On the next day, New Year's day, the receipts exceeded those of the opening day of "Anna Christie," which previously had held the record. Friday's business was the largest for any week in the theatre's history. The picture held over for a second week and continued to draw large crowds.

At the Minnesota, week before last, "The Right to Love" played to the largest business that the theatre has enjoyed in many months. Last week "The Man Who Came Back" also drew exceptionally large crowds. The theatre showed a big profit for both weeks.

"The Criminal Code," and "Hook, Line and Sinker," the RKO Orpheum screen attractions for the opening weeks of 1931, did such a big business that, at the conclusion of their Orpheum engagement, they immediately were switched over to the RKO Seventh Street Theatre in the loop where, at the same scale of prices, but minus any vaudeville or stage attractions, they continued to draw fine crowds. It is contrary to the Orpheum's policy to play any picture longer than one week because of the fact that the vaudeville changes every Saturday. Otherwise, both offerings would have remained.

The State, Lyric and Aster also have been doing satisfactory business and Publix uptown and independent theatres throughout the city report a decided pick-up in patronage since the last of 1930.

Managers are hopeful that the improvement will continue. They believe that at least the worst of the depression is over.

Positive Proof

Al Boasberg, screen humorist, is satisfied that he is really an associate producer. To convince himself that he really had been engaged by Radio Pictures as an associate producer he made tracks for the wardrobe department and borrowed a beard. Returning to his office he asked for an interview with himself. His secretary, who failed to recognize him, reported that Mr. Boasberg was in conference. After spending three hours in the anteroom waiting for himself Boasberg was convinced that he was really an associate producer. Note to press agents: File this one away, if you ever become a drama editor you can try it out for yourself. (Ed.)

Louis Moe Dead

Louis C. Moe, for the past 10 years manager of the City Opera House at St. Ansgar, died at Asbury hospital in Minneapolis. He was 61 years old. Two sons survive.

Warners Sign Ruth Chatterton, Wm. Powell and Kay Francis

Harry Warner Says Event Should not Cause Such a Sensation as it Merely is Part of Daily Routine

Hollywood—The signing of Ruth Chatterton, Kay Francis and Wm. Powell by Warner Bros. has caused somewhat of a sensation here. The contracts of Ruth Chatterton and Wm. Powell do not expire with Paramount for about a year. Both players decline to discuss the subject.

There is talk here that the alleged "star-grabbing" step of Warners may set a precedent for other producers to sign players before their contracts with their present producers expire.

According to Harry Warner, the signing of Powell and Ruth Chatterton was just a "daily routine" of business and that the event should not have caused such excitement. In a formal statement, Harry Warner said:

"Rumors of a so called 'war' between Warner Bros. and any other motion picture company are entirely without foundation," said the Warner Bros. president. "Considerable public interest has been aroused by our signing of Ruth Chatterton, William Powell and Constance Bennett. But our securing these very talented players certainly has nothing to do with any 'war.' Powell's contract with us becomes effective upon the expiration of his present connections. Miss Chatterton will not make pictures for Warner Bros. until her present obligations are fulfilled. Miss Bennett will make two pictures a year for this company under the long-term agreement signed with her. This contract includes options for a long period of time. These newest acquisitions to our already long list of distinguished stars, including George Arliss, John Barrymore, Richard Barthelmess, Marilyn Miller simply strengthens Warner Bros. already eminent position in the industry. Such transactions are a daily part of our business procedure. We bear no hostility toward any other company."

Official announcement of the signing of William Powell was made by Warner Bros. on Friday. He will be starred under a long term contract. Before starting work under the new banner, Powell plans to leave at once for a two months' vacation.

George Bancroft is another Paramount star who has been reported in negotiation with Warner Bros.

BIG DOUGH TALK HARMFUL TO INDUSTRY, REPORT

New York—According to letters to national distributors and the Hays organization, exhibitors are urging the industry to go softly on statements by irresponsible people. The consensus of the appeals is: "Cut out the dollar sign publicity." The letters point out the damage which can be done to the industry by the "big dough" talk in view of the fact that by the end of January, 41 state legislatures will be in session.

Dollar sign publicity referred to covers extravagant and exaggerated statements of costs, salaries, offers to players to enter pictures and box-office reports, all of which are giving legislators the impression that the industry is "rolling in wealth."

Admission tax bills are now pending in 19 states and other measures to be introduced will bring the total to 38. If one-fifth of these bills are passed the industry will be saddled with an additional taxation overhead of at least $100,000,000, it is estimated.

RCA INSTALLED 371 IN DECEMBER

New York—Contracts for the installation of 371 complete units of sound reproducing equipment were approved by Sydney E. Abel, general sales manager of RCA Photophone, Inc., during December, 1930. Of that number two hundred and eighty-three were for installations to be made for the United States Navy, which comprise thirty-eight of the Small Theatre type and two hundred and forty-six portable units. Eighty-seven contracts were for theatres, United States Army Posts and non-theatrical institutions.

Ince Signed

Hollywood — James Cruze has signed Ralph Ince for a prominent role in "Platinum," a forthcoming Tiffany special. Ince has appeared recently in many of the screen's big successes, including "Shanghaied," "Singapore Mutiny," "Wall Street" and "Chicago After Midnight."

C. J. Ross Dies

Los Angeles — Charles J. Ross, executive vice-president of RCA Photophone, died here last week following a heart attack.

WOODS RESIGNS ACADEMY POST

Hollywood—The resignation of Frank Woods, secretary of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, was tendered to and accepted by the board of directors of the organization at its meeting of January 12.

Mr. Woods, a pioneer writer and producer, has been secretary of the organization since its very inception, having been reelected yearly. He is leaving the office of secretary in order to pursue writing interests that the responsibilities of his position have kept in abeyance.

Powell Starts

Hollywood — William Powell's new vehicle, "Cavalier of the Streets," has gone into production at the Paramount West Coast studios under the direction of Richard Wallace.

LEGAL BUREAU ON CONTRACTS COMING

New York—A plan by which film contracts will be more completely enforced is being promoted by the Hays organization, it is reported here. The plan calls for the establishment of a national legal bureau system which will be operated through the film boards, whose powers and duties have been reduced by the Supreme Court decisions on arbitration and the old credit system.

ASK THEATRES AID RED CROSS

New York—In response to the urgent request of President John Barton Payne of the American Red Cross, National Secretary M. J. O'Toole of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, has communicated with theatre owners throughout the country requesting them to give full cooperation to the local chapters of the Red Cross in raising funds to care for those in dire need in the middle west and in other sections of the country.

President M. A. Lightman of the national organization issued an appeal to the theatre owners in November urging all to give this cooperation then. The emergency referred to in Mr. Payne's message to the national headquarters here is an additional demand on the resources of the Red Cross and requires added effort all around.

No Basic Patent on Sound, Inventor Says

Washington—Chas. K. Cregier, chief electrical inspector for the city of Chicago, has brought suit in the Supreme Court to compel the issuance of letters patent on a "talking moving picture machine" which is said to have been invented and perfected in 1907. In the filing of the suit it is asserted that no patent has been granted to anyone by the patent office covering the basic principle of synchronizing sound with projected moving pictures, which it is claimed, forms the basis of the plaintiff's invention.

The bill of complaint, which names the Commissioner of Patents, Thomas E. Robertson, as defendant, alleges that in February, 1907, the plaintiff applied for a patent upon a talking moving picture machine which he had perfected. Later, the bill recites, he and in 1917 built a "life-size mod-tinuation of the prior application filed another application as a con-el" machine which he demonstrated in Washington before the examining corps of the Patent Office and various other officials. These demonstrations, it is claimed, proved that the plaintiff had perfected a practical and useful talking picture machine embodying the principle of synchronizing sound with projected moving pictures.

The plaintiff asserts that because he was misinformed by the attorney employed by him to prosecute his claim before the Patent Office he did not learn until 1929 that certain claims contained in the applications had at one time been allowed. He requests the court to decree that his failure to respond to the examiner's action in allowing certain of the claims was unavoidable and that therefore, the second application for a patent, which is claimed to have been abandoned, is now properly a pending application before the patent Office. The bill of complaint also seeks to have the court authorize the Commissioner of Patents to issue a patent to the plaintiff embodying the claims allowed by the examiner.

PICTURE BUSINESS

THAT a sincere effort is being made toward the elimination of salaciousness from motion picture advertising is well evidenced in an editorial by Frank Whitbeck in the January 17 issue of the Fox West Coast house organ. Mr. Whitbeck makes some pertinent statements that are worth noting. Following is his article:

> LAST WEEK the Hays organization, the Association of Motion Picture Producers, took me to task for certain advertising that we had printed on "Part Time Wife" and "Morocco." They objected to my use of what they term, "a horizontal clinch." To explain that . . . it is any photograph of the embrace of a man and woman character when they are not in a most respectable position.
> That sounds rather involved . . . I'm not arguing that point with the Hays office . . . but if there was harm in that advertising . . . it was not intentional; we did not step out of our way to break the well known 'code of ethics' as laid down by that organization.
> I'm telling you this story . . . so that you may profit by the mistake I made . . . so that you may avoid any unnecessary, and unpleasant, correspondence with those in charge of this branch of the Hays office. This mis-step of mine went as far as Harley L. Clarke, who in turn, passed it on to Oscar S. Oldknow.
> LET ME SAY FOR YOUR INFORMATION . . . YOUR ADVERTISING, AND MINE, IS TODAY BEING WATCHED AS IT NEVER WAS BEFORE. THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE GOOD CONDUCT OF THIS MEAN TO KEEP NOT ONLY THE PICTURE WELL WITHIN THE BOUNDS OF DECENCY BUT . . . THEY INTEND THE ADVERTISING SHALL BE OF THE SAME HIGH STANDARD.
> Let me quote from the letter:
> ". . . There is legislation up now in a majority of the states which, if passed, will be very harmful to the picture business. Every precaution must be taken, therefore, to support the industry's policy of self-regulation and self-discipline."
> Here is a paragraph that is especially interesting:
> ". . . In case you do not know it, a newspaper censorship has been passed against advertising in Philadelphia and Washington. We are hoping, of course, that this movement will not spread and for that reason it behooves every person responsible for motion picture advertising to be on the alert."
> If you are in doubt about any line intended for advertising . . . don't use that line. Play safe and in being careful you will be safe.
> We can be smart without being dirty . . . either in intent or implication.
> There is greater danger in the smaller community than in the city. There is always danger where there are women's clubs because, quite naturally, certain women feel that it is their particular duty to guide all of humanity against the evils that lurk in advertising. Be on the safe side and remember . . . untruthful and double meaning advertising never got any theatre anywhere.
> Let your advertising be sophisticated . . . but clean. Let it be smart . . . but truthful.
> If you ever see anything in the home office advertising which you consider doubtful or in bad taste . . . we'll deem it a personal favor if you immediately communicate with us.

That reference to legislation is particularly interesting. It is well worth stressing. If for no other reason, every exhibitor should lastingly eliminate smut and "hot" copy from his advertising.

"QUOTES"

C. GRAHAM BAKER

Associate Executive, First National

"More than half a dozen plays with crudely fashioned immoral and sex themes faded into oblivion after a few days of effort, while I was there. Producers cannot long ignore that lesson, and there are signs that they are taking heed."

Good Week for Local First runs; "Min" Big

Minneapolis (week ending Jan. 16)—Business continued very good, especially at the Minnesota, Century and RKO Orpheum. In its second week at the Century, "Min and Bill," after a recording-breaking first seven days, again enjoyed large patronage. The reunited team of Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor were splendid drawing cards in "The Man Who Came Back" at the Minnesota, while "Free Love," with Conrad Nagel and Genevieve Tobin, was the RKO Orpheum magnet. "Du Barry, Woman of Passion," starring Norma Talmadge, at the State, and "The Criminal Code," at the RKO Seventh Street, also had the crowds coming. It was the second loop week for the latter picture which moved directly into the Seventh Street after a big seven days at the RKO Orpheum.

Aster—Way of All Men (First National), Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Noah Beery. Business: Good. Summary: A gripping drama of a group of people imprisoned in an underground saloon during a flood. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, Screen Vaudeville.

Century — Min and Bill (M-G-M), Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery. Summary: Second week of one of the best pictures in many months.

Lyric—Along Came Youth (Paramount), Charles "Buddy" Rogers and Stuart Erwin. Busines: Good. Summary: An amusing comedy of an American youth, stranded in London, and his wooing and winning of a noblewoman. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, Screen Vaudeville.

RKO Orpheum — Free Love (Universal), Conrad Nagel and Genevieve Tobin. Business: Big. Summary: The fairly amusing account of the manner in which a husband reforms his young wife who possesses the urge to do some stepping. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Vaudeville.

Minnesota—The Man Who Came Back (Fox), Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor. Business: Big. Summary: Popular pair of stars reunited again in unsatisfactory vehicle; highly artificial melodrama that never rings true; draggy and tiresome. Entertainment Merits: 60 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage Show, Sound News.

RKO Seventh Street—The Criminal Code (Columbia), Walter Huston. Business: Good. Summary: Second loop week of this outstanding dramatic smash.

State — Du Barry, Woman of Passion (United Artists), Norma Talmadge. Business: Good. Summary: The love affair of a king's mistress rather tamely depicted; only moderately entertaining. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, Screen Vaudeville.

MUSSOLINI TELLS WORLD THROUGH FOX MOVIETONE

New York—For the first time in history a great statesman has taken advantage of sound photography to "nail a lie" on an important question, in which the peace of the world is involved.

Not satisfied with published denials in the press of the world and a personally delivered oral one, broadcast over a world-wide hookup, Benito Mussolini, Premier of Italy and leader of the Fascist movement, has asked Fox Movietone News to put his living image on the screens of the theatres of the world so that the peoples of the earth might hear from his own lips a statement regarding Italy's intentions.

This remarkable bit of history making film is exclusively released in the regular issue of Fox Movietone News now being screened and distributed throughout the United States, and in the thirty-seven foreign editions made up for distribution in almost that many different countries. Il Duce made his talk in four languages, English, French, German and Italian, for the Movietone cameras.

Steele Starts

Hollywood—Tiffany has started production on "The Ridin' Fool," Bob Steele's latest western vehicle. J. P. McCarthy, director of the previous five of the Bob Steele series for Tiffany release, will wield the megaphone.

"CIMARRON"

Hailed as Monumental Epic of Talking Picture Age

(By Special Correspondence)

Los Angeles—The last stubborn critics of the "audibles" are now confronted by the fact that it is possible to film a talkie even greater than those monuments of celluloid achievement, "The Birth of a Nation" and "The Miracle Man."

"Cimarron" is one of those films that mark historical periods in cinema progress.

These newspaper critics, magazine writers, a few movie producers and many theatre patrons said, when early talkers appeared:

"Here is something with great possibilities. These early films are crude; producers are imitating the stage and turning movies into musical comedy, and they are afraid of their medium. But someone will make a big talking picture that far surpasses the old silent masterpieces, and then the future of the screen will be secure."

Now they are saying: "I told you so."

Anyone who was in Hollywood when "The Miracle Man" opened, unheralded and unsung, at a small Los Angeles theatre, will recognize familiar phenomena in connection with "Cimarron."

The big talkie epic of Oklahoma settlement and American civilization had been anxiously awaited, but its first preview in a Hollywood theatre came as a surprise. The studio had kept the title of the film a secret even from the theatre manager.

Within twenty-four hours, all preview theatres of Hollywood and Los Angeles, and the Radio studio itself were swamped by phone calls demanding to know where and when it would be released, and so on. Several critics had chanced upon the preview, and two local film publications got out special editions immediately, hailing a "discovery."

A second preview followed within a few days, but those few days had sufficed for the news to spread. This time the manager announced the coming preview at the preceding evening's show. The house was the Belmont, in Los Angeles. Long before the box-office opened a huge crowd had assembled.

When the manager and a policeman attempted to line up the crowd, a riot ensued. It was quelled temporarily by the opening of the ticket window, but started again when the manager secured a soap-box and exhorted the crowd to "be ladies and gentlemen," threatening to call off the preview in case of further trouble. He was was nearly mobbed, and ill-advisedly closed the box-office again. Only the arrival of a police riot squad restored order!

The incident was the first of its kind in Los Angeles show history!

"Cimarron" has a cast headed by Richard Dix, who plays "Yancey Cravat." Irene Dunne of the stage "Showboat" fame plays his wife, "Sabra." Even minor roles—some mere "bits"—are enacted by players of the calibre of Estelle Taylor, William "Buster" Collier, Jr., and William Janney.

Even Dix may find that his history has been revised by "Cimarron." Like Henry B. Walthall in "The Birth of a Nation," who remained forever to fans as "The Little Colonel," Dix may henceforth be "Yancey Cravat."

As everyone must know by this time, "Cimarron" is an adaptation of Edna Ferber's novel. There was basis human appeal in the story, for the book was very popular.

However, the adoptor, Howard Estabrook, deserves great credit, as does Wesley Ruggles, the director. Both men already enjoyed outstanding reputations in their profession, but as one critic remarked: "'Cimarron' will set them aside on a pinnacle."

"Cimarron" is said to combine the epic sweep of a really significant spectacle with that quality so rare in big spectacles, superlative humanness. One critic said it was two pictures in one—a powerful human drama, and a spectacle of civilization actually in the making.

Jimmy Starr of the Los Angeles Evening Express went in for prophecy and raptures over Radio's screen venture in his review; said Mr. Starr:

"My prediction is that 'Cimarron' will take the honor for the New Year. It is in the class of never-to-be-forgotten productions. . . . a standard in super-talkie production by which others will be judged. From the very opening scene Ruggles shows a dauntless, always courageous spirit—sweeping characters before your eyes gorgeously and thrillingly, intermingling subtle touches with broad gestures . . . raw drama coupled with comic relief . . . sensational punches teamed with sweet romance, tragedy, happiness, life, death and love. Only a very brave and understanding megaphonist could have accomplished anywhere near what Wesley Ruggles brings to the audible screen—an epic if there ever was one."

Starting with a land rush—scenes representing the mad race to homestead Oklahoma Indian lands opened to settlement by the government in 1889—it is said to present an inspiring scene in the opening "shot." From camera to horizon, on a huge, rolling plain, thousands upon thousands of drivers and riders of horses, mules, oxen; wagons and buggies, every manner of conveyance of the period are shown.

At the signal, the rush is on, and in these brief scenes is encompassed one of the most exciting thrills the movies have ever devised.

In almost every division of the art of making motion pictures "Cimarron" is memorable. The makeup alone—movie-magic aging the principals through the seven periods of the story from 1889 to 1930—is an outstanding achievement.

The picture will create, thanks to the efforts of Miss Ferber, Estabrook, Ruggles and the film producers as well as the players, two immortal figures of film characterizations in Yancey Cravat and his wife, Sabra.

FOX TO HAVE BIG STORY BUDGET

Hollywood — A $2,000,000 annual budget to be devoted to the purchase of story material for seasonal programs for each of the next four years is announced by Winfield Sheehan, vice-president and general manager of the Fox Film Corporation. Mr. Sheehan has sent Albert Lewis, head of the Movietone City story department, to New York to negotiate for additional material for the 1931-32 season.

Lasky's Faith

Hollywood—Work for several hundred actors and studio workers is in prospect with the announcement that Paramount will spend several million dollars within the next four months on 28 feature talking pictures.

Jesse L. Lasky, production head, made the announcement upon his arrival here from New York, declaring that the increased production plans were indicative of his organization's faith in the return of healthy business conditions.

MAKES TALKIE OF HIS WILL

The reading of the will of an elderly retired Birmingham manufacturer will be a novel and probably embarrassing experience for the beneficiaries and others that he has invited to attend the ceremony, according to a dispatch to the New York Times.

The manufacturer, according to the "Daily Express," has had a talkie made of himself reading a document. Not only have the guests been selected but the order of their seats before the screen has been arranged so that he can address each one individually. Not all of the invited guests are beneficiaries.

In the address from the screen he points out the faults and virtues of each otherwise of their characters as he knew them. These candid criticisms will be delivered immediately after his cremation.

BIG PRODUCTION SCHEDULED ON THE WAY FROM RADIO PICTURES

Hollywood—Radio Pictures has started the New Year with the biggest production program in its history.

An augmented 1931-32 schedule involving several millions of dollars more than the $15,000,000 spent last year will be announced shortly.

A busy holiday season will keep from 2,000 to 3,000 workers at the peak of activity during the remainder of the current season.

More than $6,000,000 has been spent in a building and expansion program that makes Radio the finest and most modern talking picture studio in existence.

These are a few of the salient points brought out by Joseph I. Schnitzer, president of Radio Pictures, and William LeBaron, vice-president in charge of production, in an announcement concerning Radio's 1931-32 film producing season.

"We face the new season with every prospect of prosperity in the motion picture world," Schnitzer pointed out. "The motion picture industry is fundamentally sound. During the last few years it has become an industry as well organized, financed and managed as any of the nation's other major industries.

"Good entertainment will never be a drug on the market.

"As long as motion pictures fulfill their mission—that of providing the public with entertainment—the industry will remain in a healthy condition. When they fail in that duty, when they no longer carry the public into worlds filled with romace, adventure, comedy and pathos of life, then it will be time to worry about depression.

"Entertainment of the high standard now being produced offers no compromise with pessimism."

Noiseless Recording to End Poor Sound

New York—Noiseless recording is sounding the death knell of slipshod talking picture producing and processing, according to H. B. Santee, Electrical Research Products' director of commercial engineering, who has just returned from a survey of the Hollywood studios of producer-licensees using the Western Electric sound system.

Practically all of them have installed or are installing equipment for noiseless recording. They are unanimous in agreeing that this recording marks the greatest milestone in talking picture progress since sound itself was introduced. They agree that the new recording will necessitate a more rigid adherence to standards in production recording and in processing.

"The difference is that under the old recording methods a certain amount of deviation was permissible from these standards," Mr. Santee explained, "because any slight imperfections in the noises were masked by the ground noises themselves. Now with the ground noises eliminated by the noiseless recording, the other imperfections will be painfully obvious. The only alternative is going to be an insistence upon a standard of recording and processing that does away with them.

"We want to make it clear that the standard itself is unchanged. What was best under the old system of recording is still best and has been retained. What is being changed is the greater need for adherence to this standard to bring out the superior advantages of noiseless recording.

"It is in this general policy of exacting more rigid standards all around, as well as in the direct technical improvements that noiseless recording is proving itself such an unprecendented benefit to the industry. The improvement applies not only to the studio and the film laboratory but also to the theatres where a more rigid inspection and maintenance of reproducing equipment will be essential.

"The producers with whom I talked all felt that this 'tightening up' would react to the general benefit of every one in the industry. They stressed that with a better quality of recording and reproducing better talking pictures could be seen and heard in theatres, old fans would be held and new ones be created for the general profit of the people in the talking picture field."

NOTABLE CAST IN "DEVIL WAS SICK"

Hollywood—Laura LaPlante will be Frank Fay's leading lady in "The Devil Was Sick," which Warner Bros. will soon put into production. Many of the most beautiful girls in Hollywood will be seen in this picture. Besides Miss La Plante the cast includes Joan Blondell, Ethlynne Claire, Louise Brooks, Yola D'Avril, Nena Quandaro, Fern Andra and the Sisters G, famous specialty dancers. The masculine talent supporting Mr. Fay includes Arthur Edmund Carewe, Charles Winninger, Tyrrell Davie and Allen Mowbray.

CHATTERTON FILM IS "UNFAITHFUL"

Hollywood—"Unfaithful" is to be the release title of Ruth Chatterton's current Paramount starring picture, an original by John van Druten, author of "Young Woodley," "After All" and "Return of the Soldier." The story is a dramatic tale of an American Girl who finds her husband's spotless reputation is false and is unable through complications to free herself. John Cromwell will direct. In the cast are Juliette Compton, John Loder, Paul Cavanaugh, Donald Cook, Emily Fitzgerald and others.

Independent Producer-Distributor
To Keep Pace With Independent Exhibitor

By JOHN R. FREULER
President, Big 4 Film Corporation

With the outlook brightening and the horizon widening for the 1931 independent exhibitor, the role of the independent producer-distributor increasingly assumes an accelerated pace.

Circuit operation, of course, offers outlets for the independent furnishing a steady supply of good program attractions, either features or shorts. Now, with the re-establishment of the independent exhibitor in increasing numbers, the independent producer-distributor is permitted a still wider market for his product and one that will permit of greater revenue. This increase in revenue will, in a degree, revert to the independent's product, and, in turn, be reflected in advantages to all.

Like the independent exhibitor, and all other individually managed institutions, the independent producer gets the very most for his money. Each picture is to him a separate venture, each dollar spent requires an individual realization.

Don't overlook the fact that the independent theatre owner is an important factor in the prosperity of the community by his participation in local real estate, by the employment of local labor and by his expansion in additional theatres in the immediate vicinity.

Sound and the expense entailed in installation of equipment was responsible for the curtailment of theatres throughout the country. It was a case either of poor equipment or no equipment for the independent already bent under heavy mortgages, etc., and circuit operation was the outcome and immediate relief in the emergency.

Now, however, that sound has been more or less stabilized the districts which have, meanwhile, been devoid of theatre facilities will, under the live and let live attitude of the circuits, be enabled to negotiate deals for rural houses. This will mean a still further expansion in the distribution of product of the large companies and afford, with their increasing numbers, a greater chance for the future of the independent who offers the type of "merchandise" in popular demand.

Thus, by the same token, the independent producer - distributor who has been prevented from availing himself of the better recording systems by exorbitant royalties, now, through a letting down in major company production, finds this handicap removed. An incalculable good will thus revert to the independent, still further enhancing the calibre of his product.

That the public becomes aware of good, through unpretentious program pictures, and sanctions their revival is effectively revealed in their increasing popularity.

Musical Comedy is Sent by Television

Chicago — The possibilities of television were presented last week to guests of Engineer L. P. Garner, who watched the first successful attempt to broadcast a musical comedy.

The play, "Their Television Honeymoon," in which the bride was willing to see her husband only by television, was broadcast from Station W9XAO.

In Garner's home, several miles away from the studio, the guests saw the play produced upon a tiny screen two feet square, saw clearly the images of the actors and heard every sound, even to the final kiss of the "television honeymooners."

The successful broadcast was made possible by new inventions of U. A. Sanabria, 24, an engineer. These inventions make it possible, Garner explained, for the transmitting operator to retouch the images as they go on the air.

NEW SHORTS FOR TIFFANY RELEASE

Hollywood—Grant L. Cook, executive vice-president of Tiffany Productions, announces that Alfred T. Mannon has been signed to produce four new series of short subjects for Tiffany release, each series to contain from thirteen to twenty-six complete short reels.

The tentative titles by which each of the series shall be known are "Sport Folio," "Screen Book of Knowledge," "Romance of the Old and New World," and "Screen Novelties."

PICTURE OF THE WEEK

ILLICIT

Warners—81 Minutes

Cast: Barbara Stanwyck, James Rennie, Ricardo Cortez, Natalie Moorhead, Chas. Butterworth, Joan Blondell and Claude Gillingwater. Directed by Archie Mayo.

"Illicit" is the story of Anne Vincent, who advanced the theory that marriage with its intimacies and restrictions, is fatal to love. She consents to wed a rich admirer and the difficulties she had foreseen beset their marital path. A former flame comes into the picture, again receives the husband's attention and a separation is agreed upon. The companionate plan is disrupted by an old lover of Anne putting in an appearance. Hubby is about to sail for Europe, halts at the gang plank, returns to Anne, to find her repentant with more respect for the marriage institution. The picture has been given lavish settings, sophisticated treatment and bright comedy. Miss Stanwyck turns in one of her best performances.—Warren.

ASSOCIATED PUBLICATIONS MERIT AWARD

One Heavenly Night

United Artists—81 Minutes

Cast: Evelyn Laye, John Boles, Leon Errol, Lilyan Tashman, Hugh Cameron, Marian Lord, Lionel Belmore, George Bickel, Vincent Barnett, Henry Victor. Directed by George Fitzmaurice.

This is a comedy with music rather than a musical comedy in the sense generally accepted. The comedy is supplied principally by Leon Errol, whose familiar antics of the stage are shifted to the screen in a very satisfactory manner. Evelyn Laye, a British favorite, is a beautiful blonde who should win many admirers in this country. She has an acting technique which is unique and her manner and charm are convincing. John Boles comes through with a good performance.

Music is brought in, at times, at odd places and may spoil the picture for those who like their entertainment straight, without sudden burstings into song. At one place Boles is pursuing Evelyn through a rainstorm and when she reaches her front door, with Boles close at her heels, the hero suddenly breaks out in song and Evelyn responds, also musically. A male chorus, on horseback, adds materially to the effectiveness of the sequence, but despite this effectiveness, it seems that a song at such a spot in the picture is out of place.

However, these little technicalities do not injure the smooth running of the story and most fans will accept it as pretty good entertainment. Another player who should come in for some praise is Lilyan Tashman, whose work as Fritzi is commendable.

The story tells of a flower girl, Lilli, who poses as Fritzi, the star of a Budapest music hall, so that Fritzi can go away while some of the publicity about her quiets down. The Count falls for Lilli, thinking she is Fritzi, but when he finds out her true identity, his love remains the same.—A. F. S.

Second Honeymoon

Continental—60 Minutes

Cast: Josephine Dunn, Edward Earle, Ernest Hilliard, Bernice Elliott, Fern Emmett, Harry Allen, Henry Rocquemore. Directed by Phil Rosen.

Here is a pleasing light comedy which has been handled and directed nicely. It's a slim story but there are some good sequences and a number of amusing situations.

Josephine Dunn plays the part of a wife who, despite comfortable surroundings, a good home and husband, has romantic tendencies and is out to catch her husband's best friend. The friend, aware of her scheme, forms a plot with the husband to teach her a lesson. He takes her on a supposed elopement to a mountain cabin. She learns her lesson and all ends well.

The picture should please.—D.D.

The Command Performance

Tiffany—80 Minutes

Cast: Neil Hamilton, Una Merkel, Helen Ware, Lawrence Grant, Vera Lewis, Thelma Todd, Burr McIntosh, Albert Gran, Mischa Auer, William Von Brinken, Richard Carlyle, Murdock MacQuarrie. Directed by Walter Land.

A sophisticated comedy-drama with a strong appeal. It is smartly directed and acted and is pleasing throughout. Neil Hamilton again displays his ability and further establishes himself as one of the best leads in the business.

The story is set in an imaginary kingdom where Neil, as a young actor, gets a command performance from the queen to pose as her son, the prince, in order to woo the princess of a neighboring country for political purposes. The son resembles the actor and the scheme is well laid. The actor has been getting into a lot of trouble, anyway, and to obey the command is his only way out of his difficulties. The actor goes about his wooing under command but really falls in love with the princess, as was to be expected. He reveals his true self and when the prince decides to remain in exile, the way is clear for the princess and the actor.

Smooth running and careful handling has made a picture which might have been a trite affair into a real piece of entertainment.—D. D.

The Painted Desert

Pathe—77 Minutes

Cast: Bill Boyd, Helen Twelvetrees, William Farnum, J. Farrell MasDonald, Clark Gable, Charles Sellon, Will Walling, Guy Edward Hurn, Wade Boteler, William LeMaire, Cy Clegg, James Donlon, Richard Cramer, George Burton, James Mason, Brady Kline, Jerry Drew, Allen Adams. Directed by Howard Higgins.

This picture has some remarkable scenic shots that add to the merits of the story. The story itself resembles the old time two reel westerns, but it is produced on a lavish scale and should get over in a big way. Bill Farnum, who used to be prominent in western and action pictures of the silent days, is effective in his part. Bill Boyd is good, as is Helen Twelvetrees, although her role is somewhat different from previous efforts. On the whole, "The Painted Desert" is a good picture and should entertain the majority.

The story is that of two pioneers, Farnum and MacDonald, who find a baby boy in an abandoned wagon and adopt him. The boy, Boyd, grows to manhood and falls in love with Helen Twelvetrees, the daughter of MacDonald. There is the usual triangle, with Clark Gable forming the third side in a villainous role. There is a feud between Boyd's two foster fathers which eventually is smoothed out through the efforts of Boyd.

A blast which tears away the side of a mountain is a thrilling sequence of the picture.—S. F. D.

Correction

"The Dawn Trail" (Columbia) and not the "Dawn Patrol" is the correct title of the picture reviewed on this page last week.

Short Subjects

Take Your Medicine

Educational—10 Minutes

This comedy is in color and is reproduced effectively. There are some exceptionally pretty scenes and some good laughs. The story concerns Andy Clyde's dislike for his daughter's sweetheart and the efforts made to prevent an elopement. A lot of comedy is crammed into 10 minutes but it fills the bill.—G.

Simply Killing

Paramount—8 Minutes

Willie and Eugene Howard star in this unusually funny piece which gets over big. It's a burlesque on Russian military dramas and shows Eugene being marched to the wall to be shot, with Willie in charge of the firing squad. Willie drills his soldiers in a comic fashion until the victim begs to be shot for relief. The picture ends with a rescue. Good for laughs.—G.

Discovered

Paramount—10 Minutes

A domestic comedy starring Solly Ward, who supplies his amusement mainly by his mispronunciations. It concerns a row with his wife over some alleged kissing on the part of Solly, who is getting in bad until it is brought out that his wife hasn't been so straight herself. Amusing.—S.F.D.

EVELYN BRENT IN RADIO FEATURE

Hollywood—Evelyn Brent, after a screen rest of three months, is to be starred in Radio Pictures' "Traveling Husbands," a comedy-drama now in preparation.

METHODS OF EXHIBITORS

Comic Contest Aids "Dougboys" Ads

WALTER CALDWELL, manager of Loew's Valentine Theatre, Toledo, Ohio, included a comic contest in the vigorous exploitation campaign he used to put over his showing of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Doughboys."

Caldwell arranged for a card to be placed in the lobby beside a large head of Buster Keaton which contained copy to this effect: Free admission was offered to any patron entering the theatre, who would agree to sit in a certain portion of the house where a mentor would be stationed to watch whether he could succeed in an effort to avoid laughing at any time throughout the picture.

Patrons did not enter this contest, of course, but it did emphasize a great deal, the laughing qualities of the picture.

FUNNY FACE CONTEST O. K.

A HUMOROUS angle even on a serious picture now and then spells good showmanship. Furthermore, when it is a drawing contest, it intrigues the kiddies. When "All Quiet" played at the New American Theatre, Evansville, Ind., Morris Davis, the manager, assisted by Andy Sharick, Universal exploiteer, tied up the Journal-Courier for daily space on a funny face contest. Each day a cartoon head of a different character in "All Quiet" was published. Contestants had to draw in features and make them as funny as possible. All it cost was some theatre tickets.

In addition to this, the theatre got announcements in all the schools; secured endorsements from local celebrities and used them for display in their lobby; got a splendid full page co-operative ad flash in the paper. Book tie-ups and numerous other tie-ups were secured.

NOVEL CONTEST AIDS "WAR NURSE"

M. A. MALANEY, manager of the Loew's Stillman Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio, included a novel and interesting contest in the exploitation campaign he used to succeed in his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "War Nurse."

Malaney arranged with the Plain Dealer to run a contest which appealed to war nurses, and offered two guest tickets to the first fifty who sent in letters of three hundred words to the photoplay editor of the newspaper telling of their most thrilling experience in France. Three cash prizes were given for the first three best letters received, and Malaney also extended an invitation to all members of the Cleveland chapter of the Women's Overseas League, to be guests of the Stillman Theatre on the opening night.

ANOTHER TIE-UP ON "WAR NURSE"

A NOVEL display was included by Marc Bowman, manager of the Fox Broadway Theatre, Portland. Ore., in the exploitation campaign he used to put over his showing of "War Nurse."

One week prior to the opening of "War Nurse," a field tent was displayed in the theatre foyer. Accompanying tie-up copy explained that "War Nurse" was so intensely realistic that provision had been made to medically attend anyone who might suffer nervous exhaustion after viewing the picture. This, of course, was planned as a challenge to the curious. The tent, which was named "War Nurse Emergency Station," was in charge of a registered nurse throughout the showing of the picture, and created a great deal of attention.

At noon on the opening day an Arrow Co. ambulance, displaying "War Nurse" banners proved its ability to attract attention by speeding along the downtown streets of the city. All traffic was stopped as the ambulance sirens were brought into play. To forestall civic opposition to this stunt, a tie-up was arranged with the American Legion, who received the suggestion of a membership drive very favorably. The ambulance banners included the line, "Join the American Legion, Portland Post No. 1." By way of additional cooperation, the American Legion Drums and Trumpet Corps paraded to the theatre and performed in front of the box office for twenty minutes on the opening night of the picture.

"GORILLA" GETS GOOD PUBLICITY

IN exploiting "The Gorilla" at the Palace Theatre in Huntington, W. Va., good use was made of a nimble young man made up to look like the giant simian which creates the consternation in the comic mystery picture produced by First National. At one juncture in the program, the house lights were lowered and a "warning" broadcast to look out for the "gorilla." A moment later the "huge ape" was to be seen ambling to the stage, the operator picking him out with a green spotlight. As the figure crossed the stage there was a rapid fire sales talk from the house manager, followed by the regular trailer announcing the picture. Later the "gorilla" make-up was used for a street ballyhoo, numbers of children following the figure all over the city. The stunt attracted much attention and the management had reason to feel gratified with its results.

Ad Stunt

ART HAMMELEIN, manager of the Capitol Theatre in Altoona, Pa., used a new an interesting angle of the classified ad stunt for his engagement of "A Lady Surrenders" that netted him considerable extra free publicity. Each day the Altoona Tribune printed ten questions, the answers to which were to be found in the classified ads. Two tickets to the Capitol were offered the first five persons to bring in correct answers.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CO-OPERATING ON "THIRD ALARM"

TO prove his fine sense of showmanship, the manager of the Park Theatre, Reading, Pa., obtained the cooperation of his local fire department and the Committee of Public Safety in the decoration of his lobby with safety devices and fire apparatus.

A group of fire engines were loaned by the Union fire department, which were paraded through the streets of the town along with a group of firemen in uniform. A special reception was planned at the theatre as the firemen arrived to witness this great fire epic. The local fire chief wrote a special article for the local newspaper. This fine ballyhoo brought great results at the box office.

HANDKERCHIEFS CARRY MESSAGE

THE Circle Theatre, Indianapolis, Ind., distributed 3,600 silk handkerchiefs imprinted with a message on "A Lady Surrenders" when that picture played there. The handkerchief carried a catch-line, "Does a drop of milady's handkerchief signify that 'A Lady Surrenders?' "

B. V. Sturdivant, in selling this campaign tackled the picture from many angles. Five thousand book marks were distributed by the Indiana News Company. Five thousand hangers were distributed on milk bottles and doorknobs. One thousand specially addressed letters were sent out to the leading club women of the city. A number of guest invitation "summons" cards were sent out to a handpicked group of leading people. One inch teaser ads carrying varied copy as shown in the pressbook were used. The tie-up of the classified ad section of the Indianapolis Star brought big display space for the picture daily throughout the run of the picture.

Even the fashion angle was not overlooked. Gowns worn by Genevieve Tobin and Rose Hobart were featured in special stories in the newspapers.

KINE-QUIPMENT THIS WEEK—

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN THEATRE EQUIPMENT

Panel Box Locates Projection Trouble

J. S. Wink, director of projection at the Eastern Paramount studio, has designed a simple panel box which is said to locate trouble in the sound or projection apparatus.

This new device embodies in the box proper, a series of pilot light sockets, which are wired into the various circuits of the projection and sound equipment. The hinged lid of the box contains bull's-eye domes in different colors consisting of white, white clear, red, blue, green and amber, which light up when power to their respective circuits are turned on.

As most of the apparatus in the booth is worked out with a system of pilot lights, but in many cases the lights are so placed that it is difficult for the operator to see them from the position from which he must watch his machine while it is running, the trouble panel box concentrates all the pilot lights from the various circuits in one box, placed on the wall of the booth in such a position that it is readily seen from any part of the room.

While testing or while running during a show, if any accident happens anywhere in any circuit the pilot light goes out and the operator knows instantly where the trouble lies and loses no time in making the necessary replacement. Most of the pilot lights in the panel box, it is said, are fed in parallel from the existing circuits, thus making the assembly and wiring extremely easy.

The first of these boxes to be put to use proved such a saver in the studio projection room that plans are now being considered for their manufacture and distribution to theatres.

W. E. HAS 7,489 INSTALLATIONS

New York—Western Electric installations total 7,489, according to the latest report ,with 4,862 in the United States and 2,627 in the foreign field. This total includes 57 installations recently completed in the United States.

The 57 recently finished include five Publix houses: The Hazel and the Strand at Wilkesbarre, Pa.; the Lyric, Aberdeen, S. D.; the Sterling at Wilkesbarre, Pa.; and the Rex at Dickson City, Pa.

TEST METER HAS NUMBER OF USES

A light, handy compact voltohmmeter for checking line voltages, tube and rectifier voltages, horn circuits and at the many other points where reliable knowledge of voltages or resistances is necessary to the efficient operation of sound apparatus, is being marketed by the Weston Electrical Instrument Corp., Newark, N. J.

This model No. 564, which weighs only 2.3 pounds including "C" battery, consists of a Weston Model 301 3¼-inch diameter meter with ranges of 600, 300, 30 and 3 volts (all 1,000 ohms per volt) and two resistance ranges of 0-10,000/0-100,000 ohms. Two toggle switches connect the various ranges of the meter in circuit. Any change in its voltage can be readily compensated, its manufacturers claim, by simply short circuiting the binding posts and adjusting the meter pointer to the zero ohm position by turning the voltage adjuster. A pair of 30-inch cables with long test prods is provided with each Model 564.

CAN CHANGE SIZE OF NEW SCREEN

The new Artone sound screen unit, which enables the projectionist in the booth, by pressing a button, to obtain any size screen desired instantly by iris movement and without any manual operation, has been perfected and is now being distributed by the Armstrong Studios, Inc., of Los Angeles.

Complete control by either projectionists or stage electrician, or both, is claimed with its use, and standard to Movietone, Magnascope or Grandeur, or vice-versa in any order desired, may be obtained.

The entire unit, which is all-steel constructed, can be counterweighted and handled the same as an ordinary curtain.

YOUR IDEAS MAY HELP A BROTHER EXHIBITOR. WHY NOT SEND THEM IN?

INTERNATIONAL MARKETING NOVEL TYPE OF SHUTTER

International Projector Corp. has developed a new shutter in which the blades are adjustable in the matter of width, and designed for use on the Super-Simplex or Simplex models equipped with the rear shutter.

The device is said to consist of a narrow vane which may be rotated within the limits of a slot containing set screws located in each end of the blades. The effect of this movement, it is claimed, will widen each of the two blades in equal proportion, or make them both narrow, depending upon which way the vane is moved.

Designed primarily for use in place of the regular stock Simplex rear shutter, it may also be substituted for an in-front-of-the-lens Simplex shutter, by having the hole in the hub bushed to fit the smaller shaft and constructing some sort of protective guard to prevent coming into accidental contact with the shutter wings when it is in operation, it is claimed.

BRENKERT HAS A NEW TYPE LAMP

Brenkert Light Projection Co. of Detroit has put on the market a new super high intensity projection lamp, known as Model A-800.

The lamp is an addition to the Brenkert line of lamps and effect machines, and is said to be equally suitable for the projection of either standard or wide film. Among the special advantages claimed for it are the fact that the entire mechanism is fully enclosed, it has easy accessibility, lubricating provisions, more accurate operation, etc.

Theatres where the new high intensity lamp has already been installed and is reported meeting with great success are: McVicker's and the Oriental, Chiacgo; the Paramount and Michigan, Detroit, and the Strand, New York.

New Air System

An inexpensive system of air conditioning has been perfected by the Tiltz Air Conditioning Corp., Ltd. Greater flexibility of control of temperature and humidity, simplicity of operation, in addition to reduced costs are among the features claimed for the system.

MOHAIR INSTITUTE IN ACOUSTIC WORK

Researches in theatre acoustics with a view of bettering sound picture reproduction is to be one of the early tasks of the Mohair Institute, which has just been established in Chicago, under the directorship of A. C. Gage, editor of the Angora Journal and internationally known mohair authority.

The institute will seek to further the interests of the American mohair industry through researches in improving the quality of the fleeces of the mohair goats and in developing new uses for the fabric that goes back to the Bible.

Turkey is the original home of the Angora goat, but the United States now has more mohair producing animals than any other country in the world. There are Angora goats in each of the 48 states, with Texas by far the largest producing state. Improved range practices in recent years have resulted in a finished product superior to that produced in the old world.

The development of talking pictures has brought many new problems to theatre owners and managers. The public demands theatres with acoustic properties that permit perfect hearing and understanding of reproduced speech. Many theatrical managements are finding that they can solve this and their seating problem at one and the same time by upholstering their seats in mohair. The value of mohair plush in improving theatre acoustic was shown in tests made by Prof. William R. Barss, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technicology. The ability of mohair plush to withstand severe service with good appearance, coupled with its superior sound-absorbing properties in seats and draperies, make an especially suited combination for theatre use. Mohair possesses remarkable wearing qualities because the wear comes on the end of the fibres. It is also the most sanitary of fabrics. Dust does not remain on the surface of the seats to come off on the occupant's clothing, but enters the pile and can be readily removed by vacuum cleaning. Its rich appearance and beautiful and unfading colors also make it ideal for theatre hangings.

PRATT WILL KEEP OPEN ON SUNDAY

Winfield, Ia.—In an open statement to the public, G. E. Pratt, manager of Pratt's Theatre here, announces his intention to keep the showhouse open on Sunday nights and pleads for the support of fairminded citizens. He points out that surrounding towns have Sunday shows which draw many Winfield residents and feels that the money so spent should be kept at home to "save Pratt's theatre for Winfield." Calling attention to his heavy investment, he makes it clear that the house will have to be closed unless Sunday performances are permitted. The statement concludes with the assertion that "there is no desire to interfere with Sunday religious activities, but a hope that, working together, all forces may improve Winfield as a real community center beneficial to all."

PUBLIX TO USE COLUMBIA PRODUCT

Ben Marcus, Columbia exchange manager in Minneapolis, and representatives of Publix Northwest circuit, have agreed on terms for a contract whereby the Publix circuit will use all of the Columbia product. The Columbia pictures will go into the Publix houses on the same basis as is utilized in the case of all the big pictures playing these theatres. The RKO Twin City houses have the Columbias for first runs in the Minneapolis and St. Paul loop.

Columbia recently screened "Ten Cents a Dance," the dance hall hostess drama, starring Barbara Stanwyck, a print of which arrived in Minneapolis last week. This is a big special release and is not covered by the RKO and Publix contracts. It will be sold as a special and Marcus is anticipating big things for it.

Into 2nd Week

Two successive Columbia pictures, "The Criminal Code" and "Charley's Aunt," did such a big business in their initial week at the RKO Orpheum, Minneapolis, that they immediately were transferred over to the RKO Seventh Street Theatre for a second week in the loop at the same prices. Because of the weekly vaudeville change no picture is held longer than one week at the Orpheum.

"BIRTH" GETS BIG BUSINESS HERE

After a three weeks' run at the Lyceum Theatre, Minneapolis, "The Birth of a Nation" will be presented throughout the territory by the Triangle Film Co., of which A. W. Nicolls is manager. The company just has moved into its own exchange building at 70 Glenwood avenue. Its offices formerly were at the Nicollet hotel.

"The Birth of a Nation" played to big business at the 2,500-seat Lyceum and was enthusiastically received by the crowds. Those who had seen the classic before were a unit in agreeing that it has been improved by its sound trimmings and that it holds its own with the best of present-day product.

Mayor W. F. Kunze made a vigorous fight to stop the picture and succeeded in closing the theatre for two days, but the Lyceum management battled him to the finish and finally won out, obtaining a federal court restraining order which permitted it to resume the showing of the picture and prohibiting interference by the mayor or police department.

The newspaper publicity in connection with the mayor's attempts to stop the picture is believed to have helped business. The mayor said that he believed the picture would cause race prejudice. His action was taken after he had received complaints from delegations of Negro citizens.

On Sick List

Two members of the Paramount ad sales' department, in charge of L. M. Palmquist, have been incapacitated by illness. They are Ronald Brown, a poster clerk, who was compelled to undergo an operation, and Miss Cecyle Galvin, a stenographer, who has been confined to her home by sickness.

New Fox House

Burlington, Ia.—Fox is planning to build a new theatre here. It will be a large de luxe house equipped to handle stage productions as well as sound pictures. Two sites are under consideration and a deal for one of them is expected to be closed this week.

Allied Theatres Declare War Against Chain Houses

Allied theatres in the Twin Cities, members of Allied States, have declared newspaper war on their competitor chain houses operated by Publix and RKO. In huge display ads they urge the public to patronize home industry and promise guaranteed pictures for less.

The sudden onslaught has been ignored thus far by Publix and RKO. Officials of the two circuits assert they are not considering any retaliation plans. They profess to believe that the attacks will not injure them. They assert that the general public is concerned only with the quality of entertainment provided and the environment in which it is offered, rather than the ownership of the theatres.

Sixteen independent Minneapolis theatres joined in the large display ad in the Minneapolis Tribune. The houses were the Alhambra, Bijou, Southern, University, Ritz, Agate, Laola, Princess, Heights, Savoy, Crystal, Franklin, Gopher, Park, Liberty and Paradise.

Headlines of the ad read "Go to an Allied Theatre." Readers are urged to look for the Allied sign which states that Allied Theatres are home owned "for your protection. "Guaranteed pictures for less," declares the ad.

In the body of the ad it is stated: "An Allied Theatre is a place of entertainment for the family, owned and operated by your neighbors whose interests are identical with your own. Money spent at an Allied Theatre is retained in your city, becomes a part of the community capital and stands guard against unemployment and depression at home.

"The operators of Allied Theatres are experienced showmen who realize that they must furnish entertainment adapted to the tastes and standards of their patrons whom they study and know.

"Allied Theatres are seeking to rid the amusement field of its greatest handicap — absentee control—under which theatre patrons are required to endure pictures which persons far removed in distance and thought decree that they shall see.

"The Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors stand for a degree of decentralization in the motion picture business which will enable the public to see the kind of pictures it prefers.

"You can aid in the restoration of home rule in the field of entertainment by patronizing Allied Theatres, keeping in touch with the managements and making your preferences known."

At the bottom of the ad it is stated that "Allied Theatres are members of a local and national organization of Independent Theatre Owners whose aim is to give you guaranteed pictures for less." Names and addresses of the 16 Allied Theatres in Minneapolis are given.

Optimistic

Film exchange in Minneapolis report that exhibitors in the small towns throughout the territory are "feeling better" these days. Since the first of the new year business has picked up nicely almost all along the line, it is stated, and this has given rise to a more optimistic attitude among the theatre owners and managers. The generally high quality of the product released so far this year is believed to be an important factor in the improved situation.

WORKMAN BACK TO WORK AFTER REST

Feeling fit as a fiddle as a result of a three weeks' rest and prepared to continue the fine sales' record of the Minneapolis exchange, W. H. Workman, manager of the Minneapolis M-G-M branch and president of the Film Board of Trade, has returned from his vacation and again plunged into his duties with increased vim and vigor. He spent the time visiting his parents at Palm Beach, Fla.

Block Booking to be Discussed at Allied Meet in Chicago

Canvention To Be Conducted on Group Plan, Says H. M. Richey; Five Groups To Meet Daily, Each to Discuss Major Topic

New York—H. M. Richey, Allied leader of Michigan, said last week that block booking will be one of the principal subjects for discussion at the Allied States convention in Chicago, February 10 and 11. Another important subject will be the proposed consolidation with M. P. T. O. A.

The meeting will be conducted on the group plan, Richey stated. Each exhib unit will be invited to name 15 members to attend conferences on various important issues, such as protection, the Federal Checking system, music tax and score charges. A general meeting will be held on the first day, Tuesday, and afterwards the group plan will be effected. On the closing day, Wednesday, a second general session will be conducted and in the evening a banquet will be given. Among matters to be acted upon will be an annual report concerning Aliled activities, probably submitted by President Myers. Chairmen of each group will be appointed prior to the conference.

Expectations are that five groups will meet daily, each occupying itself with a major problem. At least 24 territories will be presented at the meeting, said Richey. Plans for correcting various situations will be formulated.

STRAUSS MUSIC IN CHEVALIER FILM

New York — Plans for what promises to be New York's most ambitious single motion picture production are being made for "The Smiling Lieutenant," Maurice Chevalier's next starring vehicle, which will go into production in February at the Paramount New York studio. Claudette Colbert and Miriam Hopkins will play opposite Chevalier. The latter will be given ample musical opportunities due to the fact that Oscar Strauss, famous Viennnese composer, and Clifford Grey, lyricist, are now at work on the original music for this production. Ernest Vajda and Samson Raphaelson are writing the ulta-modern story and dialogue. Ernst Lubitsch will direct.

Famous Extra

Hollywood — Jerry Storm, the director who helped make Charlie Ray a great actor and millionaire, worked as an extra in a Radio film recently.

Hanson Resigns

New York—Oscar Hanson, formerly sales manager for Tiffany, and more recently assistant general manager of the company, has terminated his association with the organization, it is reported here.

UNIVERSAL BUYS CLARKE NOVEL

Universal City—Carl Laemmle, Jr., has made an important addition to the talking picture material which he is assembling for Universal for next season. It is the purchase of the motion picture right to Donald Henderson Clarke's novel, "The Impatient Virgin," which will be published in March by The Vanguard Press.

Donald Henderson Clarke has had a sensational rise as a writer of best sellers, the first being "In the Reign of Rothstein." He followed up this success with "Louis Beretti," which reached the screen under the title "Born Reckless," and scored another success with his novel "Millie," screen production of which is just being completed.

GEORGE CHANDLER SIGNED BY PARA.

Hollywood — George Chandler, who recently completed a featured part in "Doctors' Wives" at Fox studio, has been signed by Paramount for "Gentlemen of the Streets," William Powell's new starring picture which Richard Wallace is directing.

Chandler has previously played for Paramount in "The Virginian," "The Light of Western Stars," and other films. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois and before coming to Hollywod three years ago was in vaudeville.

"THE RIDIN' FOOL," WESTERN, FINISHED

Hollywood — Trem Carr has completed the sixth of the series of Bob Steele action westerns, "The Ridin' Fool," under the direction of J. P. McCarthy.

OLDKNOW STAYS AS FOX W. C. HEAD

Los Angeles—Contrary to prevalent rumor, Oscar S. Oldknow stays on the Pacific Coast as executive vice-president of Fox West Coast Theatres and in charge of operations for that circuit.

Business conditions with the western circuit are excellent, box office reports are better than last year at this time, waste has been trimmed out of the circuit operation and a new spirit of willingness to go somewhere and get some place prevails among the manpower of the organization, Oldknow declares.

DENY YOUNG IS LEAVING TIFFANY

New York—Grant L. Cook, executive vice-president of Tiffany Productions, in a statement last week unqualifiedly denies rumors that have been printed and circulated to the effect that L. A. Young, president of Tiffany, is to withdraw as the head of that organization.

"There is no truth in such rumors or prognostications and the company is rapidly going ahead with plans for its production activities for the coming season," Cook declared.

AND NOW CHAPLIN IS A COMPOSER

New York — Charlie Chaplin, author-director-producer-scenarist-actor-editor, now steps forth as composer and for his "City Lights" submits these songs of his own composition, all of them played as accompaniment but not sung: "Beautiful, Wonderful Eyes," "Tomorrow The Sun Will Shine," "Happy Romance," "Promenade" and "Orientale."

Arthur Johnston of the Irving Berlin organization arranged the synchronized score for the film, which comes to the George M. Cohan Theatre during the first week of February.

BIG CAMPAIGN ON "CIMARRON" READY

New York—A day-and-date advertising campaign will usher in "Cimarron," similar to the opening of "Check and Double Check." Approximately 300 prints will be put into use on the opening day, which is set for about February 8.

CONNY BENNETT STAYS WITH PATHE EXECUTIVES SAY

New York — Refuting rumors that Constance Bennett has been signed to appear exclusively in productions other than those of Pathe, home office officials issued a statement today declaring that Pathe has Miss Bennett under long term contract calling for exclusive rights to her services until 1934.

No information of any other contracts being signed by Miss Bennett has reached the Pathe office and according to Lewis Innerarity, vice-president and secretary of the company, if such is or should be the case, Pathe will take all necessary legal steps to protect its rights to Constance Bennett's services in motion pictures.

Constance Bennett's next Pathe vehicle, temporarily titled "Lost Love," has been placed in rehearsal under the direction of Paul L. Stein, who guided the star in "Sin Takes a Holiday." This is the special vehicle written for the star by Ernst Pascal, author of "The Marriage Bed," "The Dark Swan" and other stage hits.

"PAINTED DESERT" SHOT ON LOCATION

Hollywood—Ninety per cent of "The Painted Desert," Bill Boyd's current Pathe special in which he shares honors with Helen Twelvetrees, was produced on the very locale of the story in the desert land of Arizona and on the Indian Reservation. Much of the romance, the thrills and action of the piece takes place in remote Dinosaur Canyon, which had never been seen by a white man until 1929.

The cast, which measures up to all-star proportions, includes in addition to Boyd and Miss Twelvetrees, William Farnum, J. Farrell Macdonald, Clark Gable, Edmund Breese, Will Walling, Al St. John, Jerry Drew, Wade Boteler, Richard Cramer, James Mason, James Donlan and others. Howard Higgin is responsible for the direction of "The Painted Desert," which is an original story by the director and Tom Buchingham.

PATHE COMPLETES "CAMPUS CHAMPS"

Hollywood — With "Campus Champs," the first two-reeler campleted in 1931 ready for preview, the Pathe comedy department has started "Hot Wires," with Harry Sweet directing.

Nat Carr plays the lead in "Campus Champs," which was written by Charles "Chuck" Callahan and Carr and adapted by Harry Frazer. Fred Guiol directed. Ray Cooke, Ed Deering and Kane Richmond are in the cast.

PICTURE BUSINESS

In its current analysis of the motion picture industry Standard Statistics Co. says, "Among recent releases are a number of excellent attractions, but the proportion of inferior productions still is relatively high. With further adoption of the system of booking productions on a percentage of box office profits, picture quality more than ever is a salient consideration."

So even in Wall Street it is known that better product is essential to the success of this industry. And, as regards the statement that this need is emphasized by the percentage system; we've made that same statement a number of times.

The first few weeks of this new year have shown that good pictures make for good box office receipts. The public has long since learned to shop for quality. And outstanding productions rarely fail to get the money. Too, the producers have got to get out of the habit of copy-catting one another and flooding the market at one and the same time with the same type of story. That is just one of the things that creates a picture-tired public and its effect on the box office is far from pleasing.

Picture quality does seem to have picked up in recent weeks. The insertion of more scenic action into the plots helping a lot to regain the movie fans' favor. Action was the thing that gave the screen what the stage couldn't give and what created its tremendous international popularity. Action is the thing that the talking picture needs. Fewer bedroom plots and the elimination of suggestive titles, too, will aid in weaning back a waning public patronage.

In short good pictures mean good business for everybody.

The industry, according to reports, is looking forward to the release of Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights." The publicists would have us believe that on this production depends the future of the talking picture, meaning that it may bring back into strong favor the silent production. That's good publicity but it isn't logical reasoning.

"City Lights" will draw because Chaplin has kept himself in the public eye pretty constantly even though he has not made a picture in about three years. The amount of success "City Lights" will have will depend on its merits as a production. Chaplin can do more with pantomime than most actors can do with dialogue and his decision to stick to his art was not an unwise one. But there are those who believe that this new production would prove a greater drawing card were it audible. That remains to be seen. However, there need be no fears in this industry that this silent production is going to cause a lot of expensive talking equipment to be junked.

Sixty-five per cent of all pictures shown abroad last year were American made. In the silent days American productions occupied 80 per cent of the world playdates.

According to a checkup by The Film Daily 31 features were held over by the four Broadway de luxe weekly change houses during 1930.

Fred Thompson, cowboy star in Paramount and FBO westerns of the silent days, who died two years ago, left an estate of $183,652.

Sam Rork, former producer for First National, is expected to return to the production field soon. Rork has been ill for more than two years.

Hoot Gibson will split his time between pictures and vaudeville during the next season. Gibson will make two pictures for M. H. Hoffman and then hit the RKO stage for six weeks and then back to pictures again. When the pictures are completed he will go back to vaudeville.

George Jessel will write Eddie Cantor's next picture for United Artists, it is reported in New York.

Universal has started production on the Norris novel, "Seed," which will star John Boles and Genevieve Tobin.

"QUOTES"

CLARENCE DARROW

"This talk about movies glorifying or making heroes of crooks is just silly piffle. I go to the movies—see lots of them. I have never seen a picture in my life, and I do not believe one has ever been made in which the crook or the wrong-doer is not both caught and adequately punished. Right always triumphs over wrong in the movies and that is more than we can say about real life."

Comedies Get Money At RKO Theatres

Minneapolis (Week ending Jan. 23)—Business was off everywhere excepting at the two RKO houses, the Orpheum and Seventh Street, where farce comedies held forth. "Charley's Aunt" at the Orpheum, proved a riot and did so well that it was moved over to the Seventh Street at the end of its initial seven days' run for a second loop week. "The Cohens and Kellys in Africa" boosted the Seventh Street gross.

The slump at other theatres was attributed to the box-office weakness of their attractions. While an exceptionally fine picture, "Blue Angel," splendidly acted by Emil Jannings and Marlene Dietrich, held little popular appeal. "The Lash," at the Minnesota, also failed to catch on.

Aster—Under Suspicion (Fox), Lois Moran and J. Harold Murray. Business: Fair. Summary: The romance of a member of the Northwest Mounted; moderately interesting. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, comedy and screen vaudeville.

Century—"Blue Angel" (Para). Marlene Dietrich and Emil Jannings. Business: Light. Summary: Magnificent acting by the stars in the gripping drama of a German professor's moral distintegration under the spell of a music hall siren; too sordid and daring for the average movie fan. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news; Paramount comedy; song cartoon.

Lyric—Men on Call (Fox), Edmund Lowe and Mae Clarke. Business: Fair. Summary: A highly artificial, crude and slow-moving drama of the California coast guards. Entertainment Merits: 65 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy, sound news, screen vaudeville.

Minnesota—The Lash (First National), Richard Barthelmess. Business: Light. Summary: Light weight melodrama of a Mexican youth who turns bandit and revenges a wrong. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, sound news.

RKO-Orpheum—Charley's Aunt (Col.), Charles Ruggles. Business: Big. Summary: Laughs galore in this rip-roaring version of the screaming farce about the youth who dons women's clothes to help two pals along in their love affairs. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, sound news.

RKO-Seventh Street — Cohens and Kellys in Africa (George Sidney and Charley Murray. Business: Good. Summary: The partners organize an African expedition in search of ivory for their piano manufacturing business and the results are fairly funny. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, comedy, cartoon comedy.

State—Going Wild (First National), Joe E. Brown. Business: Fair. Summary: Brown as funny as ever in the hackneyed story of the young man who is forced into making his first airplane flight to prove the validity of his flying prowess boasts. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

M. L. Finkelstein Dies Following Sickness

M. L. Finkelstein, for many years one of the best known theatrical men in the United States and head of the Finkelstein & Ruben circuit of theatres before its sale two years ago to Publix, died on Jan. 21 at his home in St. Paul, following a long illness. He was 61 years old.

Following the sale of his holdings to Publix at a reported price of nearly $2,000,000, Mr. Finkelstein retired from active business. He was retired at the time of his decease.

Mr. Finkelstein came to this country at the age of 15 and, before entering the theatrical field, had achieved considerable success as a jeweler in St. Paul. In partnership with Mr. Ruben he began the F. & R. theatre chain with one small 10c movie house in St. Paul, the Princess, 23 years ago.

The Princess was a success from the very outset and the partners' next venture was the New Grand in Minneapolis, which also turned out to be very profitable. The chain developed gradually until William Hamm, Sr., finally was interested in the venture. From that time on its growth was rapid and, at the time that Publix acquired it, it included more than 150 theatres throughout the Northwest.

Mr. Finkelstein was active in civic affairs and a frequent donor to charitable institutions. He was a member of the St. Paul Athletic Club and Northwood Country Club. A Mason, he was a member of St. Paul lodge, No. 3, A. F. and A. M., and Osman Temple of the Shrine. A widow and three sons, Harold, Daniel and Leonard, survive.

Nebraska Exhibitors Organize Allied Unit

Allied States announces that thirty-two independent exhibitors of Nebraska met at Lincoln last week and organized the Allied Theatre Owners of Nebraska Cooperative. The board of directors of the new organization, following the precedent of Iowa, voted to affiliate with the national association subject to approval of the members at a meeting to be called in the near future.

The new organization is the outgrowth of the activities of Lester F. Martin, of Nevada, Iowa, who has been active in organizing and perfecting the Iowa unit. Mr. Martin, already general manager of the Iowa association, has been made secretary and treasurer of the new unit. In a very short space of time Mr. Martin has become one of the foremost leaders in exhibitor organization work, both in the extent of territory and number of theatres represented.

Iowa Joins

The Allied Theatres of Iowa, Inc., long a de facto member of the Allied family, now is a member de jure, meaning "sure 'nuff." Some confusion resulted from the fact that while the directors voted affiliation quite some time ago, their action had to be ratified by the members in accordance with the constitution. On January 13 the members voted unanimously to ratify.

The meeting in Des Moines was attended by Abram F. Myers and W. A. Steffes, who addressed the members. Mr. Myers also made the principal address at the luncheon on that day, directing his remarks against the proposed amusement tax.

GASTON MANAGES SEVENTH STREET

Dick Gaston is the new manager of the RKO Seventh Street Theatre, Minneapolis, succeeding Robert Cottom, who goes to the RKO President Theatre in St. Paul replacing Jack Bunce, resigned. Mr. Gaston formerly was with Publix.

EINSTEIN HITS "ALL QUIET" BAN

Hollywood. — Dr. Albert Einstein, the famous German scientist, who visited Universal City, where he saw the German version of "All Quiet on the Western Front," has issued a statement in Hollywood condemning the banning of the picture in Germany.

He declared the action "means a diplomatic defeat for that country in the eyes of the world," and continued:

"The action of certain groups in barring this picture disclosed a dangerous weakness on the part of the government in deference to the cry of the street."

The famous scientist, desiring to obtain a first-hand view of a big picture studio, went to Universal City as the guest of Carl Laemmle. All the stars on the Universal lot were introduced by Carl Laemmle, Jr., and Dr. Einstein spent some moments in a discussion of astronomy with Lew Ayres, the hero of "All Quiet," Ayres having recently taken up astronomy as a new hobby.

M-G-M SIGNS UP STARS, DIRECTORS

Hollywood — Neil Hamilton, prominent young featured player, has been placed under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for a long-term period.

Among the pictures in which Hamilton has appeared are "The Patriot," "Three Week Ends," "The Studio Murder Mystery," "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," "Why Be Good?" and "Darkened Rooms."

New contracts have been awarded Dorothy Jordan, John Mack Brown, Anita Page and William Bakewell, prominent on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stock player roster, also C. Aubrey Smith and Lester Vail, who came recently to the studio from the New York stage. Miss Jordan last appeared with Marie Dressler in "Min and Bill," while Brown is now completing the male lead in "The Great Meadow." Miss Page last played in "War Nurse," and Bakewell's last part was in "Dance Fools, Dance."

Among other contracts just announced by M-G-M is that with Dudley Murphy, short story writer, who will prepare a scenario based on an original idea submitted by him.

Arthur Gregor, director, has been placed under contract for didectorial and editorial work for a period that will extend beyond the completion of the Spanish language version of "Min and Bill."

Emile de Recat has been engaged to handle the translation of "The Big House" from English to Spanish and to supervise various technical details of the production.

Adela Rogers St. John will do a treatment of the story, "Copy Cat," for M-G-M, and Malcolm Stuart Boylan will write dialogue for an adaptation of the story, "Shipmates."

Rehearsals Start

Hollywood—The first of a series of elaborate rehearsals which will continue for four weeks, took place recently in connection with the preparation of George Arliss's next starring picture for Warner Bros., which has not yet been given a definite title. While the production is being directed by John Adolfi, the method of rehearsals is in accordance with Mr. Arliss's own ideas. Several roles still remain to be assigned. Among the players who have already been cast are Tully Marshall, Noah Beery, James Cagney, Sam Hardy and Ivan Simpson. Mrs. George Arliss is also to appear in the picture, which is based upon a short story by Earl Derr Biggers entitled "Idle Hands." Booth Tarkington has written the dialogue for the screen production.

AD ACCESSORIES SALES GOING UP

New York—Business is on the upgrade and exhibitors are using more advertising accessories this season than during any previous season, reports Lee D. Balsly, Fox ad accessory manager, upon his return from a visit to seven of the Fox Film exchanges. His tour took in Charlotte, Washington, Atlanta, Memphis, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh.

Of the seven, Mr. Balsly reports that six are using more advertising accessories this season than at any other previous period. He also found that the exhibitors are appreciative of the company's efforts in preparing and supplying advertising accessories.

"Newspapers are becoming directories," he said. "Personally, I believe it is a serious mistake for the theatres to place all of their advertising budget into newspapers. The most effective advertising campaigns are those well balanced with newspaper space, outdoor display, theatre lobby, direct mail and local merchant tie-ups. While most theatres are regular with their newspaper space, they are spasmodic with their use of outdoor display. After all, our public today are outdoor fiends, motoring, hiking and street car riding. The liberal use of poster paper is an investment."

CLARA BOW TO DO "WORKING GIRL"

Hollywood — Clara Bow's first starring vehicle after her return from a month's rest ordered by her physician will be "Working Girl," from the Broadway stage production "Blind Mice." When produced at the Times Square here last season "Blind Mice" served as a vehicle for Claiborne Foster, depicting the romance of a pretty drug store clerk with a man outside of her own set, a young millionaire who misleads her.

"ST. ELMO" FOR WARNER BAXTER

Hollywood — "St. Elmo," the story of a gentle character embittered by unrequitted love, will be made into a talking picture by the Fox Film Corporation. Warner Baxter has been assigned to the title role in this adaptation of Augusta Evans' successful play, known to both American and European audiences.

FINAL TITLE FOR STEWART STORY

Hollywod — Donald Ogden Stewart's story of Mr. and Mrs. Haddock and their trip to Paris will be titled "Finn and Hattie" when it reaches the screen. The title announcement has just been made at the Paramount studios in Hollywood, where the picture is in production.

F. W. C. Adopt Clean Advertising Policy

Los Angeles—Complete adoption of the "clean advertising" policy, as recommended by motion picture industrial chiefs recently, is being insisted upon in the 1931 plans of Fox West Coast Theatres, it was announced by Oscar S. Oldknow, executive vice-president of the company.

This announcement particularly involves placing the official frown on the amusement concern on billing which might be objectionable because of too "sexy" picturization of characters, and advertisements which bait patron interest by captions and illustrations which have little to do with the actual contents of the picture being publicized.

Commenting of flamboyant advertisements depicting sex situations supposedly or actually contained in a program feature, Oldknow declared that a check on box-office receipts indicated the theatre-going public did not demand that the "it" theme be paramount in either publicity broadcasts or in the motion picture itself, but did insist on advertising matter being an index to the photoplay being presented.

"Theatre patrons should be able to rely upon advertising as a cinema 'Blue Book,'" said the Fox West Coast official, "and it was with this object in view that all employees of this organization have been instructed to strictly adhere to truth in their publicity campaigns. The orders were in the cause of good business as well as good taste."

According to the prospectus prepared by Oldknow, all advertising matter will picture or relate of actual incidents or situations in the attraction being exploited, and hoax "come-ons" of any sort will be barred.

An ever increasing direction of program sales appeal to the neighborhood theatre and its accompanying family trade is seen in the policy statement of the Fox West Coast chief, naming this source of patronage as one of the greatest assets of the concern. Advertising matter for these smaller theatre units is to be presented with the requirements of the family group entirely in mind, Oldknow says.

Catering to localized patronage sentiments, Oldknow stated, will be effected through the medium of the theatre managers in the various districts, with these employees being held responsible for gauging the public pulse regarding publicity values.

SENNETT TELLS OF PRODUCTION PLANS FOR 1931

New York—Mack Sennett reveals his elaborate production plans for the immediate future, which, according to Mr. Sennett, should result in a most superior line-up of consecutive releases, according to a report to the Educational home office.

The nine subjects outlined in Mr. Sennett's telegraphed communication show a marked tendency toward novelty in story material, treatment, casts and directors.

Marshall Neilan has been signed by Sennett to direct one of the first to be made in the new crop, a comedy take-off on the "Ex-Wife" and "Ex-Mistress" themes, immortalized in recent literature. The comedy will be called "Ex-Sweeties," and will boast an extremely strong comedy cast, including Marjorie Beebe, Harry Gribbon, Wade Boetler, and Betty Boyd.

The presence of Harry Gribbon and Andy Clyde in one picture is alone double assurance of laughs, and in Mr. Sennett's opinion, "Just a Bear," the picture in which they appear together, is one of the "biggest laugh pictures ever made." This comedy is now in the last stages of production. Patsy O'Leary is the girl.

One of the most unusual comedies, from standpoint of cast, is also on the list. This comedy, as yet untitled, will for the first time in many years show Mack Sennett himself in the camera's eye. A galaxy of celebrities, including George Olsen and his band, many prominent people visiting Olsen's Cafe in Los Angeles, and a number of world famous swimmers and divers play important parts.

Shooting is scheduled to start soon on the studio and local scenes for the transcontinental air flight picture for which Mr. Sennett brought his staff east some weeks ago. This comedy is being done entirely in color, via Mack Sennett's own color process.

In preparation is also a story which is calculated to be released as a sequel to the successful satire, "A Hollywood Theme Song." This will deal with the trials and tribulations of a silent actor suddenly encountered with the problem of the talking pictures.

Novelty, comedy and beauty are very definitely the components of the two Brevities which are now in production, and another which will offer striking contrast in scenic backgrounds, in addition to a good comedy story, is now being planned.

Completed, and ready for early release are three new Sennetts, namely: "One Yard To Go," featuring Marjorie Beebe, Dot Farley, Cyril Chadwick and Frank Eastman; "The College Vamp," featuring Andy Clyde and Yola D'Avril; and "The Big Doctor," featuring Andy Clyde, Will Stanton, Patsy O'Leary and Dot Farley.

"LAST PARADE" NOW RELEASED

Hollywood—"The Last Parade," a tale of gangland and the modern racketeer, is Columbia's third January release. Erle C. Kenton directed this deluxe "special," with an exceptional cast that includes Jack Holt and Tom Moore in the featured roles, Constance Cummings, new Columbia Leading lady, Gaylord Pendleton, Edmund Breese, Robert Ellis, "Vivi," Erle D. Bunn, Jess De Vorska, Robert Graham, Ed Le Saint and Clarence Muse.

NIGH TO DIRECT "DANGER AHEAD"

Hollywood — William R. Nigh, well-known director of many years' standing, has been signed by Columbia Pictures to direct "Danger Ahead," a picture of railroad life. The film, an innovation in the company's current year product, will emphasize action. It is a tense tale, played against a background of one of America's great railway systems. The picture presents a perfect vehicle for Mr. Nigh, as he directed numerous productions of this type in the past.

SELECT STORY FOR GLORIA SWANSON

Holywood — Gloria Swanson's next film will be "Obey That Impulse!" and it will be a non-musical production for which DeSylva, Brown and Henderson, capitulating temporarily to the public's demand for dramatic screen fare, have provided a story described as intensely dramatic.

LICHTMAN STRESSES IMPORTANCES OF CIRCUIT HOUSE MANAGERS

"House managers of circuit theatres hold the fate of the industry in their hands, they're so many local Roxys and Graumans and not mere bookkeepers watching expenses, they're showmen who should have both authority and responsibility, and as far as we're concerned United Artists is going to do everything possible to help them. We're going to treat each circuit house manager as though he were an independent exhibitor owning that particular theatre—because, for all practical purposes and effects, that's just what he is."

Al Lichtman, sales head of United Artists, made these remarks recently and said he based them on conclusions reached after talking with executives of all circuits, with every United Artists salesman who attended the New York and Chicago sales conferences of his organization, and with dozens of circuit house managers who talked frankly to him and whose identities he elected not to disclose.

"The circuits themselves have come to the realization that theatres must have personality and that the personality of a theatre is no more and no less than a reflection of the personality of the man who manages it, whether that man owns it or merely works for a salary paid by a large corporation. I know, from having talked with these men, that a picture in which a house manager himself believes will go over far better than a picture of even greater merit in which he does not have faith himself. You can't make personality out of charts and rules and regulations, you can't concoct human enthusiasm out of canned formulas and graphs, you've got to stick to the flesh-and-blood humanity of showmanship which is sheer personality and always has been since the days of Barnum and Oscar Hammerstein. Individual initiative should be encouraged instead of squelched, the manager should be a sovereign instead of a servant, he should be told to cut loose and spread his stuff in putting a picture over. What this industry needs is more of the good old-fashioned whoop-it-up exploitation that breaks down public lethargy and lets the people know pictures are in town, and unless circuit house managers are encouraged to go out and battle for the attention of the public we'll continue to have merely routine presentations of film that do so much business and would do that much business if there wasn't anything but a sign in front of the theatre."

Mr. Lichtman went so far as to say that he hoped the circuits would eventually recognize the importance of the personality of the house manager by giving him not only a salary but an annual bonus based on the receipts of the theatre which he handles, a profit-sharing plan that would give aided incentive to employes of a theatre to go out and put across pictures in order to win extra remuneration.

“All Quiet” Leads Film Daily 1931 Poll

New York—Taking first place with the unprecedented vote of 271, giving it the wide margin of 104 over its nearest rival and representing the highest figure ever scored in this series of annual contests, “All Quiet on the Western Front'' heads the list of winners in The Film Daily’s poll for the “Ten Best Pictures of 1930.”

The poll, a feature of The Film Year Book, which comes off the press in the next fortnight, represents the opinions of motion picture critics on 293 individual daily newspapers, three syndicates serving about 450 additional papers, and 36 fan and trade publications, with an aggregate of more than 30,000,000 readers.

This year’s vote was the largest to date, reflecting greatly increased interest in the poll. Further evidence of the enthusiasm that has grown up over the selection of the year’s ten best pictures is shown in the fact that nearly 100 newspapers, magazines, organizations, etc., conducted “Ten Best” contests of their own. The idea also has been adopted abroad. Motion picture critics on some of the daily papers have submitted, as their list of ten best for The Film Daily poll, the selections made by a canvass of their readers. Thus the results announced in this contest represents the last analysis and the final essence of all selections. It is the best of all ten bests.

Fast Work

Hollywood — On his way home from the studio, Louis Sarecky, associate producer, conceived an idea for a story.

That night he wrote the synopsis.

Two days later Al Jackson and Forrest Halsey had completed the adaptation.

Lloyd Bacon completed the direction four days ahead of schedule.

Exactly one month from the time Sarecky produced the idea, Radio Pictures’ “Kept Husbands” was ready for release—and a crackerjack picture at that, it is said.

COLUMBIA BUYS “PAGAN LADY”

New York — William DuBois’ “Pagan Lady,” one of the current season’s successful stage plays, has been secured by Columbia Pictures for production during the coming season. This is the second vehicle to be selected by the company for the coming year’s lineup, the other being Warner Fabian’s best seller, “The Men in Her Life.”

“Pagan Lady,” is the first play of DuBois, a young newspaper man, who has been acclaimed one of the generation’s most promising authors.

“EAST LYNNE” TO HAVE PREMIERE IN L. A., FEB. 3

Los Angeles—“East Lynne” will have its world premiere February 3 at the Carthay Circle Theatre with seats selling at $5.

Ann Harding, Conrad Nagel, Clive Brook, Cecelia Loftus, O. P. Heggie, David Torrence, Flora Sheffield, Beryl Mercer, J. Gunnis Davis, Ronald Cosbey and Wallie Albright are among the principal players. Almost 4,000 extras were employed in the picture.

Frank Lloyd, the director, is responsible for the direction of “Divine Lady,” “Weary River,” “Young Nowheres,” “Drag,” “The Lash,” “Song of the Gods,” “Adoration” and other successful pictures.

To Direct Jones

Hollywood — Warner Bros. announce the assignment of George E. Marshall to direct the series of twelve one-reel Vitaphone short subjects by Bobby Jones on “How I Play Golf.” The series will be filmed and recorded in sound at the Lakeside Country Club, Burbank, California, located about a quarter of a mile from the Warner Brothers’ First National studio. Bobby Jones is a life member of the club, and George Marshall is also a leading member. In 1926 he was the club champion.

FIRST NATIONAL STUDIOS IMPROVED

Burbank, Cal.—Film players returning to work at the re-opened First National Studios, have commented upon the innovations recently installed there, which have combined to make the Burbank studio a place of utility and beauty. A new restaurant capable of accommodating 1,400 people has been built and additional projection and cutting rooms made available. A new make-up salon, the first of its kind ever designed, is being built to provide sufficient make-up tables and mirrors for the numerous players called for by the studio’s production program. A schoolhouse has been built for the juvenile members of the First National stock company and screen performers to receive daily schooling. A new road leading to the studio, and completely reconditioned offices and dressing rooms combine to make the studio not only the most beautiful in Hollywood, but also the finest motion picture plant in the world.

Mother Role

Hollywood — Mary Carr plays her latest mother role in Pathe’s “Beyond Victory,’ ’the all-tar special with Bill Boyd heading the cast. Mrs. Carr has been a tremendous favorite all over the world since her memorable appearance in “Over the Hill” some years ago, and has mothered most of the stars at one time or another.

LASKY ARRIVES IN HOLLYWOOD TO START PRODUCTION SCHEDULE

Hollywood — Expressing complete faith in the stability of industry and the return of healthy business conditions, Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production of Paramount Publix Corporation, has arrived in Los Angeles to launch one of the greatest production drives in the company’s history at the Hollywood studios.

During the next four months Mr. Lasky announced that twenty-eight new pictures will be filmed at the West Coast studios, giving employment to thousands of actors, technicians and other motion picture workers.

The majority of these productions are of de luxe classification which means the expenditure of additional millions and the engagement of more people. He declared: “I see no letup in production during the entire year.

“Better times charged into American industry with the start of 1931,” Lasky continued. “In coming across the continent I received theatre reports from various metropolitan centers showing a material increase in business. The Crowell Publishing Company’s five page prosperity announcement and the story in the papers that 136,000 men have returned to work in Detroit automobile factories, are indicative of present day conditions. The launching of our tremendous production drive will be concrete expression of Paramount’s confidence in this country’s immediate future.”

Mr. Lasky returns to his desk at the studios this morning and immediately will go into details of the new filming schedule with B. P. Schulberg, managing director of West Coast productions.

Among the feature pictures for early production in Hollywood, according to Mr. Lasky, will be:

“City Streets,” co-starring Clara Bow and Gary Cooper, “Dude Ranch,” with Jack Oakie, Stuart Erwin, Skeets Gallagher, Harry Green and Eugene Pallette, “Half Angel,” from Mary Roberts Rinehart’s story “Lost Ecstasy,” and a Spanish musical production, with Roberto Rey, Ramon Pereda and Rosita Moreno. In the next four months 28 productions are planned.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PICTURES

FEATURES AND SHORT SUBJECTS

PICTURE OF THE WEEK

The Southerner

M-G-M—75 Minutes

Cast: Lawrence Tibbett, Esther Ralston, H. B. Warner, Hedda Hopper, Cliff Edwards, Roland Young, Emma Dunn, Louis John Bartels, Theodore Van Eltz. Directed by Harry Pollard.

Tibbett's singing, of course, is outstanding but the entertainment doesn't depend entirely upon Tibbett. It has a story and a good one, with a notable group of players and some fine direction.

It is the story of a wealthy young man, who, through misunderstandings, becomes a vagabond. There is the kind mother, the jealous brother, the girl and the romance. There is some exceptionally fine singing by Negroes.

"The Southerner" is real entertainment.—G.

Power Plant Booklet

A complete line of electric service plants is described and illustrated in an 11-page folder, identified as MK-1284, recently published by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co.

These electrical plants are made in several sizes and adaptable for the supplying of power for motion picture theatres, or as an emergency unit in case of power failure.

RKO AND PATHE FORCES TO UNITE

New York—Consolidation of the Pathe and RKO sales forces will get under way about February 1, it is reported here. Complete adjustments are expected to be made before the selling season starts.

Once a Sinner

Fox—70 Minutes

Cast: Dorothy Mackaill, Joel McCrea, John Halliday, C. Henry Gordon, Ilka Chase, Clara Blandick, Myra Hampton, George Brant, Sally Blane, Ninette Faro, Theodore Lodi. Directed by Guthrie McClintic.

A moderately amusing piece of entertainment which should not disappoint. Although somewhat sophisticated and built for adult patronage, there is nothing risque or undesirable to be found in it. Children may not care for it but it won't hurt them.

Dorothy Mackaill is a model who has an affair with a wealthy bachelor, but spurns him for the love of Joel McCrea, a young inventor who doesn't know about Dorothy's past. They are married and settle down to a rather simple life in a small town until Joel gets a chance to have his invention backed by a wealthy New Yorker, who happens to be John Halliday, the man with whom Dorothy had an affair. Joel becomes jealous and Dorothy leaves him. Dorothy then hooks up with a Russian gambler and his sweetie, who are returning to Paris. There she again becomes a model and is about to get into another affair when Joel arrives to persuade her to return with him.

This is a pleasing feature with some remarkable settings and good acting.—S. F. D.

AILEEN PRINGLE IN MYSTERY FILM

Hollywood — Aileen Pringle, noted screen leading woman, has been selected to depict the feminine lead in Columbia's murder mystery, "Subway Express," an adaptation of the Broadway stage success of the same name, from the collaborative pens of Eva K. Flint and Martha Madison. During its run on Broadway "Subway Express" was called "Not only the best mystery play on Broadway, but the one sponsoring the most unusual and clever setting ever conceived"—the entire action taking place in a subway train.

Fred Newmeyer is directing this deluxe "special," with Jack Holt in the featured male role and Fred Kelsey portraying the "dumb" detective character for which he is famous.

Little Caesar

First National—76 Minutes

Cast: Edward G. Robinson, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Glenda Farrell, Sidney Blackmer, Thomas Jackson, Ralph Ince, William Collier, Jr., Maurice Black, Stanley Fields, George Stone. Directed by Mervyn Leroy.

Director Leroy seems to have topped his career in this gangster story. He has brought out the characters in their true light and has given an expert interpretation to the tale. Robinson and Fairbanks, Jr., as the featured leads, give able performances. The entire cast has been carefully selected and in summary, "Little Caesar" will entertain.

We had just about decided to pan any underworld story that came along, because of the oversupply and the similarity of their plots. Evidently the public does not agree with us, judging from the sensational business the picture is doing at the Strand in New York, where the police were called to prevent riots, so great was the crowd.

The story has the usual gangster background with killings, bootlegging and gun-play. Little Caesar, himself, seeks power and he wants power more than anything else. And it is that angly which makes the character interesting. Fairbanks, Jr., is the gangster's best friend who wants to go straight because of a girl. But Caesar thinks that once you are in the racket you can't get out because you know too much about the inner workings of gangdom.

If your patrons still enjoy underworld pictures, here is one they will eat up.—S. F. D.

"UP FOR MURDER" IS FINAL TITLE

Universal City—The new Lew Ayres starring vehicle, the studio title for which was "Fires of Youth" and for which Universal has been seeking a final title ever since production started, has been definitely named "Up For Murder."

This picture, which Monta Bell directed from his own original story, has Genevieve Tobin in the leading feminine role opposite Ayres, and the supporting cast includes: Purnell B. Pratt, Kenneth Thomson, Freddie Burke Frederick, Betty Jane Graham, Aileen Manning, Frank McHugh, Louise Beavers and Frederick Burk.

Man to Man

Warners—70 Minutes

Cast: Phillips Holmes, Grant Mitchell, Lucille Powers, Barbara Weeks, Charles Sellon, Dwight Frye, Russell Simpson, Paul Nicholson, Robert O'Connor, George Marion, James Neill, Johnny Larkins. Directed by Alan Dwan.

The story by Ben Ames Williams, "Barber John's Boy," has been brought to the screen in an interesting fashion by Alan Dwan. The suspense and interest don't lag at any time and the work of Phillips Holmes and Grant Mitchell is convincing at all times. Lucille Powers make a charming feminine lead while others in the cast do commendable work.

The story concerns a boy whose faith in his father is shaken and the ultimate return of the faith. The boy, a son of a murderer, makes an effort to hide the truth about his father, but when his secret becomes known the young man is obliged to leave school. Later the boy takes the blame for a robbery, believing his father is the guilty one, but when the true state of affairs is known, the boy's confidence in his father is retored.

"Man to Man" is not a big picture but is one which should please the majority of picture fans.—G.

ALLAN DWAN TO DIRECT DOUG., JR.

Hollywood—The settings for the new Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. picture, "Chances," have been completed at the First National studios and much attention is now being paid the selection of its cast. When Doug returns to the Coast in a week it is planned to begin actual work on the screening of the picture. As is known, "Chances" is an adaptation of the novel by Hamilton Gibbs and deals with a story in which the love of two brothers furnishes the dominant note. Allan Dwan is to direct the filming and is now supervising the details of the production.

SPENCER TRACY SIGNS WITH FOX

Hollywood—Spencer Tracy has signed a new contract for five years with the Fox Film Corporation. Principal parts in "Six Cylinder Love" and in "Skyline," the George and Ira Gershwin and Guy Bolton musical romance, have been assigned to him. It is probable that he will also be teamed with Warren Hymer, with whom he formed a unique comedy team in "Up the River."

BY THE MERCHANDISER

PRACTICAL SHOWMANSHIP AND PICTURE SELLING METHODS OF EXHIBITORS

Campaign Mapped for "Resurrection"

JOE WEIL, exploitation director of Universal, has outlined an effective campaign for "Resurrection," current Universal release.

Book Tie-ups

"Resurrection" is now available in a 75c Grossett & Dunlap photoplay edition. There are innumerable tie-up possibilities. This offers an opportunity for planting advertising material for the picture on every book-counter in town. Tolstoy has written many other books so you can build a big display with "Resurrection" as the feature. (Grossett & Dunlap, 1140 Broadway, N. Y. City).

Distribute Book Marks

Book marks can get wide distribution through public libraries, pay libraries, schools and bookstores. The cost is very low. Print them from the special Exploitation Service Mat R No. 2, available at the Exchange.

Book Balyyhoo

Make a large replica of the book from compo-board, mount it on a truck and use for a ballyhoo.

School Essay Contest

Tolstoy, author of "Resurrection," has an important place in world literature which will help you get cooperation from school teachers in the way of an essay contest on the subject of the writer and his works. Award copies of the photoplay edition of "Resurrection" as prizes.

4 Songs To Go After

Four incidental song numbers in "Resurrection" are available in sheet music form, being published by the Universal Music Co., 745 7th Ave., N. Y. C. The titles are: "While the Volga's Flowing," "Song of the Gypsy," "Baby's Lullaby" and "To Your Eyes." Plug these numbers—over the air, in your lobby, at dance places and at music stores. In every instance, tie-up the song to "Resurrection."

Newspaper Tie-Up

Finis Fox, author of the screen play, has written a 5,000 word dramatization of "Resurrection" available in six chapters for newspaper serialization. This should be a cinch to land in your local paper, especially as there is no charge for the story. However, a special title head must be used, mat of which is available free. Newspaper must set the type. For masthead ask for Exploitation Service Mat, R No 3, at your exchange. For a copy of this tabloid dramatization, write Exploitation Department, Universal Pictures, 730 - 5th Ave., N. Y. City.

Endorsement

The signature of a theatre owner, operator or manager usually has weight in the community. Capitalize on that. Write out the following statement in your own handwriting, have it reproduced as a line-cut and print it on all advertising that goes out from your theatre for "Resurrection." This is the statement:

> "It is not often that a picture moves me to the extent of making me give it a personal endorsement. But "Resurrection' is of such calibre that I feel it warrants my own written recommendation that you see it.
> (Signed) John Jones, > Manager."

The above accompanied by a form letter or a herald will prove effective if sent out to your mailing list. It has the "personal" touch.

Scenario Display

Special selected sheets from the actual scenario of "Resurrection" are available at the exchange. These sheets can be pasted on a lobby board or mounted in a store window, together with stills from the production illustrating the action. Strips of narrow red ribbon or tape can be used running from the still to the part of the scenario which it illustrates. This will make a novel display for "Resurrection."

Autographed Photos

Six specially selected scenes from the pictures are available in a series of Exploitation Service Mats at the exchange to help you land a scenario writing contest in your local paper. The stunt is to ask readers for a tabloid scenario of 300 words weaving the six stills into a story. In fifty-word installments. Publish a still each day in order to give contestants time to think up a suitable story. In addition to your local prizes, and to help you land your local paper, Universal offers four genuine autographed photos, two each of Lupe Velez and John Boles, as prizes for winning scenarios. The photos will be sent free of charge. When you have arranged with your local paper for the contest, write Exploitation Department, Universal Pictures, 730 - 5th Avenue, N. Y. City, giving names and addresses of the four winners. Photos will be mailed directly to them.

"SCANDAL SHEET" PRESS BOOK

A UNIQUE press sheet, which closely resembles a tabloid newspaper, has been put together by Cliff Lewis and the Paramount advertising department for the exploitation of "Scandal Sheet," George Bancroft's latest starring picture, which deals with the life of the editor of a yellow journal.

The sheet, a twelve-page affair, is laid out as nearly as possible along tabloid lines, printed matter being topped with saffron headlines and even the cuts being used in the approved sensational manner.

TIEUPS PUT OVER "HELL'S ANGELS"

MEMBERS of the Naval Reserve Band furnished music at the Friday midnight opening of Hell's Angels" at Loew's Stillman Theatre, Cleveland, where thirty-one members of the Quiet Birdman Club, and the officers of the 112th Observation Squadron, O. N. C., were guests. On Saturday a fleet of airplanes flew over the downtown section of the city, attracting wide attention.

Through a tie-up with the transcontinental air service, a free air trip to California was offered to the writer of the best review of "Hell's Angels," and fifty pairs of passes were given to the fifty next best reviews. M. A. Malaney is in charge of exploitation and publicity for Loew theatres.

STUNT IDEA FROM NEWS FEATURES

CARL BAMFORD, manager of the Paramount Theatre, Asheville, N. C., in running through his morning paper on December 31, was attracted by Dorothy Dix's syndicated article, which is a daily feature in many newspapers throughout the country. The opening line caught his attention. It read:

"A college professor advises young men to marry their secretaries. It seems to me that this is a tip which could be played to win."

Then followed two columns of material and bamford saw in it a fine tie-up for "The Office Wife," featuring Dorothy Mackaill and Lewis Stone. Every line of the Dix article was applicable to "The Office Wife" and as the writer has a large following, bamford determined to make good use of it. This he did and with such excellent results that he cheerfully passes on the tip to other exhibitors who are yet to show "The Office Wife" to do the same thing. What he did in Asheville he feels can be done in all of the other cities in which the Dorothy Dix articles are a daily feature.

SIMPLE STUNTS GET ATTENTION

THE management of the Palace Theatre in Huntington, W. Va., used an idea in an effective manner in its newspaper exploitation of Richard Barthelmess in "The Lash." The space taken was two columns wide and running the depth of a page. A head of Barthelmess topped the ad and this same head was repeated five times, each cut having a line of solid type under it. The cuts stood out so prominently and there was so little type matter to detract from them, that the ads easily caught the eye and commanded attention.

The Palace in announcing Joe E. Brown in "Going Wild" utilized another old but still fruitful stunt when brought up to date in issuing illustrated office blotters. These blotters told of the coming of "Joe E. Joy, done up Brown in 'Going Wild'." Both "The Lash" and "Going Wild" profited from the exploitation stunts for both played to capacity business.

KINE-QUIPMENT

NEW DEVELOPMENTS
IN THEATRE EQUIPMENT

Golde Manufacturing Co. has Carbon Saver

The Golde Manufacturing Co. of Chicago is marketing a new carbon saver which is said to be an economical development.

The new carbon saver, it is said, allows the use of the 9 mm. stubs heretofore discarded. The 20-inch 9 mm. carbon used in high intensity reflector arcs, now burned for about seven reels' running time, costs approximately five cents per reel. The waste, about 35 per cent in the form of a stub impossible to burn in that type of lamp, may be used for two more reels, making a saving of 30 per cent.

This saving, the company states, is accomplished with very little effort on the part of the projectionist.

Using two carbon savers, one lamp may be continually burned for months with the stubs previously wasted. There is no drilling or messy handling, no cutting of carbon, no shaving or filing.

The burnt end of the carbon is inserted in the Golde carbon saver twisted into a specially threated taper hole and rolled on a flat surface to secure perfect alignment. For added safety a special screw is provided which draws up stub into saver. Thus the carbon saver and carbon become one straigh integral length, which is inserted in the same manner as regular carbons.

There is nothing on the carbon saver to wear away, if care is taken to see that it does not burn away. That is merely a matter of setting the running time for the average length carbon stub, the company claims.

NEW PROCESS OF COLOR ON MARKET

New York—United Film Industries, Inc., will place on the market a new process of color photography soon. The process was invented in Germany and is said to be covered by basic patents. A laboratory will be constructed in Hollywood, in addition to the one in New York.

The methods of operation are the standard black and white manufacturing methods, with the exception of the "sensitizing" operation of the unexposed negative or positive stock, and the passing of the developed and fixed negative or positive film through three chemicals and dye baths. In connection with the use of the sound track the process operates in the same manner as the standard black and white film. Standard "orthochromatic" negative stock and standard positive stock are used. The methods of photography are the same as in standard black and white, and standard black and white cameras are used, without any addition thereto.

The operations, to produce a motion picture negative film, require only 30 minutes more time than the usual black and white involves. The extra time, handling and chemicals required add approximately one-half per cent per foot to the cost of production, over and above the cost of producing black and white negatives.

The president of United Film Industries is Hans von Fraunhofer, and Dr. Joseph S. Firedman, photo-chemist, formerly with Technicolor, is in charge of the technical department.

ORTHO-KROME SCREEN ELIMINATES GLARE AND REDUCES EYE STRAIN

As the result of nine months of exhaustive tests at laboratories in New York and at the Lyric Theatre, Hoboken, New Jersey, Electrical Research Products, according to an announcement made by its vice-president, H. G. Knox, has taken over the exclusive distribution of the Ortho-Krome motion picture screen.

This invention has best been described as a new movie screen with a processed surface that eliminates glare, brings the most minute details of a picture into clear relief without eye strain and offers the same amount of light to every person in a theatre regardless of the angle or elevation of a seat in relation to the screen. Other claims made for the screen are that it has a longer life than the old-time screen and can be operated at a lower cost for electric current.

Its inventor is Albert Hurley, New York physicist, who has invented a process for removing the glare from the printed page and is now applying the same physiological principles to the development of a motion picture screen.

In announcing the new screen Mr. Knox predicted important changes in motion picture projection resulting from a better absorption of harmful light rays and a more uniform diffusion of light in a theatre.

From Mr. Hurley, the inventor, came the statement that the Ortho-Krome screen derives its importance from the fact that it was developed upon physiological, rather than upon physical principles with the effect upon the eye as the chief consideration.

"Heretofore," he said, "the surface material of screens has been selected from those giving the lowest ratio of brightness to some one in the center of the theatre and the highest to some one on the sides. The ratio was about ten to one on a silver screen and about four to one on a beaded screen and there was no way of adjusting this inequality because the screens were made from a practical standpoint without adequate consideration for the optical characteristics of the material used.

"The Ortho-Krome screen is based upon the principle that the material must be optically suitable before any other consideration enters into it. We experimented minutely, our experiments involving the designing and manufacture of instruments to measure light.

"We finally found a way, by using a pigment, by which harmful rays could be minimized by emphasizing other rays. The result is a screen which, while it reflects less light than the old-time screen is still appparently brighter, gives every one in the theatre the same amount of light and produces a better quality of picture projection. We have accomplished this by regulating the amount, intensity and quality of light transmitted and reflected to the eye so as to relieve eye fatigue and nerve strain.

"From a practical standpoint we have proved that the new screen can be operated at a considerable saving in electric current and that it will not turn yellow or disintegrate with time as the result of chemical reactions."

Mr. Hurley has been developing the Ortho-Krome screen over a period of years and has protected his invention by patents.

NEW FEATURES ON PORTABLE RECORDER

Some new features are said to be embodied on the new Electrotone portable sound-on-film recording unit. The device is a product of the Electrotone Corp. of Detroit.

In this unit, mechanical light valves and glow lamps have been eliminated, while recording is possible with either variable density or area, as desired, through a simple mask change. In conjunction with this unit a patented electrical synchronizer is used. Through the use of this electrical synchronizer it is possible to have two independent shafts revolve at identically the same speed and maintain that speed for as long as desired. This means that a motor in Detroit can be regulated to the speed of a motor running in New York, or at any given distance, without any variation whatever, through radio control.

As recording of sound is done independent of the camera, through the medium of this electrical synchronizer, perfect synchronization is asured at all times, as for this particular application the synchronizer has been adjusted to exercise a complete and absolutely dependable check 12 times on every foot of film running through, the company states.

G-M MARKETING HEAD AMPLIFIER

G-M Laboratories of Long Island announces the perfection of an improved preliminary amplifier for use with sound-on-film equipment.

This amplifier, it is said, is adaptable to all makes of sound equipment and, due to its small size and the simplicity of installation, can be used with either new or old equipment.

The complete unit is mounted in a steel service case, permitting the wiring through rigid or flexible conduit.

Other features are said to include variable cell voltage control, which permits adjustment of the photo-electric cell output for best quality and minimum background noise and adjustable inter-stage gain control.

PEPPER RELEASED FROM SUNDAY SHOW INJUNCTION ORDER

St. Croix Falls, Wis. — Judge Carl M. Lynn in County Court here has dissolved a temporary order restraining R. O. Pepper from showing movies in his theatre on Sundays. The judge's decree relieves Pepper from penalty for contempt for showing the movies after an injunction had been served. A petition signed by a number of local residents had charged him with violation of the blue laws.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR NEW CHIPPEWA

Chippewa Falls, Wis.—Plans and specifications for the new Chippewa Theatre here have been completed and now are in the contractors' hands for bids. The house will seat 904 and will have a "spoon type" pitched floor. A novel feature will be a women's rest room equipped with a monitor and sound proof glass panel to enable mothers, with restless infants, to see and hear the show while caring for their children.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR SOUTHERN KILLER

A jury in district court found Albert Sarako guilty of the attempted hold-up of the New Southern Theatre, an uptown Minneapolis house, and the murder of Peter Hoffman, one of the employees. Judge W. W. Bardwell sentenced Sarako to life imprisonment at Stillwater.

Publix Shows at Huron

Publix is now booking its vaudeville unit shows into the Huron, S. D., theatre which has been remodeled to accommodate them. They are not the large unit shows that play the Minnesota Theatre, Minneapolis, and other such de luxe Publix houses in the biggest cities, but those especially organized for the smaller towns and some of the metropolises, including Omaha.

Definite Title

Burbank, Cal. — "The Finger Points" is the definite title of the new Richard Barthelmess picture, which has been in production at First National studios since the first of the year.

PUBLIX THEATRES PAY TRIBUTE TO M. L. FINKELSTEIN

Publix theatres of the Northwest division paid an impressive tribute to the memory of M. L. Finkelstein, one of the organizers of the chain of theatres, during the funeral of the latter in St. Paul. In every Publix house there was a three-minute silent period during the funeral. A trailer called attention to the accomplishments and philanthropy of Mr. Finkelstein and following the showing of this trailer the house was darkened and complete silent prevailed for more than a minute and a half.

Many theatrical notables, including Barney Balaban of Publix, attended the funeral of Mr. Finkelstein. The esteem and affection in which he was held was attested by the large number of people who came to pay him final respects. St. Paul newspapers commented editorially on the loss to their city of a figure who had been distinguished for his philanthropy and kindness.

I. H. Ruben, the former partner of Mr. Finkelstein in the F. & R. circuit, is so ill at the Florida resort where he is wintering that he could not be informed of the death of his beloved business and social pal.

GARRICK, ST. PAUL, OPENS WITH "ABE"

After being closed temporarily during the installation of new sound equipment, the Garrick Theatre, St. Paul, has been re-opened under independent management and now is showing United Artists' "Abraham Lincoln."

This picture was not included in the blanket contract for the entire United Artists' product by Publix for its northwest theatres.

Finkelstein Will

The will of M. L. Finkelstein, deceased former partner in the ownership of the F. & R. circuit of theatres purchased by Publix, provides for a trust fund from which the widow will receive an income of $20,000 a year. Three sons will share alike in the residue. There are also bequests to a sister and two brothers in Lithuania.

Outdoor Pictures in Demand in Northwest

Outdoor action pictures continue in heavy demand throughout the Northwest, distributors report. Exhibitors assert that first-class pictures of this type are the surest-fire box-office at this particular time.

A number of inquiries have been received by Mike Frisch, RKO exchange manager, regarding "Cimarron," the RKO outdoors epic, which will have its initial Northwest release at the RKO Orpheum Theatre the Week of Feb. 7.

"The fame of 'Cimarron' certainly has preceded it into the territory," said Mr. Frisch. "Apparently, every exhibitor in this section wants to show the picture. Every indication points to a record-breaking business on this offering and our main worry now is to obtain sufficient prints to satisfy the demand."

Incidentally, "Cimarron" was screened by Mr. Frisch last week for a small number of invited guests and the unanimous opinion of those who witnessed the showing was that the picture is a classic and rates among the greatest ever produced.

"It's a knock-out," was the comment heard on every hand at the screening. "It can't help but pack 'em in everywhere it is played."

Another big out-door picture, Zane Grey's "Fighting Caravans," starring Gary Cooper, was booked by Publix into its ace Minneapolis house, the Century, where the admission scale is 75c after 6:30 p.m. Officials said the booking meant that even the so-called high class of patrons want this sort of picture.

A Universal serial, "The Indians Are Coming," one of several outdoor action picture serials now released in the territory, is reported as going great at the Aster Theatre, a Publix loop house, and elsewhere.

"Trader Horn," a big forthcoming M-G-M release, while not in the western category, is listed under the head of outdoor action pictures. It is being awaited by the trade with keen anticipation.

The M-G-M thriller, "Billy, the Kid," is mopping up throughout the Northwest, while Fox's "The Big Trail" and Pathe's "The Painted Desert" also have met with splendid response.

Columbia's "Buck" Jones' pictures, such as "Shadow Ranch" and "Men Without Law," continue to be "best sellers," according to Ben Marcus, exchange manager.

SALES DRIVE OF BIG 4 FINISHED

New York—C. A. Stimson, vice-president of Big 4 Film Corporation, has brought to a successful conclusion the first sales drive in which independent exchanges have worked in a concerted effort to put over the product of an independent producing and distributing organization.

The campaign, known as the "Pay Dirt Drive," was inaugurated the week of November 3, 1930, running over a nine weeks' period to its termination on January 3, 1931. It included the entire output of twelve Big 4 Westerns.

Thirty - one independent exchanges participated nationally for playdates and cash. The individual quotas were issued at the inception of the period and at the end it was found that the national quota had been exceeded by one-half of one per cent. Some of the offices exceeded their expectancies by a nice margin and the general speeding up during the last few weeks indicated the seriousness with which the exchanges participated.

Prizes were offered and a total of 175 were distributed to affiliated employees at the end of the drive with the Standard Film Exchange of Buffalo leading, followed by the Capital Film Exchange of New York ,and with the Arthur C. Bromberg Attractions of Atlanta holding third place.

Business Improved From Last Week

Minneapolis (week ending Jan. 30)—Business picked up a little from last week, but was nothing to cause any wild rejoicing. Returns on the Clara Bow picture, "No Limit," were disappointing, in view of the front-page publicity received by the star recently. This advertising evidently hasn't helped Miss Bow as a box office attraction, if the Minnesota business is any criterion. The picture's lack of strength, however, might have had something to do with disappointing attendance, although this was off-set, in part at least, by the presence of Lillian Roth in person.

"Devil-to-Pay" and "Beau Ideal" at the Century and Orpheum, respectively, drew well and were liked. "The New Moon" also attracted satisfactory patronage to the State and won favor, while "Mother's Cry" gave the Aster one of its best weeks in some time.

Aster—Mother's Cry (First National), Dorothy Peterson. Business: Good. Summary: A sensational drama that portrays the sacrifices of a mother to raise her children properly; moderately interesting. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: News and comedy; serial.

Century—Devil to Pay (U. A.), Ronald Colman. Business Good. Summary: Colman splendid as a loveable ne'er-do-well in this delightful romantic comedy. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Chase comedy; Mickey Mouse cartoon; Terris Travelogue and sound news.

Lyric—The Gorilla (First National), Lila Lee and Harry Gribbon. Business: Fair. Summary: Thrills, chills and laughs in this fairly engrossing mystery drama. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news; comedy, screen vaudeville.

Minnesota—No Limit (Para.), Clara Bow. Business: Fair. Summary: The attractive Miss Bow as a theatre usher who falls in love with a gangster; lightweight and ordinary stuff. Entertainment Merits: 70 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, sound news.

RKO Orpheum—Beau Ideal (R-K-O), Ralph Forbes and Loretta Young. Business: Good. Summary: A stirring sequel to "Beau Gest," this thrilling drama relates the romance of a member of the French Foreign Legion and a beautiful young girl. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, sound news.

RKO Seventh Street—Charley's Aunt (Columbia), Charles Ruggles. Business: Good. Summary: Second loop week for this laugh-provoker.

State—New Moon (M-G-M), Lawrence Tibbett, Grace Moore and Adolphe Menjou. Business: Good. Summary: A highly pleasing musical drama in which a minor Russian army officer aspires for the heart and hand of a beautiful and proud noblewoman. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news; comedy; screen vaudeville.

FURTHER HONORS FOR "ALL QUIET"

New York—"All Quiet on the Western Front" holds first place as the best picture of 1930, according to recent polls. This recognition has come to it from all sides, and in an amazingly short period. The picture is less than a year old, having been shown for the first time at the Central Theatre, New York, on April 29, 1930.

The two greatest victories that can come to any picture have been won by "All Quiet." It received the gold award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, composed of 600 of the leading producers, players, and technicians of Hollywood, as the finest picture of the year. This is the industry's own stamp of approval on a work of genius.

The other recognition comes from the American people themselves, through 333 motion picture critics, with a reader public of 30,000,000. These critics, polled annually by The Film Daily, vote for the ten best pictures of the year. "All Quiet" won for 1930 by the highest figure ever scored in this series of annual contests. It received 271 votes and led the second picture on the list by 104. Moreover, the vote for "All Quiet" meant that 80 per cent of this army of critics placed it on their lists.

The three hundred and thirty-three critics represent 293 individual newspapers, three syndicates serving 450 additional newspapers, and 36 fan and trade publications, an aggregate of 779, the biggest number ever participating in The Film Daily Poll.

A picture of the magnitude and appeal of "All Quiet" is slated for innumerable repeat bookings. Carl Laemmle, furthermore, has already planned to start it on its road to immortality by keeping 100 prints in circulation for the next twenty-five years.

Radio Again in Giant Merchandising Smash

Day and Date Showings and Newspaper Campaign on "Cimarron" Top That of Amos 'n' Andy

Radio Pictures announces the completion of its plans for the gigantic day and date opening of "Cimarron" across country, together with the daily newspapers which are to carry its national advertising announcements in display space, paid for by Radio Pictures on behalf of the exhibitors participating in the national ticket-merchandising event.

The campaign, like that of the Amons 'n' Andy event, represents another great effort under the direction of Joseph I. Schnitzer, the aggressive young head of Radio Pictures, whose faith in advertising on a national scale was more than warranted by the Amos 'n' Andy results, and which he is again displaying in his management of "Cimarron."

Big Circuits Aid

"Skip" Weshner, Warner Bros. Theatres; A. M. Botsford, Publix, and Jack Hess, RKO Theatre Circuits, have taken an eager share in the national planning of the advertising and exploitation and have keyed up their showmen forces to fighting pitch for the impressive premieres which are set along their respective theatre fronts.

Single and double truck advertisements in red and black, and in black, calling for 4,000 and 2,000-line displays with copy and art work keyed to the magnitude and thrills of the big production are being used in the campaign, with Lord, Thomas, and Logan acting as advertising agency in the servicing and placing of the national newspaper advertising campaign.

Fred Madan, whose virile art work for the Amos 'n' Andy advertisements incited marked comment, is responsible for the art work for these "Cimarron" ads.

Theatres Participating

The theatres thus far listed to participate in the day and date opening campaign which is scheduled for February 5, 6 and 7, are as follows: Mainstreet, Kansas City, Mo.; Palace, Wichita, Kan.; Grand, Topeka, Kan.; Missouri, St. Joseph, Mo.; Burford, Arkansas City, Kan.; Regent, Winfield, Kan.; Orpheum, Los Angeles, Cal.; Orpheum, Memphis, Tenn.; Majestic, Little Rock, Ark.; Palace, Milwaukee, Wis.; Capitol, Madison, Wis.; Mainstreet, Racine, Wis.; Palace, St. Paul, Minn.; Orpheum, Minneapolis, Minn.; Orpheum, New Orleans, La.; Globe, New York, N. Exhibitor Leaders to Conduct Group Discussions at Meeting

Constructive Program Planned for Allied Convention

Chicago—Interest in the independent exhibitors' convention here February 10 and 11 is becoming more intensified as the news of the event travels to all parts of the country. Independents will come well armed with grievances if they heed the instructions of an Allied States bulletin, which urges the attendance of all independent showmen.

An elaborate program has been prepared for the two-day conclave, which will be conducted on a group plan. To save time and insure a smooth running program at the meeting, Abram Myers, president of Allied, announces that a group of leaders have been asked to come prepared to lead the discussions on certain designated subjects. They are:

(a) Copyright Protection Bureau activities, Lester F. Martin.

(b) Music tax and the score charges, Charles R. Metzger.

(c) Talking picture equipment, parts, and service charges, Nathan Yamins.

(d) Block booking and the tying of features and shorts, W. A. Steffes.

(e) Unreasonable protection, W. W. Whitson.

(f) Guarantee and percentage, Charles E. Nolte.

(g) Checking percentage playing, Sidney E. Samuelson.

(h) Exhibitor organization and national advertising for Allied theatres, H. M. Richey.

(i) Quality, length and availability of feature pictures, R. E. Myers.

(j) Price and quality of talking trailers, Bennie Berger.

(k) Circuit theatre expansion, Fred Herrington.

(l) Legislation, committee consisting of all Allied presidents.

(m) Stabilization of industry and the coordination of all its branches, Abram F. Myers.

SHOOTING STARTS ON "FRONT PAGE"

Hollywood—"The Front Page," Howard Hughes' next film-play, is now in production at the United Artists studio.

Under direction of Lewis Milestone, and with a brilliant all-star line-up of players, the celluloid edition of this sensational newspaper story is in the making at last. It was two years ago that Howard Hughes bought this story for the screen at a cost of $125,000.

TO TEST LEGALITY OF ZONING

Washington—Legality of film distributors as a body to draft zoning plans throughout the country may be tested here, it was reported here last week. Because of the recent Supreme Court decisions finding compulsory arbitration and the old credit systems illegal, there is some apprehension concerning the legality of the zoning systems which have been worked out under the guidance of the Hays organization, but which have not as yet been put into operation.

It is believed possible that the Department of Justice may submit a test case, involving some trade association, in order to get a final interpretation.

SPYROS SKOURAS QUITS AS WARNER THEATRE HEAD

New York—Spyros Skouras, in charge of Warner Bros. theatre department, resigned last week. George Skouras, his brother, also resigned as assistant to Spyros.

Friction between Skouras and the Warners has been apparent for some time, it is reported. Interference from other branches of the organization in the affairs of the theatre department is said to be a principal cause for the split..

Operation of Warner theatres is to be handled by a committee of three home office executives, following withdrawal of Skouras.

MARCO SUCCEEDS ROXY MARCH 29

New York — Marco Wolf, the Marco of Fanchon and Marco, succeeds S. L. Rothafel (Roxy) as managing director of the Roxy Theatre on March 29, it was reported here last week. Roxy is resigning to join the RCA interests.

CONNELLY GEN. MGR. OF PATHE-RKO NEWSREEL

New York—Jack Connelly has been named as general manager of the Pathe-RKO newsreel.. Terry Ramsaye, head of Pathe short subject department, will be retired as editor-in-chief of the newsreel. The sale of Pathe to RKO releases Pathe News to the latter organization.

WE - GTP DECISION EXPECTED IN FEB.

New York—The decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia on Western Electric's appeal from the decision on the Reis patents involved in the General Talking Pictures case, is expected the later part of February.

The action, directed at the Stanley Co. owing to its use of De Forest reproducing equipment, was argued in December. Fourteen counts are embraced in the suit which charges infringement.

R. A. Rowland, Tiffany Executive

New York—Announcement has been made of the re-entry of Richard A. Rowland into the motion picture business through his becoming associated with Tiffany Productions, Inc., in an executive capacity. Mr. Rowland formerly was general manager and production chief for First National. He was also one of the originators and builders of Metro.

In confirmation of this announcement Grant L. Cook, vice-president of Tiffany, said: "We feel that this is a great acquisition to the theatres in general and to Tiffany in particular. Mr. Rowland is known to be one of the best showmen and production executives that the motion picture business has ever known and we feel that it means a tremendous impetus for Tiffany."

Mr. Rowland said: "Outside of Tiffany's regular output, we will only attempt to make first run productions where the story warrants, which gives us a big advantage over the average producer. It is our intention to commercialize our productions in cost and showmanship. Tiffany will do the bulk of its own production, but is willing to entertain propositions from outside producers who have the same sense of commercial showmanship."

WHEELER-WOOLSEY TEAM SPLIT FOR SHORT PERIOD

Hollywood—One of the screen's most popular comedy trios is to be broken up—but only temporarily.

Future plans for Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey and Dorothy Lee were revealed by William LeBaron, vice-president in charge of production of Radio Pictures.

For the next sixty days, each of the funsters will be funny alone.

Wheeler, according to LeBaron, will play the leading role in "Too Many Cooks," which may be directed by Wesley Ruggles of "Cimmarron" fame.

Dorothy Lee is to be starred in a story of college life, as yet untitled. Mel Brown, director, is working on the script.

Woolsey, of the trick cigar and the horn-rimmed spectacles, will likewise be starred in his own picture, not yet titled.

After these separate ventures, Wheeler and Woolsey will be reunited and will make four pictures together during the new year.

LeBaron said he had not decided whether Dorothy Lee would rejoin the team, or would continue as an independent star.

JACKIE COOGAN SIGNED BY PARA.

Hollywood—Jackie Coogan has been signed by Paramount Publix Corporation for a series of pictures, according to an announcement by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production. The signing of young Coogan, which means the indefinite return to the screen of the greatest youthful film star ever to appear before the cameras, followed the country-wide success of his current vehicle, "Tom Sawyer," which is his initial talking picture.

PATHE NOW UNDER RKO CONTROL

New York — Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation took title to the assets of Pathe Exchange, Inc., on January 30, according to announcement by Hiram S. Brown, president of RKO. This is in accordance with the contract made between the two companies and ratified by the Pathe stockholders early this month.

The announcement stated that two distinct producing and distributing organizations will be maintained. Pathe studio and exchanges will continue to function apart from RKO studio and branches.

PICTURE BUSINESS

WITH the legislatures of all states in active session for four weeks now, it has been strongly evidenced that the motion picture industry is a target that is being shot at with the heaviest barrage of bills ever aimed at it in its history. That doesn't augur well for the exhibitors.

The imaginations of legislators haven't overlooked a thing for which a tax could be placed against this industry. If but a fraction of these bills are passed, it will raise havoc with the profits of the hard-working exhibitors who have pulled through a terrible year, but who have looked to 1931 to bring them a sufficient measure of gain to make up their losses in 1930.

Regional exhibitor associations, national exhibitor bodies and the Hays' organization must work hand in hand and shoulder to shoulder, if the threatening adverse legislation is to be defeated. We know of exhibitor bodies that are accepting the big responsibility they have and we know, too, that C. C. Pettijohn of the Hays' organization and his assistants are working untiringly in the same direction. Millions of dollars are at stake and the future of many of the smaller theatres throughout the country is involved.

It is a most serious situation and there are no two ways about it. Factionalism must be cast aside, if only for the present. Exhibitor, regardless of his affiliations, producer and distributor, must work as one in putting up the strongest possible defensive against the tremendous outside forces that threaten to stifle this business. There's a big job to be done and every man of you in the industry should shoulder his "musket" and put on his strongest fighting manner in a determination to win!

INDEPENDENTS should welcome the news that Richard A. Rowland has come out of retirement and is again active in the producing end of this business. As one of the originators and directors of the old Metro company and later as production generalissimo of First National, Mr. Rowland gave the industry some outstanding attractions. He knows production values and how to make them. Prior to entering production his experiences as an exhibitor may have had much to do with his knowledge of what the box-office needs.

With Mr. Rowland in an active executive post with Tiffany this independent organization ought to bud into a strong contender for leadership in the industry. Good independent productions from one company usually bring out the best from other companies. So the independents, both exhibitors and producers, ought to benefit from Mr. Rowland's return to the industry. We congratulate Tiffany on inducing him to join their organization and we convey our best wishes to Mr. Rowland for his every success.

PRACTICAL SHOWMANSHIP AND PICTURE SELLING METHODS OF EXHIBITORS

Columbia Launches Nation-Wide Contest

THE public will be given an opportunity to write a complete history of lighter-than-air craft, which will be edited by outstanding persons in the world of aviation, through one of the most unique and extensive radio essay contests ever staged. For eight weeks, commencing Feb. 8 and ending April 8 at midnight, weekly programs will be produced over stations throughout the United States and Canada consisting of especially recorded programs, and the reading of submitted essays by the contestants themselves.

The contest comes simultaneously with the release of the motion picture "Dirigible," which was written by Lieut. Commander Frank Wilber Wead and made by Columbia Pictures with the full cooperation of the United States Navy, Bureau of Aeronautics. It stars Jack Holt and Ralph Graves under the direction of Frank Capra. The film was made with a view to fostering increased interest in lighter-than-air craft.

The contest, open to the entire American public, is divided in three classes. Radio stations throughout the country will also compete for the following awards: Cup to the station receiving the largest number of entries, cup to the station showing widest range of broadcasting, cup to the station showing the greatest business increase during the run of the contest, and medals to the station whose listeners are awarded essay prizes.

The entrant in the essay contest may select any phase of epoch that he or she chooses and contribute an essay of not more than five hundred words on the history of "Dirigible."

The essay contest will be divided into three classes, viz.: university student, high school pupil and general public, with prizes in each class as follows: First prize in each class, $300 in gold; second prize in each class, $100 in gold; third prize in each class, $50 in gold; fourth prize in each class, $25 in gold; fifth to twenty-fifth prizes in each class, a complete set of seven handsomely bound and beautifully illustrated volumes on aviation, donated by the Norman W. Henley Publishing Co.

Judges in the contest are: Lieut. Thomas B. Mulroy, Capt. Lewis A. Yancey, Miss Elinor Smith, Prof. Alexander Klemin, director of the Guggenheim School of Aeronautics; Capt. Frank Hawks, Clarence Chamberlain, world famous flying ace; Augustus Post, father of American ballooning; Joe Brandt, president of Columbia Pictures Corp.; Jack Holt and Ralph Graves, stars of the "Dirigible" picture, and Frank Capra, the film's director.

MAGAZINE BOOSTS "BILLY THE KID"

A NOVEL and interesting tie-up with a magazine was included by Fred S. Meyer, manager of the Alhambra Theatre, Milwaukee, Wis., in the exploitation campaign he used to help put over his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Billy the Kid."

Meyer arranged with a magazine called "Ace High," a western story magazine, which the publishers are trying to put over in Milwaukee for a tie-up in connection with "Billy the Kid." Meyer was given eighty-five hundred copies of this magazine to distribute in any way he wanted, so he had special stickers printed and pasted on the front covers. They were then distributed to the patrons leaving the theatre, and also at various manufacturing plants in Milwaukee. The stunt was a huge success inasmuch as the magazines were distributed in very little time, with no left overs.

Meyer also secured a special window display at the Carnival Costume store. A dummy was dressed in a costume on the same order as that worn by John Mack Brown in "Billy the Kid," and stills from the production were used as well as window cards to make the display more attractive.

TIME CARDS AID "WAY FOR SAILOR"

CHARLES RAYMOND, formerly manager of the Loew's Midland Theatre, Kansas City, included a novel arrangement with a noted concern in the exploitation campaign he used to help succeed in his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Way For a Sailor."

Raymond made arrangements with the Montgomery Ward Co. to use between four and five thousand time cards, used by their employees, in his interesting exploitation stunt. These cards are used by the Montgomery Ward Co.'s employees in checking in and out for work, and they are handled four times each day. Raymond had these cards imprinted with copy on the production, theatre and playdate.

SUGAR TIE-UP FOR NEW YORK HOUSE

THE Van Beuren Corporation, producing short subjects for Pathe release, has inaugurated a campaign to educate theatre patrons on the relation good short reels have to the entertainment value of moving picture theatre programs.

Arrangements have been made with The American Sugar Refining Company whereby 200,000 small boxes of sugar will be distributed to theatre patrons, each box having a sticker attached calling attention of the reader to the fact that "This Theatre sweetens its program with Van Beuren Quality Short Features," which includes Aesop's Film Fables, Grantland Rice Sportlight, Vagabond Adventure Series and Van Beuren Song Sketches, the suger to be handed out in connection with the presentation of two or more of the above subjects being shown on the current program of the theatre.

This exploitation tie-up is the beginning of a series of tie-ups between the Van Beuren short subjects and nationally advertised household products planned by the Van Beuren Corporation for the year 1931.

SUITCASE TIE-UP

HOW to boost "Hold Everything" was the problem that beset H. B. Harris, manager of the Marina Theatre, Lowestoff, a seaside town in England. The exclusiveness of the title presented a challenge. Finally Harris hit upon a suit case which would "hold everything," got in touch with its makers and then tied up with the local dealer handling this particular case. The result was a contest in which the chief prize was one of the cases. The exploitation stunt was highly successful.

Harris followed it with another which was to culminate on Friday, his poor night. This consisted of a tie-up with merchants whereby purchasers of gifts for the poor in the local hospital would receive tickets admitting them at half price to see "Hold Everything." This also was successful and the result was that the Warner picture showing Winnie Lightner and Joe E. Brown had the most profitable week in the history of the theatre.

"SUNNY" PROFITS FROM GOOD STUNT

AN exploitation stunt which J. Real Neth, manager of the Grand in Columbus, O., tried out with fine effect on eve of the showing of Marilyn Miller in "Sunny" was a search for the girl with the sunniest smile in the city. In this he had the cooperation of the Columbus Dispatch. The lucky girl, when found, as well as her closest competitors were to have their pictures printed in the Dispatch and receive cash prizes. There were other prizes of tickets to the theatre. The contest created a good deal of interest and grew in importance during its progress. The Dispatch printed the pictures of the winners and Neth reproduced them on the screen of the Grand.

The contest lasted a week and was played up daily in double column illustrated stories in the Dispatch. The awarding of the prizes drew a record breaking audience to the Grand and the stunt resulted in the First National production of "Sunny" having one of the biggest runs of the season in Columbus.

Pagoda in Lobby

FOR the run of "East Is West" at the Spreckels Theatre, San Diego, Calif., Mike Newman set up a huge pagoda in his lobby, the center of which contained a revolving wheel on which production stills were placed. In the windows on either side of the wheel were enlarged portraits of Lupe Velez and Lew Ayres. Varicolored spotlights played on the cut-out, the shifting colors adding to its effectiveness.

Cast: Harry Carey, Edwina Booth, Duncan Renaldo, Muti Omoolu. Directed by W. S. Van Dyke.

The director had a tough job when he was given this assignment, but he has turned out a picture which thrilled those who attended a recent preview. The suspense has been sustained throughout the footage, most of which was shot in Africa. The story is based on a best seller of a few years ago and it is unfolded intelligently by a good cast.—W. More About CIMARRON

A few weeks ago a review of "Cimarron" by a Los Angeles representative appeared on this page. Since then the editor has seen the picture at a private screening and he wishes to add more to the glowing review previously published.

"Cimarron," if you will pardon the trite and greatly overworked word, is an epic. The running time is two hours and ten minutes and yet the picture seems to be over too soon. There is not a dull moment in the entire feature. From the opening shot to the fadeout the audience is held in awe and admiration for the noble efforts made by Director Wesley Ruggles to present a picture so true to life and so authentic in its portrayal of the history of a great state.

An outstanding feature of "Cimarron" is the year-by-year development of the town in which the story is laid, Osage. And as the years pass the watcher sees the town grow up, sees the establishing of telegraph poles, the laying of sewer pipes, the paving of streets and the erection of buildings, until at the end Osage is a city of towering skyscrapers. The styles of clothes have been accurately studied and with each passing period the clothes worn by the players are authentic with the times.

It is this close attention to details, in addition to a powerful story, that makes "Cimarron" a truly great picture. Richard Dix does his finest work. He has given a masterful touch to the role of Yancey Cravat and we know of no other personality in the screen world who could have given it better interpretation. Other honors go to Irene Dunne, as Sabra Cravat, whose portrayal is without a flaw. Roscoe Ates as the stuttering printer, whose loyalty to Sabra extends over thirty years, is one of the brightest spots in the cast. George E. Stone deserves credit for his fine acting as Sol Levy, who starts out as a peddler and ends as the owner of a great department store. Estelle Taylor as Dixie Lee, the scarlet woman of Osage, tops her acting career. Stanley Fields, the town's bad man, is excellent And the little colored boy, whose name has slipped our minds for the moment, is a find. Nance O Neil, the "busy-body" of the town, could not be improved upon. The dialogue, the photography, in fact the entire technical side of the production have been handled with expert hands.

"Cimarron" is extraordinary.—Steen.

The Royal Bed

Radio Pictures—72 Minutes

Cast: Lowell Sherman, Nance O'Neil, Mary Astor, Anthony Bushnell, Robert Warwick, Alan Roscoe, Hugh Trevor, Gilbert Emery, Carroll Naish, Frederick Burt, Desmond Roberts, Lita Chevret, Nancy Lee Blaine. Directed by Lowell Sherman.

The title is somewhat misleading as there is no bed in evidence throughout the footage, but the inference is "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," even though it is not within the power of all humans to become kings and queens the picture convinces one that kings and queens can be human beings.

Lowell Sherman makes an otherwise illogical and simple story real and entertaining through his splendid direction and excellent portrayal of the king, harrassed by affairs of state and politics when his main desire was to make everybody happy and be happy himself. Loving his daughter above all else and learning that she is in love with his secretary and not the disreputable prince selected by her ambitious mother and designing general, he promises to aid the lovers to elope.

A revolution interrupts and the secretary refuses to leave at such a crucial time, the daughter, also, deciding to stay and face the music with her father. The general, who has made plans to set himself up as dictator to the throne, is beaten at his own game when the king exposes him and wins the respect of his people. The queen, learning of the daughter's attachment to the secretary, insists that the king exile the secretary and the king signs the order secretly, making it read: "and wife." Risking the displeasure of the queen he sends them on their way rejoicing.

Nance O'Neil deftly handles the role of the domineering queen, a difficult role ,which if the least overdone would border on burlesque. Mary Astor is satisfying as the revolting daughter. An altogether splendid cast together with luxurious settings makes it an entertaining picture for the entire family.—Warren.

Inspiration

M-G-M—79 Minutes

Cast: Greta Garbo, Robt. Montgomery, Lewis Stone, Marjorie Rambeau, Judith Vosselli, Beryl Mercer, John Miljan, Edwin Maxwell, Oscar Apfel, Joan Marsh, Zelda Sears, Karen Morely, Gwen Lee, Paul McAllister, Arthur Hoyt, Richard Tusker. Directed by Clarence Brown.

A picture for adult patronage, which may be termed as good entertainment and yet cannot compare with Greta Garbo's previous talking efforts. "Anne Christie" and "Romance" had a wider appeal. Robert Montgomery turns in a satisfactory performance while Greta is her usual charming self.

The absence of strong action is one drawback to the picture but the followers of Greta Garbo and the admirers of Robert Montgomery should find "Inspiration" entertaining.—A. F. S.

Dawn Trail—Columbia (61). Lots of action, romance, hard riding, gun play and all the ingredients of a first rate western; Buck Jones is right ther. (Jan. 13)

Derelict—Paramount (75). Thrilling sea story which rates better than average entertainment. George Bancroft and William Boyd (of stage fame) play the leading parts. (Nov. 25)

Devil to Pay—United Artists (78). Subtle comedy-drama which gives Colman his best role; can be classed as one of the finer pictures of the current season. (Dec. 23)

Doorway to Hell—Warner (77). Realistically portrayed melodrama of racketeers and gang wars; Lew Ayres gives another outstanding performance. (Nov. 25)

Ex-Flame—Liberty (72). Modernized version of "East Lynne"; Marian Nixon displays marked ability in the leading role. (Dec. 30)

Fast and Loose—Paramount (71). Light farce which rates only as a fair programmer with the cast practically unknown to movie fans. (Dec. 16)

Fighting Through—Tiffany (60). Ken Maynard and his horse, Tarzan, should be liked in this fast moving western thriller. (Dec. 30)

Fourth Alarm—W. Ray Johnston (60). Thrilling melodrama of fire fighting with Nick Stuart as the hero and Ann Christy as the girl he rescues. (Dec. 16)

Illicit—Warners (81). Interesting story which presents the problems encountered in companionate marriage; Barbara Stanwyck is superb. (Jan. 20)

Life of the Party—Warners (70). Typical Winnie Lightner offering that gets away to a slap-bang start and doesn't let up. (Nov. 4)

Lightnin'—Fox (80). Excellent piece of entertainment enhanced by the brilliant dialogue of Will Rogers. (Dec. 9)

Little Caesar—First National (76). Expertly produced gangster story with Edward G. Robinson and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., giving able performances. (Jan. 27).

Madonna of the Streets—Columbia (75). Better than average program material with satisfactory performances played by Robert Ames and Evelyn Brent. (Dec. 23)

Man to Man—Warners (70). Should please the majority of picture fans; Phillips Holmes and Grant Mitchell convincing throughout. (Jan. 27).

Man Who Came Back—Fox (80). The popular pair, Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor, in an absorbing melodrama, which should make money. (Jan. 13)

Morocco—Paramount (83). Story of the French Foreign Legion which marks the first appearance of Marlene Dietrich, new German star. (Dec. 9)

Night Work—Pathe (94). Human interest drama which rates as good entertainment for the whole family. Eddie Quillan furnishes most of the laughs. Dec. 2)

Once a Sinner—Fox (70). Dorothy Mackaill in a pleasing feature with some remarkable settings and good acting. (Jan. 27).

One Heavenly Night—United Artists (81). Comedy with music which makes satisfactory entertainment and should win many admirers for Evelyn Laye, British favorite. (Jan. 20)

Paid—M-G-M (85). Joan Crawford puts over a highly commendable performance in this new version of the celebrated stage play, "Within the Law." (Jan. 13)

Painted Desert—Pathe (77). Western picture which should please the majority; Bill Boyd and Helen Twelvetrees furnish the romantic interest. (Jan. 20)

Princess and the Plumber—Fox (72). Charles Farrell in a made-to-order part as the plumber, while Maureen O'Sullivan delightfully fits the part of the princess; should satisfy anywhere. (Dec. 30)

Reaching for the Moon—United Artists (92). A modern story of genuine fun which should register well at the box office for the Douglas Fairbanks' fans. (Dec. 30)

Remote Control—M-G-M (66). Will please even those patrons who are tired of Bill Haines and his wisecracking; re-instates the comedian as a favorite. (Nov. 25)

Right to Love—Paramount (80). An outstanding production expertly directed and featuring Ruth Chatterton; its appeal is mainly for adults. (Dec. 23)

See America Thirst—Universal (72). Good action comedy that should please generally; plenty of funny doings by Harry Langdon and Slim Summerville. (Dec. 9)

Scandal Sheet—Paramount (75). Newspaper yarn, well directed and well acted, but a bit far-fetched, with George Bancroft as the managing editor of a daily newspaper. (Dec. 30)

Second Honeymoon—Continental (60). A pleasing light comedy which has been handled and directed nicely. (Jan. 20)

Sinner's Holiday—Pathe (60). Story of amusement park life which makes good entertainment anywhere; Grant Withers and Evelyn Knapp play the leading roles. (Dec. 2)

Soup to Nuts—Fox (65). Rube (Cartoonist) Goldberg story which will bring many laughs; Ted Healy heads the cast. (Nov. 4)

Southerner—M-G-M (75). Besides Tibbett's singing being outstanding the story is a good one, well acted and directed and makes real entertainment. (Jan. 27)

Sunny—First National (75). Another muical, although not outstanding, turns out to be a pretty fair piece of entertainment with Marilyn Miller as the star. (Dec. 9)

Tol'able David—Columbia (75). A screen classic which spells box office in a big way and puts Richard Cromwell on the road to fame. (Nov. 18)

Today—Majestic (80). Good entertainment for intelligent trade; Conrad Nagel gives a splendid performance. (Nov. 25)

Tom Sawyer—Paramount (75). The famous Mark Twain story expertly interpreted on the screen by Jackie Coogan in the title role with an excellent supporting cast. (Dec. 2)

Trails of Danger—Big 4 (60). Will please where westerns are still popular; cast of favorites including Wally Wales, Jack Perrin, and Pete Morrison. (Nov. 11)

Up the River—Fox (92). Plenty of laughter in this opus of jail life. Tracy and Hymer make a good laugh combination. (Oct. 28)

Utah Kid—Tiffany (60) Rapid fire action western that should satisfy the cowboy fans; Rex Lease and Dorothy Sebastian are the pair involved in the love plot. (Dec. 2)

War Nurse—M-G-M (82). War picture emphasizing the woman's side of the world conflict; excellent cast headed by Robert Montgomery, June Walker and Anita Page. (Dec. 16)

Widow from Chicago—First National (64). Racketeer story with the action paramount; Alice White is seen in a different characterization while Edward G. Robinson chalks up a brilliant performance. (Dec. 23)

THE MOTION PICTURE SENSATION OF 1931

RANGO

JESSE L. LASKY

In the twenty years of my experience as a producer of motion pictures I have never been prouder of any production than I am of "Rango".

The picture, directed by Mr. Ernest Schoedsack, gave me one of the most amazing experiences I have ever had in the theatre. It is with the greatest personal pride that I, with my associates, offer it to the trade and to the public.

THE SOLUTION

TO THE PROBLEM of POOR PICTURES

IS

GOOD PICTURES

Simple isn't it? But how is one to know what pictures are good and what pictures are bad until one plays them? The box-office supplies the answer. Let every exhibitor send in an accurate report of the pictures he plays and a guide is furnished that will go a long way in eliminating inferior productions. But the reports must be truthful and unbiased.

You can become a member of the

Better Pictures Club

Simply by filling in and mailing the report blank on this page. Additional blanks will be furnished you for subsequent reports. There are no dues in this club and but two requirements—one, that you report 100% on every picture you play every week, shorts as well as features; and, two, that your reports be truthful and free from prejudice.

My opinion on pictures recently played here is as follows:

Neenah, Wis. — Official cognizance has been given to this city's plight in lacking a moving picture theatre. Alderman Robert Martens, at this week's city council meeting, pointed out that "everybody is going out of town for amusement." If this condition continues, he declared, "local residents will keep going out of town for everything else as well."

Alderman Martens urged that the city itself do something to obtain a theatre. He suggested that all the business and civic organizations unite in an effort to bring about the reopening of the Neenah theatre which is said to have been leased by Fox-Midwesco to the "Affiliated Theatres, Inc." Nothing is known, however, of the latter concern.

GRAND CHANGES REGULAR POLICY

The policy of the Grand Theatre, Minneapolis, a Publix house, is to afford second loop runs for a half week engagement for the more popular pictures.

The theatre has altered its regular policy for two successive weeks during the past fortnight to the extent of holding over its attractions for full week runs.

"Hell's Angels" and "Lightin' " were the pictures whose drawing power warranted their retention at this half-week house for full weeks. The former originally had been booked in for only four days, but business was so big that it remained for the entire week. It previously had played two consecutive weeks at the Century Theatre in the loop and a full week at the Uptown theatre, a neighborhood house.

"Lightnin' " had enjoyed such large patronage at the Minnesota for a full week and at the Uptown Theatre for another seven days that the Grand booking originally was scheduled for the entire week.

Wins Award

New York—"Rango," the Paramount picture of jungle life in Sumatra, has been awarded The Parents' Magazine seal which recommends outstanding films.

Announcement of the award will be published in the March issue of the magazine.

W. B. MILWAUKEE HOUSE READY FOR OPENING MARCH 1

Milwaukee—The new Warner Theatre at Second street and Wisconsin avenue will be turned over to Warner Bros. March 1, on which date the contractors have given notice that the theatre will be completed. Plans are already under way for the dedication of the house, in which state and city officials will take part. In connection with the theatre is a 14-story office building now over 60 per cent rented.

MUSICALS GAIN POPULARITY HERE

There are some indications that film musical comedies and operettas are gaining in favor again with Minneapolis audiences. Three of them were booked into Publix loop houses in two successive weeks and all drew well.

The Lawrence Tibbett picture, "New Moon," at the State, did a particularly big business and audience comments were highly enthusiastic, the theatre management reports. It was immediately followed last week by another musical, "One Heavenly Night," which also drew a profitable week.

Another musical, "The Lottery Bride," at the Lyric, last week, attracted much better patronage than the preceding offering at the same theatre. "Hook, Line and Sinker," another Wheeler and Woolsey vehicle, at the RKO Orpheum and Seventh Street theatres recently, have been splendid drawing cards.

PICTURES HELP AN APPROPRIATION

In an effort to obtain passage of a bill providing for a $350,000 appropriation to defray cost of a Minnesota state psychopathic hospital, sponsors of the measure enlisted the aid of the movies. They showed to the members of the state legislature a film especially made for the purpose of illustrating the actual workings and results of the Colorado psychopathic hospital. Dr. F. G. Ebaugh of Denver explained the movie.

Monster Exploitation Plug on "Cimarron"

One of the biggest exploitation campaigns ever given to any theatrical attraction in the Twin Cities has been accorded "Cimarron," the great Edna Ferber picture, by the RKO Orpheum Theatre in Minneapolis. The picture opened its engagement Saturday and Sunday to the biggest crowds in the history of the showhouse.

The campaign, arranged by Emil Franke, house manager, even exceeded that which the same theatre put over for "Amos 'n' Andy." One of the novel tie-ups was with the Hotel Radisson Flame Room, the town's leading night club, which was induced to stage a "Cimarron Supper Dance" on the Friday evening preceding the picture's midnight premiere at the Orpheum. The $2 admission to the supper dance entitled the ticket holder to reserved seats at the "Cimarron" premiere which immediately followed the dance.

No less than three three-quarter page ads in the Minneapolis newspapers, a full showing of 24-sheets and 750 two-sheets were used. A total of 275 stories was planted in newspapers throughout the entire Northwest.

Through a tie-up with the public library, 10,000 book marks advertising the picture were distributed in the libraries. Boy Scouts to the number of 1,500 paraded through the loop with banners urging attendance at the picture. History instructors from the state university, high schools and surrounding colleges, together with city officials, were guests of Mr. Franke at a special preview at midnight Wednesday preceding the Friday premiere.

A contest in the high school carried prizes of 10 of Edna Ferber's novels for the best review of the picture written by a student. A newspaper tie-up offered free admission to the first 20 people of Oklahoma birth appearing at the theatre with their birth certificates.

The biggest banner ever utilized indoors has been advertising the picture in the RKO lobby for several weeks and now is spotted on the city's principal business thoroughfare. The banner is 68 feet long and 12 feet high and spells out the picture's name in huge letters.

Many to Chicago

A large party of Northwest exhibitors is in attendance this week at the open meeting of all independent theatre owners in Chicago this week. The affair is being sponsored by Allied Theatres and Abram F. Myers, president and general counsel of the organization, will be the principal speaker.

The Northwest delegation was headed by W. A. Steffes, Allied representative in Minneapolis.

COOGAN'S YOUNG BROTHER SIGNED

Hollywood—Another member of the Coogan family is following in the footsteps of the famous Jackie. His younger brother Robert, five years old, has been signed to play the important role of Sooky in the Paramount screen version of "Skippy." A few days ago Jackie signed a contract to appear in a series of talking pictures with Paramount starting with "Huckleberry Finn," after making his return to the screen following an absence of three years in "Tom Sawyer." It was because of the first Mark Twain classic that Robert Coogan is now to make his screen debut with the same company which has his big brother.

New Grid Series

New York—Tiffany Productions announces through Grant L. Cook that a contract has been signed with Howard Jones, head football coach of the University of Southern California, and Alfred T. Mannon, a prominent motion picture producer, to make a series of one reel football features, during the season of 1931, to be released by Tiffany under the title of "Pigskin Problems." Production headquarters will be at the Tec Art studio in Hollywood, of which Mannon is the president and general manager.

Patents Committee Hears Complaints on Music Tax

Brylawski Pleads Case Before Senate Group for the Industry

Washington — Declaring that sound pictures took away from the theatre owner the right or power to separate the music from the picture and that he should not be compelled to pay a music tax twice for the samething, A. Julian Brylawski made a very definite point in favor of the abolition of the music tax at a recent hearing before the patents committee of the United States Senate at Washington.

Mr. Brylawski represented the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of the District of Columbia and the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America.

Threatened

Washington—In a letter to the Senate patents committee by Abram Myers, Allied president, it is asserted that the independents are being threatened with extinction as "unnecessary and undesirable competitors" of producers. The letter declares that exhibitors pay thrice for music used in the theatre and asks amendment of the Vestal bill to eliminate alleged objectionable clauses.

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America have made a long battle against the music tax, checking its extension entirely and mitigating materially many of its levies. It may now be able to take the tax away as the sound picture destroys the business option of the theatre owner and compels the use of the music as furnished. It is the contention that when he leases the picture he should also obtain th right to use it without further cost. This, it is maintained, is a reasonable business principle members of the senate committee appeared to regard as entirely sound.

Mr. Brylawski stated that theatre owners had a contract by which they were obligated to exhibit the leased picture product without deviation, variation, or change whatsoever; that the industry is now practically 100 per cent sound and talking picture which made it impossible for the theatre owner to exercise any choice with respect to music. He told how the silent picture enabled the exhibitor to use whatever music he thought best, but that the situation was entirely new now and was liable to make the exhibitor an unconscious offender against the copyright laws if the act of Congress was not made sufficiently clear to enable him to exercise his business rights in the premises.

He maintained that on account of the extra cost associated with the making of talking pictures an exhibitor was obliged to pay a vastly increased charge for the right to exhibit these motion pictures with sound and in addition he paid a music score charge.

Discussing the divisibility of the copyright rights Mr. Brylawski contended that unless this was limited in a definite way it would make every person who used music in any form liable to somebody for an infringement and that it would be almost impossible for the lay mind to determine just where the violation lay. He claimed that in this relation the act should be amended so that it would give to the theatre owners and to the motion picture industry generally, all of the rights which under ordinary and reasonable business conditions would be considered ethical and proper.

AMENDMENTS

The amendments offered to the bill by Attorney David Wiener of Washington, representing the theatre owners, are as follows:

PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that the right to make a motion picture as herein provided shall include the right to reproduce and exhibit the same, and to license others to exhibit such motion picture; and the assignment or license of the right to make such motion picture shall likewise include the right in the assignee or licensee to reproduce and exhibit the same, and to license others to exhibit such motion picture.

AND PROVIDED FURTHER, that where the copyright owner of a musical composition has granted, assigned or licensed the right to incorporate such musical composition into a motion picture with sound, such grant, assignment or license shall include the right in such grantee, assignee or licensee to reproduce and exhibit such musical composition in such motion picture with sound and to license others to exhibit such motion picture.

MARCUS TO HEAD PATHE; SCOLLARD DIRECTS STUDIO

New York — Lee Marcus, vice-president of Radio Pictures, will become president of the reorganized Pathe company. C. J. Scollard, formerly executive vice-president of Pathe, will be temporarily in charge of studios in Culver City in association with Mr. Marcus. Courtland Smith, pioneer in the development of talking newsreels, has been engaged to manage the Pathe Newsreel.

Announcement of Marcus' forthcoming election to the presidency of the new company, it is stated, will bring new and dynamic power into California film executive circles. Mr. Marcus has been associated with the motion picture industry for many years, but his work has kept him exclusively in New York. As president of the new Pathe company he will spend much of his time at the studios.

Tiffany Product For "B" and "C" Theatres

New York—Richard A. Rowland, new Tiffany executive, said his company would make pictures principally for the Class B and C houses. When the story warrants it the company will shoot at the Class A theatres, he said. In an interview with The Film Daily, Rowland said Tiffany would make medium-priced pictures based on good stories and personalities. Development of personalities of its own will be an aim of the concern. Rowland said Tiffany would consider work of independent producers but that the company will make the bulk of the releases itself.

PARA. EARNS 18 MILLION

New York — Paramount-Publix Corporation estimates its consolidated net profits, after all charges and taxes, for the year 1930, at $18,370,000, equal to $6.15 on 2,986,829 shares, the average number of shares outstanding during the year. The estimated profit for the year 1930 creates a new high record for the company, and is approximately 18 per cent ahead of the profit for 1929, which was $15,544,000.

"CITY LIGHTS" IN WORLD PREMIERE

Hollywood — Charley Chaplin's long expected picture, "City Lights," had its world premiere here last week. The feature is synchronized but has no dialogue.

Leaders of production, who saw the picture, say that Chaplin can make silent pictures and get away with it, but that other stars cannot win popularity, or hold it, in pictures that do not talk.

FOX TO MAKE 72 FILMS IN 1931

New York — Production of 72 feature length productions in Hollywood during the next twelve months was announced last week for the Fox Film Corporation by Winfield Sheehan, vice-president and general manager. Of this number 52 will be talking pictures in English and 20 will be in foreign languages.

Center of all production, Mr. Sheehan said, will be in Hollywood, indicating that the Fox corporation will not make any foreign productions abroad.

Completion in February of nine pictures started this month will wind up the 1930-31 program, and work will start immediately on next year's production. Four feature productions already are in preparation, including "Cure For the Blues," an original story by George Ade, the famous humorist, which will star Will Rogers; a musical production written by George and Ira Gershwin and Guy Bolton for Janet Gaynor; "The Yellow Ticket," and "I Surrender," adapted from the powerful novel, "Axelle."

INDUSTRY HONORS CARL LAEMMLE

Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, is celebrating his Silver Jubilee—his twenty-fifth year in moving pictures—this month. In another year Universal itself will be twenty years old.

The month of February will be a month of celebrations for the lone pioneer of 1906. Already he has received, in an unique presentation, the congratulations of two hundred and forty-nine present-day leaders in the moving picture business. This expression was contained in a gold-bound, beautifully endorsed scroll presented to him at Universal City studios by Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.

PICTURE BUSINESS

THE music tax is still with us. But exhibitor effort to throw off this shackle is still being carried on.

The latest action was the presentation of a strong argument before the Patents Committee in the Senate at Washington by A. Julian Brylawski, who has been so long active in exhibitor organization work that he needs no introduction.

Mr. Brylawski's contention is that sound pictures have taken away from exhibitors the right or power to separate music from the picture. He should, therefore, not be made to pay a tax for playing this music that he had no selective hand in and for which license is granted by the music publishers to producers in the first place, who pass the cost on to the exhibitor through the music score charge.

The music tax is costing exhibitors upwards of two million dollars each year. Just a small part of that money converted into exhibitor organization dues would do a tremendous lot of good in fighting the constantly increasing pernicious legislative bills.

THE motion picture industry has a powerful asset in Dr. Clinton Wunder, executive manager of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Dr. Wunder, who made a speaking tour in November, addressing women's clubs, chambers of commerce and religious groups in different parts of the country on behalf of the industry, recently spoke to 300 Kansas editors and a group of legislators. When Wunder finished his talk, 300 Kansas editors and the group of legislators had a new conception of the powerful influence of the screen. He broke down every argument against the alleged harmful influence of motion pictures and sent his audience away with the feeling that after all the picture theatre is the most wholesome, educational and the cleanest form of amusement.

Doctor Wunder can do much for the cause. He has oratorical ability possessed by few men and he is convincing in his arguments. But we are not trying to glorify Wunder's accomplishments nor his personality. He is called upon repeatedly to speak before groups of notables throughout the country. If you hear he is scheduled to talk in your vicinity, publicize it to the limit. Get every minister, critic, club leader and newspaper man in your city to hear him. It will do you good, your business good and help the general welfare of the industry.

WE can't stop raving about "Cimarron"! Everybody seems to be talking about this picture; everybody wants to see it; everybody talks about it after seeing it. It's a history-maker for this industry, if there ever was one. It is the wonder picture of the talking picture era and will go down in history as the comparison by which all future outdoor productions will be gauged. It's a production that holds its spectators spellbound. It sweeps you off your feet while you view it and you remain engrossed for days after you leave the theatre in its magnitude; in its completeness; in its minuteness of detail and, yet, which does not retard its movement; its fine acting and its perfect direction. "Cimarron" is a picture that lives. It will give new impetus to public interest in motion pictures. It should be played at every theatre in every hamlet and city in the world.

Ben Shlyen

Fred J. Lalley, formerly in charge of Pathe short subjects production, has been named general manager of Pathe studios and a vice-president of Pathe.

Lew Ayres received the most votes in the male division of the New York Daily News popularity contest. Charles Farrell was second. "QUOTES"

ADOLPH ZUKOR

"The American people have plenty of money and we believe they will spend it if this industry offers them greater values for their dollars. It is not enough to give them the class of product offered them last year, or even last month. Producers must give them greater and ever greater values."

"Inspiration" High For Week at Minn

Minneapolis (week ending Feb. 6)—Greta Garbo in "Inspiration" at the Minnesota was the outstanding magnet of the past week. Miss Garbo is a prime favorite here and she was well liked in this picture.

A star new to Minneapolis, Evelyn Laye, appearing in "One Heavenly Night" at the State, also was an attendance stimulator. The all-Swedish talking picture, "For Hennes Skull," at the RKO Seventh Street drew so well that it was held over for an additional half week.

RUTH CHATTERTON TO STAR IN FOUR FOR PARAMOUNT

Hollywood—Story plans for the production and release by Paramount of four pictures starring Ruth Chatterton were announced last week by Jesse L. Lasky. Three of these four Ruth Chatterton pictures will be released during the new 1931-32 season, which starts August 1, Mr. Lasky stated.

The first of them will be "Daddy's Gone a Hunting," from the stage play by Zoe Atkins, author of "The Greeks Had a Word For It."

"The Heart is Young" by May Edington will afford Miss Chatterton a role that combines the qualities of "Sarah and Son" and "The Right to Love."

The third Chatterton vehicle, just purchased, will be "Step-Daughters of War," the Helen Zenna Smith story recently dramatized by Kenyon Nicholson and given a stage production in New York. Called the only true story of woman's part in the World War, it will be directed by Dorothy Arzner, herself a war veteran.

UNA MERKEL IS SIGNED BY FOX

New York — Una Merkel has been signed to a long term contract with Fox. Since she played the leading feminine role in "Abraham Lincoln," Miss Merkel's movie career has been a series of important vehicles. She appeared in "Eyes of the World," "The Command Performance" and "The Bat Whispers."

BUZZ BARTON IN BIG 4 FEATURE

Hollywood — Buzz Barton has been signed by Big 4 to appear in Wally Wales' new picture, "So This is Arizona." He appeared previously with Wales in "Breed of the West."

Renew Contracts

New York — The Van Beuren Corporation producing the Vagabond Adventure series for Pathe release has renewed the contracts of Tom Terriss and Elmer Clifton.

The Strand Theatre at Jefferson, Ia., has been purchased by Finkelstein Theatres of St. Paul from Ernest Michael. The new owners have improved the property.

THE HOUSE MANAGER

An Industry Asset

By WILLIAM G. FORMBY

There has been in this industry too ready inclination, both on the part of film men and exhibitors, to scoff at the lowly house manager. The house manager is strictly a product of our present day merger and remerger trend. He is a product developed within the past few years. His has not been an enviable lot; nor has his position in this business been given a great deal of consideration by anyone except that company which pays his salary.

He has been lampooned in the trade press. His caricature has become a familiar figure in the pages of countless humorous and semi-comic magazines. He has been plastered with the cognomen of everything from "rubber-stamp" to "twenty per week executive."

When you take into consideration his numerous obstacles it is remarkable that the fellow has stood up as well as he has. He has gone about his business with a determination unquenched by the combined epithets of a pun-loving gang. The darts have caromed off him like water off the back of a drake's mate. If he has been disturbed by the lowly ranks to which thoughtless individuals have consigned him he has made little outward manifestation. Unfortunately this has been taken in a number of instances to reflect only stupidity; when quite the reverse is true. There is perhaps no class of employee who labors under more obstacles today than does the manager of an average unit in a national theatre chain.

The point is, however, that showmen are being born from this class. They have to a large extent acquired that faculty of taking orders with a serenity unthought of several years ago. They have learned to study show business, anaylze it and have gained under the tutelage of competent and successful showmen a grasp of the intricate ramifications of motion pictures and their production that will astound the most hardened old-timer—if he will but condescend to lay aside his role of advisor and become a listener.

A propos of this we are reminded of an observation in the introduction to Peter Mark Roget's immortal Thesaurus: "—he who has best learned to execute the orders of a commander, becomes himself best qualified to command." The innate inability of the old type of theatre man to execute orders at variance with his ideas of show business has nipped many a promising showman's career in the bud. This younger generation — this "epidemic" of house managers—is evolving a type of showman whose uncanny ability to grasp the pulse of public opinion is at times rather startling. Many of them—mere lads—can tell you things about show business. Their eyes are glued to the future. The achievements of the past concern them not so much as the possibilities of the future. They believe—and we're not yet convinced they're in error—that extremely worthwhile careers await them. Consequently they are zealous. Zealous even though at times the home office reins seem to draw rather tightly. When they make blunders they pay for them. When they achieve something worthwhile their rewards are far greater than many other elements would lead you to believe.

After all, it is not to the raw, untutored material that we must look for our future showmen. Rather, it is to the carefully-groomed, properly-trained legion of house managers that the industry must go in search of leadership. We venture the prediction that in the next few yeas the house manager will loom large in the progress of motion pictures. Encourage him; he needs it. What is ·more important, he APPRECIATES it.

PATHE ANNOUNCES FARRELL TITLES

New York—"Golf—with Johnny Farrell," the new Pathe sports series, is now in the final stages of editing with the first two subjects ready for exhibition. The entire series of six will be ready for theatre screens by the middle of February.

Terry Ramsaye, producer of the series, has announced the titles of the individual subjects as follows: "Fore!" "Duffer Swings," "Winning Putts," "In the Rough," -Under Par" and "Getting on the Green."

ROBT. MONTGOMERY IN "SHIPMATES"

Hollywood—According to an announcement by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Robert Montgomery will be featured in "Shipmates," which Harry Pollard will direct. This is a story by Lou Edelman and Delmar Daves, with Dorothy Jordan in the principal feminine role. The cast includes Ernest Torrence, Hobart Bosworth, Edward Nugent, Gavin Gordon and Joan Marsh.

Lasky Says Too Many Pictures Being Made

Hollywood — "Hollywood makes too many pictures," Jesse Lasky, producer, told members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences at a meeting recently. "So many theatres have to be kept supplied with changing programs that the total income isn't large enough to stand the negative costs of the individual pictures." There aren't enough good stories in the world to supply the annual demand, he asserted, declaring that whereas a state producer need only present one to five plays a year, the motion picture producer must meet release dates with a production a week. "Hollywood has too many 'yes' men, but not enough creative artists who can do worthwhile work and meet the producer half way by realizing that the cost of any given picture has to be kept within the sum that will draw to the box-office in competition with all other pictures," he asserted.

Lasky was one of four contributors to a symposium conducted by the Art and Technique committee of the academy. It was the first of a series at which the 600 leading actors, directors, producers, technicians and writers who make up the Academy will discuss art and technique problems in the furtherance of better sound and talking picture quality.

"The most difficult problem in motion pictures is that we have to have mass production for something that should be made individually," Clara Beranger, writer, declared. "Lack of individuality is a very serious trouble with pictures. In a studio it is often a case of too many cooks, when scripts are prepared in conference by authors, scenario writers, dialogue writers, gag writers and a supervisor." Miss Beranger urged that producers should mark a definite line between the executive and the creative functions, and limit the power of the supervisor.

Speaking in the symposium as a representative of the theatre audience, Milton Schwartz said: "What the public wants as its basic picture food are pictures that most nearly touch our lives either as we live them or as we would like to live them."

He attacked the impossibly extravagant adjectives used in the trailers advertising forthcoming pictures, declaring that they discourage rather than please audiences.

"While the writer must realize that the demands of motion pictures resemble those of the newspaper in that the writer receives an assignment and must work under pressure," William K. Howard, director, asserted that the talking picture has given the writer a better position. "It has happened in the theatre and it is happening in the motion pictures that the story is becoming more and more the thing," he said.

CHANDLER HEADS COLUMBIA ADV.

New York—Clement F. Chandler has been appointed advertising manager of Columbia, succeeding Lou Guimond, resigned. Chandler has been handling the promotion department of the Universal-Graham McNamee Talking Newsreel.

U. A. TO RELEASE "FRONT PAGE"

Hollywood—United Artists will release "The Front Page," which Howard Hughes, producer of "Two Arabian Knights" and "Hell's Angels" for that company, is now making at the United Artists studio, it was announced by Joseph M. Schenck.

BUCK JONES TO START SPECIAL

Hollywood — Buck Jones, who has just completed Columbia's "Phantom Hoofs," will begin work on his new film, "Fighting Patrol," immediately, under the direction of Ross Lederman. Carmelita Geraghty has been awarded the feminine lead opposite him in this production, which is seventh in a series of eight outdoor "Specials" that Jones is making for the company.

M-G-M Buys Play

New York — Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer has acquired motion picture rights to "Stepping Out," the play by Elmer Harris which was presented by Charles Dillingham at the Fulton Theatre here.

Gilbert's Next

Hollywood—John Gilbert's new starring vehicle will be "Cheri-Bibi," an adaptation of the prize-winning French story of that name which will be directed by John Robertson. Gilbert's last part was in the recently completed "Gentleman's Fate," which Jack Conway directed.

Excellent Newspaper Ads on "Going Wild"

MOE SILVER and his coast staff spread themselves on the exploitation of Joe E. Brown in "Going Wild" on the simultaneous showing of the First National picture at the Hollywood and Downtown Theatres in Los Angeles.

Instead of going in for the usual style of three and four column newspaper ads, Silver used strips running column length. These were all specially drawn and were white on black, the reverse process being used. The series, while unique in themselves, were made particularly effective by their humor.

One of them contained a "Notice to Our Patrons," which was as follows:

> On entering theatre kindly permit usher to strap you into seat. This will prevent rolling on floor with laughter.

Under the figure of an obese gentleman giving way to mirth in an aisle was this admonition:

> "If susceptible to hysterics ask usher for number by straight-jacket.

Still another was headed:

Lindbergh, Byrd, Hawks and Joe E. Brown—
FOUR GOOD FLYERS
Sure They Were Good.
Ask Joe E. Brown
If you doubt it — He taught them to fly.

The real humor of the drawings as well as of their script all helped to call attention to "Going Wild." The result of them was one of the biggest double openings Los Angeles has ever known.

SHORTS PROGRAM HELPS FEATURE

THE manager of the Rialto Theatre in York, Pa., knows the value of short subjects as a box office magnet. He has found from experience that they draw patrons who see his feature, and he takes pains to let the public know what he has booked.

A recent handbill issued by the theatre for one of its January programs lists five Vitaphone shorts above the feature picture, giving three of them equal display with the feature and the other, half the space. In order to get a title that would bunch the shorts together he headed his handbill "Five Acts of Vitaphone Vaudeville," listing the following pictures: Henry Santrey & His Soldiers of Fortune, a novelty band number; Judith Anderson in Betty Ross' dramatic playlet, "Madame of the Jury"; The Hall Johnson Choir in "A Syncopated Sermon," with Willard Robison; Hugh Cameron with Bobby Watson in burlesque comedy, "Nay, Nay, Nero"; Ann Seymour, "the little girl with a big voice," in songs. This gave him a well-rounded bill of shorts, with variety enough to appeal to all tastes.

CLEVER STUNT ON "LITTLE CAESAR"

A SPECIAL edition of the Albany "Star" gotten out by the Strand Theatre management in Albany, N. Y., to announce the arrival of "Little Caesar" in the city got a reaction that literally carried the members of the Warner theatre staff off their feet.

"Extras" being more or less common this was an "emergency edition" of the "Star" and clear across its front page in heavy Gothic type was this heading:

"Crime King in Albany Hiding in Underworld Den. 'Little Caesar's' Arrival Stirs
Police."

Fifty thousand copies of the crime edition quickly found their way on the streets and in homes and in no time people were calling police headquarters to ask if "Little Caesar" had been arrested.

The reaction to this was more than expected for the crowds assembling around the theatre on Thursday night made necessary the giving of a special midnight show. The First National picture proved so big a sensation that midnight shows were announced for the balance of the engagement.

The exploitation stunt which helped in bringing all this about was not expensive and its power in other cities can be made just as potent as it was in Albany.

EFFECTIVE IDEAS ON "MOTHER'S CRY"

ONE of the most extensive exploitation campaigns carried out in New England was that promoted by M. Melincoff for the showing of "Mother's Cry" at the Warner Theatre in Lawrence, Mass.

One of the ideas utilized was the getting out of an announcement on red stock made to slip over the neck of a milk bottle. Through a tie-up with the milk distributors 10,000 of these cards were used on Sunday morning, the day of the opening of "Mother's Cry."

Another effective stunt consisted of prizes being offered for the best mother and baby photographs. The newspaper cooperating reproduced the photograhs of the winners.

A poem called "Mother Love," being applicable to the story of "Mother's Cry," Mellincoff had 3,000 copies of it attractively printed and distributed to a special mailing list.

BIG CAMPAIGN ON "PASSION FLOWER"

B. A. GRIFFITHS, manager of the Orpheum Theatre in Springfield, Ill., arranged for an extensive exploitation campaign which he used in his efforts to put over his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "The Passion Flower."

Griffiths arranged with the John Bessemer department store, for a window display whereby they used two cut-outs in the form of large roses, superimposed with special fashion stills of Kay Johnson and Kay Francis, along with a display of gowns and sport coats made in the new shade of "bittersweet" which is a special shade of red. They also used small window cards with the theatre name and playdate.

Three thousand bookmarks were imprinted and distributed to the Springfield public library and its two branches. On the backs of the bookmarks several Kathleen Norris books were suggested as well as other popular fiction.

Griffiths also arranged for three excellent window displays on books.. Each store made a special display of the Kathleen Norris books as well as copies of "The Passion Flower." They also displayed specially mounted stills from the production and small cards announcing the playdate and the theatre.

SHOPPING TOUR BOOSTS "MADAM SATAN," PEORIA

E. McCULLOUGH, manager of the Madison Theatre, Peoria, Ill., included a novel "shopping tour" in the exploitation campaign he used to help succeed in his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production "Madam Satan."

McCullough tied up with the Peoria Star and six of the city's leading merchants for a "Madam Satan" shopping tour. The Star gave the shopping tour three days' advance publicity and the merchants advertised the fact that on Friday, "Madam Satan" would visit their shops at a certain time. The Star also published photographs of the mysterious woman who, it was advertised, was not to be masked on her shopping tour, but was merely to visit each store at a certain time and give a pair of tickets to the first ten persons who approached and identified her in each of the six stores. These stores also carried window cards announcing "Madam Satan's" visit and the fact that each person, in order to get these free tickets, must have a copy of the Peoria Star with them when they made the identification.

IMPROVEMENTS ON SAFETY CONTROL

N. A. Nicholson, president of the N. A. N. Automatic Light Control Co., Johnstown, Pa., announces new improvements on the firm's safety device. The equipment is built with fewer parts which make the device more economical and able to give better results. The relay box, transformers, resistors and other small parts have been eliminated. Mr. Nicholson declares the N. A. N. safety control is dependable under all conditions.

Title Change

Hollywood—The second Big 4 melodrama, previously announced as "Just a Minute," has been substituted by a story to be released as "Trapped." This film drama is the work of Jackson Parks and Edith Brown.

PROSPEROUS THEATRES ARE WELL EQUIPPED THEATRES

OF COURSE, there is the occasional exception to the above stated rule—for example, "the hole-in-the-wall house" that with little or no attention to, or investment in, equipment from lobby to screen, is a virtual gold-mine for its owner.

But for the rank and file of theatres—the houses that must alertly fight for profits—there is no question but that good equipment and good projection go hand-in-hand with good attractions and good management to make the fight for profits a winning one.

WRITE to your local dealer-member of Affiliated Theatre Supply Dealers for the newest price bulletins and catalog information of what is worthwhile in theatre equipment—equipment backed by the A. T. S. D. mark of value, and by the individual dealer's guarantee.

No other business can invest in equipment to such immediate advantage as can the theatre; the comforts of your house, the quality of your projection, the beauty of surroundings—all these are really what you are selling to your patrons constantly, over and over, in addition to the merits of the entertainment on your screen.

RANGO

Paramount—75 Mins.

An absorbing and unusually interesting nature production produced in Sumatra and showing the wild beauty and hidden dangers of the region. It outclasses all other similar pictures. Rango means orang-utan, a shortening of the word by the natives.

The picture deals with the continuous war by man and apes against the tiger. A musical accompaniment adds to the entertainment.—S F. D.

Cast: Joe E. Brown, Lawrence Gray, Laura Lee, Walter Pidgeon, Ona Munson, Frank McHugh, May Boley, Harvey Clark, Anders Randolph, Arthur Hoyt, Johnny Arthur, Fred Kelsey. Directed by William Seiter.

You can promise your audiences that you will give them a real laugh program when you offer this one for their approval. Although in some respects it does not come up to "Top Speed," it is a happy-go-lucky, improbable piece of nonsense which should get by with the most critical. There are some thrills in the latter part of the picture which can be accredited to some expert photography.

It is a slim story but what of it? Joe is a fellow who boasts of his ability as an aviator, although he and an airplane are almost strangers. He enters a plane race, working out a plan by which he will have a real pilot, hiding inside, who will do the actual flying. Imagine his embarassment when the real pilot isn't there and Joe has to fly himself. And that is where the thrills and trick photography come in.

"Going Wild" is a good comedy and it is well named.—G.

The Lash

First National—79 Minutes

Cast: Richard Barthelmess, Marian Nixon, Mary Astor, James Bennie, Robert Edeson, Fred Kohler. Directed by Frank Lloyd.

A highly colorful, actionfull story of Old California. Here's a picture that ought to please the genuine movie fans. It is replete with action against a pictorial outdoor background, mixed with old Spanish atmosphere and gay Spanish music. The women will like this as will the regular Barthelmess fans although Barthelmess' voice is somewhat too high pitched for the part he portrays. However, he gives a good performance as do the other leading characters. A particularly engrossing scene is a cattle stampede. There is a lot of good riding and but little shooting. Good direction shows itself throughout.

Barthelmess portrays the role of a young native of Old California when it first became a part of the United States. He has been to Mexico City for four years during the change of rule of this former Mexican state. His uncle in charge of the vast family Rancho sends him to deliver 3,000 head of cattle to a town in the north part of the state. He arouses the ire of Fred Kohler for having purchased a drink for a saloon girl. Kohler, the big man in the town, has issued an order that anyone speaking Spanish must leave the town in three days. He ties Barthelmess to a post and beats him across the face with a strap. The sheriff of the district, James Rennie, causes Barthelmess to be released and Dick promises to return the favor. It is then brought out that Kohler is the man to whom Barthelmess is to deliver the cattle.

Aroused at the way he was treated and the hatred shown by the Americans for the Mexicans and by the grasping of some Americans who were taking homes and wives away from the native Californians, he determines to avenge them. He stampedes the cattle into the town and they nearly destroy it. By his action he becomes an outlaw with a price on his head. He and his band rob the wealthy Americans and turn their spoils over to the parishes to be distributed among the poor of their own people.

Dick's uncle is killed by the unscrupulous Kohler who is in a plot to steal the deed to the Rancho. It is the dying wish of the uncle that the deed be given to the young sheriff, who is in love with Dick's sister. Dick delivers this deed as his return of the favor when the sheriff released him from Kohler's lashing. He avenges his uncle's death by shooting Kohler and then races across the border where his sweetheart waits for him.—J. S.

Follow the Leader

Paramount—70 Minutes

Cast—Ed Wynn, Ginger Rogers, Stanley Smith, Lou Holtz, Lida Kane, Ethel Merman, Bobby Watson, Donald Kirke, William Halligan, Holly Hall, Preston Foster, James Morton.

For sheer nonsense this piece has few equals unless it is a Marx Brothers show. Ed Wynn, long known as the "perfect fool" in musical comedy, continues to hold down his title in "Follow the Leader," which is a film version of the popular stage success, "Manhattan Mary," in which Wynn starred.

Most audiences should like "Follow the Leader." To some the comedy may seem entirely to far-fetched, and yet it isn't supposed to be serious so why bring that up? Few people can look at Wynn go through his antics without at least getting a smile. As the unwilling gang leader who helps Ginger Rogers up the ladder to fame in a musical show, Ed Wynn is good for laughs whenever he is on the scene. Stanley Smith is the orchestra leader who marries Ginger. But the serious and romantic sequences are just fill-ins, for the show belongs to Wynn, who gets able assistance from Lou Holtz.

Only those who were born with absolutely no sense of humor will pan this picture in its entirety. There is something for everybody in it.—A. F. S.

Short Subjects

The Rounder

M-G-M—20 Minutes

Jack Benny, Dorothy Sebastian, Polly Moran and George K. Arthur appear in this short, which had great possibilities but indifferent acting and directing have made it just ordinary filler. Gags are depended upon for the laughs, but Jack Benny is capable of much better work.

Benny climbs in a window of a house which he thinks is his own when he loses his key after a party. But it's the wrong house and he finds himself in the bedroom of the girl next door. The girl, Dorothy Sebastian, has had a fight with her lover and she'll marry the first man she sees. And Benny is right on the job. There are a number of wise cracks and a few good laughs, but the whole thing could have been better.—A. F. S.

The Village Smithy

M-G-M—10 Minutes

A Flip the Frog cartoon which is very funny, although patterned very much on the order of the Silly Symphonies. But it is capable of producing some good hearty laughs and is amusing. Concerns Flip's adventures in rescuing the girl from the villain.—A. F. S.

The Introduction of Mrs. Gibbs

Paramount—9 Minutes

Lulu McConnell in another of her continuous-talking comedies which gets over very well. Lulu visits her daughter's prospective mother-in-law, a very sedate individual who doesn't approve of wise-cracking and general behavior. It should please the majority. —S. F. D.

Girls Will Be Boys

Educational—20 Minutes

Charlotte Greenwood and Vernon Dent in a fairly amusing comedy. It doesn't register 100 per cent but there are spots that are funny. The lanky Charlotte trades places with her husband for a day, he to stay home with the house work while she follows her husband's profession, that of a piano mover. She has a tough time, as may be expected. Both hubby and wife end up in a hospital.—S.F.D.

ENID BENNETT TO RETURN TO SCREEN

Hollywood—Enid Bennett, popular leading woman of silent pictures until her retirement a few years ago, is coming back into talking pictures. She will appear in "Skippy," the Paramount version of Percy Crosby's book and cartoon series. Miss Bennett will play the role of Mrs. Skinner in the youthful comedy.

Wales' Next

Hollywood — A somewhat pretentious Western, "So This Is Arizona," is to be the next Wally Wales vehicle, and not "Range Rustlers" as previously announced. Preliminaries are under way and a technical staff is now scouting for locations. Big 4 is producing.

THE SOLUTION

TO THE PROBLEM
of POOR PICTURES

GOOD PICTURES

Simple isn't it? But how is one to know what pictures are good and what pictures are bad until one plays them? The box-office supplies the answer. Let every exhibitor send in an accurate report of the pictures he plays and a guide is furnished that will go a long way in eliminating inferior productions. But the reports must be truthful and unbiased.

You can become a member of the

Better Pictures Club

Simply by filling in and mailing the report blank on this page. Additional blanks will be furnished you for subsequent reports. There are no dues in this club and but two requirements—one, that you report 100% on every picture you play every week, shorts as well as features; and, two, that your reports be truthful and free from prejudice.

My opinion on pictures recently played here is as follows:

BIG PLANS FOR "DIRIGIBLE" HERE

Ben Marcus, Columbia exchange manager in Minneapolis, is making big plans for the distribution of "Dirigible," the Columbia super-special which will have its initial Northwest showing at the RKO Orpheum some time in March.

Eagerness of Northwest distributors over this picture is attested by the large number of inquiries being received every day, according to Mr. Marcus. The picture was directed by Frank Capra, who performed a similar service for "Flight" and "Submarine" and its cast includes the stars of those big hits, Jack Holt and Frank Graves.

Both Publix and RKO are angling for the special Columbia release, "Ten Cents a Dance," starring Barbara Stanwyck, Mr. Marcus says. This picture is expected to prove a sensation in the territory.

"Charley's Aunt" is doing wonderful business for Columbia in the territory, Mr. Marcus reports. It drew larger erowds at the RKO Orpheum and Seventh Street Theatres in Minneapolis than any other Columbia picture ever played by those houses.

The Columbia product is now practically all set in the territory, Mr. Marcus says, only a few odds and ends remaining to be cleaned up. The exchange, he asserts, will have the biggest year in its history. It is far ahead of last year in business booked and played. Phil Dunas, western sales' manager, who visited Mr. Marcus last week, expressed himselt as highly optimistic over the outlook for Columbia this year.

DAN MICHALOVE HEADS W. B. HOUSES

New York—Dan Michalove has been appointed by Warner Bros. to take charge of all Warner theatres, succeeding Spyros Skouras, who recently resigned.

JOAN CRAWFORD IN "TORCH SONG"

Hollywood—After a six weeks' leave of absence, Joan Crawford, recently returned to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, has begun work on her new starring film, "Torch Song."

KID MATINEES ON "SAWYER"

Publix theatres in Minneapolis are using "Tom Sawyer" to good advantage to augment their incomes. They are playing return engagements of the picture for special kiddie matinees. On Lincoln's birthday it was brought back to four houses, the Loring, Rialto, Empress and Arion, for special matinee showings. The Uptown, the leading Publix neighborhood house, has it for special Saturday morning children showings.

1931 Grosses So Far Ahead of Last Year

Business is holding up remarkably well for Minneapolis distributors and for exhibitors throughout the territory and signs of a depression are entirely lacking as far as the motion picture industry is concerned, the latest MOVIE AGE survey indicates.

Since the first of the year, grosses of Twin City houses have been running well ahead of the corresponding 1930 period. While the continued strength of the 1931 product is undoubtedly an important factor in the situation, the feeling in film circles is that business actually has turned the corner and will remain on the upgrade throughout the current year.

The total business done by Minneapolis loop showhouses last week was the largest in any one week in more than a year. Three theatres alone, the Minnesota, RKO Orpheum and Century, grossed close close to $75,000. "Little Caesar' at the Minnesota packed them in all week. With "Cimorron" as its attraction, the RKO Orpheum broke all previous house records. The Century played to an enormous gross with "Reducing" and is holding the picture over for a second week. "Cimarron" also continues an indefinite loop run, having been transferred to the Seventh Street Theatre where it will be presented at the same prices as at the Orpheum.

Patronage at the Minnesota, Orpheum and Century during the past six weeks has been reminiscent of the 1929 boom times. The State also has had several large weeks while the Lyric, too, is going along nicely.

Reports from out-of-town exhibitors are to the effect that there has been a decided improvement in business since the first of the year and the outlook is considered promising.

Practically every distributor asserts that his business so far this year is well ahead of the same period in 1930.

BOOK "DRACULA" FOR FEBRUARY 21

"Dracula," a new big Universal picture now being released in the territory, will go into the RKO Orpheum Theatre, Minneapolis, and the Palace Orpheum Theatre, St. Paul, the week of Feb. 21 for its first Twin City showing, it is announced by J. E. Garrison, Universal exchange manager in Minneapolis.

Mr. Garrison declares that "Dracula" is a "real special" and he predicts that it will be one of the big business getters of the year throughout the territory. The stage play, from which the picture was adapted, played two big weeks at the Mineapolis Metropolitan and another week at the Minneapolis Shubert Theatre.

Business for Universal is continuing very satisfactorily, according to Mr. Garrison. Among its pictures which are going over especially well are "The Cat Creeps" and "Resurrection." "Many a Slip," starring Louis Ayres, goes into the RKO Orpheum, Minneapolis, the week of Feb. 28, giving Universal two pictures in a row at that showhouse.

TERRY RAMSAYE WITH QUIGLEY

New York — Martin Quigley, publisher and editor-in-chief of the Quigley Publications, announces the appointment of Terry Ramsaye as editor of Motion Picture Herald.

"CIMARRON" BIG IN N. W. TERRITORY

"Cimarron" is going over bigger in the Northwest territory than any picture ever handled by RKO, it is reported by Mike Frisch, RKO branch manager in Minneapolis.

The picture is being booked for extra playing time everywhere, Mr. Frisch says. It is in greater demand than even the "Amos 'n Andy" picture, "Check and Double Check," at the height of the latter's popularity, according to Mr. Frisch. No less than 17 prints are now in circulation in the territory. At the RKO Orpheum, Minneapolis, last week, the picture broke the house record for receipts and attendance.

Mr. Frisch is also expecting big things of "Millie," which is playing at the RKO Orpheum Theatre, Minneapolis, this week. Stars of this picture are Helen Twelvetrees and Robert Ames. Those who have seen this picture agree that "it's every inch box-office."

Including "Cimarron," four RKO pictures have done so well at the RKO Orpheum Theatre, Minneapolis, recently that they immediately were transferred to the RKO Seventh Street Theatre for a second successive week in the loop at the same prices. The others were "Half Shot at Sunrise," "Hook, Line and Sinker" and "Check and Double Check."

Business for the exchange is the largest in its history, Mr. Frisch says.

Visitors

A number of out-of-town exhibitors were in evidence along Minneapolis film row last week. They included J. McDonald of the State Theatre, East Grand Forks; E. R. Schutte of the Savoy, New Prague; the Smith Brothers of the Orpheum Theatre, Menomonie, Wis., and Harry Simons of the State Theatre, Walker, Minn. All reported business as "picking up." They are hopeful over the near-term cutlook.

Finish Adaptation

New York—Mike Simmons and Arthur Hoerl have completed the adaptation of "First Aid," which will be released as a Thrill-O-Drama Production by Sono Art-World Wide. The story, from a magazine story by Simmons, is a gorification of the American ambulance interne and will be produced as a special.

Block Booking Attached at Allied States Convention

Myers Asks Exhibitors to Petition Senators on Copyright

Chicago—Block booking was attacked bitterly at the convention of independent exhibitors who gathered here last week for a discussion of problems. The meeting was sponsored by Allied States, and 531 delegates were present at the opening session. Abram Myers, Allied president, declared the present system of block booking was "double and triple block booking." He referred to the tying in of shorts and newsreels with features.

Myers opened the convention Tuesday afternoon with the statement: "This is no occasion to rake the dead ashes of the past—we are concerned here only with present and future." The huge gathering, which surpassed expectations, "touches the emotions," he declared.

Briefly outlining the problems confronting the convention, Myers stressed the music tax, the copyright taxes and block booking. He referred to the music tax as "an ancient enemy, and ancient bogey," and said that the very purpose of this tax has ceased to exist. "It remains today only as an exaction imposed on the theatre owner under the cover of a copyright law," he stated. "Extortion under any circumstances is terrible, but when it is practiced under the color of the law it is intolerable." Delegates were urged to appeal to their senators to support the Vestal Bill.

Characterizing protection as a "supremely important problem," Myers questioned the legality of the practice and declared that the recent West Coast decree laid down as a principle that arbitrary and discriminatory protection is illegal.

Denny Signed

Hollywood — Reginald Denny was last week signed on a new long term contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, as a result of his recent work for that organization.

Resting Up

New York—A. L. Selig, director of advertising and publicity for Tiffany, left for Florida February 16 for a two weeks' vacation.

New Chain

New York—A chain of reserved seat picture theatres, converted from legitimate houses, is being developed by Curtis Emery, theatrical man.

RETURN OF SILENTS DOUBTFUL

New York—Silent pictures will never return to any degree of importance, Charles Chaplin believes. He expressed the opinion here last week that a certain number will be made without dialogue, owing to the nature of their stories. The comedian, who is here for the premiere of his latest picture, "City Lights," said he may direct a talker, but would not appear in one.

THE CONVENTION AT A GLANCE

All of the mentioned items represent claims and demands of Allied States Association as shown by opinions rendered at the Chicago convention either as resolutions, verbatim copies of which have not as yet been made available.

One hundred thousand dollars was raised among those present to carry on the work.

War declared. No more round table conferences. Fight for existence, and for profits at present denied because of unsavory producer tactics.

Block booking must go. Too many punk pictures in the blocks to permit net profit on the good ones. If producers won't allow elimination clause, the fight must be carried to the Department of Justice, the U. S. legislature, and finally as a sort of referendum to the public via radio, newspapers, billboards, screens, etc., so exhibitors may get those pictures their patrons want. Support of Brookhart bill urged.

Protection, whether reasonable or otherwise, is unfair. "No protection beyond the closing date of the run" is the demand, and nothing short will satisfy the independents.

Salacious advertising condemned as driving away more patronage than it brings in. Request made that exhibitors be permitted to cancel any picture on which previous run (intimating first-run circuit houses) advertising too "hot."

The Vestal copyright bill must be amended so exhibitor will not have to pay tax on copyright stuff on which tax has already been paid by producer. Penalty for infringement to be reduced from $5,000 to $500 maximum.

Service and parts on sound systems too high. Costs should be investigated so as to arrive at more equitable charges. New types of equipment do not require the regular maintenance, account of improvements and greater simplicity.

"Trailer trust" must not be permitted, so cost can be reduced. Producers must allow excerpts of pictures to be used by all recognized trailer producers.

Previews were branded as being detrimental to independents and discriminatory in favor of producer-owned houses. Hurts the earning power of a picture on later runs.

Percentage checking decried as practiced at present. Each distributor should operate its own checking force, instead of centralized checking which permits of disseminating information about finances.

TIFFANY PLANS PRODUCT FOR "B" AND "C" HOUSES

New York—Between 12 and 15 pictures for Class A houses will be made by Tiffany, Richard A. Rowland, new Tiffany executive, announces. These pictures will be in addition to those with which the company intends to serve "B" and "C" theatres.

JOE BROWN GIVEN STAR'S CONTRACT

Hollywood—Warner Bros. has announced that Joe E. Brown has been elevated to stardom. The comedian's new contract with the producers specifically calls for his being starred in all pictures in which he appears.

Joe E. Brown has been extremely successful in pictures since he began his association with the Warners. Among the pictures in which he has been seen are "On With the Show," "Hold Everything," "Sit Tight," "Top Speed" and "Going Wild" in which he is now being seen at the Warner Theatre in New York. His next picture, the first under his new contract, will be "Broadminded."

CLIFF EDWARDS TO NEW CONTRACT

Hollywood—Cliff Edwards, better-known as Ukelele Ike, has been signed to a new long-term contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. At the same time it was announced that Edwards, who first made his reputation as a singing, uke-strumming comedian in the Ziegfeld Follies, will play a part in "Shipmates," a forthcoming picture, featuring Robert Montgomery. At the present time, Edwards is playing in an M-G-M comedy, "Stepping Out," with Reginald Denny, Charlotte Greenwood and Lillian Bond. "Stepping Out" is being directed by Chuck Riesner.

10 YEARS AS OUR GANG DIRECTOR

Culver City—Our Gang finished "Bargain Days" to the tune of a brass band and a huge birthday cake. The occasion was Robert McGowan's tenth year with Our Gang and the Hal Roach Studio. Mr. McGowan has watched the gangsters come and go, breaking in new ones to replace those who grew up. Today there is none of the original gangsters left, although Farina holds the record, having been with this production unit nearly eight years. He started at the age of eighteen months. The rest of the gangsters' "time" ranges from six months to four years.

PICTURE BUSINESS

To be for twenty-five years with one firm in this business or any other is an achievement. To be at the helm of one firm for that length of time is a still greater achievement. And to be an industry leader for twenty-five years, consistent throughout the years, is, indeed, a most remarkable record. Yet one man in this industry has accomplished all three of those things. He is called "The Little Napoleon" of the motion picture industry and he has earned the plaudits that have been heaped upon him by independent exhibitors and by non-independents throughout this quarter century. You've already guessed who he is. But in case you haven't — the man is Carl Laemmle, or "Uncle Carl" as he is more affectionately known.

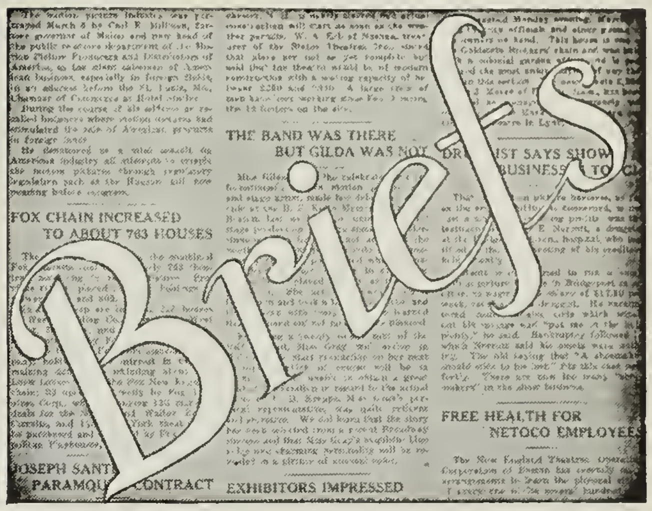
Mr. Laemmle has been a courageous leader—an aggressive pioneer—throughout his career in the motion picture business. His rise to the front rank has been a most colorful climb. Mr. Laemmle has done many things that have earned for him the admiration and respect not only of his fellow workers but of the entire industry — even his competitors. His victorious battle against the Patents Company is a memorable event that will never be forgotten. It was a history-maker to which may be credited much of this industry's rapid progress and its present-day rank as the world's fifth in size.

Many stars, directors and producers look to Carl Laemmle as the man who, directly and indirectly, gave them their start to fame and fortune. He has been responsible for the development of new talent, both in the acting and production fields, and can proudly point to a number of the most prominent celebrities of filmdom who at one time or another learned their first lessons in the picture business under the guiding hand of "Uncle Carl."

As a tribute to Mr. Laemmle we break a policy of this publication and publish his photograph on this editorial page.

Congratulations, Mr. Laemmle, on your twenty-fifth anniversary in this fast-moving, faster growing industry! And best wishes for many more years of success, health and your personal happiness!

Ben Shlyen



In its four weeks' run at the New York Strand, "Little Caesar" gave 202 showings and played to approximately 326,000 paid admissions. The house seats 2,858. At the Brooklyn Strand the picture played three weeks, giving 152 performances to about 240,000 paid admissions.

Chic Sale, the vaudeville and musical comedy star, will be starred by Louis Brock in a series of two-reelers for RKO release. March Sandrich will direct Sale.

Of the 11 two-reel comedies being released by Educational in February and March, all will stress action. This is in line with the recently announced plans of Mack Sennett, Al Christie and E. H. Allen to put more action in comedies.

Hiram S. Brown, president of RKO, is quoted in an A. P. Dispatch from the coast as saying that reports now coming in from January operations indicate that business will record nearly the normal seasonal increase. Attendance has increased especially in automobile and other manufacturing centers where large numbers of workers were returned to the payrolls last month. Brown says he looks for a generally satisfactory year.

Nearly one-third of Sono Art-World Wide current season product will be ready for distribution by March 1, Budd Rogers, director of sales, said. By that date, six of the 20 scheduled features will be available. Pictures completed are: "Just for a Song," "Damaged Love," "Symphony in Two Flats" and "Swanee River." "Air Police" is now in production. "Jaws of Hell" is also completed.

“ QUOTES ”

JOE BRANDT
President, Columbia Pictures

"There are instances galore wherein a theatre owner dominating the local situation, takes the attitude that inasmuch as he has the only theatre in town, people must patronize his house if they want to see motion pictures. . . . If attendance is poor the picture takes the brunt and the distributing company is confronted with a demand for an adjustment."

"Cimarron" Heavy; Others Good

Minneapolis (week ending Feb. 13)—Business attained sensational proportions at loop theatres the past week. "Cimarron," at the RKO Orpheum, was a box office world-beater. It jammed the theatre at every performance and thousands were turned away. The first show started each day at 9:30 a. m., instead of the usual 12 noon, and even then the crowds could not be accommodated. The house record, previously held by "Check and Double Check," was broken. "Reducing" at the Century and "Little Caesar" at the Minnesota also played to immense grosses.

Aster—"Oh, for a Man" (Fox), Reginald Denny and Jeanette MacDonald. Business: Fair. Summary: A lightweight comedy about an opera singer who falls in love with a burglar. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, Screen Vaudeville.

Century — Reducing (M-G-M), Marie Dressler and Polly Moran. Business: Big. Summary: Popular pair of funmakers scintillate in highly amusing comedy. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, Screen Vaudeville.

Lyric — The Passion Flower (M-G-M), Kay Francis and Chas. Bickford. Business: Good. Summary: An interesting domestic drama in which a married woman appropriates the husband of her best friend. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, Screen Vaudeville.

Minnesota—Little Caesar (First National), E. G. Robinson and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Business: Big. Summary: A fine characterization by Robinson in a thrilling gangster drama. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Cartoon Comedy, Stage Show.

RKO Orpheum — Cimarron (RKO), Richard Dix and Irene Dunne. Business: Enormous. Summary: A tremendous epic drama of the early settlers' days in Oklahoma; stirring and gripping drama. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville and Sound News.

RKO Seventh Street — The Royal Bed (RKO), Lowell Sherman and Mary Astor. Business: Light. Summary: The moderately diverting story of a king who acted as a matchmaker. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, Screen Vaudeville.

State—Abraham Lincoln (United Artists), Walter Huston. Business: Light. Summary: Fine portrayal of Lincoln by Huston in this picturization of high lights in the career of the martyred president; a picture of every member of the family. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, Comedy, "Believe It or Not."

MILWAUKEE

(Week ending Feb. 6)

Alhambra—Cohens and Kellys in Africa (Universal), Chas. Murray, George Sidney. Business: Average. Summary: Continuing the adventures of the Jew and the Irishman in Africa, in a decidedly slapstick manner. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal Newsreel, comedy.

Majestic — Woman Who Was Forgotten (S. R.), Belle Bennett. Business: Fair. Summary: Weak picture with little appeal. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville and newsreel.

Garden—The Devil To Pay (U. A.), Ronald Colman and Loretta Young. Business: Good. Summary: A fine bit of acting on the part of Colman with a capable supporting cast and good picture. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy; newsreel.

Strand — The Man Who Came Back (Fox), Janet Gaynor, Chas. Farrell. Business: Good (ended second its week). Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: "Sky Scrapers," comedy; novelty screen song; Fox Movietone News.

Palace-Orpheum — The Lash (First National), Richard Barthelmess, Mary Astor, Marion Nixon. Business: Fair. Summary: Barthelmess has had better roles although the picture is entertaining. Entertainmnt Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Benny Rubin in "Talking Turkey"; Aesop Fables, Pathe News.

Riverside — The Gorilla (First National), Lila Lee, Joe Frisco. Business: Average. Summary: A rather slapstick account of this mystery story. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville; Pathe News.

Wisconsin—Scandal Sheet (Paramount), George Bancroft, Kay Francis, Clive Brook. Business: Fair. Summary: The story of a "scandal sheet" editor told in an entertaining and forceful manner. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon & Marco Idea, Fox Movietone News.

Milwaukee Notes

Jack Keegan, assistant to Bernard Depkin, Jr., general manager for Warner Bros.' Wisconsin theatres, has been transferred to manage the circuit's houses in Sandusky, Ohio. No assistant to Mr. Keegan in Milwaukee has as yet been named.

A civic good will campaign is being staged by Warner Bros. houses in Wisconsin as a leading movement to the opening of Warner Bros.' new house in Milwaukee about April 1. The campaign is being observed during the month of February in all Warner Bros. theatres in the state. Full page co-operative newspaper advertisements have been promoted by the various house managers and every effort is being made to establish a feeling of community cooperation in the various cities.

COMEDY DRAMA IN TECHNICOLOR

New York — Technicolor, used principally heretofore in musical productions, is now to be employed for the first time in a comedy drama.

Announcement that Radio Pictures is to produce "Waiting at the Church" entirely in natural colors is heralded by Technicolor executives as marking another important advance in color films.

Mary Astor will be starred in "Waiting at the Church," which was adapted to the screen by Al Jackson and Barney Sarecky. Robert Ames will be Miss Astor's leading man.

For months Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus, president of the Technicolor corporation, has been urging producers to make a dramatic production in color. He hailed Radio's decision to produce a Technicolor comedy drama as a progressive step.

No Sale

Hollywood — Universal has no intention of selling the moving picture rights to "Strictly Dishonorable." This was made known in the most emphatic terms of Carl Laemmle, who has issued a statement in the form of a denial of rumors and printed assertions to the effect that Universal had been tempted by offers which had been made for its ownership of the Brock Pemberton theatrical property.

MAY TO BE SAM MORRIS MONTH

New York—The Sam E. Morris Month, which is commemorated yearly by Warner Bros.' sales forces, will take place during May. Announcement to this effect has been sent to all the Warner branches and the biggest sales drive in the history of the organization is expected to result.

Max Milder, eastern sales manager, is already in the field and will swing around the Eastern circuit in the interests of the Morris drive.

A. W. Smith, Jr., southern sales manager, is now on his way over the circuits of the South laying out plans for the success of the Morris Month. He will cover the whole of Dixie.

Gradwell Sears, western sales manager, will concentrate with the exchange forces in making the Sam E. Morris Month the biggest thing of its kind in the industry west of the Mississippi.

General direction of the drive from New York will be in the hands of Claude C. Ezell and Ned E. Depinet.

SELECT POWELL'S FIRST FOR W. B.

Hollywood—William Powell will make his first appearance under Warner Bros.' banner in "Heat Wave," the Roland Pertwee play which has been a success in England. Powell, who is now enjoying a vacation, will begin work on the picture on March 15. Alfred Green has been assigned to the directorship of the picture.

COLUMBIA PICKS UNKNOWN GIRL IN NEW FACE QUEST

New York—Preferring a theatrical career to one of social prominence, Loretta Sayers, Larchmont, N. Y., society deb. has signed a long-term contract with Columbia Pictures. She will appear in one of the company's outstanding productions.

With no previous stage or screen experience Miss Sayers was selected from hundreds of applicants who were given screen tests in Columbia's search for new faces. The quest, for which production executives came especially to New York from Hollywood, covered an unrestricted field and included applicants from the legitimate stage, vaudeville, model and non-professional ranks.

"MILLIONAIRE" FOR GEO. ARLISS

Hollywood — George Arliss's new starring picture, now in production at the Warner Brothers' studios on the West Coast, will be called "The Millionaire." It has previously borne the temporary title, "The Ruling Passion." Adapted from a story by Earl Derr Biggers, this production has dialogue from the pen of Booth Tarkington. John Adolfi is directing, and the supporting cast includes Florence Arliss, David Manners, Evalyn Knapp, Bramwell Fletcher, Noah Beery, Ivan Simpson, James Cagney, J. C. Nugent, Sam Hardy and Tully Marshall.

Industry Honors Carl Laemmle on Jubilee

The film industry starts this week the celebration of Carl Laemmle's Silver Jubilee in motion pictures. Newsreels are carrying views of the presentation of a scroll to Mr. Laemmle by Will H. Hays in a ceremony recently held at Universal City.

The Pathe, Fox, Paramount and Universal Newsreels all carry scenes of this interesting event in their issues.

Mr. Hays is shown making the presentation speech. The beautifully endorsed scroll carries the congratulations of two hundred and forty-nine present-day leaders in the industry.

Assisting in the ceremony were Mary Pickford, one of Laemmle's first stars; Irving Thalberg, who owes his opportunity in pictures to Mr. Laemmle; Cecil B. DeMille, Will Rogers, Professor Albert Einstein, Louis B. Mayer, Al Christie, Laemmle's first comedy producer, and many other celebrities.

This tribute from the entire industry starts a month of celebrations on the Laemmle Silver Jubilee—his twenty-fifth year in motion pictures. It was on February 24, 1906, that he opened his first theatre—the White Front—in Chicago, and started his remarkable career in the screen world. Of all the men who were prominent in the industry twenty-five years ago, Laemmle is the only one who is today actively in charge of the company which he established.

MGM Announces New "Lucky Seven" Group

New York — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has announced seven new productions to be definitely added to the 1931 production list. These pictures will be known as the "lucky seven" group. Some of them are already under way and the others are likely to be placed in production within the next few weeks.

The "lucky seven" group of pictures comprises the following productions:

"The Easiest Way," starring Constance Bennett, based on Eugene Walters' popular stage drama of the same name with Robert Montgomery in the principal masculine role, Jack Conway directing.

"The Great Lover," an adaptation of the Leo Dietrichstein stage success of the same name, with Adolphe Menjou in the leading role.

"Lullaby," the play by Edward Knoblock in which Florence Reed was starred on Broadway.

"Stepping Out," an adaptation of the play by Elmer Harris. Lillian Bond, promising young newcomer in an important role.

"Among the Married," from the long-run stage comedy by Vincent Lawrence with a special cast headed by Leila Hyams, Norman Foster, Mary Duncan and Adolphe Menjou.

"The Man in Possession," picturization of this season's Broadway stage hit with Robert Montgomery a likely selection for the male lead.

"Shipmates," also with Robert Montgomery, to be made like "The Flying Fleet" in cooperation with the United States navy.

Six of these seven properties, it will be noted, are adaptations of outstanding stage successes.

VAN DYKE TO GO TO SOUTH SEAS

Hollywood — W. S. Van Dyke, famous director of "Trader Horn," whose "White Shadows" and "The Pagan" made screen history, is now making final preparations to return to a South Sea locale.

Van Dyke's next assignment will be the direction of "Never the Twain Shall Meet," Peter B. Kyne's celebrated romance of the South Seas, and the battle of a woman from the tropics to gain a foothold in civilization.

Van Dyke, who perhaps holds the record as a traveler to film screen dramas, has been twice to the South Seas, and traveled through miles of the African jungles to film "Trader Horn." He has filmed screen romances in Alaska and other far spots of the world.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will give the new picture an elaborate production, with a notable cast soon to be chosen. The picture was made a number of years ago as a silent at the M-G-M studios with Anita Stewart. Its locale is San Francisco and the wilds of the South Seas.

REX BELL SIGNED FOR PATHE COMEDY

Hollywood—Rex Bell, erstwhile cowboy star, has laid aside his sombrero and chaps to try his hand at bedroom farce. He has just been signed by Pathe to play a leading role in "Disappearing Enemies," a two-reel comedy directed by Wallace Fox.

Having won his screen spurs as a cowboy in former Buck Jones' productions, followed by stellar work in a series of. Fox westerns, Rex Bell exhibited his histrionic versatility not so very long ago by playing a featured role in "Lightnin'."

SCREEN'S PRIZE PRIZE-FIGHTER

Hollywood — Kane Richmond seems destined to remain a prize-fighter on the screen. Upon completing the leading role in "The Leather Pusher" series at Universal, Pathe signed him for the role of a college boxer in "Campus Champs," a two-reel pugilistic comedy directed by Fred Guiol. Richmond plays the son of Nat Carr, who is seen in his inimitable characterization of "Ginsberg, the Tailor," the role he originated in Pathe's "Two Plus Fours."

M-G-M BEGINS "STEPPING OUT"

Hollywood — "Stepping Out," adaptation of Elmer Harris' long-run Broadway stage comedy, has gone into production on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot with Chas. Riesner directing.

JOHN GILBERT IN "CHERI - BIBI"

Hollywood—"Cheri-Bibi," adaptation of the prize-winning French adventure story of the same name, will be John Gilbert's new starring vehicle, according to announcement made last week at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. John Robertson will direct.

METHODS OF EXHIBITORS

Unusual Exploitation Used on 'Trader Horn'

A "NATURAL" in the publicity realm was achieved by Fox West Coast's exploitation department in its promotional work for "Trader Horn" at Grauman's Chinese Theatre, with the staging of the "Trader Horn Evening Express Opportunity Contest." This contest, carried by the Express and Radio KNX, involved daily placing of approximately four columns of publicity for the contest and picture in news space, and a consistent plugging of both contest and film over the air.

Everybody concerned in the contest presentation was a winner; West Coast won the valuable space allowance, the news sheet gained a point of concentrated reader interest, the prize donors obtained extensive air program and news column mention, and winning contestants were set for splitting a valuable prize collection.

The daily news column material supporting the contest was an obvious boost for the competition, and a trifle more subtle one for the picture. Mention of the merchants supplying prizes was also made through this agency as well as over the air programs. The radio broadcast consisted of African-motifed musical selections, announcer bolstering for the contest and picture, and presentation of personalities from "Trader Horn."

The contest phase of the "Trader Horn" publicity campaign was such that it is suitable for use even when the picture is released to the regular program houses, although the scale of presentation must necessarily be reduced. Plans are under way for tie-ups of the picture and contest with schools are an educational idea when the feature terminates its run at the Hollywood house . . . the combination forming material for such exploitation.

FASHION TIE-UP EXPLOITS "PAID"

M. A. MALANEY, manager of the Loew's Allen Theatre, Cleveland, O., included a novel tie-up in the exploitation campaign he used to help succeed in his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production "Paid."

Malaney arranged this tie-up with the Bedell Company, a ladies' apparel store, situated in the heart of the business district, whereby he photographed one of their models in one of their charming gowns. Joan Crawford's head was super-imposed to this photograph which was enlarged to life-size, giving it the appearance of Joan Crawford wearing the gown. This photograph was displayed in a beautiful frame with the gown placed in front of it. Window cards announced Joan Crawford's appearance in "Paid" at the Loew's Allen Theatre, and two other smart frocks were used to make the display more attractive.

BIG TIE-UP FOR "KISMET" IN OHIO

PICTURE fans in Ohio are being prepared for the showing of "Kismet" throughout the state by a campaign instituted by the educational division of the Cleveland Public Library. The library officials feeling that the picture in which Otis Skinner is the star lends itself to the reading of a number of books, which it has tabulated, is now sending displays of book jackets of the novelization of "Kismet," still is showing scenes from the picture, and other material to all the school, county and branch libraries in the state. These displays will fit in with the bookings of the picture. The educational tie-up with "Kismet" is the most comprehensive one undertaken by the Cleveland Public Library.

CONTEST HELPS "PASSION FLOWER"

A VERY novel contest was the basis of the extensive exploitation campaign used by Al Gonsior, manager of the Virginia Theatre, Champaign, Ill., to help succeed in his showing of "Passion Flower." He was assisted by an M-G-M exploiteer.

In a vacant store adjacent to the theatre, Gonsior arranged for a large cut-out display of the two feminine players in "Passion Flower," and used it as a contest with free tickets offered as prizes.

The two windows and the glass door of the store were covered with a whitener with small space allowed as peep-holes. The cut-out was made up of two large heads of each of the players and copy reading: "These two players, Kay Johnson and Kay Francis, have important roles in Kathleen Norris' 'The Passion Flower' coming to the Virginia Theatre. Each is loved by the same man although of distinct types. One is blonde, one is brunette; tell us which type captures your fancy and why. Drop your replies in a box placed in the lobby of the theatre and you may be chosen as one of the winners of fifty pairs of tickets to see this gripping story as portrayed by these beautiful women."

RADIO EXPLOITS "MIN AND BILL"

MR. WEINSCHIENK, manager of the Majestic Theatre, La Salle, Ill., included an interesting radio tie-up in the exploitation campaign he used to help put over his showing of "Min and Bill."

Weinschienk arranged with Radio Station WJBC, owned and operated by the La Salle Furniture Co., whereby it broadcasted an announcement daily, inviting its listeners to send their names to Marie Dressler, in care of the station, and each day ten names would be chosen to be the guests of WJBC to see those popular players, Wallace Beery and Marie Dressler in their latest picture at the Majestic Theatre.

Weinschienk also arranged with the Mirror Hosiery Shop to use a series of fashion stills of Dorothy Jordan, who plays a featured role in "Min and Bill," for a window of jackets, scarfs, and hosiery. The stills were attractively mounted on small frames which carried the picture title and playdates.

Three Big Tie-Ups For "Lonely Wives"

Twenty thousand drug stores, 5,000 chain stores, 3,300 Underwood typewriter dealers, fifty radio stations and a national cooperative advertising campaign in the Ladies' Home Journal, Woman's Home Companion and the film fan publications, will render sales' aid in behalf of Pathe's feature farce, "Lonely Wives," through tie-ups with John H. Woodbury, Inc., the Underwood Typewriter Company and the Jo-Cur Laboratories.

The Woodbury tie-up calls for this manufacturer of well-known toilet preparations to distribute attractive window display material to drug and department stores and beauty parlors from coast to coast. Laura LaPlante of the "Lonely Wives" cast will be featured in displays and also in the series of advertisements to be published in the Ladies' Home Journal, Woman's Home Companion, McCall's and the leading motion picture fan magazines.

The Underwood tie-up centers around the use of Patsy Ruth Miller of a portable machine. Underwood dealers will cooperate with exhibitors during local play dates in giving special window displays to the production. This concern has a large force of distributors including its thirty-five main branch offices, 235 sub-branches and 3,300 dealers throughout the country, all located in desirable spots in their respective cities and towns.

The Jo-Cur tie-up calls for window displays consisting of special cut-outs and posters, local sales stunts as well as mentions in connection with the company's radio broadcasting programs over fifty stations. Among the publications which will carry Jo-Cur ads tying up with "Lonely Wives" are the New Movie, the Home Magazine, True Story, Screenland, Illustrated Love, Silver Screen, Modern Screen, Film, Screen Romances and the American Weekly.

THE TREND OF THE TIMES

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Published in the Motion Picture Industry
Only by Associated Publications, Inc.

CURRENT conversation on the depression reveals a notable emphasis on morale. The country can go from the dismal depths of December into the gentle heights of January and feel that it has made material progress. Contemporaneously, some unfavorable developments can appear on the horizon and when the markets show a rugged resistance thereto, we are made to feel that somehow the worst has passed.

What we are lacking, indeed, is a yardstick. Or perhaps it ought to be called a perspective. The difficulty is that most of us have not been through an experience similar to the present depression and we are, therefore, expecting a return of "normal business" with every confidence that what has been in the past will be once more. The wiser heads tell us that while we may properly become sanguine about the future in due time, we need not be disappointed if the next era is an entirely different one from that which preceded it.

Business men in 1931 already are altering their methods and rearranging their affairs so that new sources of revenue may be found.

Basically, the year 1930 saw what may be termed a reckless curtailment of expenditure. The term "reckless" is used advisedly because some of the larger corporations of the country became so panicky over the importance of other years that they thought the way to accomplish that result was merely to cut down one side of the operation. They forgot that much of the expense built up in boom time was based upon the sound theory that in order to make money, business has to expend money.

There is no doubt that considerable waste and extravagance has prevailed and is more likely to become extensive in times of prosperity than in times of depression. But judging by the way some of the major industries reacted to the drop in business during 1930, one would have thought that the entire sales mechanism was founded on a false premise in the first instance.

What has happened recently is that as business has regained confidence in itself, there is a natural return to the expenditures which previously proved productive. Certain products cannot be sold except by personal selling. Other goods can only be distributed as a result of carefully planned appeals to the public. It is significant that several companies have a better year in 1930 than in 1929. These concerns are going forward confidently. Evidently, not a few companies which had no reason to curtail operations except an intuitive fear of catastrophe that never materialized now recognize the time spent in hesitation was expensive, indeed.

Caution is, after all, a virtue which can never be denied. But there is on the other hand another business attribute which so often spells success in modern business. It is the faculty of knowing when a sound economic basis for the distribution of a product has been reached and pushing ahead with all possible force for sales so long as the response is at all commensurate with the outlay.

Most significant in recent developments has been the continued stabilization of several factors which were more or less unsteady in the latter part of last year. Thus, the credit situation has improved substantially and the industrial companies which needed refinancing are finding a better market for their securities. Some of the larger issues of securities or bonds reveal how the bigger corporations managed their expansion programs during 1930. Apparently, large bank loans were made which are now being paid off with the proceeds of bond issues. Thus we see how important it was to provide a good bond market in the early part of 1931.

While here and there, the aftermath of 1930 is giving considerable concern, individuals as well as businesses have now settled down to a long, steady pull. The idea that good business would come in through the window or through the door without any effort being made to get it has apparently been erased from the minds of many business executives who thought that normalcy was inevitable as a matter of course and that sufficient momentum had been achieved in 1929 and the early part of 1930 to ride along constantly on the crest of previous sales effort.

Today's sales are being sought with more intelligence, with more power, and with more carefully planned expenditure than at any time since pre-war days. Competition is keen in many lines and this has only challenged the ingenuity of American business the more insistently. We have witnessed in recent weeks an interesting series of sales efforts by some of the largest publications in the country which have refuted what appeared to be an excess of hesitation. The reminders that it is just as easy to go in one extreme as in another during a depression have been forcefully portrayed in large advertisements before the business public.

The significance of this drive which is all a part of the psychology of depression will not soon be lost on the American business man. For whatever may be the arguments in the executive committees and the boards of directors about the pulling power of advertising as a sales force, the fact remains that appropriations have been gradually cut down ever since the beginning of the depression. Publications which have always had faith in the value of advertising as a means of selling products were not very quick to realize how much slashing of advertising appropriations was going on until the latter part of 1930. Then they began to issue their warnings. They brought forth tables to show that during the 1921 depression the companies which kept up their advertising appropriations came out of the storm with many more assets than their competitors.

Looking ahead into the early months of 1931, we find that most of our business men have come to the conclusion that the world, after all, is not going to come to and end and that if 3 per cent of our people are unemployed, attention must be given to the needs and wants of the 97 per cent who are employed and who have money to spend. The situation, of course, is far from clear and the business world has about adjusted itself to the belief that it may take two or three years before anything approaching 1929 in earnings will be experienced. But there were many good years even before 1929 and many a business executive will be happy if he can approximate the returns of 1927 or even 1928. The process of recovery is proceeding. Much of it is painful and most of the reorganization has yet to be done. But the difference between the first quarter of 1931 and the last quarter of 1930 is a difference in underlying feeling. American business has risen to the emergency with a determination to find a way to rebuild and reconstruct on a firmer foundation.

Hollywood—A new type of motion picture film, about three times as "fast" as that previously in use, was announced last week by the Eastman Kodak Company to a group of leading cameramen and laboratory technicians. The new film is expected to work marked changes in studio technique, by permitting greater freedom in making sound pictures and by cutting down the necessary amount of lighting, thus reducing heat, glare, and cost.

The faster film is described by motion picture engineers here as the greatest advance in motion picture materials since the introduction of panchromatic film eighteen years ago. The motion picture industry, subsequent to that development, went over almost entirely to panchromatic film, which, in monochrome, portrays colors in their proper tonal relation to each other instead of with distorted values.

The new type of film was announced as possessing increased panchromatic qualities in addition to its greatly increased "speed." Increased speed, in cinematographic terminology, means simply the ability to expose a photographic image with less light.

Since the advent of sound in motion pictures three years ago, the Eastman Kodak Research Laboratories have experimented in the direction of developing a film to meet present conditions in the sound studios, where the substitution of incandescent lighting for electric arcs presented a new photo-chemical problem.

The panchromatic film heretofore in use was developed for exposure with arc lighting. When the change to incandescent illumination swept over Hollywood, the film was adapted to the new conditions so far as that was then possible. The new type of film, on the other hand, was specially made for use with the "inkies," as Hollywood calls incandescent lights, and has a sensitivity to red and green hitherto undreamed of. Incandescent light contains a higher proportion of red than does the light from arcs.

The increased speed and extraordinary color sensitivity of the new film are expected to be of particular usefulness in natural color photography, where the great concentration of light hitherto necessary has been a drawback.

Another practical advantage claimed for the supersensitive film by Eastman representatives here is an increase in the possible "depth of focus" in sound film photography. The use of incandescent lighting made desirable the wider opening of lens diaphragms to let additional light into the cameras. This, in turn, by a law of optics, greatly diminished the range within which the actors could move and yet remain in focus. When sound came to the movies, depth of focus became of increasing importance because it is irritating to audiences to hear a clear voice coming from an out-of-focus actor.

With the greatly increased speed of the new film, it will henceforth be possible to "stop down" lenses, increasing the depth of focus and thus permitting greater latitude to directors in moving their actors about before the camera. The characters will no longer have to remain in a narrow plane at a fixed distance from the lens under penalty of blurring into the background or becoming fuzzy in the foreground.

An alternative advantage of the new type of film is the possibility of reducing the amount of light to one-half or one-third the present quantity necessary for sound picture cinematography. In practice, it is expected that the studios will compromise between the maximum reduction of lighting and the maximum gain in depth of focus, taking partial advantage of both benefits offered by the new type of material.

A further characteristic of supersensitive panchromatic film is the greater ability it will give newsreel cameramen to make pictures under difficult conditions, both at night and in daylight insufficient to make clear pictures on film of the speeds previously in use. Prize fight pictures, taken under incandescent light, will be better, and previously impossible indoor action scenes like hockey games and basketball games will become possible. Successful motion pictures of action on a theatre stage, photographed from the balcony, were made during the tests that preceded announcement of the film—a feat considered difficult.

Decided "development latitude," minimizing the danger of making film "chalky" or "over-contrasty" in processing, is cited as an additional quality of the new film.

The sensitive "emulsion" of the new film is very closely related to one prepared for astronomical photography, as well as to super-speed panchromatic plates put into use by newspaper photographers during the past few months for action photography under artificial lights. This fact was revealed by Dr. C. E. Kenneth Mees, director of the Eastman Kodak Company in charge of Research and Development. Astronomers, it has been learned, used the new emulsion recently in making observations seeking to discover whether there is water in the atmosphere of Mars.

The necessary time for exposing plates in the spectroscope was reduced from ten hours to four in the observations in question. This appreciable speeding up of the exposure time is naturally of great value to astronomy.

LOW VOLTAGE NEON FOR INDOOR USE

Practical application of rare gas tubes, commonly known as neon tubes and available in white light or any color tone including daylight that will operate on standard 110-120 volt electric current, has been announced by Leroy P. Sawyer, vice-president of Claude Neon Lights, Inc. These low voltage units are said to have attained a luminosity as high as 2,000 lumens per foot, compared with 60 to 132 lumens per foot for high voltage luminous tubes. The gaseous tubes are applicable to commercial, industrial and special residential lighting. Special high-powered units of greater intensity have been developed for industrial lighting.

The light at the source is of equal intensity throughout the entire length of the tube, it is claimed, radiating an even light on the objects in the room. With the new tubes the light is distributed evenly without the aid of heavy diffusing glass, and it is possible to look directly into exposed tubes for several minutes and turn immediately to read fine print without undue eye strain.

On the value of low voltage illumination, Sawyer said: "This new development is destined to play a revolutionizing part in the electric illumination of the future. It is apparently the most important development of its kind since the advent of the present tungsten filament lamp."

SHALLOW HORN FOR CLOSE QUARTERS

A shallow horn, for theatre use where the space between the screen and the back wall of the stage is not sufficient to accommodate the regularly adopted W. E. 15 type horn, is being put out by Western Electric. The new horn, it is said, attains its small depth of 26 inches by two major designed features. While maintaining the same mouth area possessed by the 15-A, the opening of the new horn, which is known as the 16 type, is made oblong, 44 by 60 inches, and the air column is divided into two equal branches a short distance back of the mouth. As a result the divided air columns are much narrower and may thus be curved around shorter radii.

The two halves of the horns are curved in opposite directions around a 90 degree bend starting 14 inches back from the mouth, and then after running straight for a short distance, make a 180 degree bend at right angles. The rate of taper for each half remains the same as in the 15-A air column, but the cross-sectional areas at equal distance from the mouth are only half as large.

These smaller areas permit the sharper bends without detriment, it is said.

DESIGN EQUIPMENT FOR EACH THEATRE BOOTH

Universal Talking Picture Amplification, Inc., of Philadelphia, has entered the motion picture field with a sound-on-film equipment and making its debut in a unique manner.

Engineers of the company, it is said, will make complete surveys and specially design the sound equipment for each individual theatre. There are no standard installations for all types of theatres. The type of horns and the type of amplifiers are individually designed for the requirements of each particular case.

Recent installations have been made in several Philadelphia and New Jersey theatres and reports state that the specifically designed sound equipment for each theatre has proven highly successful.

The new system is said to have a patented remote control enabling the theatre manager to blend the sound from the floor of the house.

PICTURE OF THE WEEK

Parlor, Bedroom and Bath

M-G-M—70 Minutes

Cast: Buster Keaton, Reginald Denny, Charlotte Greenwood, Cliff Edwards, Dorothy Christy, Joan Peers, Sally Eilers, Natalie Moorhead, Edward Brophy, Walter Merrill, Sidney Bracy. Directed by Edward Sedgwick.

One of the funniest pictures made by Keaton or by anybody else. It has a cast of prominent players, some of whom are first-string stars. And Keaton hits his peak. From start to finish there are laughs, hardly a letup. When previewed recently the audience went wild.

Buster is a mild and bashful billposter who becomes wealthy and the story traces his change from the bashful type to the opposite manner.

Charlotte Greenwood, the tall, lanky and comical personage of the musical stage, gives excellent support. Real comedy.—S. F. D.

Oswald in College

Universal—10 Minutes

Pleasing cartoon featuring "the lucky rabbit." Oswald is a soda boy while in college and draws out some laughs with his antics at the fountain. Then he enters in a cross-country race, which he wins after stealing the wooden leg of a bear who was his closest rival and using the artificial limb as a pogo stick. Bright little filler which should dress up any program.

Zuyder Zee

Pathe—10 Minutes

Tom Terris, the vagabond director, takes his audience to Holland where he gives an insight on that little country. It is interesting throughout and should please.—R. G.

Seas Beneath

Fox—97 Minutes

Cast: George O'Brien, Marion Lessing, Mona Maris, Walter C. Kelly, Walter McGrail, Larry Kent, Gaylord Pendleton, John Loder, Henry Victor, Ferdinand Schumann-Heink. Directed by John Ford.

This picture has several exciting moments and a few interesting sequences, but John Ford has given better treatment to other stories. It is a naval narrative dealing with the war and concerns spies and submarines. George O'Brien delivers a good performance, as does Marion Lessing, but both are capable of better work. There is some photography work in this picture which has been exceptionally well handled.

Marion is the German spy and her brother is the commander of the German submarine. O'Brien is the American naval officer who falls for the spy but never wins her as she is taken away to a German prison camp at the climax.

The cast has been well selected and the dialogue is good. In fact, the whole picture has entertainment but is made slightly dull by the unnecessary length and several slow sequences. Comedy and songs help considerably.—S.F.D.

The Pest

Paramount—17 Minutes

Tom Howard in another good comedy. Perhaps not quite as funny as "The Spy" and "The Holdup," yet it has some comical moments and should register okay with the majority. It shows a couple trying to sell a car. Howard, a neighbor, comes into the garage and points out the faults of the car to the prospective purchaser. who is convinced the car is N. G. The hopeful seller then uses a shotgun to bump off Howard.—G.

Correction

Hollywood — Crossed wires, or the heat of the "Cimarron" campaign, or what-have-you was responsible for the issue of a statement by Radio Pictures that "The Lady Refuses" was to be done in 100 per cent technicolor. It's "Waiting at the Church" which is to be 100 per cent technicolor; which, according to Radio Pictures, is as it should be with Mary Astor, playing the lead. Joseph Cawthorn and Kitty Kelly are in the cast. Mel Brown is directing and Carey Wilson has just been assigned the job of doing the dialogue.

Finn and Hattie

Paramount—82 Minutes

Cast: Leon Errol, Zasu Pitts, Mitzi Green, Lilyan Tashman, Jackie Searl, Regis Toomey, Mack Swain, Harry Beresford, Sid Saylor, Louise Mackintosh, Ethel Sutherland, Eddie Dunn. Directed by Norman Taurog and Norman McLeod.

Here is a story by Donald Ogden Stewart which is really funny. It is entertainment plus and should register with those who don't take their pictures too seriously. The kids are going to like it because it has two talented youngsters, Mitzi Green and Jackie Searl, who get over in a big way.

Leon Errol has a part which fits him like the proverbial glove, while Zasu Pitts is very good as Errol's wife. Lilyan Tashman and Regis Toomey, as a pair of crooks seeking the Errol bank roll, are well cast.

The story tells of a family going to Europe and the scrapes they get into on this side, on the boat and in Paris. Mitzi Green is the one who foils the crooks' plot and also the one who gets Errol out of his difficulties with Lilyan.

Put this down as a good comedy. It will please.—R. G.

RALPH GRAVES IN CRUZE SPECIAL

Hollywood—Ralph Graves is the latest addition to the cast being assembled by James Cruze for his next personally directed special, "Salvation Nell," for Tiffany release.

Graves is known for his splendid portrayals in "Submarine," "Ladies of Leisure," "Flight," and most recently "Dirigible."

Helen Chandler and Sally O'Neil are the other members of the cast, with many prominent screen players to be added.

This is the fourth James Cruze feature for Tiffany release. The first three were "She Got What She Wanted," "The Command Performance" and "Hell Bound."

REOCH EXECUTIVE VICE-PRES. OF RCA

New York—At a meeting of the board of directors of RCA Photophone, Inc., last week, Alexander E. Reoch was elected executive vice-president and Lawrence B. Morris was elected vice-president. Mr. Reoch, it was announced, now takes active charge of the affairs of RCA Photophone, Inc., here and abroad.

Kept Husbands

Radio—75 Minutes

Cast: Dorothy Mackaill, Joel McCrea, Robert McWade, Florence Roberts, Clara Kimball Young, Mary Carr, Lita Chevret, Ned Sparks, Bryant Washburn, Freeman Wood. Directed by Lloyd Bacon.

Two old-timers are in this picture—Bryant Washburn and Clara Kimball Young — both headliners of a few years ago. However, the picture belongs to Dorothy Mackaill and Joel McCrea, although the entire cast is a good one.

This story is about a girl who falls in love with a poor young chap who works for her father. She proposes to him and he accepts, although somewhat reluctantly. He soon finds himself a "kept husband," living off the girl and her father in a big home. This situation becomes revolting to him and after many attempts he breaks away and returns to his small home and mother.

The picture is not big but it is entertaining and Lloyd Bacon has handled its direction with care and good taste.—S.F.D.

CHAS. R. ROGERS PRODUCTION HEAD OF PATHE STUDIOS

Hollywood—Charles R. Rogers, generally regarded as one of the ablest showmen among Hollywood motion picture producers, will be the new executive production head of the reorganized Pathe studios.

He will be elected a vice-president of the new company, and will be in charge of all production.

For some months Rogers has been an independent producer releasing through Radio Pictures. His first picture, "Millie," is soon to be shown.

In his new post, Rogers will be associated with Lee Marcus, who will be president of the new Pathe company. Marcus will have offices in New York; Rogers will remain at the former Pathe studios in Culver City, California.

NEW TITLE FOR "APRON STRINGS"

Hollywood — Universal has announced a change in the title of "Apron Strings," the Dorrance Davis stage play, which is being directed for the talking screen by Vin Moore. Its new title is "Virtuous Husband." In the cast assembled for this special are J. C. and Elliott Nugent, Betty Compson, Jean Arthur and Allison Skipworth.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF AN M-G-M SHORT SUBJECT!

Hal Roach's spotlight stealers! The funniest pair in picturedom—they're better than ever, and when they're on the bill watch the gross grow! "Laurel-Hardy Murder Case," "Another Fine Mess," "The Chiselers"—they're all great!

It's interesting to watch an M-G-M short subject in action! Very often the little fellows on the bill wallop the big fellows on the bill. Read the news clipping below and you'll get the idea.

LAUREL-HARDY for instance—

NEWS ITEM FROM DES MOINES TRIBUNE, FEB. 2, 1931: "Messrs. Stanley Laurel and Oliver Hardy, slapstick comedians de luxe, appearing in their farce 'The Laurel-Hardy Murder Case' 'steal' the program at the Des Moines Theatre from (not an M-G-M feature)________billed as the feature attraction."

PANTAGES STILL A PUZZLE HERE

Although it is one of the best located theatres in Minneapolis, modern in every respect and boasts first-class sound equipment, the Pantages Theatre has remained idle throughout practically the entire fall and winter and apparently is doomed to continue dark indefinitely.

The answer to the mystery of this closed 1,600-seat showhouse lies in the Pantages' inability to obtain sufficient satisfactory picture product to keep the theatre in operation.

Publix and RKO have practically all the major picture product tied up for Minneapolis. With the exception of a few weeks early in the winter, Pantages has been closed since early last summer and its owner is out the heavy taxes and interest on an investment which is estimated to be more than half a million dollars.

The future of the theatre is puzzling the local rialto. Publix and RKO undoubtedly have all the houses they wish to handle. The town already has dramatic and burlesque stock. It's a tough problem for Pantages to solve.

Because of the big business done on its first loop run and at the Uptown, leading neighborhood, and because of the drawing power of El Brendel, its star, "Just Imagine" was booked into the Grand, Publix second run loop house, for an entire week, instead of the customary three or four days. The gross attracted at the Grand was far above the average for the house.

Selling "Birth"

J. V. Juvrud has been appointed salesman for "The Birth of a Nation" in northern Minnesota and North Dakota. Carl Michel is handling the picture in southern Minnesota. The Triangle Film Co. has "The Birth of a Nation" in this territory.

Montgomery Back

After attending the Pathe meeting in Chicago last week, M. E. Montgomery, Pathe sales manager in Minneapolis, is back on the job again. RKO theatre division managers met at the same time as the Pathe exchange managers.

Tax Fight Campaign to be Planned at Conclave March 3-4

Business of Many Exhibitors Threatened if Ten Per Cent Tax Bills Are Passed in Northwest States

When the Northwest Allied unit holds its annual meeting at the Nicollet hotel in Minneapolis Mar. 3 and 4, a campaign will be mapped out to fight to the finish bills introduced in the Minnesota and North and South Dakota legislatures providing for a 10 per cent tax on theatre admissions.

If the proposed taxes are enacted, they will force numerous exhibitors throughout the territory out of business, it is declared by W. A. Steffes, general manager for Allied States in the Northwest, who has sounded a battle cry for the industry.

Asserting the situation is alarming, Mr. Steffes declares that exhibitors should drop everything and come to the Minneapolis meeting to obtain ammunition for the fight against the measures which he brands as discriminatory.

Incidentally, Mr. Steffes points out that the motion picture industry in the Northwest already is shouldering a heavy burden and that most exhibitors are barely able to pull through on the right side of the ledger even under present conditions.

TRAMPE HEADS MILWAUKEE FILM BOARD OF TRADE

Milwaukee—Charles Trampe of the Midwest Film Co. has been re-elected president of the Film Board of Trade. Arthur Schmitz, branch manager for RKO, has been named vice-president, and Sam Shurman of M-G-M, is re-elected secretary-treasurer. Ben Koenig has been renamed executive secretary and counsel for the board.

New Manager

Milwaukee — Ed Murray has been named manager of Warner Brothers' Downer Theatre here, succeeding Charles Secord. Bryn Griffith has also been named head of the circuit's State Theatre, succeeding Robert Gross.

LEVY COL. MGR. IN DES MOINES

Des Moines—Joe Levy, former manager of U. A.'s St. Louis exchange, has been appointed manager of Columbia's office here.

Mr. Levy comes to Columbia with a background of more than fifteen years' experience in the sales field of the industry. He is especially well known in the Midwest district, having been affiliated with several motion picture companies in that territory.

Among the managerial assignments handled by Mr. Levy in the past are U. A.'s Cincinnati branch and for the past two years, that company's St. Louis office.

"Warfare" Started Over Stage Show Ads

The Minnesota Theatre, ace Publix house in Minneapolis, and its chief opposition, the RKO Orpheum, are engaged in warfare as a result of the former's new style of stage show advertising.

For the first time last week, the Minnesota came out in its newspaper ads and billed its unit stage show as "5 Acts of Vaudeville." Each act comprising the unit was listed separately. Hitherto, ads have played up the units' titles and mentioned only the stars.

The RKO Orpheum, which offers but four vaudeville acts at a lower admission than the Minnesota, immediately took notice of the Minnesota's invasion of the vaudeville field. In its Sunday newspaper ads, the Orpheum had a lead paragraph that threw down the gauntlet to the Minnesota.

"In vaudeville, as in every other line," the paragraph stated, "there is a standard which imitators invariably try to follow. RKO is recognized the world over as the standard in vaudeville. There is no substitute for RKO vaudeville. You will find this superior type of entertainment ONLY at the RKO Orpheum."

The success which the Orpheum has been enjoying with vaudeville might have had something to do with the Minnesota's change. There probably was a feeling, too, that a change in the unit show idea would tend to prevent monotony. It is understood that programs will be routined differently, with the orchestra remaining in the pit as a general rule.

At its principal St. Paul house, the Paramount-Publix also is expected to introduce some flesh-and-blood entertainment regularly. As an experiment along this line, Lillian Roth in person was booked into the house and boosted business considerably.

The Paramount is located directly across the street from the St. Paul RKO Orpheum which offers four vaudeville acts along with its pictures and which has been doing a profitable business.

DIME THEATRES INCREASE HERE

The number of 10c talkie houses in Minneapolis is growing. There are now fully 10 of these independent grind theatres in the lower loop district charging a dime morning, afternoon and night. These houses cater to the laboring and poorer classes and their business has been hard hit by the depression and unemployment. Even at the low prices, their grosses have been considerably off during recent months.

A Publix grind talkie house, the Palace, competing with the indies, charges 15c in the afternoon and 20c at nights. It is doing light business.

Dropping of M.P.T.O.A-Allied Merger Surprise of Conclave

Pledging of $100,000 Makes Consolidation Unnecessary, Belief

Chicago—Allied's first convention now is history and, according to the majority of those who were present, the meeting was one of the most beneficial since exhibitors first organized.

One of the surprises of the convention was the absence of any official discussion of the proposed merger between Allied States and M.P.T.O.A. When the merger failed to materialize a month or so ago, following discusions between the two bodies, it was believed that the consolidation would be a highlight of the Allied conclave. But with the pledging of $100,000 by the independent exhibitors, all thoughts of the merger were put into the discard as it was felt that such a merger would not be of material benefit at this time.

Little trouble was experienced in getting the $100,000 "war chest." The delegates "kicked in" with enthusiasm and it was believed that more money could have been obtained had the request been made.

Allied plans expansion in a big way and the campaign is expected to make rapid strides before the first of April. The first point of attack is not known definitely, but New York was mentioned as a possible spot. Coast-to-coast units, fully organized, is the ambition of the association. When a network of Allied associations has been perfected, the organization will be ready to put into practice the reforms suggested at the convention, according to Allied leaders. These reforms include percentage contracts, block booking, music tax and general trade practices.

Abram Myers will continue to head the association, the delegates expressing themselves as being satisfied with the work of their leader.

"BUD" POLLARD PRODUCING IN N. Y.

New York—"Bud" Pollard Productions, with headquarters at 723 Seventh Ave., New York, has embarked upon an extensive production campaign for the state-right market. "Rio's Road to Hell," Pollard's first 100 per cent all-talking, singing and dancing feature picture on the new schedule, has been booked for extended first runs in fifty key cities with the opening date set at the Shubert Theatre, Detroit, the latter part of the month.

OPPOSE TAKING FIGHT TO PUBLIC

A few of the exhibitor-delegates to the Allied convention in Chicago expressed themselves as being against the Allied plan to carry its fight to the fans, and public in general, according to statements. Opponents to the proposal declare the public is not interested in the internal activities of the industry and that an attempt to enlist the sympathy of the fan will prove to be a detriment rather than an aid.

LEE HEADS TIFFANY ADVERTISING

New York—Manny Lee has been appointed director of advertising, publicity and exploitation at Tiffany, according to a statement issued by Grant L. Cook, executive vice-president of the company.

The new line-up will place Joe Rivkin, publicity and exploitation man who has engineered many special campaigns, as assistant to Lee.

The experience of both men covers many years in many companies, including Paramount, RKO, Pathe and others.

SISTROM TO BE FOX PRODUCER

Hollywood — William Sistrom, former production head of Pathe Studios, has signed with Fox Film Corporation as associate producer. Mr. Sistrom assumes his new duties immediately.

BIG 4 HAS THREE IN PRODUCTION

Hollywood—Big 4 is now in the midst of production activity, having three films, a Western, a melodrama and a comedy in production on the Coast.

"So This Is Arizona," starring Wally Wales, with Buzz Barton, Fred Church, Joe Lawless, Don Wilson, Gus Anderson, Loraine Leval, Kate Brody and Etta Delmas, is now being filmed.

"Trapped," produced under the direction of Bruce Mitchell, is being made at the old Charles Ray Studios. Nick Stuart and Nena Quartaro are featured, with Priscilla Dean and Tom Santischi in important roles.

Preliminary work is approaching completion on "The Wages of Gin," the second Craig Hutchinson two-reel comedy featuring the comedy team of Perry Murdock and Bud Jamison, and introducing a new unit of bathing girls in talking comedies to be known as the Comedy Cuties. It is expected that cameras will start grinding shortly.

SZEKLER TO BE GEN. MGR. OF "U"

Hollywood—Carl Laemmle has appointed Al Szekler, for several years general manager for Universal in Continental Europe, to the post of general manager of Universal Pictures Corporation. Szekler arrived in Hollywood last week from Berlin, accompanied by his wife.

Szekler assumes a position vacant for several months and in announcing the appointment Mr. Laemmle emphatically stated that Carl Laemmle, Jr., will continue in charge of all Universal production and Phil Reisman, also under long-term contract, will continue as general sales manager.

Press Will Fight Ads on Screen---Hammons

New York — Daily newspapers will fight screen advertising when the press begins to feel that the shorts are cutting in on their revenue, according to E. W. Hammons, Educational president, in an interview with The Film Daily.

The plan to be adopted by the newspapers will be to agitate for a reduction in admission prices at theatres showing ad films, Hammons says. The papers will contend that three cents admission will not be too low a price for "subsidized" entertainment where forced advertising is included, Hammons says he is informed.

Stating that Educational Pictures has been approached by national advertisers anxious to subsidize at least two Educational series, Hammons stated that his company has no intention of entering the sponsored short field for the present at any price offered, unless the advertisers can be put under 10-year contracts. Hammons also predicted that advertising in pictures will be abused to the extent that theatregoers' reaction will, within the year, decide against any future of the "ad" films.

"U" INCREASES SHORT PRODUCT BUDGET FOR 1931

Hollywood—In a conference on the plans for next year's short subjects between Carl Laemmle, Carl Laemmle, Jr., Stanley Bergerman, and Universal scenario chiefs, it was decided to expend a million and a half dollars on Universal single and two-reel comedies and specialty numbers. These include the recently-announced Christy Walsh All-American Sports Subjects. This amount is by far the greatest that Universal has ever appropriated for short product and it does not include any appropriation for serials or for the Universal Newspaper Talking Newsreel. Budgetary figures for these will be announced later.

Under the greatly increased budget for comedies and specialties will be included at least twenty-six sport reels. Other features which will be continued in the program are the Slim Summerville Comedies, the "Strange As It Seems" series, the Oswald Cartoons, the Sidney and Murray Comedies, all of which have been extremely popular. In addition to the continued successes of this year, a number of new stars are under negotiation and will be announced in a few weeks.

PREDICT FOREIGN VERSION CHANGE

Hollywood — Roy J. Pomeroy, motion picture director and sound expert, makes the prediction that Hollywood producers will abandon the present method of making foreign versions before the end of another year. Comparing cost figures and theatres equipped for sound pictures abroad, Pomeroy declares it will be at least five years before foreign exhibitors can return a profit to local producers on multi-lingual films. The solution of this weighty problem is via trick photography, a new system which Pomeroy and associates are now perfecting.

Wolheim Dies

Los Angeles,— Louis Wolheim prominent star and character actor, died here last week, following an operation.

PICTURE BUSINESS

THE Allied conclave at Chicago was by far the largest gathering of exhibitors to meet in one place in years. The fact, too, that more than 500 independent exhibitors met in convention at this time is significant. It is proof that the independent is still alive and kicking; that he is an important factor in this business numerically as well as individually.

The pledging of $100,000 by this group and the readiness with which they turned over the cash right at the convention signifies their belief in their rights. They are backing up their contentions with dollars. And, in this day of tight money, that has a big meaning.

As a whole the convention was most constructive. It was well conducted throughout. The importance of an united front to battle the many legislative bills pending against this industry was strongly stressed. And, with the heavy amount of adverse legislation that is aimed directly at the box-offices in practically every state in the Union, it is incumbent upon every exhibitor, independent or affiliated, to leave undone nothing that he can do or is called upon to do in this "legislative battle of the ages." There is too much at stake for anyone to shirk his duty in this regard. Legislative bills, once on the statute books, are hard to get off. Admission taxes, standing room ordinances and other like nuisances all cut into the profits. So this urge of the Allied leaders to their cohorts should be concentrated upon, even though all else, for the time, needs to be dropped.

True it is that exhibitors are encouraging other problems that need attention. But, it is our opinion, that all of them put together are not as damaging as would be the legislating of even a five per cent admission tax.

BLOCK booking again came in for a lot of attention. True, this system of selling pictures has its disadvantages for the exhibitor. But was there ever or will there ever be a selling plan that will meet with the unanimous approval of all exhibitors? It seems to us that the individual buying from the companies whose product he wants or feels that he needs must be content to take the bad with the good. If every picture could be a guaranteed winner, it would be a wonderful business to be in, indeed. But this business like all others must figure on averages; it's the net result at the end of the month or at the end of the year that counts.

As to being forced to buy features to get shorts or vice versa, this is something that should not be tolerated. But like some other problems in this business it can be individually overcome.

If an exhibitor wants a company's features so badly that he contracts for their shorts as well, then he is gambling that they will be worth the buy. If his gamble turns out a bad guess, he should profit by his experience in the next negotiation. And, if he can't buy the product he wants on the basis that will be fair to him from any particular producer, he can always get product elsewhere.

TAKING all things into consideration, Allied put over a convention which should be a model for future conclaves. The independents have made a noble beginning in accomplishing their aims. It will be interesting to observe the fruits of their efforts.

Ben Shlyen

A group of 48 foreign pictures, including 24 feature length subjects and 24 shorts, will be released in this country through the newly formed foreign department of Capital Films, according to Herman Gluckman, president. The pictures will be all-talking and will feature German, Italian, French and Spanish stars. In connection with the foreign department a press department has also been established.

Letters have been set out by the board of managers of the M.P.T.O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, to all who are supplying pictures to non-theatrical accounts, asking that no product be released to these outside exhibitors unless it is at least a year old. This action was induced by the increased non-theatrical showings, particularly among churches, clubs and various organizations, to the point where it frequently becomes unfair competition.

Nat Levine, president of Mascot, is in New York with a negative of "King of the Wild," all-talking serial of the African jungle, to be released in 12 installments. Walter Miller and Nora Lane head the cast, which also includes Tom Santschi, Boris Karloff, Dorothy Christy, Arthur McLaglen and Victor Potel.

Babe Ruth and Knute Rockne have been signed by Universal for a series of pictures for next year. They will be called the Christy Walsh All-American Sport Subjects and will be made partly in Universal City and partly on sports arenas. The Rockne series will start about May 1, and the Ruth subjects will go in work after the baseball season.

"QUOTES"

H. E. JAMEYSON

Adv. Director, Fox Midwest Theatres

"The church and the theatre of the future must give man something vital, something invigorating, something thought-provoking. We must remember that millions of the leisure hours society is to have in this future are going to be devoted to self-improvement. If either the church or theatre fails to keep pace in the march of intellectual progress it is doomed."

"Cimarron" and "Reducing" High Spots

Minneapolis (week ending Feb. 20)—Two hold-over attractions, "Cimarron" and "Reducing," continued to be the biggest magnets in the loop. The former drew packed houses to the Seventh Street while the latter enjoyed very nice returns at the Century during its final seven days.

There were no outstanding offerings among the newcomers. "Millie" at the RKO Orpheum, however, showed some box-office power and gave that theatre a satisfactory week. "The Easiest Way" was rapped by the critics and did only a fair business at the Minnesota. "The Gang Buster" at the State was well liked, but did not develop into a very big draw

Aster—The Naughty Flirt (F. N.), Alice White. Business: Fair. Summary: Miss White good to look at, as usual, in the story of a wild young miss who is tamed by love. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news; comedy, screen vaudeville.

Century — Reducing (M-G-M), Marie Dressler and Polly Moran. Business: Good (second week for this highly amusing comedy).

Lyric—Follow the Leader (Paramount), Ed Wynn. Business: Fair. Summary: Wynn is not so funny in his first talkie; a melange of nonsense which some will like. Entertainment Merits: 70 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news; comedy, screen vaudeville.

Minnesota — The Easiest Way (M-G-M), Constance Bennett and Robert Montgomery: Business: Fair. Summary: A strong cast in a moderately interesting drama of a girl who strayed from the straight and narrow path. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show and sound, news.

RKO-Orpheum—Millie (RKO), Helen Twelvetrees. Business: Good. Summary: Attractive star redeems sordid drama of a young woman who shoots her ex-lover to save her daughter's honor; contains many of the elements of box-office appeal. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, sound news.

RKO Seventh Street—Cimarron (RKO), Richard Dix. Business: Big. Summary : Second loop week for this tremendous epic of early Oklahoma days which is still packing 'em in.

State—The Gang Buster (Paramount), Jack Oakie. Business: Fair. Summary: Many laughs and several thrills in this comedy of a guileless young man who invades a gang's lair to rescue a kidnapped girl. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy, sound news, screen vaudeville.

MILWAUKEE

Week Ending Feb. 12

Alhambra—Resurrection (Universal), Lupe Velez and John Boles. Business: Average. Summary: A lovely picture but not compelling in the human sense. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy, Universal Newsreel.

Garden — The Devil to Pay (United Artists), Ronald Colman and Loretta Young. Business: Good (ended second week). Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy, Newsreel.

Majestic — Once a Gentleman (Sono Art-World Wide), Edward Everett Horton and Lois Wilson. Business: Fair. Summary: Horton's excellent acting helps to make this performance. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, Comedy.

Palace — Cimarron (Radio), Richard Dix and Estelle Taylor. Business: Fine. Summary: A grand picture, a real camera story and a vivid account of life in Oklahoma, as originally told by Edna Ferber in her novel. Entertainment Merits: 95 per cent. Short Subjects: Newsreel.

Riverside—Bright Lights (First National), Dorothy Mackaill and Frank Fay. Business: Average. Summary: An all-color revue slightly below the average as far as story and contents. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, Pathe Newsreel.

Strand—Only Saps Work (Paramount), Leon Errol, Mary Brian and Richard Arlen. Business: Fair. Summary: A diverting film in spots but decidedly lame. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy, Fox Movietone Newsreel.

Wisconsin — Inspiration (M-G-M), Greta Garbo and Robert Montgomery. Business: Good. Summary: A fitting story for Greta Garbo unusually well told. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon and Marco Idea; Fox Movietone Newsreel.

W. E. AND RCA NOT INTERESTED IN SOUND SCHOOL

Electric Research Products, distributors of Western Electric sound system, and RCA, distributors of RCA sound system, disclaim any connection whatsoever with a sound school for operators which just has opened on Glenwood avenue in Minneapolis under an impressive title.

O. E. Maxwell, N. W. service supervisor of Electric Research Products, and R. R. Hill, manager of the RCA Minneapolis branch, have been flooded with inquiries from individuals who evidently received the impression that the school is tied up with the sound equipment manufacturers and distributors and that there will be an amalgamation of all sound equipments under the school organization which will provide jobs for its pupils.

Both Mr. Maxwell and Mr. Hill call attention to the fact that Electrical Research and R C A maintain their own schools where their men receive intensive training before being permitted to handle actual installations.

"We have 14 men out handling almost 200 installations in the Northwest," said Mr. Maxwell. "We are continually strengthening our staff and it is not true that our work is to be taken over by any other organization."

Donnelly Here

C. P. Donnelly of the Publix home office visited Minneapolis and St. Poul on a tour of inspection of Publix theatres. From Minneapolis he went to Duluth. Mr. Donnelly says that he finds business on the up-grade with Publix houses throughout the territory.

M-G-M TO MAKE STAGE FAVORITE

Hollywood — "A Tailor Made Man" has been announced by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios as a new title for the screen play formerly called, "The Imposter." Sam Wood is directing this picture, a William Haines starring film. Dorothy Jordan, J. Cawthorne, Marjorie Rambeau, William Austin, Ian Keith, Hedda Hopper, Hale Hamilton, Joan Marsh and Martha Sleeper are members of the cast. "A Tailor Made Man" was formerly a stage success. Originally produced in Germany as a play by Gabriel Dregeley, it was translated and adapted by Harry James Smith and produced by Cohan and Harris in New York. Grant Mitchell had the lead when the play opened in August, 1917.

MANITOWOC HOUSE TO GUITERMANN

Manitowoc, Wis.—R. S. Guitermann has taken over the Capitol Theatre here from L. H. Bump. The Capitol is Manitowoc's largest house and it is rumored that Fox Midwesco was dickering for the theatre.

New Equipment

Sheyboygan, Wis.—New equipment has been installed in the projection booth of the Warner Brothers' Majestic Theatre in this city at a cost of approximately $2,500. Fred Reeths is manager of the Majestic.

Incorporation

Milwaukee — Articles of incorporation have been filed here by the Land O'Lakes Theatres, Inc. The company has been authorized to issue 200 shares of stock at $100 per share. Signers of the articles are L. L. Palecek, D. Prenevost and V. de Montmollin.

6 FROM SENNETT DURING MARCH

Hollywood — Six two-reel comedies and two Terry-Toons are scheduled for release in March by Educational.

Three Mack Sennett comedies will be distributed generally during this month, with "The Bride's Mistake," featuring Marjorie Beebe, Vernon Dent and Kenneth Thomson to be released the first day of the month, and "The Dog Doctor," and "Just a Bear," both featuring Andy Clyde, scheduled for release March 15 and 29 respectively. Harry Gribbon is co-featured with Clyde in "Just a bear."

"Pete and Repeat," the Ideal Comedy which introduces to the screen the popular blackface team, Seben 'n' Leben, will be released March 1, while "Ex-Plumber," the latest Lloyd Hamilton, is scheduled for March 8 release.

"Bride and Gloomy," a Tuxedo starring Bert Roach, with Eleanor Hunt, is set for March 22.

"Quack Quack" and another Terry-Toon, as yet untitled, will be released March 8 and 22, respectively.

Nagel Signs

Hollywood—Conrad Nagel has been signed to a new long-term contract with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, according to an announcement made last week. Nagel, whose consistently good performances in so many pictures have made him one of the most reliable leading men in pictures, has recently played in "The Divorcee," "Gambling Daughters," "East Lynne" and many others.

PARAMOUNT SIGNS NEW CONTRACTS

Hollywood — Fifteen important player, director and writer contracts have been awarded at the Paramount Hollywood studios as a reward of satisfactory work during the past several months, it was announced last week by B. P. Schulberg, managing director of west coast production.

Eight agreements which will assure Paramount of the exclusive services of eleven stars or featured players for some time to come include those given to the Four Marx Brothers, Groucho, Harpo, Chico and Zeppo; Paul Lukas, Juliette Compton, Norman Foster, Eugene Pallette, Jackie Coogan and his brother, Robert Coogan, and Carman Barnes, the school girl novelist and playwright who has just been picked by Jesse L. Lasky as the company's next star.

Two directors who will remain with new contracts are Lothar Mendes, director of William Powell in "Ladies' man," and Frank Tuttle, who has just made "It Pays to Advertise."

The writers, to whom contracts were presented are Percy Heath, author of "The Gang Buster"; Oliver H. P. Garrett, author of "Street of Chance" and "For the Defense"; Herman Mankiewicz, whose latest is William Powell's production, "Gentlemen of the Streets," and his sister, Erna Mankiewicz; Betty White, youthful author of "I Lived This Story," and Zoe Akins, writer of the screen play for "Anybody's Woman," "Sarah and Son" and "The Right to Love" and the play, "The Greeks Had a Word For It."

SEITER TO DIRECT WHEELER FOR RKO

Hollywood — William Seiter signed up with Radio Pictures last week. He will direct "Too Many Cooks," starring Bert Wheeler, with Dorothy Lee opposite, according to William LeBaron, production head. Wesley Ruggles, of "Cimarron" fame, originally scheduled to direct "Too Many Cooks," will be assigned a dramatic type of story, LeBaron says.

PICK STORY FOR CONNIE BENNETT

Hollywood—Constance Bennett will be starred in "The Common Law," the Robert W. Chambers story, stated the first announcement made by Charles R. Rogers since assuming his duties as the Pathe production head at the Culver City studios.

GEO. ARLISS TO PLAY HAMILTON

Hollywood—Geo. Arliss's next picture for Warner Bros., following "The Millionaire," which is now nearing completion, will be "Alexander Hamilton," a screen version of the play written by Mr. Arliss himself in collaboration with Mary P. Hamlin, in which he appeared in New York and the leading cities of the country in 1917 and 1918.

HANCOCK JOINS MOVIETONE NEWS

New York — Herbert E. Hancock has joined the staff of Fox Hearst Corporation, producers of Fox Movietone News and Hearst Metrotone News, according to an announcement made by Truman H. Talley, general manager.

Mr. Hancock last week resigned as general manager, treasurer and editor of Kinograms Publishing Corporation, producers of the Kinograms and Universal newsreels.

Mr. Hancock will be a member of the Fox Hearst editorial board, comprised of Mr. Talley, E. L. Harvey, managing editor of Movietone News; Mike Clofine, managing editor of Metrotone News and Edmund Reek, news editor.

Sport Shorts Gaining Favor; 100 Planned

With the Grantland Rice "Sportlights" holding the field of sport shorts with practically no competition for the last 12 years, the new selling season about to be ushered in will bring to exhibitors more than 100 short subjects pertaining to sports and at least two sport features, according to The Film Daily. The regular program of 26 "Sportlights" produced by Van Beuren and released by Pathe will meet competition in Universal's "Christy Walsh All-American Sport Subjects" featuring Knute Rockne, Babe Ruth and others, of which there will be 26 during the fiscal year; 12 Bobby Jones golf shorts released by Warners and either 13 or 26 "Sportfolios" to be made by Al Mannon for Tiffany. It is reported that Brown and Nagel will produce a series of sport shorts featuring Gus Sonnenberg, the wrestler, for Educational release. Bill Tilden and others prominent in outdoor sports have been signed by M-G-M for a series of short subjects. The number has not as yet been decided.

Several short series already in distribution will be included in the new season's sales' manuals. Pathe's Knute Rockne football series, of which there were six, still being pushed by the sales force and their six Johnny Farrell golf shorts will also be included. Warners are still offering a Charles Peterson reel on billiards which was released a year ago, and also a more recent two-reeler featuring Earl Sande, jockey. A Tom Hagan short, "Golf Clubs," is now in release by Tiffany.

According to the present plans of Universal, one feature length subject starring Babe Ruth will be produced, and a fight feature is planned by Sono-Art for 1931-32 release. In addition to the scheduled shorts and features of sports and athletics, newsreels will devote considerable footage to sporting events. The RKO-Pathe news has already signed Ruth Nichols as aviation editor and Fox Movietone will continue its policy of including one sport sequence in each release. Out of 12 major producing companies, eight have included some nature of sports release in their 1931-1932 sales schedule.

GAYNOR-MEIGHAN TO BE TEAMED

Hollywood—Janet Gaynor and Thomas Meighan — together — in "Daddy Long Legs"; this is scheduled to be Miss Gaynor's first picture following her return to the Fox Film studios from Palm Springs, California, where she is recuperating from her recent appendicitis operation.

"Merely Mary Ann," which was scheduled as Miss Gaynor's first picture upon her return to the studios, has been postponed indefinitely due to the absence of Charles Farrell, who will be in Europe for three months, and the time needed by Miss Gaynor to recuperate from her recent illness.

Buys Play

Hollywood — Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer has acquired the screen rights to Margaret Mayo's play, "Polly of the Circus," a hit of 1907. Malcolm William and Mary Taliaferro were featured in the stage production. The rights to the play were bought by M-G-M from the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation.

Academy Discourages Would-Be Celebrities

Hollywood—At a meeting of the executive committee of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences held recently it was decided that some effort should be made to stop the influx of young men and women who come to Hollywood for the purpose of entering motion pictures. A false impression has been spread over the country that golden opportunities lie within the grasp of any fairly talented or reasonably good looking young person who can manage to get to this city.

The fact is that there is a crying need for a reduction in the number of actors and actresses already here; players of training and ability who are literally in dire want and for whom there is no work.

Of the 17,500 extras registered at the Central Casting Bureau during 1930, only 833 averaged one day's work per week and only 95 worked as much as three days per week. Of the 7,000 actors and actresses registered in the call bureau only six or seven were placed each day. If work could be equally distributed this would mean each actor of the call bureau could be furnished one part every three years.

When the industry is so hard put to it to care for its own tried and experienced players it is sheer suicide for youngsters to try to break in. It would help the situation if the press of the country would aid in spreading a picture of true conditions in the profession. Too much emphasis has been placed on the fortunate few who are in great demand and too little on the many thousands of experienced players who cannot make both ends meet.

Less than a thousand actors are doing most of the work. A youngster, to get a chance, must pass the other 6,000 professional and registered actors, and in addition must compete with the thousands of young men and young women all over America and even in foreign countries who have the ambition for a motion picture career. The lucky break happens frequently in fiction; almost never in the studio.

Famous Extra

Hollywood—John E. Nash, the producer who brought Lillian Russell to the New York stage, appeared last week as an extra in Radio Pictures' "Board and Room."

The Easiest Way

M-G-M

Cast: Constance Bennett, Robert Montgomery, Adolphe Menjou, Marjorie Rambeau, Anita Page, J. Farrell MacDonald, Clark Gable. Directed by Jack Conway.

Eugene Walter's dramatic story of the mistress who loses has been brought to the screen by Jack Conway, who just about tops his career with this work. As a starring vehicle for Constance Bennett, "The Easiest Way," taken from the celebrated old stage play, gives her another splendid and dramatic role.

From a bargain basement counter, she becomes mistress of her boss (Menjou). Ostracized by members of her family, she lives in luxury until she meets a young reporter (Montgomery), who forgives her past on the promise that she will go straight and wait for him. Circumstances takes back to Menjou. Upon Montgomery's return, she tries to deceive him, but is caught and then spurned by the man she loves. The "easy way" leads her to an empty life, while her sister (Anita Page) has happily married and settled down in a suburban cottage.

Miss Rambeau turns in a marvelous performance as the adviser of Miss Bennett. She is a great actress. Entire cast is exceptionally good and the screen play is top-notch.

This is strong drama and M-G-M has delivered an outstanding photoplay.

Millie

Radio Pictures—85 Minutes

Cast: Helen Twelvetrees, Lilyan Tashman, Robert Ames, John Halliday, Joan Blondell, James Hall, Anita Louise, Frank McHugh, Edmund Breese, Franklin Parker, Charlotte Walker, Harry Stubbs, Charles Delaney, Hooper Atchley. Directed by John Francis Dillon.

This highly dramatic talker produced by Charles R. Rogers is from the much discussed novel of the day by Donald Henderson Clarke and should prove a hit at the box office. Although the picture appeals especially to women fans, there is no reason why the men will not enjoy seeing it. The story is packed with human interest from start to finish. Excellent direction, a splendid cast plus good photography put this picture in a class by itself. Helen Twelvetrees does some unusual acting and reveals that she can capably handle extreme dramatic roles.

In the title role as "Millie" Miss Twelvetrees' life as a woman of various love affairs is depicted in a most interesting manner from the time she is 18 until the mother of a 17-year-old girl.

The thrilling climax arrives when Millie shoots one of her former lovers who is after her daughter for his own selfish motive. Then comes the trial in court, reminiscent of "Madame X" and other great mother love dramas She refuses to relate the real motive for her crime in order to save her daughter's name. And then comes the happy ending when her former friends and daughter appear in court to convince the jury why she should be freed.—Jesse.

Lonely Wives

Pathe—92 Minutes

Cast: Everett Edward Horton, Esther Ralston, Laura La Plante, Patsy Ruth Miller, Maude Eburne, Georgette Rhodes, Spencer Charters. Directed by Russell Mack.

Here's a wow of a comedy in which a merry mix-up occurs that will keep the audience in a continuous state of howling laughter. The picture is mainly for the adult trade. The children may like the comedy, but probably the spicy lines would be over their heads.

Edward Everett Horton is practically the whole show by playing a dual role. He creates most of the laughs with the support of Spencer Charters as his butler and Maude Eburne as the mother-in-law. Her role is a bit overdone, but nevertheless amusing. Complications arise when Horton, as a lawyer, asks Mr. Zero, vaudeville impersonator, also played by Horton, to take his place at home while he steps out for a good time with his new stenographer (Patsy Ruth Miller) and another woman (Laura LaPlante). The latter happens to be the wife of Mr. Zero, thus causing further complications. Later the wife of Horton No. 1 comes home unexpectedly from out of town. Meanwhile Horton No. 2 is in a pretty tough spot. Finally the tangle is straightened out to everybody's delight.

The butler is a scream. It is very amusing to see his actions when both Hortons appear on the scene at the same time, looking alike. Esther Ralston as the lawyer's wife is also good. Though not a big picture this one should please the average movie fan who likes light entertainment. It is worth the price of admission any time just to see Horton plus a beard.—Jesse.

The Last Parade

Columbia—84 Minutes

Cast: Jack Holt, Tom Moore, Constance Cummings, Galord Pendleton, Robert Ellis, Earl D. Bunn, Vivi, Jess De Vorska, Ed Le Saint, Edmund Breese, Clarence Muse, Gino Corrado, Robert Graham.

Columbia has come through with a racketeer story that ranks ace high, with Jack Holt giving a top notch performance as a wisecracking gangster. The story concerns a trio of friends, two men and a girl; one man is a newspaper reporter and the other a policeman. They are drawn closely together through association in the World War and agree to remain true friends for life at the signing of the armistice.

With the end of the war the policeman is promoted to chief while the newspaper reporter fails to get back his former job and is forced by circumstances into the racketeering game. The girl is in love with both men and finally confesses that the stronger love is for the racketeer. She asks him to get out of the game and he asks for a little more time to make a big haul. It falls to the policeman's lot to arrest his buddy and the trial ends in a death sentence.

The trio, having marched together in various armistice parades, take the last parade with the racketeer en route to the chair in response to his last request.

The picture has been excellently directed and should register one hundred per cent entertainment. It is packed with suspense and thrilling moments.—Warren.

Dance, Fools, Dance"

M-G-M—81 Minutes

Cast: Joan Crawford, William Bakewell, Lester Vail, Cliff Edwards, William Holden, Clark Gable, Earl Foxe, Purnell B. Pratt, Hale Hamilton, Natalie Moorhead, Joan March, Russell Hopton. Directed by Harry Beaumont.

Joan turns newspaper reporter and combats the underworld in her splendid follw-up of the successful "Paid."

From her gay life with Chicago's young Gold Coast set, Bonnie and Rod (Joan and Bill Bakewell), are left penniless when their father suddenly dies on the floor of the stock exchange where his fortune was completely wiped away. Bob (Lester Vail) offers Bonnie marriage, but is very cold; this magnanimous gesture hurts her and she declines. Employed by a Chicago newspaper, she is later assigned to hunt down the murderer of a fellow reporter. Meanwhile Rod has turned to bootlegging. Bonnie gets into the underworld crowd by her dancing at a notorious night club, and before long is faced with several dramatic situations. In the midst of the racketeer gang, she learns that her brother is the murderer. Swift gunplay follows and both Rod and Luva, the gangster, die. Bonnie phones the news to her editor, and is reunited with Bob.

"Dance, Fools, Dance," has thrills, romance, suspense and drama, with settings on board a yacht, the wild stock market, newspaper office and the underworld night club. Popular appeal and first class entertainment, this should satisfy all classes.—R. K.

Short Subjects

Cowboy Blues

Pathe—7 Minutes

This Aesop Fable is a snappy reel of seven minutes of pleasing entertainment. The story is about the villain trying to make a get-a-way with a safe, only to find later that instead of money being there the hero and his sweetheart are inside. The villain is pushed into the safe which gallops away while the hero and his girl are busy cooing. Old and young should like this subject. The scenes in the barroom are real funny.—J. S.

PRACTICAL SHOWMANSHIP

MUSIC TIE-UPS FOR "TEN CENTS A DANCE" READY

WITH the national release of "Ten Cents a Dance," Columbia's outstanding drama, starring Barbara Stanwyck under the direction of Lionel Barrymore, many sure-fire music tie-ups have been arranged by Columbia which afford all showmen record-breaking window displays.

A special souvenir edition of the song, "Ten Cents a Dance," which suggested the production of Columbia's powerful human interest romance of the dance halls, has been published by Harms, Inc., to be sold in every city and township from coast to coast. The publication of the special souvenir edition, the cover of which includes a striking and artistic photographic reproduction of Barbara Stanwyck, will not only vastly increase public interest in the song itself but in the Columbia picture as well.

To make sure that such tie-ups can be made with music stores, Columbia Pictures has arranged with the RCA-Victor Company, makers of Victor records for phonographs, to issue records of the song. "Ten Cents a Dance," to every music and record store.

Other records which can be used as well to make attractive and effective window displays are those made by the Brunswick Co. (the number is sung by June Purcell) and Columbia Phonograph (recorded by Ruth Etting).

BROTHERS PLUG "BROTHERS" FILM

MERGING an advance campaign with a ballyhoo, Eddie Lewis, manager of the Park Theatre, Reading, Pa., had the entire city buzzing with interest when he played "Brothers" and as a result cleaned up big on the Columbia feature.

Lewis first advertised in the newspapers for two brothers whose physical measurements correspond to those of Bert Lytell, the star of the picture. These ads, running for three days, aroused immense curiosity. Securing the men he wanted Lewis announced that brothers would be in town on a specified date.

Two days in advance of opening, he published a picture of the ballyhoo brothers and then sent them out on the streets. One brother was outfitted in evening dress while the other was in "tough" clothes as the photograph showed.

The advance ballyhoo merger scored heavily with all cylinders of the campaign hitting smoothly together.

AESOP'S FABLES BOOK GOING OVER

"AESOP'S Movie Fables," a book published by the Sonnett Publishing Company, in cooperation with the Van Beuren Corporation to exploit the Pathe Aesop's Sound Fable animated cartoons, is surpassing the most optimistic distribution expectations due to the nationwide theatre exploitation tie-up. The book is attractively printed in four colors and contains stories, puzzles, cartoons, as well as a specially written song entitled "Aesop and His Movie Fables."

For the theatre tie-up a specially printed card is being supplied gratis by the publishers of the book to all theatres wishing to take advantage of this novel exploitation idea. The cards have an attractive border composed of the fables' animal characters, with numbers from one to ten. A space is left for the theatre name to be filled in and beneath an explanatory paragraph advises that one copy of "Aesop's Movie Fables" will be given free to the holder of the card when same has been punched for ten paid admissions to the theatre. Exhibitors who have been looking for something to interest the children and bring them back to the theatre are gladly availing themselves of the punch cards and the idea is creating much good will and closer relations between the Pathe-Van Beuren companies and exhibitors because of the fact that the book has been found to be a box office attraction that pays many times over in increased patronage.

In addition to original orders totaling more than 100,000 copies from department stores, chain stores, music and novelty stores throughout the country, the publishers report re-orders being received with every mail. Orders already received in connection with the theatre tie-up exceed 148,000 copies, with the surface barely scratched, most of the theatres that have responded being located in the eastern part of the country, with the Mid-West, West and South still to be heard from.

With the many outlets contacted to date, present indications are that distribution of the book will easily exceed the million mark.

TABLOID EXTRA FOR "DOORWAY"

OF the series of exploitation stunts which sent "The Doorway to Hell" on its way at McVickers's Theatre, Chicago, none provoked more interest than did a tabloid newspaper called The Movie Mirror which appeared on the streets the evening prior to the opening of the picture. The Mirror had all the earmarks of the work of trained newspapermen. Splashed across its first page in solid Gothic type were the lines: SEEK BABY-FACE KILLER FOR MURDER OF GUNMEN. GANGS HUNT "LOUIE" RICARDO. The balance of the page was given over to illustrations skillfully described. The interior pages were illustrated with pictures of Lew Ayres as the czar of the underworld and the stories dealt with the beer running racket as it is known in the Windy City.

Fifty thousand copies of the Movie Mirror were handled by newsboys on the streets with the last editions of the evening papers so that they would go into the homes. It was the first time a stunt of this kind was used in such a big way and it attracted a great deal of attention which must have reacted favorably in calling attention to the Warner picture, which proceeded next day to have the biggest opening day's business McVicker's Theatre had ever known.

BIG CAMPAIGN "PASSION FLOWER"

RUSSELL LAMB, manager of the Fisher Theatre, Danville, Ill., arranged for a vigorous exploitation campaign in his efforts to put over his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "The Passion Flower."

In return for the use of an institutional trailer in the Fisher Theatre, Lamb received the consent of the Governor's Relief Commission to place interesting window displays on "The Passion Flower" in each of the five vacant stores which they used to solicit funds for baskets for the poor. Each window had an art display stills mounted on cardboard ao cut-out on the picture and several stills mounted on cardboard frames in addition to window cards which contained copy on the picture and playdate.

The Danville Drug Co. used stills of both Kay Johnson and Kay Francis, who are featured in the picture, mounted on a large display board which they used for a cosmetic and toilet accessory tie-up.

LIBRARY HELPS SELL "THE LASH"

FOLLOWING the announcement of the coming of Richard Barthelmess in "The Lash" to the Stanley Theatre in Jersey City, the Hobboken Public Library posted a notice suggesting that those intending to see the picture read the following books: "Mexican People," by De Lara; "Myths and Legends of Mexico," by Spence; "Mexican Journey," by Blickfeldt; "Mexico, the Wonderland of the South," by Carson, and "Viva Mexico," by Flandrau. The Warner staff at the Stanley immediately repeated the library announcement in its ads with the results that the call for the suggested books almost swamped the library staff. Incidentally, "The Lash" had an opening day that was a hummer and the forerunner of what looks like a record-breaking week.

"Kismet" with Otis Skinner is another of First National's releases that has been taken up by all of the public libraries in the country in the effort to make pictures of educational value to the masses.

NEW ANGLES ON CUT-UP PUZZLES

A CLEVER variation of the cut-up picture puzzle is being used with fine effect by Warner Brothers' staff at the Venetian Theatre, Racine, Wisconsin. The puzzle contest is being conducted by the Times - Call and the theatre. The newspaper twice a week prints a cut-up picture of a Warner or First National star and prizes are offered for those who first correctly assemble the pictures. The solutions are shown on the screen of the theatre. The prizes for the winners in the contest will divide $200.00 and there will be 100 theatre tickets distributed among the runners-up. The contest is to run 13 weeks, covering 26 pictures, and has created a great deal of interest.

IN

Measures to Prevent Film Fires Outlined

E. Schweriner, vice-president of the Sentry Safety Control Corp., has issued a statement in which he classifies the dangers of conflagrations and the measures that may be taken to avoid them. Claiming that the additional equipment used in booths, on account of added apparatus for sound, takes up much additional time of projectionists and thereby makes it less possible for operators to cope with emergencies. Schweriner says in part:

"Safety in a modern theatre is being carried to a higher degree of efficiency. Fire-resisting construction of the building, asbestos curtains, emergency lighting systems, fireproof acoustics, booth fire shutters, controlled by fusible links, fire extinguishing apparatus; but what about the projectors, where the most dangerous of conditions exist?

"How many theatre owners are acquainted with the fire hazards that exist in motion picture projection with the present-day highly developed type of mechanisms in the booths?

"Here are just a few of them, chosen at random:

A—Jamming of the mechanism due to:
  1. Lack of oil;
  2. Broken gears or parts of projector.
  3. Failure of take-up or lower tension mechanisms.

B—Interruption of motive power due to:
  1. Broken belts or chains;
  2. Failure of clutch;
  3. Blowing of fuses;
  4. Extreme drops in motor supply voltage.

C—Poor condition of film:
  1. Film breaks;
  2. Running off sprockets;
  3. Torn sproket holes;
  4. Loose patches;
  5. Improper threading.

"All of these listed fire hazards can be avoided with the proper safety device equipment on your projectors.

"The well regulated management, having its eye on the promotion of its theatre, which includes above all the safety of its patrons, will seek out a dependable and recognized safety device for the projectors in its theatre booth. When your patrons inquire as to the safety in your theatre from fire, are you prepared to say that your projectors are equipped with an automatic safety device?"

It is claimed that seventy-one per cent of all theatre fires originate in the projection room while machines are in operation, resulting in a yearly loss of approximately $3,000,000 to theatre properties and equipment. Theatres suffered an $18,000,000 loss during the five years from 1922 to 1926, inclusive, with the average for recent periods being lower, due, principally, to the many new devices and types of equipment now being built to eliminate fire hazards.

Wide-Film Solution

A British firm is reported to be in possession of a new device, of British invention, which it is claimed will solve the wide-film problem in an inexpensive manner. With this apparatus, said to eliminate necessity of new projection equipment, scenes are photographed in such a manner that an ordinary 35 mm. film bears a compressed image. Each object appears to only half its width, making it possible to include twice the amount of scenery on the film stock, and in projection, through a special lens, the picture is epanded to its normal size. In using this method, it is said to be possible to produce a film partly as an ordinary picture and partly as full-view, the operator sliding the special lens into position when necessary during projection. Price of the new lens attachment will probably be between $75 and $125, with an additional expense for installation of a wider screen.

Nagel With M-G-M

Hollywood—Conrad Nagel has been signed to a new long-term contract with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Nagel, whose consistently good performances in so many pictures have made him one of the most reliable leading men in pictures, has recently played in "The Divorcee," "Gambling Daughters" and "East Lynne."

RCA Announces all AC Reproducer

The new all AC operated sound motion picture reproducing equipment has been announced by RCA Photophone, Inc., following months of research and experimentation. The new apparatus was designed for theatres of 1,000 seating capacity and under for sound-on-film projection and is priced at $2,500.00. It is styled Standard Size Theatre Equipment.

No batteries or motor generators are required to operate this machine. Power supplied from 110, volt, 50-60 cycle, AC to amplifier is all that is necessary. Constructed to take advantage of recent refinements in recording, this and simplicity in operation and installation are its most important characteristics. Compactness permits installation without extensive booth regulation.

"We believe we have succeeded in producing a soundhead, amplifier and loud speaker that will add considerably to the prestige of RCA Photophone, Inc.," said Alexander E. Reoch, recently elected executive vice-president, in discussing the merits of the new model. "Our engineers, in collaboration with the engineers of our associated companies, deserve much credit for the splendid results that have been obtained. They labored long and hard in their efforts to produce a machine that would meet the acid test required in connection with the development of a thoroughly satisfactory sound reproducing apparatus. The refinements in the soundhead, amplifiers and loudspeaker, which comprise the component parts in this new reproducing unit, have been developed with great care and in our opinion the unit as a whole is vastly superior to any thing that has been introduced specifically for the exhibitor who operates a small theatre."

FILM PROCESSING STANDARD PLAN

Hollywood — Fixing of a standard for laboratory processing of sound film and drafting of a language governing this work is receiving attention from the film processing committee of the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences. One effect will be the elimination of "bnck passing" between studios and labs over quality of sound.

Comprising the committee handling the matter are: M. C. Levee, Nugent H. Slaughter, W. C. Harcus and Lester Cowan. Its report will be ready in about one month.

At It Again

Hollywood—Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy have started work on "True Blue," under the direction of James W. Horne. A Spanish and French version will follow the English.

THE SOLUTION

TO THE PROBLEM of POOR PICTURES

GOOD PICTURES

Simple isn't it? But how is one to know what pictures are good and what pictures are bad until one plays them? The box-office supplies the answer. Let every exhibitor send in an accurate report of the pictures he plays and a guide is furnished that will go a long way in eliminating inferior productions. But the reports must be truthful and unbiased.

You can become a member of the

Better Pictures Club

Simply by filling in and mailing the report blank on this page. Additional blanks will be furnished you for subsequent reports. There are no dues in this club and but two requirements—one, that you report 100% on every picture you play every week, shorts as well as features; and, two, that your reports be truthful and free from prejudice.

My opinion on pictures recently played here is as follows:

UNIVERSAL

Has Revolutionized The Short Subject Business!

(No. 717 Straight from the Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation)

TODAY THE ONLY SHORT SUBJECT THAT IS BETTER THAN A UNIVERSAL short is another Universal short!

UNIVERSAL IS NOW THE RICHEST IN COMEDY STARS, IN COMEDY DIRECTORS, in serials, in cartoons, in talking newsreels and in every conceivable form of short subject. Size them up:

TEN SLIM SUMMERVILLE 2-REEL COMEDIES. EVERY SINGLE ONE OF THEM A gem in itself, praised to the skies by critics everywhere.

TEN GEORGE SIDNEY AND CHARLIE MURRAY 2-REEL COMEDIES, BUILT AROUND a comedy team which has an unbroken record of hits.

TWENTY-SIX OSWALD CARTOONS . . . EXPENSIVE TO MAKE, BUT FREQUENTLY a far greater hit than the feature on the same program. Everybody loves Oswald.

THIRTEEN "STRANGE AS IT SEEMS" ONE-REEL NOVELTIES. THIS REEL IS A positive knockout, done in color and it never fails to be greeted with hearty applause.

TEN "LEATHER PUSHERS" TWO-REEL COMEDIES.

TEN "RED STAR" 2-REEL COMEDIES.

FOUR GREAT ALL-TALKING SERIALS . . . "THE INDIANS ARE COMING," "THE Spell of the Circus," "Finger Prints" and "Heroes of the Flames."

AND THE MOST POPULAR NEWS REEL IN THE BUSINESS!

TWICE EVERY WEEK UNIVERSAL ISSUES ITS CLEVER NEWSREEL WITH GRAHAM McNamee as its Talking Reporter. Every issue is good for thrills and good for laughs. It is as sound a fixture in hundreds of theatres as the box-office itself.

PUT DOWN A MEMO RIGHT NOW, LIKE THIS: DON'T FORGET TO LOOK AT Universal shorts and find out why they are turning the short business upside down.

Film Daily's poll makes it unanimous! The best picture of the year is "All Quiet on the Western Front."

NOTHING BUT BOX-OFFICE IN UNIVERSAL SHORT SUBJECTS!

M-G-M LEASES PUBLIX HOUSE FOR "TRADER HORN"

M-G-M has leased the Century (Publix) Theatre, Minneapolis, on a flat outright rental basis for the week of March 12 for a road showing of "Trader Horn." This will be the Northwest premiere of the novel picture that is taking the country by storm.

All seats at the Century will be reserved and there will be but two performances a day, one in the afternoon and one at night. Prices will be boosted to $1.50 at night and $1 in the afternoon. Following its Century Theatre roadshowing, "Trader Horn" will go into one of the Publix loop houses for a regular grind showing at usual prices.

The Minneapolis road showing of "Trader Horn" is one of a number such showing throughout the United States. The picture now is in the midst of a New York run. It will play Northwest theatres on a percentage basis.

Gets Theatre Back

Green Bay, Wis.—The Orpheum Theatre here has reverted to Miss Virginia Den Doven, following the foreclosure of a land contract under which Harry Timm, manager of the house, was purchasing the theatre from Dr. J. R. Minahan. The theatre was recently rebuilt at a cost of $300,000. Mr. Timm has managed the house for the past 20 years.

Northwest Unit Ready to Fight For Allied Campaign

All Officers Re-elected at Convention of Northwest Exhibitors; Attorney is Employed for Association

The Northwest unit of Allied States, independent exhibitors of Minnesota and North and South Dakota, are on record to support vigorously the national body's campaign against the music tax, block booking and protection. It also will take action of its own in an effort to eliminate practices which W. A. Steffes, general manager of the Northwest unit, branded grossly unfair and detrimental to independent theatre operation.

Plans to wage war against the music tax, block booking and protection were adopted at the Northwest unit's annual meeting in Minneapolis last week.

Re-Elect All Officers

Unanimously passing resolutions in support of the national organization's attitude and expressing its own emphatic disapproval of the above practices and of the producers' present practice to give exclusive trailer rights to a single company, the Northwest body held its most successful meeting. Attendance was the largest in the organization's history and enthusiasm ran at a high pitch. The several hundred exhibitors present reelected all their officers, including Mr. Steffes as general manager and Bennie Berger as president.

Unit Prepared to Fight

The Northwest unit has employed its own attorney and made it clear that it is prepared to carry its fight against block booking, protection and the music tax into the courts. It also will go into court to contest other grievances against distributors in cases where its attorney, Samuel Halpern of Minneapolis, decides a cause of action exists, it was indicated. Mr. Halpern not only attended all the sessions of the convention, answering queries put to him by members, but also met with the exhibitors individually and took affidavits to support possible grievance suits.

It was voted to bring a test court case to collect damages against Publix for alleged losses sustained by some one individual exhibitor in the territory because of the present method of zoning. Mr. Halpern and a special committee will select an "average" case and try to prove the dollars and cents loss and recover from Publix.

"If the test case is successful, we'll all jump on Publix," Mr. Steffes explained.

Berger Denounces Exchange Managers

In connection with the block booking discussion, President Berger took occasion to denounce exchange managers in general.

"They (the exchange managers) always will squeeze you if they get a chance," declared Mr. Berger. "That's their policy. But maybe some day it will be changed."

Members were asked to sign individual affidavits in cases where efforts have been made to impose block booking upon them. A number did so and it was stated that these either will be used in court actions here or submitted to the department of justice.

"Block booking must be torn out of the industry," declared President Berger. "It is intolerable that there should be in control of the motion picture industry an organization that forces exhibitors to buy and to do things against their will. Block booking is one of the most rotten things that any business group ever has been compelled to contend with."

The initial session was enlivened by a recital of individual exhibitor grievances in the presence of exchange managers and salesmen who had been invited to be present as guests.

Steffes Calls Exhibitors "Saps"

Mr. Steffes called the exhibitors "saps" for paying a music tax charges, which, he declared, is 'nothing but a graft going into the producers' and distributors' pockets" and put into the industry when "grafting" was good. He also charged that Northwest exhibitors are paying higher film rentals than those in many other parts of the country and that the distributors make no effort to impose the music charge on theatre

BAND LEADERS AND MERCHANTS HONOR LOU BREESE, M. C.

In honor of the one thousandth performance celebration for Lou Breese, master of ceremonies and stage band leader, at the Minnesota Theatre, Minneapolis, last week, band leaders in all Minneapolis night clubs and hotels dedicated one song each night to Breese. George Getsey, Minneapolis representative for the Feist Music Publishing Company, assisted the Minnesota publicity department in arranging the tie-up.

The Minnesota staff put over the celebration in fine style. A number of merchants went in on a large newspaper truck congratulating Breese in their individual ads. More than 100 merchants used large process cards in their show windows, calling attention to the celebration and extending best wishes to the popular orchestra conductor.

"It Pays to Look Well" cards were placed by barber shops in their windows. Each card had on it a photograph of the debonair and immaculate Breese, cut-outs of whom also were in evidence throughout the loop section.

Steffes Urges Passage Of Stench Bomb Bill

W. A. Steffes, general manager of Allied States' Northwest unit, urged Minnesota exhibitors to use their influence to obtain passage of a bill now pending in the Minnesota state legislature providing a penalty of one year imprisonment or a $1,000 fine or both for any person who throws a stench bomb or is instrumental in the throwing of such bomb in a showhouse. Steffes said the law also would make those responsible for the bomb throwing subject to a civil suit. The present penalty, he declared, is far too light.

While hoping that no censorship measure would be passed at this session, Mr. Steffes said "censorship has merit in some cases where block booking is imposed on the exhibitor," but that censors usually bar pictures on which theatre owners could make some money.

"The fight, however, is one primarily for the producers," said Mr. Steffes. "It's nothing for us to worry about. We should see to it, however, that if a certain number of feet of a picture is eliminated the entire picture should be banned."

Uphold Validity of Ries Sound Patents

Infringement by Western Electric Denied in Ruling Handed Down by U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals

Philadelphia — Validity of the Ries patent, owned by General Talking Pictures, is upheld, but infringement thereof by Western Electric is denied, in a ruling last week by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, thereby altering in some respects the decision handed down last summer by the District Court, Wilmington, Del., which ruled that the Ries patent had been infringed.

The suit was originally brought by General Talking against the Stanley Co. of America, whose houses are equipped with W. E. system. A rehearing can now be asked before the Circuit Court of Appeals or the case may be carried to the Supreme Court. In reversing the infringement decision, the Circuit Court said that the W. E. system is a wholly different structure from the Ries patent. Only the reproducing process is involved, the recording principle not entering into the case.

Commenting on the decision, M. A. Schlesinger, president of General Talking Pictures, expressed his opinion that by the refusal to declare the Ries Patent invalid, the court has made his contentions against the electric companies a strong one insofar as he believes they have from the beginning, still are, and will for some time to come, continue to use the Ries method in the recording of sound-on-film.

VESTAL COPYRIGHT BILL NOW DEAD

Washington—With the adjournment of Congress last week the Vestal copyright bill is dead and will have to be re-introduced at the next session if it is to be enacted into a law. Sponsors of the measure will bring it up again, it is understood.

SELIG TO DIRECT COL. ADVERTISING

Appointment of Al Selig as director of advertising, publicity and exploitation was announced last week by Columbia. Selig also will have the sales promotion and art divisions under his direction. He formerly was advertising and publicity director for Tiffany.

ONLY 2,435 CHAIN HOUSES

Independent theatres in the United States total 19,304 as compared with 2,435 houses affiliated with producers interests, according to a survey just completed by the Film Boards of Trade. According to the checkup made by zones, theatres in the country aggregate 21,724, of which 13,515 are wired for sound.

Total of 6,053 use both disc and film. Houses using only film are figured at 2.468, while those using only disc total 5,000, says the report. Silent theatres closed total 3,830, while closed sound houses aggregate 797.

COLUMBIA SHOWS RAPID GROWTH

Because of the growing demands of its rapidly expanding interests both in the production and distribution fields, Columbia Pictures Corporation has leased an additional floor space of 14,000 feet at 729 Seventh avenue, New York. Columbia's growth has been so rapid that supplementary space was required four times during the past year alone.

The past season has seen Columbia climax ten years of noteworthy accomplishment, under the leadership of Joe Brandt, Jack Cohn and Harry Cohn, with the greatest strides forward in its existence.

Its original schedule of 20 features was supplemented by 8 Buck Jones specials, 6 Money-Getters and a number of British International Productions. Its booking contracts with RKO, Warner, Paramount, Fox, Loew and other major circuits assured the product not only of presentation on Broadway, but also in other important theatres in the country. It's international distributing system was materially expanded with the opening of several foreign offices and with the laudatory reception accorded its product abroad.

VAN BEUREN ADDS FIVE EXECUTIVES

New York — Five new executives have been added to the staff of the Van Beuren Corp., which may mean that this organization will become the principal short subject producing unit for RKO-Pathe. J. H. Turner, assistant to Hiram S. Brown, and A. J. Van Beuren have rearranged the staff.

Harry A. Scott has been engaged as general sales manager, a post similar to the one he held with Pathe for four years. Scott replaces Jesse J. Goldburg, who has been made supervisor of production. Two short subject directors have also been added. They are Clyde Elliott, who made the Knute Rockne series for Pathe, and Nat Ross, recently connected with the "Collegiate Series." Elliott will make a series of shorts abroad and Ross is now preparing material for shorts especially adapted to commercial subjects.

It is understood that Van Beuren will produce heavily for the sponsored short field. In that connection, W. V. Currie has been engaged as contract man for prospective screen advertisers.

In order to make room on the RKOPathe sales schedule for additional Van Beuren releases, the number of Pathe Audio Reviews on the 1931-32 schedule has been cut from 52 to 13. Production of both regular and sponsored shorts will be carried on by Van Beuren both in the east at the Ideal Studios, N. J., and probably at the Tec Art Studios on the coast.

A half interest in the Van Beuren Corp. is owned by RKO.

SENATOR WANTS INVESTIGATION OF FILM INDUSTRY

Washington—Relations between the film industry, particularly the producers association, and various government departments, women's and civic organizations, financial interests, etc., would be made the subject of investigation by a Senate committee under the terms of a resolution introduced by Senator Dill shortly before adjournment of the session.

No action was possible on the measure because of the approaching close of the session, nor was any effort made by its author to discuss it. The committee proposed would develop facts regarding the relations between the industry and various organizations, including the "explanation" for its apparent immunity from prosecution by the Department of Justice since 1922, the floating of securities and the activities of the copyright protection bureau.

Rowland to Par.

New York — Richard A. Rowland, who recently became a Tiffany executive, has joined Paramount as a producer at the Long Island studios, it is reported here. The moving of Rowland to the Zukor organization is seen as the forerunner of the expected deal which would merge the physical assets of Educational and Tiffany into one distributing unit.

Monogram to Have 28 Features This Year

New York—Twenty independent exchangemen met in Atlantic City last week to form the Monogram Pictures Corp., a new producing organization headed by W. Ray Johnson. The company will make 28 pictures the first year, it was announced.

Trem Carr, well known independent producer and long associated with Mr. Johnson, is vice-president of the new concern. The executive committee includes Harry H. Thomas, Herman Rifkin, James V. Ritchey, Albert Fiedler, Trem Carr and Johnston.

Western Electric recording will be used in the company's new studios in Los Angeles.

SCOLLARD VICE PRES. RKO-PATHE

New York—Announcement was made last week by Pathe Pictures, Inc., of the election of C. J. Scollard as a vice-president of the company.

In announcing the appointment of Mr. Scollard to an executive position with RKO Pathe, Lee Marcus, president of the company, expressed the pleasure of the entire company's personnel in hav-the executive head of the old Pathe company affiliated with the new RKO Pathe forces.

PICTURE BUSINESS

FOR the past three years the independent producers and distributors have had a tough row to hoe. With the coming of sound and the jumping of production costs beyond all reasonable bounds and, too, with limited production facilities and almost until the present season a very limited market insofar as available wired houses were concerned, it was no wonder that independent production lagged behind. But this business is once again on firm ground. There are more and better facilities for making independent productions; costs are back to normal again as compared with the making of silent pictures; and the theatre outlet has increased from what was at first limited to the affiliated first and second run houses to a now available market of more than 10,000 houses. And this list is being added to every week.

Independent production is more or less of a safety valve for this business. It supplies that initiative from which blossoms originality and genius.

The formation of Monogram Pictures Corporation by W. Ray Johnston and twenty independent distributors during the past week is a most timely move. The decision of this group to specialize in action pictures is commendable. There has been a dearth of this type of production since the advent of the talkies. It will help to supply a vast market of small town show houses with the kind of pictures that are virtually their life blood. With other producers specializing more or less on product that caters to the demands of the larger houses of the country Monogram will fill a long-felt need in serving the particular picture needs of Mr. Smalltown Showman.

And, if a prediction is in order, let us say that we see in this coming picture season a returning era of the independent producer and exchange and the comeback to prosperity of the old stand-bys who were able to "take the rap" and bear up under it.

THE news of the past few weeks, announcements from various producers and the tendency of their advertising—all have pointed quite clearly that the star is a big thing in pictures after all. When the talkies first came in there was a mad rush to Broadway for "names"—"names" that meant something on Broadway, but which proved to mean nothing on Mainstreet. We spoke of this at that time. There was a very natural desire on the part of all producers and an interest on the part of exhibitors to develop new picture personalities. Some of the older stars were waning in popularity; new ones had to be created to take their places. But the creative process didn't prove quite resultful enough for the effort extended and the cost involved. Stars, somehow, cannot be created. Like Topsy—they "just grow up."

So the new season will see the return to the "star system" that has been a part of this business for many years. And it will never get away from it. The box office always suffers when the attempt is made. So the surprise isn't so great to see the advertising and the propaganda that is now being spread on the stellar names that will appear on production lists of the various producers this next season. And we notice a lot of the old timers are still in the running and in the majority and mighty few of the names have come from "finds" brought out in the "new faces" era of this business.

"We have found that the effort to try and satisfy everyone with what is known as 'balanced programs' has not worked out satisfactorily. Experience has shown us that it is much more profitable to pile on a corking good kid program or a complete adult-appeal program. In this way both children and adults were satisfied."

Added Attractions an Aid to Show Business

Minneapolis (week ending March 6)—Special celebrations and added attractions in a number of the loop showhouses helped to boost business the past week and trade was above par pretty much all along the line.

The thousand performance celebration for Lou Breese, popular master of ceremonies, aided the gross at the Minnesota where Nancy Carroll also was considerable of a card in "Stolen Heaven." "Kept Husbands," at the RKO Orpheum, also was well liked, but Ken Murray, on the stage vied in popularity with the screen offering. "Cimarron" finished four immense weeks at the RKO Seventh Street. "Reaching for the Moon" and "Sit Tight" at the Century and State, respectively, did moderately well. The State gave a tenth birthday party with a number of added attractions which helped to draw the crowds.

Aster—Right of Way (First National), Conrad Nagel and Loretta Young. Business: Fair. Summary: A rather slow moving dramatization of the Sir Gilbert Parker novel telling of the mis-adventures of a snobbish lawyer. Entertainment Merits: 70 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, serial.

Century—Reaching for the Moon (U. A.), Douglas Fairbanks and Bebe Daniels. Business: Good. Summary: The story of a woman hating stock broker who finally falls hard for a pretty girl and abandons his business to pursue her across the Atlantic. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Lyric—Fair Warning (Fox), George O'Brien. Business: Good. Summary: A Western with plenty of action and thrills. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Minnesota — Stolen Heaven (Para.), Nancy Carroll. Business: Good. Summary: Lovely Miss Carroll in the dramatic and interesting story of a boy and a girl who have one mad whirl spending twenty thousand stolen dollars. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show and sound news.

RKO Orpheum—Kept Husbands (RKO), Dorothy Mackaill and Joel McCrea. Business: Good. Summary: The romance of a millionaire's daughter and one of her father's employes; light but amusing. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news and vaudeville.

RKO Seventh Street—Cimarron (Radio), Richard Dix. Business: Good (fouth and final week of this smash).

State—Sit Tight (W. B.), Winnie Lightner and Joe E. Brown. Business: Good. Summary: Moderately amusing comedy in which Brown clowns as a would-be wrestler and Miss Lightner provokes some laughs as a health farm owner and trainer. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal News; Laurel-Hardy comedy; Movie Memories.

MILWAUKEE

Alhambra—"Dracula" (Universal), Bela Lugosi, David Manners. Business: Good (ended second week). Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal Newsreel; comedy.

NEW TYPE RCA IN POPULAR DEMAND BY N. W. EXHIBITOR

A rushing demand for the recently announced A.C. operated sound motion picture reproducing equipment for theatres with less than 1,000 seating capacity is reported by the Minneapolis branch of RCA Photophone. The equipment, requiring no batteries or motor generators and suitable for sound on film projection, sells for the unprecedented low price of $2,500.

During the convention of the Northwest unit of the Allied States in Minneapolis last week, the Minneapolis RCA Photophone office was thronged continually by owners of small houses in Minnesota and Dakota towns, anxious to see the equipment and learn full details of the offer. A large number of orders was received and more deals will be closed within the next few weeks.

RCA Photophone pointed out to the exhibitors that advantages of latest refinements in recording and simplicity in operation and installation characterize the new $2,500 equipment. The fact is stressed that the small theatre now is in a position to place itself on a par with the de luxe houses. Rapid expert service from the Minneapolis office is promised and purchasers are permitted to pay on time.

RCA offícals in Minneapolis predict that it is now but a matter of time before every theatre in the territory, down to the smallest, will be boasting sound equipment.

Buys Theatre

Racine, Wis. — Tom Norman, formerly connected with the Capitol and Uptown theatres here, has taken over the Rex Theatre from the Columbia Enterprises, Inc., operators of several theatres in Milwaukee.

"City Lights" in "Mil."

Milwaukee, Wis. — L. K. Brin, who just finished playing his third United Artists picture at both of his local first run houses simultaneously, opened "City Lights" at both his Garden and Majestic theatres, March 6.

Theatres Bankrupt

Racine, Wis. — The Racine Amusement Co., operators of the Capitol and Uptown theatres here, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing their liabilities at $27,229.38 and their assets at $60. The Capitol Theatre has been temporarily closed and the Uptown will operate under new management, it was stated.

BRIGHT BITS and NEWSY NOTES

A Minneapolis visitor of the past week was Boris Morris, head of Publix music department. He conferred with Lou Breese, orchestra conductor at the Minnesota Theatre.

Instead of using Paramount sound news exclusively, the Minnesota Theatre, Minneapolis, ace Publix house, includes the best shots from the various services. Much favorable comment is being heard on the arrangement.

EIGHT PICTURES IN WORK AT RKO

Hollywood — Eight productions are in the process of film transition at Radio Pictures' studio.

"Bachelor Apartment," featuring Lowell Sherman, Mae Murray and Irene Dunne is in the cutting room.

"Board and Room," being directed by Gregory La Cava and featuring Dorothy Lee, Hugh Herbert and Edna May Oliver, is shooting, as is "Taveling Husbands," now being directed by Paul Sloane, featuring Evelyn Brent, Hugh Herbert, James Gleason, Frank McHugh, Stanley Fields and Mae Clarke. "Madame Julie," with Lily Damita, O. P. Heggie, Anita Louise, Lester Vail, Miriam Seegar, Ruth Weston, and Halliwell Hobbes in the cast to be directed by Victor Schertzinger will soon go into production.

Northwest Unit to Fight For Allied Campaign

owners in numerous other sections.

"This leads me to believe that we should all turn our business over to somebody else because we don't know how to run them," declared Mr. Steffes.

Many complaints were voiced against the insufficient length of numerous of the features, necessitating a considerable expense involved in the purchase of shorts to round out a program. The consensus of opinion was that features should run at least 80 minutes and the producers will be so informed.

E. L. Richtmyer of Marshall, Minn., who is involved in litigation over a contract with one of the distributors, charged from the convention floor in the presence of the exchange manager involved that the exchange manager and salesman for the company had threatened him to build a competing house of their own in his town unless he "came to time." He promised Mr. Steffes to make an affidavit to this effect. The manager in question denied the charge. Mr. Richtmyer, a member of the Northwest unit's board of directors, asserted he would fight the dispute out in the courts to the last ditch.

After several other exhibitors had recited their complaints, Mark Miller of Cloquet, former president of the unit, expressed the view that it was poor judgment to invite the exchange managers and salesmen and then confront them with grievances which they had no opportunity to investigate and therefore could not properly defend. He felt the managers were due an apology.

Mr. Steffes said he had felt it a good idea to thresh out the grievances in the open and that the exchange managers had a similar opportunity to "put the exhibitors on the spot.

"I don't believe the exchange men have anything to hide," said Mr. Steffes. "I didn't know before whether I wanted to associate with them, but they seem a pretty decent bunch."

Workman Defends Distributors.

W. H. Workman, M-G-M branch manager and president of the Minneapolis Film Board of Trade, speaking for the exhibitors, declared "nothing can be said that possibly could hurt the managers or salesmen." He asserted that distributors adhere to their contracts rigidly, but that many exhibitors have been flagrant offenders.

"When the arbitration board was in existenc," Mr. Workman pointed out, "there were only three cases where exhibitors charged violation of contract on the distributors' part, while thousands of cases arising from the exhibitors' alleged violations were brought up for hearing.

"We not only stand ready, but do live up to our contracts. The trouble arises from trying to make the exhibitors live up to them. No exhibitor has the right to dictate to distributors the way the latter should sell their product. Any exhibitor who doesn't want to adhere to the distributor's policy need not sign a contract. Unfortunately, there is an element among the exhibitors who believe that if all the producers and distributors would be eliminated theatre operation could be made successful. Another feels that the distributor is not entitled to a reasonable percentage of what his pictures will earn.

"If the exhibitor isn't earning enough to suit him he frequently will run to the distributor and ask to have his contract torn up or demand a rebate. He feels that the exchange should carry the burden. In what other line of business does such a condition prevail? Upon investigation we usually find that we are not getting as much as we are entitled to get."

Vestal Bill Defeat, Allied's Victory

Mr. Steffes declared that the producers had one of the largest of all lobbies in Washington during the recent Congressional session. He asserted that the defeat of the Vestal bill was one of the greatest accomplishment in Allied history. He also gave Allied credit for defeating admission tax bills in the North and South Dakota state lgislatures.

There was discusion about "convention of film salesmen" in the various towns, several exhibitors complaining about being harrassed and bothered by frequent calls from salesmen.

It was declared that one Minnesota exhibitor actually has a sign on his door, "Dogs and film salesmen not admitted" and the suggestion was made that such a sign be used by exhibitors throughout the territory.

Other exhibitors defended the salesmen, however, and asserted they enjoy having the latter call.

A new system of dues was instituted, running from 15c to 25c per seat, according to the size of the town. Exhibitors who signed contracts to run one of the Allied's industrial advertising films each week were to be allowed a rebate of 5c per seat.

Mr. Steffes said that the wiring of hotels and churches is not a menace because the latter would have difficulty in obtaining product. No action was taken on a resolution aimed at such wiring.

The exhibitors were informed that Tiffany and RKO contracts and franchises were revocable on the grounds that the producers had not lived up to their ends. Several complaints were voiced against the manner in which RKO is handling "Cimarron."

Saperstein Addresses Body

Aaron Saperstein, head of the Chicago Allied unit, was present and in a talk to the members asked support for the organization and praised Mr. Steffes in the highest terms, stating that the Chicago group had been after his services. A group of five Milwaukee exhibitors were present to get the "low down" on the organization so that a similar body may be started in their city where, it was declared, the present association does not function properly because chains hold memberships.

TRANS-LUX TO USE PHOTOPHONE

New York — Specially designed RCA Photophone sound reproducing equipment modified to meet the requirements of rear projection, will be installed in the first three of the extensive circuit of theatres to be established in the principal cities of the United States by the Trans-Lux Movies Corporation of which Courtland Smith is president. Two of these theatres are to be opened in the Lefcourt building, 1619 Broadway, and the third at 625 Madison avenue, New York City.

Rear projection will be employed in all theatres operated by the Trans-Lux Movies Corporation, Photophone installations being the first in New York City since sound motion pictures were introduced. Tested in a model theatre installed at the Photophone engineering department on East Twenty-fourth street and employing the new loud speaker and directional baffle, the diffusion of sound by this system was said to have been of exceptional quality and equally diffused throughout the small auditorium.

A number of changes in the Photophone standard small theatre sound equipment were made necessary to meet the demands for rear projection, but from the booth, which is a miniature when compared with the projection booth of a large theatre, to the specially designed attachments for the reproduction of high-quality, every problem was solved and M. C. Batsel, chief engineer of RCA Photophone, Inc., is enthusiastic over the results obtained.

ANDREW DIRECTS ANOTHER FOR "U"

Hollywood—John Murray Anderson was yesterday assigned by Carl Laemmle, Jr., to direct "Lilies of Broadway," the original story by the playwright, William Hurlbut, which Universal recently bought. This will be Anderson's second screen production, and it will mark a departure in the type of production with which the famous producer has always been identified.

PARA. TO RELEASE SOUTH SEA FILM

New York — Negotiations were consummated last week for the world release by Paramount of "Tabu," a picture of primitive romance brought back to America by F. W. Murnau after an eighteen-months trip that took him 5,000 miles from civilization into the adventurous South Sea islands. Releasing arrangements were made for Paramount by S. R. Kent with Ned Marin, who has an interest in the picture.

Produced on Bora Bora in the Society Island group, "Tabu" was directed by Murnau, who turned his back upon the civilized world after critics had pronounced him one of the ten best directors in the industry in 1929. This honor, accorded by critics in the Film Daily poll, followed his direction of "Sunrise," "The Last Laugh" and "Four Devils."

"Tabu" is a dramatic love story filmed in the glamorous beauty of the tropics with a cast selected from among thousands of light skinned natives. It will bring to the screen a new and beautiful heroine, dark haired Reri, daughter of the islands. Written by Murnau and Robert J. Flaherty, the latter producer of "Nanook of the North," "Tabu" is being given a musical scoring by Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld.

'AIR POLICE" TO BE FIRST OF NEW RECORDING SYSTEM

New York — With the completion of production on "Swanee River," Sono Art-World Wide's second production in its new series of Thrill-O-Dramas, came convincing evidence of an important progressive step in the elimination of extraneous noises in sound recording. Distracting studio noises that have proved a sore spot in the making of talking pictures have been successfully excluded through a new process, an invention of Messrs. Balsley and Phillips, the two young sound engineers who were responsible for the excellent voice and sound renditions in "Swanee River."

Balsley and Phillips' patented discovery, known to the trade as a "ground eliminator," is the result of months of laboratory research. The droning hum, static and other bothersome noises that have marred sound recording in the past, have been finally conquered. Acoustic engineers, who have already witnessed the first picture to be made with the new process, pronounce "Air Police" a "noiseless talkie" its sound technically perfect. "Air Police," featuring Kenneth Harlan, Josephine Dunn, and Charles Delaney, will be released some time in April.

R-C-A'S New Photophone Unit

Developed For Small Theatres

RCA PHOTOPHONE is making a strong bid for small theatre business through its new development, the "standard size theatre equipment." This equipment is said to be the first satisfactory all AC operated sound reproducer and is designed for theatres of 1,000 seating capacity and under, for sound-on-film projection. The equipment sells for $2,500.

Description of Apparatus

The soundhead developed for this new reproducing unit is contained within an all-metal housing which sets upon the projector. The principal parts are the exciter lamp, the optical system, the photo-electric cell, the sound gate and the condensing lens. The 5 amp. exciter lamp is mounted in a removable bracket and may be replaced quickly and easily. The optical system has been carefully designed and manufactured. An outstanding feature is that the exciter lamp does not have to be accurately focused with respect to the optical system.

A condensing lens mounted directly in front of the sound track collects the light from the scanning beam as it passes through the gate and converges it into the photo-cell. A photo-cell housing is attached to the front of the soundhead and contains a standard UX socket for photo-cell mounting, a rheostat and ammeter for exciter lamp control, the shielded photo-cell transformer and a terminal strip for interapparatus connections. An opening in the top of the housing is provided with a removable cover to permit access to the photo-cell. The pow-cell, first employed by RCA Photophone, Inc., together with its associated transformer make the use of a soundhead amplifier unnecessary.

An "impedance roller" with a fly-wheel assembly, not coupled mechanically to any part of the soundhead, but revolving independently in ball bearings, is driven by the film which moves at constant speed past the sound gate. The film after passing through the sound gate is looped around this impedance roller and next threaded through the "sound sprocket" which is of special design.

Driving Motor

The type of motor to be supplied will depend upon the available power supply. DC motors are of the speed regulated type. AC motors are of the constant speed type and neither requires the use of complicated control devices. Suitable mounting brackets are supplied.

Sound Changeover

For sound changeover or the switching of sound from one projector to another a relay is used which is controlled by a switch conveniently mounted at each projector. The relay instantly transfers the amplifier input to the other projector. A particularly novel feature of this device is that the sound changeover simultaneously turns on the exciter lamp of the projector to which the amplifier input is transferred. This prevents the possibility of losing sound through neglect on the part of the projectionist to turn on the exciter lamp and also doubles the life of the exciter lamp which is only lighted when in use. The switch used to control the changeover has an "OFF" position which can be used when censorship requires the deletion of certain parts of a picture.

Reproducing Amplifier

The amplifier designed for Standard Size equipment operates from 105-125 volts, 50-60 cycles, AC. Its use on other types of power supply will necessitate the addition of converting equipment. The amplifier is of the unit panel type, each unit being assembled on separate panels and mounted one above the other in a strong pressed steel, rigidly supported, welded channel rack. The overall dimensions are 63⅝ inches high, 20 inches wide and 11 inches deep. The switching panel in the amplifier contains one flush type tumbler switch which controls the entire power supply to the various panels. To energize the equipment it is merely necessary to throw this single control. With this amplifier it is not necessary to adjust any voltages through the use of rheostats such as are used on battery operated or motor-generator operated amplifiers.

Monitoring Loudspeaker

The monitor loudspeaker, with volume control, consists of an 8 inch dynamic cone unit mounted on a flat metal baffle 15 inches square.

The stage speaker is a 6-inch dynamic cone unit equipped with a 37 inch directional baffle. This loudspeaker is conceded to be the most thoroughly satisfactory unit of its kind that has been produced. The range of frequencies which it reproduces is much wider than that of other speakers and its response is much more uniform.

Directional Baffle

The directional baffle accompanying Standard Size equipment is the newest 37-inch baffle especially designed for use in small theatres where the available space behind the screen is limited.

CHARLES PADDOCK SIGNED BY "U"

Hollywood — Charles Paddock, world famous runner and Olympic champion, and known as the "fastest human," was signed last week by Universal to appear in a series of sports subjects dealing with the Olympic games.

In becoming a screen star, Paddock will work without any compensation and thus will retain his amateur standing. The pictures will deal entirely with the Olympic games and will be designed to create the spirit of true sport among younger athletes to which effort Paddock has determined to devote the remainder of his life.

The Paddock series will be part of the Christy Walsh all-American Sports Subjects, in which Knute Rockne and Babe Ruth, previously signed, will also appear.

The contract with Paddock, stipulating at his own insistence, that he shall not receive any salary for his screen appearances, is probably the first contract of the sort on record.

ARE YOU AN "EASY" BUYER OF THEATRE EQUIPMENT?

WHEN a theatre supply house tells you this or that piece of equipment is "better" what is your reaction?

If you are an "easy" buyer you take the claim hook, line and sinker—but there are mighty few such "easy" buyers left in the theatre field. Affiliated Theatre Supply Dealers, doing business with over 80 per cent of the theatres throughout the country, offer equipment on a price-and-quality-comparison basis. The wise buyer of theatre equipment makes sure, before he buys, that what he pays his money for is the equipment he needs, the quality he needs, and that the price is right, in line with quality and performance.

EVERY Affiliated Theatre Supply Dealer buys for his store stock with these thoughts uppermost in mind: To sell equipment we must buy right ourselves. We have the whole theatre equipment manufacturing field to choose from. We are bound by no rigid ties to any manufacturer. We are obligated only to our customers. We must deliver to our customers theatre equipment that will stand every test of price and quality—equipment on which we can fearlessly tell our customers, compare this, quality for quality, price for price, with anything else that may be offered you. Let our merchandise, not our salesmanship, be the deciding factor in what you buy from us.

You can buy higher-priced equipment, from booth to screen, than you will find in any A. T. S. D. store—but higher prices do not prove higher quality, nor does paying the higher price prove you to be a wise buyer. You will depend on the independent in the end!

PICTURE OF THE WEEK

DRACULA

Universal—78 Mins.

Cast: Bela Lugosi, David Manners, Helen Chandler, Dwight Frye, Edward Van Sloan, Merbert Bunston, Joan Standing, Moon Carroll, Frances Dade, Josephine Velez. Directed by Tod Browning.

This attraction, without a doubt, should prove a box office sensation, for it is the type of mystery thriller that will be the talk of the town wherever it is played. Many who have not read the book or seen the popular stage play will not want to miss this spine-tingling drama of gruesome happenings.

Those who have been fortunate to have read the book or seen the stage success will be more than anxious to see the screen version. As a movie "Dracula" is even more hair-raising. Bela Lugosi, of the original cast, in the title role, makes the part extremely convincing and horrible.

Exhibitors will find limitless ways in putting over this fantastic mystery production about human vampires and supernatural, morbid occurrences.—L. S.

Unfaithful

Paramount—85 Minutes

Cast: Ruth Chatterton, Paul Lukas, Paul Cavanagh, Juliette Compton, Donald Cook, Emily Fitzroy, Leslie Palmer, Sid Saylor, Bruce Warren, Arnold Lucy, Dennis D'Auburn, Ambrose Barker, Stella Moore, Capt. George Jackson, Eric Kalkhurst, Douglas Gilmore, Jack Richardson, Donald MacKenzie. Directed by John Cromwell.

This photoplay is highly sophisticated. The opus has been expertly directed and further establishes Ruth Chatterton as a brilliant character actress. For children there would be hardly any interest and most of them would either walk out or go to sleep because of too much dialogue and lack of action.

The story is about a woman married to a Britain who is unfaithful to her and secretly in love with her brother's wife. Ruth goes in for a life of merry-making after discovering this. Her wild parties soon become the talk of the town. Then a handsome artist from France comes into her life. She becomes interested in the artist bcause he is the only person who tries to understand her.

The twist in the story comes when her husband is killed in an automobile crash while out in a dense fog with Gemma Houston, "the other woman," played by Juliette Compton. Ruth makes up a story that she is the center of the blame to keep her brother from knowing the truth. The newspapers carry the story to that effect, but she is happy in the realization that her brother knows nothing of his wife's affair. The picture ends with a fadeout of her and the artist as her new husband, together with a new life before them.

Paul Cavanagh as the first husband plays the part as the writer intended the portrayal to be. Paul Lucas as the artist does convincingly. The photoplay is exceptionally well done.—Jesse.

Many a Slip

Universal—74 Minutes

Cast: Joan Bennett, Lew Ayres, Slim Summerville, Ben Alexander, Virginia Sale, Roscoe Karns, Vivien Oakland, J. C. Nugent. Directed by Vin Moore.

This picture of youth and modern marriage should generally please, although the story is weak and the direction is not up to high standard. Personally, we like Lew Ayres better in roles requiring more action. But that's only our personal opinion. Others may like Ayres in this type of role. Joan Bennett capably acts the part of a very modern girl.

After the story gets started it becomes fairly engrossing. What there is to the threadbare plot the players display diligent effort to overcome this defect. The plot is built around a young girl who falls very much in love with a young man who doesn't believe in marriage. In order to win him the girl tells her mother she has been "ruined." The young man, believing himself about to become a father, marries the girl. Strangely enough he has been really seriously in love with the girl. Later, when he learns the truth about the matter he feels disgusted with the girl's whole family and thinks he has been played for a fool. The couple is finally brought together again by the girl's family.

J. C. Nugent as the girl's father, gives a very convincing performance. The part fits him to a T. Roscoe Karns, as Lew's close chum, adds a bit of spice to the picture in a role typical of his mannerisms. We can't predict how this photoplay will do at the box office, but exhibitors who play it can feature Slim Summerville and Virginia Sale as a new comedy team. Both are good for quite a few laughs.—Jesse.

June Moon

Paramount—70 Minutes

Cast: Jack Oakie, Frances Dee, Wynne Gibson, Harry Akst, June MacCloy, Ernest Wood, Harold Waldridge, Sam Hardy, Jean Bary, Ethel Sutherland, Frank Darien, Eddie Dunn. Directed by A. Edward Sutherland.

Here's a picture, though not a special, it is good entertainment for most of the Oakie fans. Nevertheless, the photoplay is entertaining and will hold the audience's interest. At least it isn't another musical comedy and the story runs true to life. Isn't that something these days, Mr. Exhibitor?

In the film we find Oakie as a young man from Schenectady on his way to New York City. On the train he meets a young woman who is traveling alone, also headed for the big city. When they get to New York the girl discovers that Oakie is an aspiring song writer and thinks he is "just wonderful." She is really in love with him, but Oakie , too stupid to realize it, lets a blonde play him for a sap when she finds out that he has a little money saved. Jack finally gets wise to himself and although he doesn't win success as a song writer he finds his first sweetheart waiting for him willing to go back to Schenectady as his wife.

Frances Dee as the girl in the case is a sweet young thing, and Wynne Gibson as the wife of a struggling songwriter delivers an excellent performance. —J. S.

Comedies and Westerns Wanted in Small Towns, Survey Shows

MINNESOTA and North and South Dakota exhibitors who attended the Allied States convention in Minneapolis, asserted that movie patrons in the smaller northwest towns prefer comedies, comedy dramas and Westerns. Serious and heavy dramas or the lighter, sophisticated fare is not wanted, according to the exhibitors. The crying demand is for the sort of entertainment that will make people forget their financial and other troubles the exhibitors declared. Unhappy endings, they asserted, are a distinct detriment.

Due to depressed agricultural conditions, business in most of tht towns is not so good as it was at the corresponding time a year ago, a Movie Age survey indicated. The majority of fans evidently have less money than hitherto to spend on their entertainment and they "shop" carefully, according to the exhibitors. Strong pictures always will do good business, but mediocre product invariably is run at a loss to the theatre, the exhibitors said.

"We only can get the folks out for the good pictures," said G. W. Johnson of Red Wing. "A year ago, when sound was a novelty, they took them all in. Now, with the novelty worn off and times harder, they 'shop.' Attendance is considerably under that of last year."

Similar reports were made by E. S. Noreen, Hutchinson, Minn.; H. B. Smoots, Little Falls, Minn.; John Milner, Spring Valley, Minn.; E. A. Milner, Hastings, Minn.; E. J. Laquer, Hankinson, N. D.; Mike DeFea, Wheaton, Minn., and Stanley Smith, Sisseton, N. D.

Mr. Smoots says the customers still want a little spice and do not desire to have sex stuff tabooed entirely, but they want their sex presented in a refined manner and they eschew downright dirt and vulgarity. He is encouraged by the fact that good pictures still are able "to get the money."

There is little or no money in the country towns, on account of the farmers' plight, according to Mr. Smith. He believes the small town fans are more critical than those of the larger cities because they spend more time reading the movie magazines.

"The Cohens and Kellys in Africa" on Monday night, the poorest of the week ordinarily, drew better in Little Falls than "Abraham Lincoln" on Lincoln's birthday, indicating the public wants comedy instead of heavy, serious drama, according to Mr. Noreen.

Lower film rentals and other cuts in operation costs help to off-set the smaller business, the exhibitors stated.

VAUDEVILLE "WAR" STILL ON

Publix and RKO still are scrapping in Minneapolis as a result of the use of the word "vaudeville" by the ace Publix house, the Minnesota, in describing its stage entertainment.

Retaliating against the RKO Orpheum because of the latter's screen and lobby "warning" and newspaper ad "caution" that real vaudeville only can be witnessed at the RKO theatre, the Minnesota came out with a newspaper ad that carried the word "vaudeville" in large letters clear across its top.

"More stare, more names than we can put in electric lights," read another sub-head of the Minnesota ad.

"Take the word of the crowds that packed the Minnesota's 4,200 seats all day Saturday and Sunday, who broke the rapid-fire succession of big stage acts with long rounds of applause, who saw in 'Stolen Heaven' the kind of picture that clings to heart and memory!" continued the ad. "They say come to the Minnesota and be royally entertained."

Minnesota stage shows are Publix units and formerly were designated by some title similar to that given to a musical comedy.

TRANSFER LORENZ TO MILWAUKEE

Jack Lorenz, for many years assistant exchange manager of the Fox Film Co., in Minneapolis, has been transferred to the Fox Milwaukee exchange in the same capacity. N. F. Hall, cashier of the Minneapolis Fox exchange, was promoted to office manager, succeeding Lorenz. I. G. Good, formerly with Publix, assumes Hall's duties.

Happy "Peddlers"

RKO film salesmen in Minneapolis are jubilant over the company's decision to send them to the annual convention this summer. This probably will mean a trip to Los Angeles, as the meeting is planned for the California metropolis. Mike Frisch, exchange manager, has just returned from a conference in Chicago where he received many congratulations over the fine sales' showing being made by the local RKO branch.

COLUMBIA "SITS PRETTY"—MARCUS

With practically every situation in the territory closed, Columbia pictures are sitting pretty, Ben Marcus, exchange manager, reports.

"Our new pictures are going over splendidly throughout the territory and we're well set on distribution," said Mr. Marcus.

Due to the demand for action and melodramatic pictures, Columbia is now selling 13 extra thrillers in addition to its regular product. Among the pictures are "Ten Cents a Dance," starring Barbara Stanwyck. This latter picture is now playing the RKO Orpheum Theatre in Minneapolis.

SONO-ART PRODUCT IN PUBLIX HOUSES

Sono Art's Minneapolis branch exchange has closed with Publix for a number of pictures to be shown throughout the Northwest circuit, H. V. Johnson, exchange manager, announces.

Among the Sono Art pictures bought by Publix for its Northwest houses are "Damaged Love," which gives every indication of being one of the season's outstanding box-office hits; "The Costello Case," Edward Everett Horton's "Once a Gentleman" and others.

"The Costello Case" was given a loop first run in Minneapolis last week and went over big.

"TRADER HORN" AS A ROAD SHOW DRAWING WELL

M-G-M is upsetting the belief that road showing of pictures at advanced prices is all washed up as far as Minneapolis is concerned. It leased the Century Theatre outright for the current week to road show "Trader Horn" there at advanced prices, the evening top being $1.50 and the matinee $1.00. And the picture is drawing splendid crowds.

Part of the success of the picture undoubtedly is due to the splendid exploitation and advertising efforts of Morris Abrahams, M-G-M special exploiteer; Harold Kaplan, Century Theatre manager, and Fay Tyler, Century press agent. Of course, the exceptional box-office qualities of the film itself is the principal factor in the unusual draw.

FEATURED ADS ON LAUREL AND HARDY

Laurel-Hardy comedies are getting a big play over the territory, M-G-M reports.

With pardonable pride, the distributor points out that in two successive weeks at leading Publix loop houses in Minneapolis these comedies were given equal advertising prominence with the feature offerings.

The State Theatre had a Laurel-Hardy comedy as one of the outstanding attractions on its anniversary show program, while the Century Theatre the next week placed "Chickens Come Home to Roost," a Laurel-Hardy comedy, in the lights.

Incorporate

Madison, Wis. — Articles of incorporation have been filed here by the Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Wisconsin. The object of the association, which is a non-stock organization, is to promote the interest of the independent theatre owner.

Incorporators of the organization are A. Ludwig, O. L. Maertz, E. J. Maertz, F. R. Trottman, Charles Jordeski,, J. E. Donthonek, Paul J. Dresser, H. H. Perlewitz and L. K. Brin.

"Southerner" Big; Others Fare Well

Minneapolis (week ending March 4)—Business was pretty good at the loop showhouses the past week ,but not nearly so good as the pictures warranted. There was a great line-up of box-office hits at the leading theatres and most of them opened well, but tapered off during the week.

"Tht Southerner," at the Century, was an outstanding hit which aroused the fans' to much enthusiasm. It fared moderately well, but deserved to do a lot better. "Rango" at the State, another exceptional attraction, also was not accorded merited patronage. "Illicit" at the Minnesota and "The Last Parade" at the RKO Orpheum drew profitable trade.

Aster—Kiss Me Again (First National), Bernice Claire and Edward Everett Horton. Business: Good Summary: A lavishly produced musical romance in color. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy and "Indians Are Coming" serial.

Century — The Southerner (M-G-M) , Lawrence Tibbett. Business: Good. Summary: Tibbett at his best in a splendidly acted and produced comedy drama of a ne'er-do-well who stops his brother's wife from taking a serious mis-step and then falls in love with her. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, Laurel-Hardy comedy.

Lyric—The Princess and the Plumber (Fox), Charles Farrell. Business: Fair. Summary: A moderately diverting yarn about a plumber who falls in love with a princess. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen and vaudeville.

Minnesota—Illicit (W. B.), Barbara Stanwyck. Business: Good. Summary: A companionate marriage drama that holds the interest throughout. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, sound news.

RKO Orpheum—The Last Parade (Columbia), Jack Holt. Business: Good. Summary: Many thrills in this gangster drama which pleases the feminine fans as well as the men. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, sound news.

State — Rango (Para.), Claude King. Business: Light. Summary: A picture that is not only novel and instructive but highly entertaining as well; crammed full of thrills and laughs; a jungle picture that no member of the family should miss. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

MILWAUKEE

Week Ending March 5

Alhambra—A Gentleman's Fate (M-G-M), Louis Wolheim, John Gilbert and Leila Hyams. Business: Fair. Summary: The late Louis Wolheim's last photoplay carries a punch. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal Newsreel, Comedy.

Garden—Reaching for the Moon (United Artists), Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Bebe Daniels. Business: Fair (ended second week). Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Hearst Movietone News, Vitaphone Shorts.

Majestic — River's End (Warner Bros.), Evelyn Knapp and Charles Bickford. Business: Fair. Summary: A photoplay from Oliver Curwood's story with Miss Knapp, a newcomer. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Newsreel, Comedy.

Palace — Cimarron (Radio), Richard Dix and Irene Dunne. Business: Average (ended fourth week.) Entertainment Merits: 95 per cent. Short Subjects: Pathe Newsreel.

Riversde—Beau Ideal (Radio), Ralph Forbes, Loretta Young and Lester Vail. Business: Good. Summary: A sequel to "Beau Geste" with an air of lavishness in the settings. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, Pathe Newsreel.

Strand—Finn and Hattie (Paramount), Leon Errol, Zasu Pitts, Lilyan Tashman and Mitzi Green. Business: Fair. Summary: A picture which is pretty funny for the most part. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy, Fox Movietone Newsreel.

Wisconsin — Fighting Caravans (Paramount), Gary Cooper and Lily Damita. Business: Fair. Summary: Plenty of fine photography and Torrence and Marshall taking the part of the veteran scouts in fine style. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Fox Newsreel, Fanchon & Marco Idea.

Wisconsin Notes

Milwaukee, Wis. — Milwaukee theatre folk will stage an "entertainment drive" for $50,000 for drought relief to be held April 7 in the Milwaukee Auditorium. Film exchanges, theatres and special amusement will be brought to the city in connection with the drive. The tickets will be distributed by public school children.

Port Washington, Wis.—William Roob, manager of the Grand Theatre here, was burned about the hands and head when a film exploded in the projection room. A small blaze started but was extinguished by the fire department.

Keefe to New Post

Milwaukee, Wis. — James C. Keefe has resigned as advertising director of Fox Midwesco Theatres to assume a similar position with RKO in Minneapolis. He is succeeded in Milwaukee by Howard C. Herzog.

Ames Says "I Do"

Congratulations are in order for Morgan Ames, popular RKO district manager, with headquarters in Minneapolis.

Regarded as a confirmed bachelor, Mr. Ames has taken unto himself a wife.

The lucky girl is Miss Gladys Delehanty, sister-in-law of Emil Franke, RKO Orpheum Theatre manager in Minneapolis.

SHORTS TIE-IN DENIED BY SIX MAJOR COMPANIES

New York—That exhibitors are not required to buy short subjects in order to obtain features from the same company was denied by distribution heads of six feature companies last week. They strongly assured the M.P.T.O.A. that it is not their policy to compel exhibitors to do business in this manner. The companies announcing this policy are: Paramount, M-G-M, Warner Bros., Universal, RKO and Columbia, President M. A. Lightman said.

Pursuant to an action taken by the M.P.T.O.A. directors at the meeting this week, a committee took the matter up with sales department executives. In expressing their attitudes in the situation, the officials made it clear that they're out to sell all their shorts, but not via this method.

Commenting on the matter, Lightman urged that in event violations of this policy occur in any of the territories, exhibitors involved should report the cases to sales managers of companies concerned, reminding them of their statements.

LORETTA SAYERS FOR BUCK JONES

Hollywood — Loretta Sayers, Larchmont society deb, recently "discovered" by Columbia Pictures, will play her first screen role for the company opposite Buck Jones in "Red River Rogues." Shooting having recently been completed on "The Fighting Patrol," work on the new Jones "special," which is the final in a series of eight that the rugged Westerner is making for Columbia, will commence within the week. Louis King will direct.

Nine pictures are now in work at the company's Hollywood plant. They are "Skippy," featuring Mitzi Green, Robert Coogan, Jackie Cooper and Jackie Searl, all children; "Dude Ranch," starring Jack Oakie; "Kick In," starring Clara Bow; "Honeymoon Hate," a Spanish production; "The Vice Squad," featuring Paul Lukas; "An American Tragedy," with Phillips Holmes and Sylvia Sidney; "Up Pops the Devil," with Norman Foster and Carole Lombard and a big cast; "City Streets," directed by Rouben Mamoulian and "Ladies Man," starring William Powell.

At the New York studios, "The Smiling Lieutenant," starring Maurice Chevalier, is in full swing; finishing touches are being put on Tallulah Bankhead's starring picture, "Tarnished Lady," while Nancy Carroll's next stellar production, the tentative title of which is "Scarlet Hours," will go before the cameras within a few days.

BIG PROGRAM ON WAY FROM PARA.

Hollywood — Paramount has more pictures in production today at its East and West Coast studios than for many months past.

New Title

Hollywood — "Laugh and Get Rich" is the title that very gaily supplants "Board and Room," the Radio Pictures' talkie which is to co-feature Edna May Olver and Hugh Herbert with Dorothy Lee.

"Kid From Madrid"

Hollwood — Lee Marcus, president of RKO-Pathe, stated last week that the first of Eddie Quillan's quartette of specials for the new season would be the "Kid From Madrid." The comedian will be featured as a bull fighter.

Score Charges to be Cut Again MPTOA Officials Announce

New York — A drastic cut in score charges is to be put into effect in connection with tht product for the new season, it was announced by M. P. T. O. A. officials who gathered here last week for a meeting. This will be the second cut brought about by the exhibitors' organization.

A committee has been in session with the distributors on the matter.

Following a conference with Electrical Research Products officials, it was announced that that company feels that at present there can be no reduction below the $15 minimum on service charges. However, in the near future a cut is anticipated which will bring the present $20 charge down to $15 and the $25 and $30 charges down to $20 when the corresponding equipment services the same capacity theatre. If these reductions are carried out more than 2000 houses will benefit. Expectations are that the costs of parts will be reduced later.

The Vestal copyright bill was discussed and reports on its career were presented by Julian Brylawski and Sidney Lust. The measure will be rewritten it was stated, and introduced at the next session of Congress. A representative of the M. P. T. O. A. will likely sit in on the sessions at which the revised bill is prepared.

Attending the directors' meeting were: M. A. Lightman, Chas. Picquet, R. R. Biechele, Frank C. Walker, Jay Emanuel, M. J. O'Toole, Fred Wehrenberg, William Benton, Jack Cohen, M. E. Comerford, Fred Desberg, Edward M. Fay, Jack Miller, Ed Kuydendahl, Major L. E. Thompson and Charles Wiiliams.

BUDDY DE SYLVA A FOX PRODUCER

Hollywood — Buddy De Sylva, the only one of the De Sylva, Brown and Henderson song writing trio to continue working for the films, will henceforth be known as George De Sylva, producer. He is under long term contract to produce pictures for Fox Films.

When he returns from a European vacation in September, Mr. DeSylva will begin work on a picture in which Janet Gaynor will be starred. David Butler directed the DeSylva, Brown and Henderson pictures, "Sunny Side Up" and "Just Imagine," and will co-direct the new film with DeSylva.

"ADVENTURES IN AFRICA" AS A 12-EPISODE SHORT SUBJECT SERIES

New York — Among its forthcoming short subject releases the Vitaphone Distributing Corporation includes a twelve-episode series entitled "Adventures in Africa" each of the series to be in two-reels. The first episode, titled "Into the Unknown," is now ready for distribution.

"Adventures in Africa" were made by Wynant D. Hubbard, Fellow of the American Geographical Society, traveler, lecturer and noted authority on African wild life, during a two-year expedition through the veldts and forests of Northwest Rhodesia and in Portugese East Africa. His cameraman was W. Earle Frank who has spent many years photographing African big game and the habits and customs of the natives.

Each of the twelve episodes will be accompanied by synchronized descriptive dialogue prepared by Edward T. Lowe from copious notes made by Mr. Hubbard at the time the various scenes were filmed.

Vitaphone believes it has in "Adventures in Africa" not only a short subject series of surpassing interest, but also the most astounding and realistic pictures of wild animal life in Africa ever filmed and presented to the public. For instance, a highlight from the first installment, "Into the Unknown," is a terrific fight between a hungry lioness and a hyena whom she disturbs as he begins to feast upon a deer which he has killed. The fight was photographed from a pit so near that the struggle is shown in a series of close-ups that are amazing. So close were Mr. Hubbard and his cameraman that, after the lioness had driven the hyena away and she became aware of the scent of humans, the two men barely escaped with ther lives. That is but one of a series of scenes depicting with the utmost fidelity and realism the life of the prowling beasts of prey that infest the veldts.

Their adventures with native inlanders, many of whom had never before seen a white man, are declared to be just as engrossing as the wild animal adventures.

ELECT GRISWOLD FOX VICE-PRES.

New York — Harley L. Clarke, president of Fox Films Corporation, announced last week the election of Glenn Griswold as vice-president. Mr. Griswold resigned February 1 from the editorship of the Chicago Journal of Commerce. His daily front page column, "The Round Table of Business," in the Journal of Commerce had become one of the best known business editorial features in the country.

COLUMBIA SIGNS LAURA LA PLANTE

Hollywood — Laura La Plante has been selected to depict the leading feminine role in Columbia's comedy "Meet the Wife." This de luxe "Special" which is being produced by Christie and supervised by Al Christie, is an adaptation of Lynn Starling's stage success of the same name. A. Leslie Pearce will direct.

MARIN RETURNS TO PARAMOUNT

New York —Ned Marin, long prominent in the screen world, is to return to the organization which saw some of his earliest work. He will join the production staff at Paramount's New York studio as an associate producer, according to an announcement by Jesse L. Lasky.

Murnau Dies

Hollywood—F. W. Murnau, director of "Sunrise," "Four Devils" and other pictures, was killed in an automobile accident near Santa Barbara last Wednesday. "Tabu," his latest picture, recently was acquired by Paramount.

INFORMATION OF SUBSTITUTIONS

New York—M. P. T. O. A. members will be informed weekly of substitutions, it was decided by the board of directors who were in session here last week for the regular spring conclave. The directors decided not to go to the Hays organization, but send the information directly to exhibitors. A weekly letter will be issued.

EXHIBITORS PLAN NEW ATTACK ON NON-THEATRICALS

Ney York—The board of directors of M. P. T. O. A. is preparing an attack against non-theatrical competition and is launching a campaign designed to postpone release of product to these accounts until some months after it has been played by regular theatres. A committee will discuss the matter with the Hays body.

The problem has been partly solved in Chicago and Washington, it was pointed out, through arrangements made with the Film Boards of Trade. In these territories non-theatrical houses are not given pictures until six months after they have been generally released in their immediate vicinity. Ed Kuykendahl said that he had spoken to the Mississippi Press Ass'n on the subject and that the organization had later voted to oppose unfair competition from non-theatricals.

SEARS WESTERN SALES MGR. FOR WARNER BROS.

New York—Gradwell L. Sears has been appointed general sales manager in charge of southern and western distribution of Warner Bros., First National and Vitaphone product. He will work in conjunction with Claude C. Ezell, general sales manager of the east. The appointment followed the resignation of Ned E. Depinet.

Honor "Lights"

New York — Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights" has been awarded the seal of honor by the Parents' Magazine in its April issue. "City Lights" is the twelfth picture to be so distinguished in over a year.

Allied and MPTOA Favor New Contract

New York—Adoption of the new contract is sought by the directors of both Allied and M.P.T.O.A., it was indicated here last week. Both bodies are in favor of the new agreement which was drafted at the 5-5-5 conferences and the two organizations will make immediate efforts to have it put into effect. The distributors will consider its ratification at a meeting to be held next month, it was announced.

The distributors have held off the contract, according to reports, because of the uncertainty as to the attitude of the Department of Justice on a contract which was adopted collectively.

PICTURE BUSINESS

An evil that is becoming flagrant is the double feature program. In certain sections of the country theatres that have been unable to obtain Class A product have been doubling up on features to offset competition. But when a thing of this kind becomes general it loses its effect, for then the guiding factor of the public again becomes entertainment merit. So they are back where they were in the beginning.

In some sections the double-feature program is used one night a week that is set aside as "Family Night." Something of that kind may go over one night a week for a while but as a rule it tapers off and something else has to be tried. The exhibitor then finds himself with an added picture rental and an intake that doesn't justify it. Even at minimum rental two features cost as much, if not more, than one good one. And, after all, we doubt if the public isn't wise to the fact that such programs offer only quantity and a minimum of quality. If double-featuring does attract business that shows a profit, it makes patrons think they are not getting their money's worth on other nights when only one feature is played and business drops on those nights. The next step, usually, is for the exhibitor to create more double feature nights until they become a regular thing. And, when you offer the "bargain" every day it no longer is a bargain.

Double-featuring at best is a top-heavy program. It takes the "balance" away from a show. It means cutting down, or eliminating altogether in some cases, the short subjects. Which is a vital mistake to make. A well-balanced program of comedy shorts, newsreel or novelty is like a well-balanced meal. Take away the appetizer and the desert and you have an inadequacy. Eating a double portion of an entree is not satisfying. And so it is with the double feature. Though it may have a drawing power at the beginning, it's poor business as a steady diet.

If competition has gobbled up all of the best product, which doesn't seem likely, you only admit a weakness in what your house has to offer if it resorts to "bargain" shows. Two poor pictures don't make one good one. And, after all, entertainment is what your public is buying —not footage. Many a weak feature can be strengthened by the selection of the right kind of short subjects that make the show as a whole entertaining. And the right kind of selling of what you have to offer in a showmanlike way will carry you a lot farther on the right side of the ledger and for a longer time than will any kind of double-featuring. There are plenty of good features on the market and plenty of "names" that have drawing power.

Another bad business practice is price cutting. Price as an attraction has a stimulating effect only for a short time. That, too, gets back to the merit of the entertainment offered regardless of the price. Of course there are some theatres where admissions, when sound came in, skyrocketed beyond reason. These, no doubt, should come down. Local conditions, too, may have some bearing on the wisdom of such a move. Every exhibitor knows such a matter best for himself. But admissions, generally, are not too high. Nowhere can the public get two hours of entertainment for as little as the average motion picture theatre charges. Admission price cutting is often a ruinous thing.

RCA is ready to begin commercial production of home talker apparatus as quickly as the necessary associated services are sufficiently developed, it is stated in the annual report of the corporation. The "service" includes the continuous production of pictures to meet the home requirements, a system of distribution which eventually may be able to serve 20,000,000 "little theatres" of the home, and technical developments to bring the cost of film service within the range of the public

Less dialogue, more music, and themes that are better understandable to foreigners, are the remedies for a decided increase in foreign distribution, according to Ambrose S. Dowling, RKO foreign sales manager, who has returned from Europe.

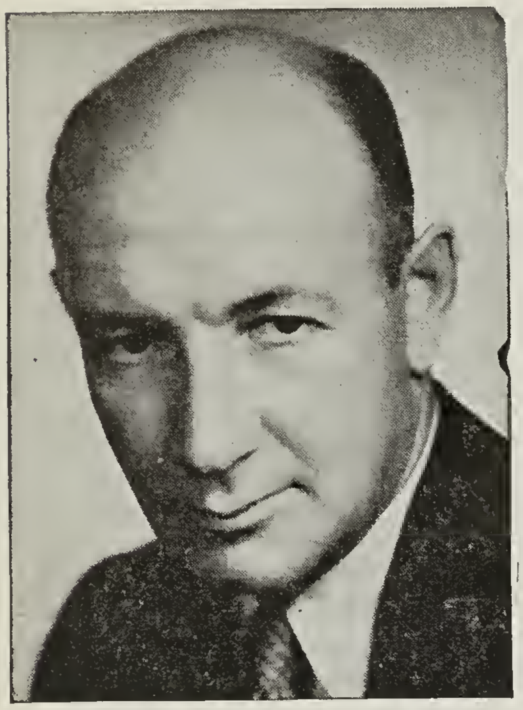
" QUOTES "

JOE BRANDT

President, Columbia Pictures

"It's not bad business that's hurting the box office, but bad advertising. Make each picture loom up sufficiently attractive to the ticket buyer, and even though it may mean that he'll wear that well-worn pair of shoes a little longer, he'll spend that money at your box office."



Lee Marcus, president of RKO-Pathe, who announces 20 features for the new season, which will include four starring pictures for each of the company's stars, Bill Boyd, Helen Twelvetrees, Ann Harding and Constance Bennett.

7 FROM PARA. IN MARCH AND APRIL

New York — March and April will be banner months for Paramount's production department. At least seven outstanding productions are scheduled for release during that period.

On the march list are "Rango," Ernest Schoedsack's picture of life in the Sumatra jungles, now enjoying a sensational run at the Rivoli Theatre and released generally on the seventh; Ruth Chatterton's starring production, "Unfaithful," out on the fourteenth, and "Honor Among Lovers," with Frederic March and Claudette Colbert, which opens on the twenty-first.

April releases will be headed by "Dishonored," featuring Marlene Dietrich and Victor McLaglen, and telling the story of an Austrian spy during the World War. This will be released on April 4. Next comes "Tarnished Lady," Tallulah Bankhead's first starring picture, which will open on the eleventh. On the eighteenth "City Streets," directed by Rouben Mamoulian and featuring Sylvia Sidney, Gary Cooper, Paul Lukas, Wynne Gibson and William Boyd will appear at the theatres, while "Skippy," the picturization of Percy Crosby's novel and comic strips, will be out on the twenty-fifth with a cast headed by Mitzi Green, Jackie Searle, Jackie Cooper and Robert Coogan.

Final Title

Hollywood—"Quick Millions" is the final title selected for the Fox picture featuring Spencer Tracy and Marguerite Churchill, formerly titled "Skyline." Rowland Brown was co-author and director of this story, which deals with higher racketeering.

COLUMBIA SELECTS ZIEGFELD BEAUTY

New York—Susan Alva Fleming, former Ziegfeld beauty, has been signed on a long term contract by Columbia Pictures and will soon appear in one of the company's outstanding productions.

Miss Fleming is the second girl to be selected from the great number of applicants who were given a screen test in Columbia's recent search for new faces. The first was Loretta Sayers, Larchmont society debutante. The "new face" quest which brought the company's production executives to New York from Hollywood, covered an unrestricted field and included applicants from the legitimate stage, vaudeville, model and non-jrofessional ranks.

In addition to being a featured "show girl" with Ziegfeld and George White, Miss Fleming is a specialty dancer and singer of note. She appeared in several editions of the "Follies" and in "Manhattan Mary."

On the coast Miss Fleming joins the other recent Columbia "discoveries," including Loretta Sayers, Constance Cummings, featured in "The Criminal Code" and "The Last Parade," and Richard Cromwell, the young Los Angeles art student who created a sensation in the title role of "Tol'able David."

RKO-PATHE LOT TO BE ENLARGED

Culver City—Studio expansion is the order of the day at RKO-Pathe's Culver City plant. The studios are to be enlarged by the addition of three new stages to afford facilities for the production of the twenty-one star feature production and the forty-eight two-reel comedies to be produced during the fiscal year.

Pending the completion of the new stages, several of the first group of RKO-Pathe star features will be produced at outside studios in order to complete the productions well in advance of release dates.

"SUICIDE FLEET" FOR BILL BOYD

Culver City — Bill Boyd's first starring vehicle on the 1931-32 schedule of star specials recently announced by President Lee Marcus will be "Suicide Fleet," a rapid-moving story of the thrilling and hazardous adventures of the submarine chasers in the World War.

Once again, Boyd will wear a uniform as he does as a doughboy ni his April release, "Beyond Victory."

M-G-M ANNOUNCES TWO NEW STORIES

Culver City — Two important story properties are announced for production in the near future at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. These are Fannie Hurst's "Five and Ten" and the Broadway stage success, "The Man in Possession."

"Five and Ten" will be Marion Davies' new starring vehicle, following "It's a Wise Child." No director has been announced for this picture as yet.

STANWYCK SIGNED BY WARNER BROS.

Hollywood—Barbara Stanwyck last week signed a long term contract with Warner Bros. by which she will be starred in pictures specially selected for her.

Following her success in "Illicit" Miss Stanwyck has been very much in demand.

COLUMBIA BUYS "VIA MANHATTAN"

New York—Hawthorne Hurst's novel, "Via Manhattan," a sophisticated story of Broadway night club life, has been secured by Columbia Pictures for production during the coming season. This is the seventh vehicle to be selected by the company for the new season's lineup, th other six being: Warner Fabian's "The Men in Her Life"; one of the year's best sellers, William DuBois' "Pagan Lady," the sensational stage play in which Lenore Ulric is starring on Broadway; "Help Yourself to Happiness," by Bella Muni and Abem Finkel; Warren B. Duff's "Let's Get Famous" and "Guilty Generation," a play by Jo Milward and J. Kirby Hawkes.

Kirkwood Signed

Hollywood — James Kirkwood, rugged hero of many films, has been signed by Fox Films for a part in "Young Sinners," adapted from the successful stage play. Kirkwood recently appeared in "The Spoilers," "Worldly Goods" and "The Devil's Holiday." He replaces William Holden in the cast to enable the veteran character actor, under contract to Fox, to act in another film.

Cooper Signed

Hollywood—Jackie Cooper, seven-year-old film star, has been signed by Radio Pictures, for the role of the incorrigible Midge Murray in "Big Brother," Richard Dix's current vehicle being directed by Fred Niblo. Jackie recently completed the title role in a screen version of the famous comic strip, "Skippy."

BASEBALL YARN OUT FOR LLOYD

New York—Harold Lloyd's next motion picture will not deal with baseball, it was announced authoritatively last week by Leslie F. Whelan, who handles the comedian's affairs in the East. Whelan explained that Lloyd had purchased an original baseball story by Al Boasberg but was filing it away for future possibility and not considering it for his next production.

NEILAN RETURNS TO MACK SENNETT

Hollywood—Marshall Neilan resumes his association with Mack Sennett after many years of separation, with Neilan directing the comedy producer's latest comedy for Educational, titled "Ex-Sweeties." The comedy boasts an unusually strong cast for a two-reeler, with Harry Gribbon, Marjorie Beebe, Betty Boyd and Wade Boteler in the leading roles.

Noted Pugs

Hollywood — Among the noted pugs who have been assigned "tough guy" parts in "Big Brother," Richard Dix's current starring vehicle, were Frank Goddard, 210-pound heavyweight champ of Europe, who once knocked out Victor McLaglen; Jack Perry, former welterweight champion of the United States, who put Jack Britton to sleep; Charlie Sullivan, champion lightweight of the A. E. F., and Pacific coast; Sailor Vincent, for 12 years champion middleweight of the U. S. Navy; Nate Slott, Phil Bloom, and Jack McKenzie, professional wrestlers.

Robinson to be Starred

Edward G. Robinson will be starred by First National in "Five Star Final," which goes into work after completion of "The Idol."

Patsy Ruth Miller makes her return to the screen in the "four-star" feature, "Lonely Wives," new RKO-Pathe release.

FEATURES AND SHORT SUBJECTS

PICTURE OF THE WEEK

Body and Soul

Fox—81 Minutes

Cast: Charles Farrell, Elissa Landi, Humphrey Bogart, Myrna Loy, Donald Dillaway, Crauford Kent, Pat Somerset, Ian MacLaren, Dennis D'Auburn, Douglas Dray, Harold Kinney, Bruce Warren. Directed by Alfred Santell.

A powerful picture ably directed and acted, with a new name for your fans to enjoy—Elissa Landi. She proves to be a capable actress and fine support to Farrell.

The picture is a war story and shows Farrell as a British aviator who falls in love with the wife of another flyer after his heroic death. She is suspected of being a spy and Farrell is accused of being her aide. He does not know, however, that the girl is his former buddy's wife. Later the real spy, Myrna Loy, is caught and the other woman, Elissa Landi, reveals her true identity to Farrell. — A. A. H.

Honor Among Lovers

Paramount—75 Minutes

Cast: Claudette Colbert, Frederic March, Monroe Owsley, Chas. Ruggles, Ginger Rogers, Avonne Taylor, Pat O'Brien, Janet McLeary, John Kearney, Ralph Morgan, Jules Epailly, Leonard Cary. Directed by Dorothy Arzner.

An entertaining feature for sophisticated audiences, interesting throughout and expertly directed by Dorothy Arzner. March and Miss Colbert further prove the fact that they compose a perfect team. And they have been surrounded by a fine cast which gives excellent support. Charlie Ruggles and Ginger Rogers give their best efforts and Monroe Owsley, who will be remembered as Ann Harding's brother in "Holiday," comes through with a convincing performance.

March plays the role of a successful business man who is interested in his secretary, Miss Colbert. He asks her to take a trip with him around the world but when she tells him the following day that she has married Monroe Owsley, he discharges her. But his interest in her has not died and favors Owsley with business. Owsley is successful and prosperity is too much for him. He steals from March and then shoots him. March refuses to tell who shot him because of Claudette, who then is disgusted with her husband and leaves him for March.

"Honor Among Lovers" is pleasing and should get the money where audiences like this type of entertainment.—A. F. S.

Wild West Whoopee

Cosmo—60 Minutes

Cast: Jack Perrin, Fred Church, Horace Carpenter, Josephine Hill, Starlight. Directed by Robert Horner.

There isn't a thing new in this western and yet it sparkles as a neat little subject which should please the action fans. Perhaps the only real piece of originality is a rodeo sequence which offers some thrills. But all the elements of the tried and proven western are there and it has some entertainment merit.

Josephine is the rancher's daughter who is captured by the bad man and Jack Perrin is the hero who rescues her. That's the story. But the thin skeleton of a story is rounded out with some good riding and a fair fight.—G.

East Lynne

Fox—83 Minutes

Cast: Ann Harding, Clive Brook, Conrad Nagel, Beryl Mercer, Cecelia Loftus. Directed by Frank Lloyd.

"East Lynne" is a high class drama of life as it was when the book was written several generations ago, as it is today, and as it will be when this generation will have passed into the forgotten limbo.

As long as men fail to live up to their marriage responsibilities, as long as women will sacrifice themselves for their children, just so long will "East Lynne" be a box office attraction.

As made by Fox with an all-star cast, "East Lynne" is everything that a modern box office attraction of today should be. The settings are sumptuous. The characters are normal people whom you would meet in all walks of life. And their problems are common problems.

Ann Harding is exquisite as the exuberant bride whom Conrad Nagel brings home to his estate, East Lynne. You watch her perceptibly droop as Cecelia Loftus, Nagel's sister, overrules her in every matter pertaining to the household, and eventually succeeds in poisoning Nagel's mind against her to the extent that he drives her from home and into the situation of which they accuse her. The war kills Clive Brook, with whom she has been seeking solace. The war is also responsible for a threatened blindness and before losing her sight entirely Ann Harding returns to East Lynne to see her boy for the last time. The strain of weeping hastens the blindness and while feeling her way out of the estate, she falls over a precipice.

The picture is so well directed that it follows each sequence smoothly and consistently. Each member of the cast stands out like a gem.—Elsie Loeb.

Red Fork Range

Big 4—61 Minutes

Cast: Wally Wales, Ruth Mix, Cliff Lyons Bud Osborne, Al Ferguson, Lafe McKee, Will Armstrong, George Gerwin, Jim Corey, Chief Big Tree. Directed by Alvin Neitz.

Tom Mix may be out of pictures but his daughter is keeping the family name on the screen. Ruth Mix does right well in her first effort, and she has a good role to portray. The story itself is a typical western but has a good climax which furnishes several thrills. Wally Wales as the hero is pleasing.

Ruth's father is entering his stage coach in a race, the winner of which is to get a mail contract. The villain kidnaps the girl, offering to return her if her father will withdraw from the race, as the villain also has a stage entered in the race.

Wales comes to the rescue of the girl and the pair enter the race and win, despite obstacles put in the way by the bad guy. Okay for action fans and pleasing to others. —G.

METHODS OF EXHIBITORS

NOVEL TELEPHONE SERVICE BOOSTS "INSPIRATION"

A NOVEL telephone exploitation stunt was included by Russell Lamb, manager of the Fisher Theatre, Danville, Ill., in the campaign he used to help succeed in his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production "Inspiration."

Lamb used a telephone operator for special service in calling up a list of telephone subscribers in Danville and vicinity. She told them that "The management of the Fisher Theatre had just previewed the latest Greta Garbo picture, 'Inspiration,' and the tremendous import of the entertainment value of this great star and picture, inspired them with the idea that it would be advisable to notify their patrons immediately that due to the importance of other bookings the picture could be held only for three days."

"MUSEUM OF ART" LOBBY ATTRACTION

MARC BOWMAN, manager of the Fox Broadway Theatre, Portland, Ore., included a novel lobby attraction in the exploitation campaign he used to help put over his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production "Min and Bill."

Bowman arranged for a "Min and Bill's" Museum of Art, which was used as a lobby attraction for one week previous to the showing of the picture. This consisted of a large glass showcase where were displayed broken dishes, a knife, a frying pan, a revolver and a razor. Each item bore a card containing some humorous comment apropos of "Min and Bill's" love affairs, and created a great deal of comment, and a great many laughs.

Scales in Lobby

R. A. MALANEY, in charge of publicity and exploitation for the Loew theatres, placed a scale in front of the Allen theatre during the engagement of "Reducing." It was a suggestion that worked just right, because, watching the crowds on Euclid Ave., many stopped to weigh in, and then stopped at the ticket window to buy admissions. Malaney offered a cash prize to the one who came closest to guessing Marie Dressler's weight.

EXPLOITATION ON A RIPLEY SHORT

A HUNDRED dollars to any person who could prove Robert L. Ripley a liar was the offer made by the Grand Hall, London, to exploit the second of Ripley's Vitaphone short subjects, "Believe It or Not." A type one-sheet offering the reward was posted in front of the theatre and in other prominent locations. It turned the trick and the theatre was jammed. American exhibitors showing the Ripley "Believe It or Not" shorts can profit from the London campaign and safely make a similar offer to anyone who can prove that Ripley makes a mis-statement in any of his shorts.

Ripley has the proofs for every statement that he makes and consequently no one can collect the reward. But the public does not know that and the prospect of gaining a hundred dollars reward will bring them out to the theatre.

The one-sheet used by the Grand Hall, London, was worded in this manner:

10 POUNDS REWARD
Will be paid by the GRAND HALL
Tally-Ho! Corner

to any person who can prove that Ripley is wrong in any one statement or fact made in his second amazing "Believe It or Not" series, showing at the Cinema.

OLD PUZZLE IN NEW FORM A HIT

A VARIATION of the old scrambled picture puzzle contest idea is now being carried out by the Venetian Theatre, in Racine, Wis., and the Journal-News. The newspaper three times a week prints sections of a scrambled letter and the problem of the contestants is to correctly assemble the pieces. The theatre enters into the affair by showing on its screen just how this can be done. The screen solutions follow each new problem. The scrambled letter contest is to run thirteen weeks in Racine and the successful contestants are to divide $200 in cash. In addition there are to be prizes of theatre tickets with the final awards being made from the stage of the theatre. Lon Ramsdell, manager, says the contest has created more interest than anything else in the puzzle line that the city has ever had.

USEFUL PRESS ON "LONELY WIVES"

RKO-PATHE is turning out an elaborate and highly serviceable press sheet for "Lonely Wives," the first feature production on the new program. The sheet has been designed exclusively to furnish exhibitors with novel, effective and practical ideas to properly advertise the picture, minutely describing every piece of accessory material available.

A three-page exploitation section featnres detailed information on the four big national tie-ups arranged by the company to aid showmen in their local publicity with the operation of dealers of the respective products that have been lined up.

The entire book has been prepared on a scale to conform with the hilarious and farcial nature of the picture, with cartoon cuts and illustrations clearly suggesting the gay spirit of the story and the manner in which "Lonely Wives" should be exploited for the best results.

The advertising division displays a varied assortment of powerful and catchy ads which vividly depict the outstanding points of the picture. From the small one column adds to the full page smash, they have been devised with an eye to the public's quick reaction to attractive, seat-selling copy and art work.

SONO ART TIE-UP WITH NUSHEEN

SONO ART-WORLD WIDE has effected a tie-up with Nusheen, Inc., national distributors of a hair rinse, which will net the film company merchandising benefits in a large national advertising campaign.

Nusheen, Inc., is the company which has popularizd the "platinum blonde" vogue in women's hair dress. Taking Josephine Dunn, star of "Air Police" as the ideal type personifying the "platinum blonde," Nusheen, Inc., will use her photograph in a newspaper advertising campaign of national proportions, in sales promotion accessories, magazine advertising, and in dtaler tie-ups for window displays in over 2,000 cities and towns.

Augmenting this campaign will be a series of radio broadcasts over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

TIE-UPS EXPLOIT "REDUCING" IN NOVEL FASHIONS

HAROLD KAPLAN, manager of the Century Theatre, Minneapolis, Minn., planned an extensive exploitation campaign in order to insure the success of his showing of "Reducing."

Kaplan arranged with the advertising director of the theatre and a Mr. Murphy of the Purity Bread Co. in Minneapolis, for the use of a diet card which stated, "For Breakfast, one slice of toast"—right after this was inserted "Taystee Bread," and also copy on the production and the theatre. Fifty thousand of these were printed and distributed through the Purity Bread Co., who inserted these cards in loaves of bread.

Kaplan also secured a tie-up with the Witts Meat and Grocery Market, the largest in the city. They distributed ten thousand special heralds on "Reducing," with copy on the picture on one side and on the other a list of foods for reducing purposes. These heralds were put into each package that went out of the store.

GOOD STUNTS ON "FATHER'S SON"

"FATHER'S SON" got off to a splendid start at Warner's Lake, Variety and Uptown theatres, Cleveland, due to an unusual and comprehensive exploitation campaign designed and executed by Mort Goodman. Goodman is in charge of Warner theatre exploitation in this district.

A tie-up with Liberty Magazine resulted in having 25,000 heralds on "Father's Son" being distributed with Liberty Magazines. The boys who delivered the heralds along with the magazines received passes for the Uptown and Variety theatres.

The Halle Bros. Co., Airplane Club, with a membership of about 650 boys, held a glider contest. The club meets each week in three sections. Groups of passes were given to winners in each group.

In addition Goodman held a private screening of "Father's Son" prior to the opening of the engagement for which he invited local Boy Scout executives, Boy Scout leaders, school principals, and honor students.

Mohair Covering for Seats Aids Acoustics

Judicious use of sound-absorbing upholstery on theatre seats, owners and operators are discovering, greatly improves the acoustics of the theatre for the presentation of talking motion pictures. Silence is golden in a literal sense the talkie theatre today, for patrons are favoring the houses where the sound is the best and the least disturbed by unpleasant echoes and reverberations. Empty seats, especially if covered by a hard, sound-reflecting material, are doubly a liability for they are not only a minus quantity so far as box office receipts are concerned, but they are a source of annoyance to patrons in the house.

There is little danger of getting a house too quiet, sound equipment engineers declare, for the amplifiers of the average theatre outfit have sufficient power to afford excellent audibility in all parts of the house. The big problem has been to eradicate bothersome noises arising from reverberations.

Upholstering the seats in durable mohair velvet or velmo has solved the difficulty to a satisfactory degree in several large and small theatres. Due to the peculiar structure of this material, echoes and reverberations are literally swallowed up in the maze of air passages between the fibres of the mohair. There may be as many as 40,000 of these erect little fibres to the square inch. Empty seats, upholstered in this material therefore do not present a hindrance to the sound movies but are nearly as effective in absorbing extraneous sounds as are seats occupied by patrons.

Interesting tests as to the sound absorption properties of different materials have been made by Dr. William R. Barss of the Massachusetts Institute of Techinology. Using cowhide leather as a basis of comparison and considering its sound-absorbing value as a rating of 100 per cent, he discovered that the sound-absorbing power of Moravia, a mohair plush, was 308 per cent, of chevron, another kind of mohair plush, was 254 per cent, and cotton plush was 192 per cent. The superiority of mohair was thus clearly indicated. Flat upholstery fabric and sound-absorbing value of only 146 per cent. One reason for the relatively greater efficiency of the mohair is that its fibres do not mat down and become flat but remain erect thereby keeping the air passages open for the absorption of sound.

Mohair upholstery's peculiar qualities have been enlisted in the aid of the theatre owner and patron in an additional interesting manner in the Balaban & Katz Chicago Theatre. All the seats of this huge house were recently recovered with a superior grade of the material. A special color, light green, and a special pattern were selected with a view to making the seats more easily visible in the semi-darkness of the theatre during a performance. Ushers and patrons, walking down the aisles from the rear, are able to see the rows and the individual seats more clearly because of the color and pattern and also because the mohair fibres, due to their special texture and light-reflecting properties, serve as minute mirrors, making the seats distinctly visible. This effect is permanent as the upholstery will not fade and the mohair does not mat down. It can also be kept fresh and clean with little trouble.

In some theatres, architectural alterations will be necessary to adapt them to the successful presentation of talking pictures, but in many houses the owner can greatly improve the result by giving a thought to this question of upholstery. Mohair velvet or velmo has the additional advantage of being extremely durable, comfortable and handsome in appearance so that patrons receive a double enjoyment from it. No one feature adds as much tone and distinctiveness to a theatre as the seat upholstery. Although it may be unseen most of the time, if it is of a superior quality and of surpassing comfort, the patron is pleased to feel that the management has not "skimped" on a detail that too often is overlooked.

Prediction

Joseph I. Schnitzer, president of Radio Pictures, last week predicted a fool-proof film would be in general use by the end of 1931. A secret chemical treatment of all Radio film stock will increase its life one-third, insure perfect projection and heighten the standard of film entertainment.

RCA PHOTOPHONE MODIFIED TO MEET REAR PROJECTION

New York — Specially designed RCA Photophone sound reproducing equipment, modified to meet the requirements of rear projection, will be installed in the first three of the extensive circuit of theatres to be established in the principal cities of the United States by the Trans-Lux Movies Corporation of which Courtland Smith is president. Two of these theatres are to be opened in the Lefcourt Bldg., No. 1619 Broadway, and the third at No. 625 Madison avenue, New York City.

Rear projection will be employed in all theatres operated by the Trans-Lux Movies Corporation, Photophone installations being the first in New York City since sound motion pictures were introduced. Tested in a model theatre installed at the Photophone engineering department and employing the new loud speaker and directional baffle, the diffusion of sound by this system was said to have been of exceptional quality and equally diffused throughout the small auditorium.

A number of changes in the Photophone standard small theatre sound equipment were made necessary to meet the demands for rear projection, but from the booth, which is a miniature when compared with the projection both of a large theatre, to the specially designed attachments for the reproduction of high-quality, every problem was solved and M. C. Batsel, chief engineer of RCA Photophone, Inc., is enthusiastic over the results obtained.

ADJUSTABLE LENS FOR PROJECTORS

An adjustable lens holder for Powers, Simplex and Motiograph equipment that is said incorporates quick lens change, side movement by simply lever control for centering the image, and accurate focusing adjustment, is being marketed by the Chicago Cinema Equipment Company of Chicago.

The mounting bracket of the device carries a clamping ring which engages the lens barrel by means of a split collar tightened by a convenient thumb screw. Lenses may be changed instantly, focused and shifted into position for projecting normal or sound film, the company claims.

VISITRON CELLS DISTRIBUTED BY NATIONAL SUPPLY

It is announced that the National Theatre Supply Company has recently completed arrangements with the G-M Laboratories, Inc., for the exclusive distribution of Visitron photoelectric cells by direct-to-theatre sales. Coincident with this, the G-M Laboratories have enlarged their line of Visitron photoelectric cells so that they can now furnish photoelectric cells for all types of sound-on-film equipment.

The G-M Laboratories Inc., are well-known as manufacturers of photoelectric cells, having furnished cells as long as five years ago to many of the pioneers in sound-on-film development. Since that time, Visitrons have been used by a large majority of the manufacturers of sound-on-film equipment, many of them using Visitrons today as standard equipment.

The new nation-wide distributing arrangement makes Visitron cells easily and quickly available at all supply centers throughout the country and should therefore appeal to exhibitors as another move for improved equipment and supply service.

NEW GIANT HORN NOW ON MARKET

A new and improved giant horn unit and 9-foot exponential horn with a 32-inch round bell, 36 inches deep, has been marketed by the Miles Reproducer Co., of New York, manufacturers of horns and unit speakers.

The new horn and unit gives a clear, powerful and most natural reproduction of speech and music, and may be obtained with or without matching transformer or exciter for alternating current, the company claims.

New Type Films

A new type of motion picture film, about three times as fast as that previously in use, has been announced by the Eastman Kodak Company. The new film is expected to work marked changes in studio technique, by permitting greater freedom in making sound pictures and by cutting down the necessary amount of lighting.

The faster films is described by motion picture engineers as the greatest advance in motion picture materials since the introduction of panchromatic film eighteen years ago.

GOOD CAMPAIGN ON "DANCE, FOOLS"

Ed Furni, manager, and Don Alexander, of the St. Paul Paramount Theatre, did some splendid exploitation work in putting over the Joan Crawford picture, "Dance, Fools, Dance." The big gross achieved by the picture reflected the pair's effective efforts.

Among the tie-ups was one with a leading loop department store which used the fashion stills of Miss Crawford in large display ads, giving the star, picture and theatre due credit. The store also used large photographs of Miss Crawford mounted on compoboard, in its windows.

As a result of another tie-up, a fleet of taxicabs displayed small banners on their rear spare tires, reading "Ride a Diamond Cab to See Joan Crawford in 'Dance, Fools, Dance,' at the Paramount Theatre."

A prominent jewelry store paid 75 per cent of the printing and distribution cost of 5,000 heralds containing a full length figure of Miss Crawford and reading "Like the Facets of a Diamond of the Clearest Water, Joan Crawford's Performance in 'Dance, Fools, Dance' Sparkles Brilliantly." The same establishment had several still photographs of Miss Crawford in its display window.

Among other stunts were radio announcements, etc. A leading newspaper carried a picture of Miss Crawford and a story about her on its front page.

BIG OPENING FOR "CITY LIGHTS"

RKO Gave the Charlie Chaplin picture, "City Lights," a "Hollywood" premiere to inaugurate its indefinite run at the Seventh Street Theatre, Minneapolis, last Friday night. A single performance marked the engagement's start and all seats were reserved.

During the course of the run the doors of the theatre will be thrown open at 9:30 a. m. daily, two hours earlier than customery, and the picture will be on a grind. A flat 50c admission scale all day long has been established. The picture is playing to immense crowds.

Under the agreement between RKO and United Artists, "City Lights" will play a minimum of three weeks at the Seventh Street. The picture is playing on a straight percentage arrangement.

RKO BOYS TO GET HOLLYWOOD TRIP

The Minneapolis RKO office is jubilant over the selection of Hollywood as the convention city for the RKO national sales staff. It means a trip to California for Mike Frisch, exchange manager, and the exchange's three salesmen. The meeting will be held April 27 and the local staff will be gone for two weeks.

RKO recently decided to send all of its exchange managers and salesmen to the national sales convention this year. The convention city, however, was not chosen until last week.

Racine, Wis.—The Uptown Majestic Theatre Corporation has been formed here to take over the Uptown Theatre. Signers of the articles of incorporation are Mr. and Mrs. Anton Draginis and Bryan Draginis.

JIM KEEFE NEW RKO PUBLICIST

RKO has a new district publicity and advertising head for the Minneapolis territory, bossed by Morgan Ames. He is Jim Keefe, who resigned from the post of publicity director for the Fox-Midwesco theatres in Milwaukee to accept the position here.

Since the resignation of Herb Elisberg, the post of district publicity head has been vacant. Mr. Keefe comes to Minneapolis with a fine reputation and Mr. Ames is enthusiastic over his acquisition. Jules Gershon, who has been in direct charge of publicity for the two Minneapolis RKO theatres, the Orpheum and Seventh Street, has been transferred to the Omaha RKO Orpheum.

M-G-M to Build New Exchange Building

Still another big new film exchange buildings to be erected in Minneapolis this summer.

Coming close on the heels of the announcement of the new Fox exchange is the tidings that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer also is to build.

This will be the fifth new exchange building to be constructed in Minneapolis in the past two years. The huge Warner Brothers-First National building was completed last year. New buildings also were erected for Columbia and Tiffany and for United Artists and Educational-Sono Art.

Selwyn Levinson and J. S. McCloud of the M-G-M home office were in Minneapolis last week to confer with Robert Workman, Minneapolis M-G-M exchange manager, relative to plans for the new building, which will be one of the biggest and most complete along film row.

The site for the new building already has been selected, but M-G-M is not ready yet to make it public. It is expected that full details regarding the project will be announced within the next few weeks.

Work on the new Fox exchange building will get under way within the next month.

The present Paramount exchange building, one of the largest on film row, was completed only two years ago, but it is known that the company at present is considering the construction of a new and larger building.

With the movie industry in the Northwest having grown by leaps and bounds during the past two years, the exchanges are continually finding their equipment capacities taxed. According to experience during the past eighteen months, they have built and prepared for many years ahead only to find after six months that their business has increased so tremendously that they are cramped for space to handle it properly.

The exchange managers point out that the construction of the large and costly new buildings by their companies not only is evidence of the strides forward and growth of the movie business in this territory, but also an indication of confidence in the industry's future.

Protection Causes Rift in Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis. — With the formation of the Allied Independent Theatre Owners Association, an open rift has appeared in the ranks of the M. P. T. O. of Wisconsin. Frank J. McWilliams, former director of the M. P. T. O., has been named president of the organization.

Frank Welter, Wausau, is vice-president; E. F. Maertz, Zenith, Milwaukee, secretary, and L. K. Brin, Garden and Majestic, Milwaukee, treasurer. The break has occurred as the result of demands for adequate protection for product on the part of the independents.

The new organization composed entirely of independents, has a membership of approximately 40 in Wisconsin and twelve houses in Milwaukee, and is seeking to include all independent theatres in the state.

The contention is on the part of the dissenting exhibitors, that the chains in Wisconsin haven't been giving them an even break on products and have been holding onto their pictures to squeeze the independent out of business.

Railroad Tie-up

A tie-up between the Minnesota Theatre, ace Publix house in Minneapolis, and the Northwestern railroad had the later paying the cost of a newsreel on the Minnesota Theatre screen, showing Lou Breese, master of ceremonies, leaving on a Northwestern train for the east in quest of new music and entertainment feature for Minnesota audiences. The railroad also paid the cost of 5,000 letters sent presumably by Breese from the club car of the train and telling about the trip he was taking.

New Supervisors

Milwaukee, Wis. — E. W. Van Norman, manager of Warner Brothers' Venetian Theatre here, has been named supervisor of the circuit's theatres on the city's north side, while Eugene Arnstein, booker for the circuit, has been named supervisor over the circuit's south side houses.

Lightman Would Take Standard Contract to Dept. of Justice

New York — Because the new standard exhibition contract has not yet been put into operation, suggestion that a committee of independent exhibitors submit the agreement to the Department of Justice for its approval was made last week by M. A. Lightman, M. P. T. O. A. head. He based his proposal on the distributors' statement that the contract drafted at the 5-5-5 conferences has not been placed in effect because they see a possibility that the government will find it illegal.

"This committee," said Lightman, "would make it clear to the authorities that independent operators can obtain 'a great deal of relief' providing the agreement becomes operative. At present each distributing company has its own exhibition contract and none of them give exhibitors the consideration that the new agreement provides.

"The M. P. T. O. A. is ready to co-operate with Allied or an independent exhibitor organization in any such effort," said Lightman. "It will have the effect of bringing about a showdown in the situation."

Abram F. Myers, president of Allied, last week said that his organization, which helped draft the contract along with distributor and M. P. T. O. A. representatives hopes for its operation and stands ready to back it.

In a letter to the M. P. T. O. A. Sidney Kent, who sponsored the 5-5-5 conferences and acted as chairman of them, said that Paramount has no intention to "throw over" the new contract because of the supreme court decision which outlawed the arbitration and credit systems. "If it cannot be worked out legally," he declared, "my company will use its own contract and try to carry out the spirt of the new agreement."

ALLIED MAY LAUNCH EXCHANGES

New York—Allied States Association is expected to launch its own exchange system in the event that distribution arrangements for Kinograms, containing 30 per cent of industrial matter, are not made with some national organization. An expensive set-up would not be necessary for the two-releases-a-week schedule.

Allied and Kinograms in Ad Newsreel Plan

New York—Plans for a bi-weekly newsreel with a limited amount of advertising have been announced by Allied States and Kinograms, according to Oscar Hanson, agent for the exhibitors' association. Kinograms will produce the sound reels.

The bulk of the news will be the regular material gathered by the Kinograms staff. The industrial material to be included will be subject to the approval of Allied.

Contracts for showing Kinograms will be obtained through the joint efforts of Allied leaders and Hanson. Allied and its affiliated units will be reimbursed in proportion to the number of contracts secured.

The formal announcement made last week said, in part:

"The new arrangement is the result of the action of Allied at its recent convention in Chicago, when Oscar Hanson was designated as agent to represent the members in the matter of advertising reels. It represents a determination by the exhibitors that their screens shall not be used for advertising without compensation, and that all advertising shown in their theatres shall be subject to their control."

SET DATES FOR SALES CONCLAVES

New York — Distributors are getting ready for the annual spring conventions and indications point to an earlier selling season. RKO-Pathe is the first to call its salesmen together for the yearly sales confabs, having set April 20, 21 and 22 as the dates and Chicago as the place. Atlantic City will be the meeting point for the Paramount salesmen, April 15 being the tentative opening date. Fox opens its convention April 27 in New York while Warners' sales meetings will be held in Atlantic City and San Francisco. The eastern division will meet at the famous resort April 20, 21 and 22. The western division will meet on the west coast April 28, 29 and 30.

SILENT RECORDING FOR N. Y. STUDIO

New York—With the successful operation of the Western Electric silent recording system in "The Right to Love," the Paramount New York studio has announced the further use of this system in the recently completed "Tarnished Lady," in which Tallulah Bankhead and Clive Brook are starred, and in "The Smiling Lieutenant," the current Lubitsch-Chevalier production.

The first demonstration of the silent method which practcally erases sound background from the screen, was found so satisfactory that it was immediately included in the New York studio equipment.

Waxman Joins Pathe

New York—A. P. Waxman, formerly special exploitation director for Warner Brothers, has joined RKO-Pathe as advertising counsel and short subject producer. Chas. Giegerich is executive assistant. Plans for the production of short subjects by Waxman have not as yet been announced. The present RKO-Pathe advertising and publicity staff will remain the same, according to Waxman.

REVIVE "JAZZ SINGER"

New York—A nation-wide revival of "The Jazz Singer" is announced by Warner Bros. for the week beginning March 27. In all the principal cities of the country, and in many smaller communities as well, the picture which brought the talking screen into instantaneous popularity and made a cinema star of Al Jolson, will once more be shown to the public, three and a half years after its first sensational triumph.

Besides Al Jolson, the cast of this historic picture which was directed by Alan Crosland, includes May McAvoy, Warner Oland, Otto Lederer, Bobby Gordon, Eugenie Besserer, William Demarest, Nat Carr and Will Walling. In the climatic synagogue scene the voice of the famous Jewish cantor, Joseph Rosenblatt, is heard.

"The Jazz Singer" made cinematic history not only in the United States but throughout Europe. In London, Paris, Berlin and other foreign cities it achieved unprecedented runs. The fact that the dialogue is in English did not interfere with its success on the Continent.

The picture will be revived exactly as it was first presented, without cuts or other changes of any kind.

Allied and "U" in New Booking Tie-Up

New York—Allied States Association and Universal Pictures are reported to have formed a tie-up for booking pictures. The formal joint announcement made last week termed it a "co-operative arrangement," whereby one is a national independent exhibitor organization and the other the oldest independent producer.

With the source of independent pictures dwindling through consolidation of producing and distributing companies such a plan is advisable from the standpoint of the independent operator, President Abram F. Myers of Allied said. With approximately 6,500 theatres affiliated with Allied, Universal will be benefited by a large number of playdates. Unlike other major companies the Laemmle organization operates only a few theatres and this number is being gradually diminished.

Oscar R. Hanson, agent of Allied, said the reel will be turned over to the various Allied state units who will distribute them to their members. Exhibitors will pay a minimum of 50 cents a week for the reel. All rentals go to the state organizations. Sample reels are now being sent each unit.

Hanson's contract with exhibitors covers five years. After three years cancellation can be made by mutual consent.

Complete details of the agreement are not yet available. The announcement stated that "under the arrangement Allied and its affiliated units throughout the country will promote the interests of Universal as a means of securing an adequate supply of high grade product for their members and Universal will assist in the upbuilding and strengthening of the theatre association."

PICTURE BUSINESS

NON-THEATRICAL competition, which has been a dead issue, more or less, for the past three years, is showing signs of a return to life. Competition of this kind has been a powerful menace to the interests of exhibitors, especially those in the smaller towns whose drawing possibilities were limited and where a picture showing in a church or a school, usually at a lower admission price, practically crippled their business.

The manufacturers of sound equipment, probably feeling that their market within this industry has been exhausted, are naturally seeking further outlet for their product. And, of course, the churches and the schools, many already having silent projection equipment, are considered the next best field for development. If the churches and the schools will limit their picture showings to educational subjects, the harm done to legitimate theatre operators will be of little consequence. But, judging from the past, schools and churches have commercial instincts, too, and all too frequently there is the desire to raise funds through the showing of regular picture programs.

To endeavor to combat the returning growth of this evil is a risky undertaking for the exhibitor who does not want to arouse ill will among the church people or the school people of his community. It is a delicate situation to handle and, looking facts straight in the face, equipment manufacturers are going to go right ahead with their plans to develop this new field, regardless of the complaining cries of exhibitors. But there is a way of indirectly stopping non-theatrical competition. And that is by cooperating with the churches and schools in your town rather than fighting them.

Some time ago a number of alert showmen kept non-theatrical competition out of their towns by turning their houses over to the church in their town on Sunday, on which day the house was dark anyway, and giving the receipts, above actual expenses, to the church. And they co-operated with schools in a similar manner by setting aside a certain night as a benefit night for the school. It is our belief that such efforts on the part of exhibitors will not only gain their townspeoples' good will but will also eliminate unfair competition through making it unnecessary for the churches and schools to equip themselves with sound and yet be able to add to their treasuries.

Exhibitors whose houses are still running silent pictures are in greater danger of non-theatrical competition than are the wired houses. Perhaps a way for them to keep out such competition is to wire their houses before the churches and schools in their towns are approached to do so. Good equipment is now available at lower prices and better terms than it has ever been, making it easier for the silent house to be able to play sound pictures.

WARNER BROS. are re-issuing "The Jazz Singer," the Al Jolson picture that three and one-half years ago started the stampede of sound. This picture, despite the fact that sound technique has shown considerable improvement since it was produced, is even at this day an outstanding production. And, in our opinion, it was Jolson's best picture. At the time of its release there were only a few houses that were able to play sound pictures. Many thousands, since wired, have not shown to their patrons this production that revolutionized the motion picture industry. There is the element of public curiosity to appeal to through showing this history-making production that presents a good showmanship possibility, not only to those exhibitors who have never played this production, but even to those who played it on its initial release.

Philo Vance does not figure in any manner in "Blue Room Murder," the mystery drama S. S. Van Dine has written for First National. The famous detective has been relegated to the past and Van Dine is authority for the statement that there is no suggestion of him in his new work. In setting out to construct "Blue Room Murder," it was the author's aim to build up as his first direct feature contribution to the talking screen a story that would be orignal in theme and treatment. For this reason he sought a new field and new characters.

"Trader Horn" Hits Capacity; Others OK

Minneapolis (week ending March 20)—Business was good pretty much all along the line last week. The road-showing of "Trader Horn" by M-G-M at the Century proved an unqualified success. Playing two performances a day at $1.50 top prices and with all seats reserved, this exceptional picture drew large crowds, winding up to capacity.

"Scandal Sheet" at the State and "Lonely Wives" at the RKO Orpheum also were especially big cards. "Unfaithful" at the Minnesota did not draw so well as most of the Ruth Chatterton pictures. In its second successive loop week, "The Last Parade" at the RKO Seventh Street did very satisfactory business.

Aster—Father's Son (First National), Irene Rich, Lewis Stone and Leon Janney. Business: Fair. Summary: The delightfully human story of a "misunderstood" 12-year-old youth who runs away from his home and irritable father; a comedy for the entire family. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Century — Trader Horn (M-G-M), Harry Carey. Business: Good. Summary: Road showing of the most thrilling and daring of all jungle films; M-G-M triumph. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news.

Lyric—The Bachelor Father (M-B-M), Marion Davies. Business: Good. Summary: The amusing story of an elderly English nobleman who assembles all his illegitimate children to give them a home on his rich estates. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, cemedy, screen vaudeville.

Minnesota — Unfaithful (Paramount), Ruth Chatterton. Business: Fair. Summary: Miss Chatterton gives her usual splendid performance in this moderately interesting drama of a woman who tries to forget her husband's infidelity by seeking the companionship of other men. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, sound news.

RKO-Orpheum — Lonely Wives (Pathe), Edward Everett Horton, Esther Ralston, Laura La Plante. Business: Good. Summary: A risque but amusing comedy for sophisticated treatregoers; the naughty and daring story of a husband who employs an actor to impersonate him when he thinks his wife is out of town, the fun starting when the wifeunexpectedly returns. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, sound news.

RKO-Seventh Street—The Last Parade (Columbia), Jack Holt. Business: Good. Summary: Second successive loop week for this strong gangster drama.

State — Scandal Sheet (Para.), George Bancroft, Clive Brook and Kay Francis. Business: Good. Summary: Strong cast in a sordid newspaper drama which tells of a hardboiled tabloid sheet editor who remains true to his creed to print all the news all the time, winding up by running the story of his own wife's unfaithfulness and his murder of the man in the case. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

MILWAUKEE

Week Ending March 12

Alhambra — New Moon (M-G-M), Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore. Business: Fair. Summary: A confusion of excellencies set into a lot of foolishness. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal Newsreel; Comedy.

Garden and Majestic — City Lights (United Artists), Charlie Chaplin and Virginia Cherrill. Business: Fair. Summary: To those who like Chaplin this picture rates ace high. Entertainment Merits: 95 per cent. Short Subjects: Hearst Metrotone News; Vitaphone short.

Palace—Millie (Radio), Helen Twelvetrees and Lilyan Tashman. Business: Fair. Summary: A well-acted photoplay. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Pathe News; Comedy.

Riverside — Divorce Among Friends (Warner Bros.), James Hall and Irene Del Roy. Business: Average. Summary: A picture having witty dialogue and good acting. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville; Pathe News.

Strand — East Lynne (Fox), Ann Harding and Conrad Nagel. Clive Brook. Business: Good. Summary: A photoplay with beautiful sets as well as photography. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Fox Newsreel; Comedy.

Wisconsin—Don't Bet on Women (Fox), Edmund Lowe and Jeanette MacDonald. Business: Average. Summary: An average piece with some fair acting. Entertainment Merts: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon & Marco Idea; Fox Newsreel.

Stewart Here

Lem Stawart, Publix advertising executive, was a Minneapolis visitor the past week, conferring with Martin P. Kelly, Publix advertising director of the Twin Cities, and other northwest division officials.

Ruben Returns

After being ill with the flu, Eddie Ruben, Publix divisional manager, is back on the job again. He was laid up for more than a week.

Milwaukee, Wis. — Don and Iris Wilkins are now holding forth at Fox's Wisconsin Theatre here, the former as master of ceremonies and the latter at the organ. Both are working in connection with the Fanchon and Marco Ideas at the theatre and clicking in great style.

RACING STORY IN "SPEED LIMIT"

New York—"Speed Limit" will be the release title of the Grantland Rice Sportlight featuring world famous racing stars which was previously announced as "Speed Age." Paavo Nurmi, Gar Wood, Sir Malcolm Campbell, and Captain Frank Hawks are among the sport celebrities seen in action in this March 8th RKO-Pathe release.

ANNIVERSARY SHOW AT PUBLIX HOUSE

The Minnesota Theatre, ace Publix house in Minneapolis, launched one of its most extensive drives to make its Third Anniversary Show this week an event of great theatrical importance. One of the high spots of the big campaign engineered by Manager Gordon Greene was a full page advertisement printed in four colors in the Minneapolis Star.

Anniversary Week at the theatre marked the return of Lou Breeze, master of ceremonies and pit orchestra conductor, after a one week's vacation. Coincident with the celebration he is introducing a new type of orchestral music recently inaugurated at the New York Paramount Theatre. It will be known at the Minnesota as "Lou Breeze and His Music."

Mr. Greene has rebuilt the orchestra pit to make the new style of music more effective, and the musicians make their appearance in smart new garb.

"Kid From Madrid"

Hollywood—Lee Marcus, president of RKO-Pathe, stated last week that the first of Eddie Quillan's quartette of specials for the new season would be the "Kid From Madrid." The comedian will be featured as a bull fighter.

THE SOLUTION

TO THE PROBLEM
of POOR PICTURES

GOOD PICTURES

Simple isn't it? But how is one to know what pictures are good and what pictures are bad until one plays them? The box-office supplies the answer. Let every exhibitor send in an accurate report of the pictures he plays and a guide is furnished that will go a long way in eliminating inferior productions. But the reports must be truthful and unbiased.

You can become a member of the

Better Pictures Club

Simply by filling in and mailing the report blank on this page. Additional blanks will be furnished you for subsequent reports. There are no dues in this club and but two requirements—one, that you report 100% on every picture you play every week, shorts as well as features; and, two, that your reports be truthful and free from prejudice.

My opinion on pictures recently played here is as follows:

PICTURE OF THE WEEK

It's a Wise Child

M-G-M—75 Minutes

Cast: Marion Davies, Sidney Blackmer James Gleason, Polly Moran, Lester Vail, Marie Prevost, Clara Blandick, Robert McWade, Johnny Arthur, Hilda Vaughn, Ben Alexander, Emily Fitzroy. Directed by Robert Z. Leonard.

The talker version of the well known stage hit excellently handled on the screen and has plenty of entertainment from start to finish. It's a wow of a comedy excellently directed and has a cast of names that ought to mean something at the box-office.

Marion Davies is good in the leading role but the real laughs are furnished by James Gleason and Johnny Arthur. Polly Moran and Marie Prevost as the maids also contribute much fun to the picture. Though some parts of the picture are a bit risque the dialogue is not in the least obnoxious.

After a lot of complicating situations over Marion suspected and accused of being an expectant mother and her many suitors accused in turn, finally everything is straightened out and Marion and Blackmer plan to be married.

The picture should generally please as it moves at a fast tempo and has an excellent cast, all of whom give capable performances.—J. S.

Keep Title

Universal City—Booth Tarkington's famous story, "The Flirt," which has just been completed at Universal City under the working title, "Gambling Daughters," will be released under the title Tarkington originally gave it, it was decided last week.

Hell Bound

Tiffany—80 Minutes

Cast: Leo Carillo, Lola Lane, Lloyd Hughes, Ralph Ince, Helen Chadwick, Richard Tucker, Gertrude Astor, Harry Strang, William Lawrence, Marty Faust, Jack Grey, Bill O'Brien. Directed by Walter Lang.

A gangster picture but a good one, and if your audiences aren't fed up on the type, they will like this one. Carillo, whose Italian dialect is well known because of his role several years ago in "Lombardi, Limited," puts over a fine piece of work as the gang leader. Lola Lane makes a good feminine lead as the girl who is mistaken for a hired killer. A triangle springs up among Carillo, Lola and Lloyd Hughes, the doctor who takes care of her during a sickness. There are several complications which result in Carillo marrying the girl. Carillo later is killed by the rival gang, leaving the girl to the doctor.

The picture can hardly be recommended for children but as adult fare it will stand up. Good direction and fine acting make it a convincing story.—S. F. D.

Drums of Jeopardy

Tiffany—75 Minutes

Cast: Warner Oland, June Collyer, Lloyd Hughes, George Fawcett, Ernest Hilliard, Wallace McDonald, Hale Hamilton, Florence Lake, Mischa Auer, Clara Blandick, Ann Brody. Directed by George B. Seitz.

This screen thriller adapted from Harold McGrath's sensational shocker contains all the necessary elements that go into the old 10-20-30 melodrama. The hero faces danger constantly until the final fade-out, the arch villain has more lives than the proverbial cat and the chief of the secret service seems to be even more stupid than usual. And as the final scene is reached, who is it that stops the mad Bolshevic agent (Warner Oland) but Aunt Abbie (Clara Blandick) with a quick thrust of the crook of her umbrella.

Mr. Oland again revels in one of those malignant roles which have made his name synonymous with villainy The story concerns the famous Petroff rubies known as the "drums of jeopardy," stolen from some far-east temple. Suspense is well held. Oland has some trouble with his voice recording but otherwise this is a mighty good thriller and will keep your audience entertained.—G.L.S.

Don't Bet On Women

Fox—70 Minutes

Cast: Edmund Lowe, Jeanette McDonald, Roland Young, J. M. Kerrigan, Una Merkel, Henry Kohler, Helene Millard. Directed by William K. Howard.

This photoplay is based on a man's assumption that his wife is not susceptable to temptation with another man. Edmund Lowe as the charmer who has many affairs handles his light role very nicely. Roland Young portrays the part of the smug lawyer who has explicit faith in his wife's fidelity to the extent of making a wager that the charmer cannot make her kiss him. Una Merkel carries off the comedy honors as the frothy southern belle who is over gushy in her love affair. Jeanette McDonald plays the wife who learns of the wager through Miss Merkel.

Lowe and Jeanette fall in love but as Lowe has learned that she knows of the wager does not accept his chance to collect. He loses and pays but Young tears up his check with a remark about it being only a matter of principle with him, and walks out, still boasting of his wife's fidelity. Cast, direction and photography of the highest type and makes a very amusing comedy.—G.L.S.

Kiki

United Artists—87 Minutes

Cast: Mary Pickford, Reginald Denny, Joseph Cawthorn, Margaret Livingston, Phil Tead, Fred Watson, Edwin Maxwell. Directed by Sam Taylor.

"Kiki" is a good story but it is not one for Mary Pickford to try to tackle. Perhaps as a silent picture, Miss Pickford would be acceptable but as a talkie she seems entirely miscast. Her attempt at French accent at times is pitiful, often forgetting herself and speaking good English. Reginald Denny is not so good either. Joseph Cawthorn tries hard to get over but doesn't quite make it. The trouble seems to be that everybody overacts.

There are several stabs at slapstick comedy, which are fairly funny but somehow they don't register as they should.

The picture is based on the Balasco stage play. It is the story of a French girl who spoils the opening of a bigshow, gets in bad with the manager but refuses to leave him, getting him into all kinds of scrapes.

If Mary Pickford still means anything to your box office, this picture will draw. But the picture is below the Pickford standard.—A. F. S.

Air Police

Sono Art-World Wide—65 Min.

Cast: Kenneth Harlan, Charles Delaney, Josephine Dunn, Richard Cramer, Arthur Thallasso, Tom London and George Cheseboro. Directed by Stuart Paton.

Here is a Thrill-O-Drama with a thrill-a-minute. It's action stuff from the start through to the finish and contains some air photography that is remarkably well done. It has everything in it that action fans will like; a couple of good free-for-all fights, fighting in the air, crashing planes, machine gun battles and other hair-breath action. It's good entertainment of a popular kind.

The story revolves around two buddies, who have just joined the border air patrol. The younger one of the pair, Delaney has a knack of getting himself into trouble over women and usually has to fight his way out. They are given an assignment over the border to break up a gang of smugglers, whose hangout is a Mexican cantina. There they meet Dolores (Josephine Dunn), a dancer, and each, unbeknown to the other, falls in love with her. Delaney is tricked into a trap by the racketeers, who jammed the macine gun on his plane. He sends a radio SOS for help and Harlan comes to his aid, but not in time to save him.

Harlan vows to avenge his pal's death and also falls into a trap set by the smugglers. Miss Dunn pretends to have set the trap for him. Harlan is bound and put into the cockpit of his own plane. But Miss Dunn cuts the ropes binding his hands. The gang leader takes Dolores into his plane with him to view Harlan's plight as the pilot of Harlan's plane abandons it, supposedly leaving Harlan helpless in mid air. But, with his hands freed, he opens fire on the gang leader's plane and gets him. Meanwhile Miss Dunn makes a safe parachute jump. And the ending is a happy one.—S.

Crazy Compositions

Paramount—10 Minutes

This one-reeler featuring Fuzzy Knight the "maniac" pianist makes fair entertainment. Perhaps the kids will get a kick out of seeing Fuzzy acting looney at the piano. The reel shows him playing piano in a padded cell, then he escapes and further renders his crazy compositions in a music store and is finally captured by the caretakers of the insane asylum to be returned.—J. S.

BY THE MERCHANDISER

AND PICTURE SELLING

Good Stunt For "Little Caesar"

IN exploiting "Little Caesar" a number of live wire exhibitors have issued tabloid newspapers on the eve of the showing of the sensational story of gangland. In Chicago the Publix management did this with great success, flooding the loop with 100,000 copies of "The Times," which bore all the earmarks of having been gotten out by trained newspaper men.

It has remained for the manager of the Iowa Theatre, in Sioux City, Iowa, however, to go a step further in the exploitatoin of the picture than any of his fellow exhibitors. Instead of using a tabloid of his own he tied up with the Sioux City Iowan, using the regular home edition of the newspaper to call attention to the film. The paper carried under its mast head on the front page deep headlines in Gothic type, "Crime King in Sioux City; Hiding in Underworld Den." The 7th and 8th columns were occupied by a display story containing a picture of Edward G. Robinson as the hunted criminal.

The stunt created a good deal of excitement with the result that "Little Caesar" did the biggest business of the year in Sioux City.

WALTZ CONTEST FOR "NEW MOON"

M. A. MALANEY, manager of the Allen Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio, included a novel contest in the extensive exploitation campaign he used to succeed in his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production "New Moon."

Malaney arranged a tie-up with the Crystal Slipper Ballroom, whereby they held a special "New Moon" waltz contest, and offered cash prizes and free tickets for the best waltzers during the playing of the numbers. In connection with the contest at the Crystal Slipper, Malaney arranged for radio announcements to be made for four nights previous to the contest and the opening of the picture. The contest was held on the opening night of the picture and was a huge success.

Effective

A WANT AD issued in a Springfield, Ohio, paper calling for five men to impersonate Al Capone all but created a riot at the Fairbanks Theatre. The men were to be used in an exploitation stunt in connection with the showing of "Little Caesar" and it looked as if every unemployed man in Springfield felt he was fitted for the job. Police had to be called to preserve order.

STREET BALLYHOO BOOSTS "PAID"

RUSSELL BOVIM, manager of the Loew's Theatre, Canton, Ohio, arranged for a novel street ballyhoo as part of the exploitation campaign he used to help succeed in his showing of "Paid."

Bovim had four large cut-out beaverboard letters made, ten feet high, spelling the word "P-A-I-D" and had four men, spaced in their walking, carrying these bright red letters around the downtown section, causing plenty of comment. This stunt helped to call the public's attention to "Paid," in a very novel manner.

BUSY DAYS AT RADIO STUDIOS

Hollywood—Driving with "boom town" energy into the 1931 production schedule, Radio Pictures studio has seven features either shooting or completing rehearsals, a dozen more in preparation, a flock of new stories purchased, and a score of writers hammering away at originals.

The pictures shooting are: "Traveling Husbands," "Waiting at the Church," "Madame Julie," "Big Brother," "Too Many Cooks," "White Shoulders," and "Going, Going, Gone!" in which Robert Woolsey is starring under the direction of Clyde Bruckman.

NOVEL BALLYHOO ON "WAR NURSE"

A NOVEL street ballyhoo was included by C. E. Worley, manager of the Madison Theatre, Peoria Ill., in the vigorous campaign he used to exploit his showing of "War Nurse."

Worley arranged with the Army Hospital at Dwight, Ill., to send an army ambulance to Peoria to be used for a street ballyhoo. U. S. Army inscription on both sides of the ambulance were covered with cloth banners containng copy on the picture, theatre and playdates. The driver was uniformed as a private in the army and two charming young ladies, dressed as nurses, rode on the rear seat. The ambulance was driven through Peoria for two days in advance of the playdate, and created a great deal of attention.

RED-HAIRED GIRL AIDS "HEIRESS"

MORT GOODMAN in charge of Warner Brothers' exploitation in and around Cleveland, put over a good one in behalf of "Hot Heiress" playing simultaneous first runs at the Lake, Variety and Uptown theatres. Arranging a tie-up with the local Studebaker distributing agency, he placed a Studebaker automobile on display in the Uptown lobby, in return for which the Studebaker Company furnished a car which taxied a red haired girl all over town. The girl distributed heralds announcing the arrival of the picture at the three houses. She concentrated in high schools, and distributed thousands of heralds to high school students. The automobile in which she rode than a card attached to spare time carried no advertisement other announcing "Hot Heiress"—no explanation, nothing but the name. The stunt appealed to the flappers.

New Title

Universal City — After a very thorough - going analysis, "The Flirt" has been definitely discarded by Universal as a title for its Booth Tarkington story. Out of some 450 possible names, the Universal title committee has chosen "Bad Sister" as being most representative of the thought which prompted Booth Tarkington to give his novel the title of "The Flirt."

FLASH THEATRE FRONT ON "ALOHA"

MANAGER GEORGE ROY of the State Theatre, Eugene, Oregon, displayed a fine sense of showmanship when he prepresented Tiffany's South Sea story, "Aloha," and was reimbursed at the box office.

Roy made very effective cutouts with the use of the twenty-four sheet and six-sheet and had them displayed prominently on the top of the marquee with a spotlight pointing from each corner ,giving it an attractive effect. He had two girls dressed in Hawaiian costumes standing alongside of the box office, presenting heralds and also attracting much attention.

The interior of his lobby was dressed in South Sea style.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN THEATRE EQUIPMENT

New Type Lens Turret From International

Practical in design, easy to adapt to all models of Simplex projectors, and attractive in appearance are among the descriptive details given by the International Projector Corporation of New York in connection with its new triple lens turret, just placed on the market.

Each of the three lens mounts may be separately adjusted both vertically and laterally and each may be separately focused; also, these lens mounts accommodate all makes and focal lengths of lenses either half or quarter size. It is only necessary to insert, adjust and focus three lenses of the desired focal lengths, after which any one of the three may be instantly swung onto the optical axis. One lens of the proper focal length may be used for silent or sound-on-film, and the third for Magnascope or other types of effect.

The turret proper is mounted in a substantial frame on four 90 degree V grooved rollers with provisions for taking up all end and radial play in rollers, thereby providing a free-turning turret which is rigidly supported and free from shake and vibration. With the turret a new film protector and gate latch assembly are furnished, the use of which eliminates the necessity of the projectionist placing his hand within the mechanism when closing the gate while threading. A mirror arrangement is also provided on the rear of each lens chamber by means of which the aperture may be observed for checking up on framing after film is threaded in place.

Carbon Cabinet

An all-metal handy carbon cabinet, consisting of three compartments, one tool drawer and one spacious compartment for miscellaneous items is being marketed by Neumade Products Corp. of New York City.

AIR-BLAST LAMP FROM ASHCRAFT

A new high intensity projection lamp, known as the Air-blast lamp and said to contain many advantageous features in its construction, has been put on the market by the Ashcraft Automatic Arc Co. of Hollywood.

Among the many features claimed for this lamp are: Two equalized contacts on each side that cannot oxidize or pit, protected from heat of the arc, and require no attention; a powerful and dependable automatic striker fully enclosed; arc image visible from both sides of lamp; a pyrex mirror cooled by air circulation; carbon release operating outside of lamphouse and closing automatically with door, and entire mechanism removable by sliding out rear of housing without use of tools, making it accessible for care or inspection.

The air cooling system of this new product is claimed one of the outstanding features in that the air blast is generated by a silent, powerful blower operated by the arc control motor. By a unique method, the air stream is diverted to all parts of the lamp and housing, lowering the operating temperature to such an extent that a perfect running machine is thereby maintained, entirely removing the destructive effects of the generated that of the arc. Not only is the air blast claimed a protective feature, but of more importance is the fact that it provides for a great increase of illumination by allowing a greater amount of current to be carried in the same diameter of carbon than formerly. Heretofore, it is said, lamps of the high intensity reflector type were only designed to operate at 72 amperes when using the 9 mm. electrode. With this new type, the normal current is 85 amperes, although its operation at 70 amperes is perfect and currents as high as 90 may be used with ease.

Every working part of the lamp, including contact shoes, carbon feed mechanism, bearings, shafts and gearing, as well as all current carrying leads, are entirely enclosed.

PORTABLE PHONE DEVICE A BOON TO DEAF PEOPLE

The Mears Portable Theatre Fone has been recently perfected for theatre use and should prove of interest to exhibitors who are seeking to regain the patronage of deaf persons who have been unable to enjoy talking pictures.

The Mears outfit is about the size of a small camera and requires no wiring of a reserved section in the theatre. It can be used in any part of an auditorium with equally good results. It is simple in operation, requiring only two small dry cell batteries, which can be replaced at a cost of ten cents each and which can be purchased at any drug store.

The Mears Radio Hearing Device Corporation, 45 West 34th St., New York City, is the manufacturer of this new portable device. E. H. Stoltz, president of the company, reports a great demand for this instrument.

"THEATRE EYE" CHECKS TICKETS

A new device recently placed on the market makes it possible for an up-to-date check on theatre admisions at all hours of the day. Keen enthusiasm was displayed last week by theatre and circuit officials who saw a demonstration of the new atetndance indicator, called the "Electric Eye Auditor," perfected by D. H. Fink of Chicago.

With the use of the indicator a constant check on theatre attendance will be maintained, thus greatly reducing the free admission evil. The device is especially helpful to circuit houses because connections with the home office can be made so that registers at the home office will tell how many admissions have entered individual theatres every half hour.

According to Fink the "electric eye" consists of G. E. photo-electric cells and an electric auditing machine, a product of the Ohmer Fare Register Co. It is placed at the entrance door to the theatre and will supply statistical information giving the exact number of patrons that have presented tickets to the doorman. Each half-hour the device makes a tape record giving the number of admissions, time, date, month, year, employer identification keys, auditor and daily turnback registers.

Each time a patron enters the theatre pilot lights connected to the device will go off an on as a signal. If placed in the manager's office he can tell by the flicker of his pilot light the business being done at the box office.

FIVE FROM F. N. - WARNERS IN MAY

Hollywood—Warner Bros. and First National will release five of their biggest and most pretentious features during May. The Warner releases will include "The Millionaire," the Earl Biggers-Booth Tarkington modern story of American life in which George Arliss will be seen; "The Public Enemy," a dramatic story with a big cast of notables; and "Svengali," the adaptation of Du Maurier's celebrated novel, "Trilby," with John Barrymore in the role of the hypnotist and Marian Marsh in that of Trilby.

First National's releases will be "Too Young to Marry," with Loretta Young and Grant Withers and "The Lady Who Dared," the principal roles in which will be played by Billie Dove and Conway Tearle.

What Do You Know About Vacuum Tubes?

The man who KNOWS seldom has to worry. Here are ten questions. Look them over, and for every one that you can answer correctly give yourself five points. Fifty is a perfect score. If you cannot get above thirty-five it shows that you need a reading course to brush up. Be honest with yourself in your scoring. Only a fool fools himself.

1. What is meant by Input and Output? 2. How is Output controlled? 3. Can Volume be controlled by a meter? 4. Has the rheostat in the exciter lamp circuit anything to do with output? 5. What is the difference between a rheostat and potentiameter? 6. What is the general principle of the Fader? 7. What is Cross Talk and how can you eliminate it. 8. What method is best for cleaning Fader Contacts? 9. Is it ever permissable to use sandpaper or emery cloth for cleaning Fader contacts? 10. What is an Output fader and in what way is it different from the usual or Input fader?

We're not going to give you the answers to these questions, the idea is to have you dig up the answers from your books, if you don't know. In that way you probably will never forget them.—(Reprinted from The American Projectionist)

READ WHAT ONE EXHIBITOR THINKS OF THE BETTER PICTURES CLUB STARTING NEXT WEEK IN THIS PUBLICATION.

"BOX OFFICE REPORTS FROM EXHIBITORS ARE 85% ACCURATE" Says J. W. Crabtree.

Gentlemen:

It was with much pleasure I noticed the forming of the Better Pictures Club. I think this feature alone is worth the price of subscription and more to any exhibitor, especially in small town situations.

As you know, these exhibitors' reports were carried in a trade journal of extensive coverage, but for some reason they discontinued same and replaced the exhibitors' reports with reports from their own reporters, which to me does not mean a thing. If the reporter happened to have the belly ache, the picture was bad; but if he had two shots of "what is it" under his belt the report was rosy no matter how terrible the picture was.

When I can see perhaps a dozen different reports on the same picture from exhibitors that are in the field fighting the game for bread and butter, then, I can have a pretty concise idea about what to expect. In the old reports, after allowing a little for prejudices, etc., I found they were at least 85% accurate. I considered the exhibitor reports as a part of my business. They let me know where to play the pictures relative to days; if they were bad and I could not exchange I could cut down to one day, etc.

I sincerely hope this Better Pictures Club goes over. Frankly, you are doing the exhibitors a valuable service in this.

I enclose a few reports on pictures recently played.

Yours truly,

METRO THEATRE,
Clarendon, Ark.

PUBLIX REFUSES TO PLAY CHAPLIN ON 50% SPLIT

Because of the stiff terms demanded by Chaplin, United Artists and Publix came to a parting of the ways over the new Chaplin picture, "City Lights."

The Chaplin picture is released independently of the United Artists' product which was bought in its entirety, otherwise, by Publix for the Twin Cities and whole Northwest circuit.

Unwilling to agree to a minimum 50 per cent split, Publix let the Chaplin picture get away to the RKO circuit for first-runs in Minneapolis and St. Paul, to Berger's Granada, an opposition house at Sioux Falls, S. D., and to the Granada in Duluth and Princess in Superior, independent theatres in direct competition with the Publix houses.

"City Lights" had enormous openings in both Minneapolis and St. Paul. It is expected to run at least three weeks in Minneapolis and two weeks in St. Paul.

LORENZ ASSISTANT MGR. OF FOX, MIL.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Jack Lorenz has succeeded Charles Koehler as assistant manager of the local Fox Film exchange. Mr. Lorenz was connected in a similar capacity with Fox in Minneapolis.

Gorilla Plug

Milwaukee, Wis.—Robert Gross, manager of Warner Bros.' Granada Theatre here, tied up traffic in front of the house in connection with an exploitation stunt featured at the time of the showing of "The Gorilla." Gross had a man, dressed as a gorilla, perform atop the canopy of the theatre, much to the amusement of the people passing by.

Omaha, Neb.—R. C. (Bob) Gary has assumed the position as manager of the Paramount Theatre here. Gary, until recently was operating the Des Moines Theatre at Des Moines. Prior to that he operated the Paramount Theatre, Des Moines, for the same period of time. Harold H. Sheridan, formerly associated with Fox in the East, has succeeded Gary, in Des Moines.

Century to Close March 31; Picture Situation Blamed

The surprise of the week in Twin City film circles was the sudden announcement by Publix that the Century Theatre in Minneapolis, one of the two leading Mill City houses, will close "for the summer" on March 31, following the completion of the two weeks' run of "East Lynne."

The Century remained opened throughout all last summer, following the installation of a new cooling and ventilating plant. It was closed, however, the summer before when it lacked a refrigerating system.

Business at the Century has nothing to do with the closing, as, it is said, the house has been operating on a profitable basis for the past few months. The move is due rather to the picture situation, according to L. J. Ludwig, Publix division manager.

"Admisson at the Century has been a flat 75c after 6:30 p. m., daily, the same as at the Minnesota," Mr. Ludwig explains. "There are only so many pictures suitable for use at such theatres. The difficulty has arisen to maintain our high screen standard at our loop houses and we decided the simplest way to solve the problem would be to close the Century and make more high grade pictures available for the other theatres."

Present plans call for the reopening of the Century next fall. It will be the second dark Minneapolis loop showhouse, Pantages having been closed practically all this season and having nothing in sight for the future. No other Northwest houses will be closed at this time, according to Mr. Ludwig. The earliness of the "summer closing" in the case of the Century is due in part to the extreme mildness of the weather and the belief that there will be an early summer.

Harold Kaplan, popular Century manager, will go to Rochester, Minn., temporarily to take charge of the three Publix theatres there. Ray Niles, who has been city manager at Rochester, leaves Publix to join the Finkelstein theatres in an executive capacity. Fay Tyler, Century publicity man, goes to Des Moines, Ia., to take over exploitation and publicity for all the Publix houses there.

RECRUITING MEMBERS

Milwaukee, Wis.—The newly formed Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Wisconsin is recruiting independent exhibitors both here and in the state to its cause. The organization anticipates a one hundred per cent representation in the state, but the outlook for Milwaukee is not so promising.

The newly-formed organization has applied for membership to Allied States and Al Steffes is expected in Milwaukee within a week to act upon this application.

SETTING DATES ON AFRICA SERIAL

Inquiries regarding the forthcoming Warner Brothers' serial, "Adventures in Africa," to be released in 12 chapters starting May 17, are already pouring in on the Warner Brothers' Minneapolis exchange, despite the fact that the release date for the serial is still more than a month away.

"We find the demand for a good serial surprisingly heavy throughout the territory and it already is a certainty that 'Adventures in Africa' will go over with a bang," said L. E. Goldhammer, Warner Brothers-First National exchange manager.

"Exhibitors say that patrons today want action pictures with lots of thrills. 'Adventures in Africa' will fill the bill, giving the public what it wants."

SHOWER PRAISE ON "DIRIGIBLE"

In Minneapolis on a tour of inspection, Phil Dunas, midwest and middle states' sales manager for Columbia, pepped up everybody at the local exchange on "Dirigible" which Dunas declares to be one of the greatest pictures ever and certain to smash box-office records throughout the territory.

A print of the picture is due any day and, upon its arrival, Ben Marcus, Columbia exchange manager in Minneapolis, plans to have an elaborate pre-view at the RKO Orpheum Theatre, inviting out-of-town exhibitors and other guests.

Columbia is considering roadshowing the picture in Minneapolis, but has not yet reached a definite decision in the matter, according to Marcus.

BUSINESS GOOD, SAYS TOM BURKE

The biggest business in the history of the Minneapolis Tiffany exchange is being experienced at present, with three of its newest releases, "Hell Bound," "The Single Sin" and "Drums of Jeopardy," in exceptionally large demand throughout the entire territory. Tom Burke is the present Tiffany exchange manager in Minneapolis and he has been making things hum since he left United Artists, where he also held down the exchange managerial job.

GOLDHAMMER TO TAKE VACATION

L. E. Goldhammer, Warner Brothers and First National exchange manager in Minneapolis, leaves for a month's vacation on April 1. He will spend the vacation in California, attending the Warner Brothers-First National sales' convention at San Francisco the last of April.

Four salesmen from the Minneapolis Warner Brothers-First National exchange will attend the San Francisco sales' convention as guests of their employers. It will be a two weeks' trip with all expenses paid.

Cress Returning

Friends of Cress Smith are congratulating him upon his appointment by Pathe to the position of district manager in the northwest territory, succeeding R. S. Ballantyne. Smith formerly was with the United Artists' Northwest office.

Distributors' Stand on Tie-in of Shorts Aimed at Brookhart

Sales Heads Declare They Are Opposed to Alleged Practice; Give Written Statements to M. P. T. O. A.

New York—A strong factor in the fight against the Brookhart bill,, according to M. P. T. O. A. officials is the declaration of distributors against the tying in of features and short subjects. Sales heads of major distributors have given the exhibitors' association written statements of policy opposing the alleged practice, it is reported.

M. A. Lightman, president of M. P. T. O. A., declares that the alleged practice of tying in features with shorts would be used as a strong argument in favor of the Brookhart measure by those who are supporting the bill, which will come before Congress in December.

M. P. T. O. A. has taken a stand against the bill, while Allied has expressed itself in favor of it.

ANIMAL SHORTS FROM COLUMBIA

New York — To add diversity to its coming season's lineup of shorts, Clumbia Pictures will augment its program with a series of thirteen single reel animal comedies, which will be directed and supervised by Bryan Foy, well known screen actor-author-producer. The films will consist of hilarious stories, with trained animals taking the place of human actors. In place of animal sounds, human voices will be synchronized to fit the action. An entire menagerie containing an assortment of animals including: lions, tigers, giraffes, dogs and cats will be used.

HUGHES TO MAKE AVIATION COMEDY

Hollywood — Howard Hughes' next picture, following his sensational newspaper film, "The Front Page," will be an original aviation comedy, as yet untitled.

The air film will go into production on April 6, under direction of Edward Sedgwick, M-G-M's ace comedy director, who has been borrowed for the occasion.

Robert Benchley, famous magazine and screen writer, is polishing off the script of an extremely humorous and original story, which has been months in preparation, and casting will get under way shortly.

HOFFMAN AND BACHMAN FORM PRODUCING FIRM

New York—M. H. Hoffman and J. G. Bachman are organizing a new production and distribution company which will have 18 features for the 1931-32 season. Distribution will be handled by independent exchanges under an arrangement by which Bachman and Hoffman will be interested. The company will begin active operation in about five weeks, the men announced last week.

PARAMOUNT TO START ON SHORTS

New York—Production of one-and-two-reel subjects for the 1931-1932 season will get under way at Paramount'e New York studio on March 30, Larry Kent, head of the short subject deparment, announced last week.

The initial production will be a one-reel comedy, "One Hundred Percent Service," starring Burns and Allen, vaudeville headliners and veterans of several previous Paramount comedies.

Among the other players who are scheduled to appear before the cameras during the first six weeks of production are Ethel Merman, Mitchell and Durant, The Hage Trio, Tom Howard, Billy House, Smith and Dale, George Dewey Washington, Ben Blue and Charlie Ruggles. The latter will continue his feature roles simultaneously with his two-reel stellar appearances.

According to the production schedule mapped out by Kent, three reels per week will be filmed during the coming season. In practice this may mean either three one-reel productions or a two-reeler and a single-reel picture. Ray Cozine and Aubrey Scotto will alternate on directorial assignments and Max Hayes will supervise and stage all dialogue.

82 Tiffany Shorts

New York — Tiffany will have 82 short subjects for the new season, Grant Cook said last week. Sixty of these will be single-reelers, Chimp comedies, Voice of Hollywood and the Howard Jones football series will comprise the program.

AUTOMATICS GET MONEY AT OPENER

New York—The Translux Theatre, automatic pictures, opened last week and according to reports the idea is working out successfully. Business is said to be building each day and with an admission of 25 cents, which is put into a slot, film men believe the experiment may be more than just a novelty. The theatre opened last week is the first of a chain planned by Trans-lux.

Fox Dividend

New York — At a meeting of the board of directors of the Fox Film Corporation held Wednesday, March 18, the regular quarterly dividend of $1 was declared on the A and B stock. It is payable on April 15 to stockholders of record of March 31.

Recovering

Hollywood—Wes Ruggles, who suffered a breakdown from strenuous work on "Cimarron," is reported to be on his feet at his Malibu beach home raring to get back to work on his new directorial opus for Radio Pictures, "Cock-eyed Youth," and original story written by him.

RKO-PATHE SALES CONVENTION SET

New York — Lee Marcus' anannouncement that the first sales convention of RKO-Pathe will be the first general sales meeting of the season in the industry has more than the average significance, for at these sessions to be held in Chicago on April 20,21 and 22 will be revealed the policy, sales and production plans of the newest motion picture organization, which has been reared upon the foundation of the industry's oldest company and inherits all its valued traditions. It is also significant in that the occasion will serve to introduce to the entire sales organization Ned Depinet, the recently appointed sales chief, President Marcus, Charles R. Rogers, production head, and other executives of the company.

Marcus reiterated his recently announced plans for twenty-one specials offering Constance Bennett, Ann Harding, Helen Twelvetrees, Bill Boyd and Eddie Quillan in four vehicles each and Ina Claire in one.

Discusing the short product, Marcus stated that the company had several stimulating surprises in the new product way which will be announced for the first time at the Chicago convention. In all 256 short subjects will be released. Of this number there will be 208 single reels, including Pathe News and the successful Van Beuren-produced group, Aesop's Fables, Vagabond Adventures and Grantland Rice Sportlights. Forty-eight two-reel comedies will be produced with box-office comedians featured.

Monogram Completes New Organization

New York—The complete organization of Monogram Pictures Corporation, with several new and distinct organization features which make this one of the most interesting of the season's independent developments, was completed and announced last week by W. Ray Johnston, president and general manager of the company.

The new plan calls for the issue of seventy-five hundred shares of no par value stock, available to a closely limited number of stockholders. Each of these stockholders will be independent distributing agencies, operating under a perpetual franchise, to distribute all Monogram-produced product, with a plan whereby each franchise holder must be a stockholder and, with the provision that his stock cannot be sold or transferred except to the corporation or other existing stockholders, the plan creates out of Monogram's distribution forces virtually a national organization closely knit under one banner.

Offices in twenty separate territories insure coast-to-coast coverage. An office in Canada and one for foreign distribution provides for extra American commerce.

The officers of the now completely organized company are as follows: W. Ray Johnston, president and general manager; Trem Carr, vice-president for production; Harry H. Thomas, vice-president for exchanges; James V. Ritchey, vice-president for foreign; Albert Fiedler, treasurer; J. P. Friedhoff, assistant treasurer, and M. S. White, secretary.

Monogram's home office will be on the tenth floor of 723 Seventh avenue, New York City.

PICTURE BUSINESS

WITH the congress adjourned until next December the industry has nothing to worry about in the way of national legislation until then. But all is not so quiet on the legislative fronts in many state capitals. While a great many pernicious bills have been defeated by aggressive exhibitor defensives, there are still a large number pending in various state legislatures that will not be abandoned until their sessions end, in some cases as late as June.

Those exhibitor leaders who have camped "down among 'em" in the halls where the attacks were waged deserve the highest commendation. Where adverse legislation has been defeated they have saved their fellow exhibitors many thousands of dollars—taxation which would have put the industry into a chaotic condition, perhaps beyond recovery. And those exhibitors who worked with their leaders either at home or right on the battle ground also deserve congratulations. On those fronts where the battles are still waging the efforts to defeat anti-legislation should go on as strong as ever. There must be no let down now, even if some victories have been scored. Legislation against the motion picture industry, in the states or at Washington, is as perennial as flowers in spring. The defense must maintain its strength until the very last minute of any session. It's a big job and a tough one, but it's one that cannot be shirked without untold damage resulting. And, as we have before stated, it's one task where exhibitor, producer and distributor must join hands and work as one.

THE announcement by Radio Pictures that it will maintain its own staff of checkers and that it will be composed of men who have been trained to help exploit the checked picture should be a welcome bit of news to all exhibitors. RKO is just a youngster in the producing and distributing end of the picture industry, but it has from the start demonstrated to its older fellow producers and distributors that it understands the value of merchandising as it applies to selling picture entertainment to the public.

Some years ago practically every large company maintained an extensive field force of exploitation men who were constantly servicing exhibitors in their efforts to build larger box office receipts. In this day when percentage booking is in such general use it would seem that a re-instatement of such a service would be most appropriate. It would be a mutual service that would add to the profits of both distributors and exhibitors. We congratulate RKO for having come forward with this progressive step.

THE new selling season gets an earlier start this year. All sales guns are primed for a heavy assault on Mr. Film Buyer. From indications so far it looks like they're loaded with good ammunition. Anyhow, exhibitors are all anxious to see what the new season will bring and they hope for more consistent picture quality than the current season gave them.

"QUOTES"

JOSEPH PLUNKETT
RKO Theatres Chief

"Gangster stories are popular with the public because of so much newspaper space being devoted to racketeering. The next cycle probably will be detective mystery stories. Sex yarns are passe. There will be a return to musicals, but they will have a dramatic story as a reason for their existence."

"City Lights" Breaks House Records Here

Minneapolis (week ending March 27)—Business was splendid at most loop theatres last week. Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights" is proving a box-office knockout. Hundreds were turned away at its premiere and there were overflows all day Saturday and Sunday. The initial week's gross broke the house record and the picture should be good for at least three weeks. Celebrating its third anniversary with an extra big show and a dandy screen attraction, "Honor Among Lovers," the Minnesota also did well. Business was good enough at the Century to warrant the retention of "East Lynne" for a second successive week. With "Ten Cents a Dance" and "Gentlemen's Fate" both clicking nicely, the RKO Orpheum and the State had nothing to complain about.

Aster—The Hot Heriess (First National), Ben Lyon and Ona Munson. Business: Fair. Summary: A comedy about the romance of a riveter and a society heiress; not so hot. Entertainment Merits: 70 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; serial.

Century — East Lynne (Fox), Ann Harding, Clive Brook and Conrad Nagel. Business: Good. Summary: Strong cast in the tear-wringing drama of the misunderstood wife who took the wrong way out. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Cartoon Comedy.

Minnesota—Honor Among Lovers (Paramount), Frederic March and Claudette Colbert. Business: Good. Summary: The intriguing story of what happened when an attractive girl married the wrong man. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage Show; Sound News; Fashion Reel.

Lyric — Don't Bet on Women (Fox), Edmund Lowe, Jeanette MacDonald and Una Merkel. Business: Good. Summary: A light comedy concerning a conceited young man's $10,000 wager that he can kiss another man's wife. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; Screen Vaudeville.

RKO Orpheum — Ten Cents a Dance (Columbia), Barbara Stanwyck. Business: Good. Summary: An interesting drama of the predicament of a young girl when she finds that the man she has married is a thief and rotter. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville; Sound News; Golf Reel.

RKO Seventh St.—City Lights (United Artists), Charlie Chaplin. Business: Very big. Summary: Chaplin at his best in this corking silent comedy about a tramp and his romance; a few tears and many laughs. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy.

State—Gentlemen's Fate (M-G-M), John Gilbert and Louis Wolheim. Business: Good. Summary: An underworld drama with a lot of action and wth Gilbert giving one of his best talkie performances yet. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; Screen Vaudeville.

MILWAUKEE

Garden—City Lights (U. A.), Charlie Chaplin. Business: Fair. (Ended second week). Entertainment Merits: 95 per cent. Short Subjects: Hearst Metrotone News and Vitaphone short.

Strand—East Lynne (Fox), Ann Harding, Conrad Nagel. Business: Fair (ended second week). Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy and Fox Movietone News.

Riverside—Kept Husbands (Radio), Dorothy Mackaill, Joel McCrea. Business: Fair. Summary: A rather tiresome offering kept alive by Miss Mackaill's witty lines and Ned Sparks' humor.

Majestic—Captain Thunder (W. B.), Victor Varconi, Fay Wray. Business: Poor. Summary: This piece is all about early Mexico with romantic ladies and gentlemen. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Pathe News; Vitaphone short.

Alhambra—Not Exactly Gentlemen (Fox), Victor McLaglen, Fay Wray. Business: Fair. Summary: Somewhat of a take-up on "Cimarron," not so well done or acted. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Music Master Series, "Handel," Universal Newsreel, "Leather Pushers" series.

Wisconsin—Dance, Fools, Dance (M-G-M), Joan Crawford, Lester Vail. Business: Good. Summary: A thoroughly melodramatic and highly spiced picture, appealing to the younger set. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon & Marco Idea; Fox Newsreel.

Palace — Lttle Caesar (First National), Edward G. Robinson, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Business: Fair. Summary: A smart gangster melodrama with a superb characterization by Robinson. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Johnny Arthur in "Parading Pajamas," Lee Morse in "Song Service," Pathe News.

THEATRE ASKS REFUND FROM CITY FOR LOSS CAUSED BY POWER FAILURE

Manitowoc, Wis.—The right of three Wisconsin theatres to collect from the city of Manitowoc for money and tickets refunded to patrons when electrical current at the local utility fails during a performance, is involved in a claim just filed by one of the theatres against the Manitowoc public utilities commission.

When a steam pipe at the Manitowoc public utility plant burst at 9:30 o'clock Saturday evening, March 7, the three theatres were hard hit by the sudden city-wide breakdown of power and light circuits.

At the Capitol there was a large turnout for the midnight show and the final showing of the Saturday evening feature had not been concluded when the picture faded from the screen and the talking voices of Leon Erroll and Mitzi Green suddenly died to a whisper and then were stilled entirely.

Flashlights were brought into play and it was announced that the power would be on again in a few minutes. An hour went by without relief. Manager Guiterman initiated community singing and other stunts to keep the audience interested. Finally, shortly before midnight, the crowd dispersed.

At the Mikadow Theatre the 9 o'clock audience never did see the final fadeout of Jeanette McDonald and Edmund Lowe. Here, too, flashlights and candles were called into play in the expectation that the normal supply of electricty would be resumed shortly. But after waiting about half an hour the patrons departed.

It was the same at the Strand Theatre on the north side of Manitowoc. The sudden darkness ended the show. Refunds were made and in many instances tickets, entitling the holders to return on a later date, were given to disappointed customers.

Throughout the two and one-half hours the regular power was not available the three theatres and all the rest of Manitowoc—with one exception—were enveloped in darkness during the March blizzard that howled outside. The only place with electric lights that night, after the current failure, was the Holy Family Hospital, where a Kohler electric plant "cut in" automatically and furnished current until the normal supply was resumed.

None of the three Mantowoc theatres is equipped with such an emergency source of power and light.

SUNDAY ELECTION REFUSED

Wilmar, Minn.—The local city council refused to sanction an election on Sunday movies, despite the fact that 1,300 residents had signed a petition asking for such a referendum.

As a pretext for ignoring the petition, the aldermen pointed out that Sunday shows had been defeated on two different times and that the present time was not considered auspicious for another ballot on the question.

Theatre men here, anxious to operate on Sunday, circulated the petitions.

"DRACULA" A HIT IN N. W. TERRITORY

"Dracula," Universal's big hit, has been booked solid throughout the territory for April and May, it is reported by J. E. Garrison, Universal exchange manager in Minneapolis.

The picture is packing 'em in wherever it is being shown in the Northwest, according to Mr. Garrison. Despite the fact that it played the RKO Orpheum for its loop first run in Minneapolis, Publix booked it into its Uptown Theatre, ace neighborhood house, for a solid week and also will use it for a second loop run at the Grand.

Mr. Garrison has just returned from a trip into North Dakota where, he says, Universal pictures are receiving a fine reception.

PETE HARRISON SPEAKS ON THE INDUSTRY'S PRESS

Declaring that the box office reports as given by the Motion Picture Herald and Variety are inaccurate, "Harrison's Reports" of March 14 points out how the grosses on pictures in various cities vary in the two trade papers. The wide differences in dollars and cents reported by the Herald and Variety make the service rendered a useless one because of its inaccuracy, Harrison says.

"Pete" Harrison, long a champion of the independent theatre owner's cause, has established himself as a person to whom the smaller exhibitor can look for support and defense. "Pete" is on the job constantly as a sentry to guard against undesirable situations and, although radical in the minds of many, his observations and opinions are respected.

Further in regard to the trade paper situation, Harrison says:

"Do not be fooled! The producers know at all times how much each national trade paper means to them in advertising value; now and then they send out a questionnaire, either directly to the exhibitors, or to their field forces, and are told plainly and unmistakably how much each paper means to them. They have repeatedly found out that the exhibitors in most cases do not even take the wrappers off the national trade papers, but that they do read their regionals. A regional is the independent exhibitor's 'pal.' He reads it to learn about his fellow exhibitors and their problems. And yet the producers continue to spend money lavishly on the nationals and to starve the regionals. Do they fear them? If so, why?"

FLAGG AND QUIRT PREMIERE APR. 24

New York—The world premiere of "Women of All Nations," the riotous picture of the new adventures of Flagg and Quirt, will take place at the Roxy Theatre, April 24, according to an announcement by J. R. Garinger, vice-president in charge of distribution for Fox Film Corporation. The picture was completed this week under the direction of Raoul Walsh.

Supporting Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe in this film is a strong cast, which includes Greta Nissen, El Brendel, Fifi Dorsay, Marjorie White, T. Roy Barnes, Joyce Compton, Humphrey Bogart and Bela Lugosi. The locale of the story is world-wide, scenes being laid in Nicaragua, Panama, Sweden, Brooklyn and Turkey.

ONLY FOUR FILMS YET TO BE MADE OF 48 ON FOX 1930-31 SCHEDULE

Hollywood—Of the forty-eight pictures scheduled by Fox Film Corporation for the 1930-31 season, only four remain to be made.

Six pictures are now in production: "Women of All Nations," directed by Raoul Walsh with Edmund Lowe, Victor McLaglen, El Brendel and Greta Nissen featured; "Red Handed," the second Elissa Landi picture made in America; "Young Sinners," which marks the return to the screen of Thomas Meighan; "Riding for a Fall," featuring Spencer Tracy; and "Cure for the Blues," a George Ade story starring Will Rogers.

Two pictures are in preparation and will be ready soon for actual production: "Good Gracious, Annabelle," Jeanette MacDonald's next picture, and "Daddy Long Legs," in which Janet Gayner and Warner Baxter will be featured.

Within the last three weeks the following pictures have been finished at the Fox Film Studios and shipped to the New York offices: "Doctors' Wives," "Mr. Lemon of Orange," "Three Girls Lost," "Quick Millions," "Charlie Chan Carries On," "The Spy" and "Their Mad Moment."

The season's output included one special production, "East Lynne," which was not on the regular schedule.

"TWO FLAGS" TO BE "U" SPECIAL

Universal City — Carle Laemmle, Jr., announced last week that Ouida's famous novel, "Under Two Flags," will be picturized as one of next season's specials by Universal. While Laemmle, Jr., did not indicate who would play the role of "Cigarette" in this story of Algiers, it is understood that Sidney Fox is under consideration for the part.

Miss Fox, the Broadway ingenue who was discovered by Laemmle, Jr., last year and is making her screen debut in "Bad Sister," has been loaned to the Fox organizaton for "Six Cylinder Love," following which she will return to the Universal lot.

HARRY GOLD TO NEW U. A. POST

New York — Al Lichtman has announced that Harry L. Gold, his assistant since last August, has been appointed assistant general manager of United Artists Corporation. Gold embraced his new duties with the departure of his chief.

Hays Sees Cultural Trend in Pictures

New York — In an interview with Will Hays given out last week, the president of the M. P. P. D. A. forecasts a decided advancement of motion pictures as a medium of information, education and cultural source. Improvement in general entertainment values will remain foremost and selectivity will come in on a greater scale than ever before, Hays declares.

In reply to a query on what are the directions of development now open to the screen, Will Hays said:

"First, I would say, is the continuing improvement of motion pictures as a general entertainment medium. It is to the glory of the screen that it has been able to democratize the entertainment of the stage, the concert hall and even the opera to the millions of our people. The industry must leave nothing undone to effect continuous and steady progress in the quality of motion picture entertainment. Every advanced step taken in this direction, although some pictures acclaimed by critical opinion have failed of public support, is a step in the direction of creating higher standards of public appreciation.

"Second, I believe, is the continued improvement of the film as a medium of information. The newsreel already has established itself as a world-wide service that supplements the printed word. There is no saturation point in the informative services required by the human mind, and an increasingly larger vista is opened up to the newsreel by the combination of sound and motion now available through the screen.

"Third is the increasing development of the screen as an educational medium. Through the industry's co-operation, medical films, school films and popular educational films are already being produced, but the problem is still to be met upon a scale commensurate with its importance. The next decade, I believe, will show the full measure of the industry's contribution to all these pioneering efforts.

"The fourth development that now beckons to the motion picture industry is the field of selective entertainment directed to specific cultural groups. A Shakespearean cycle in the movies? Not at all improbable through such development. The classic dramas of literature? Sound and motion, color and perspective, bring these nearer to achievement on the screen. It is a tribute to the really fine pictures produced for popular entertainment during recent years that there should be growing interest in productions that would appeal to more selective audiences —for the translation of the highest possible entertainment, musical and cultural values to the screen."

Hays also rapped the ravings of incompetent film critics, the circulation of incorrect and irresponsible statements about American pictures abroad, and the busybody practice of pamphleteering against pictures to serve the cause of politcal censorship. He cited the fact that, in the last Film Daily poll of the Ten Best Pictures, the critics of the country named 54 films as worthy of a position on this roll, meaning that 54 outstanding productions, better than one a week, were turned out during the year.

Answering a statement about a high number of American pictures having been barred from Canada and Australia, Hays quoted figures showing that in the course of a year not a single picture was kept out of every Canadian province, although some were rejected by from one to seven individual provinces. Only three pictures, however, were turned down by as many as seven provinces and the same number by six provinces. Australian rejections amounted to only 2 per cent for the year.

RADIO CONVENTION ON COAST APR. 27

New York — Radio Pictures' sales convention will take place in Hollywood, April 27, according to an announcement by Joseph I. Schnitzer, president of the company.

This will be the largest gathering of the Radio Pictures distributing clan to date since the birth of this company. Every exchange manager and salesman from the company's forty distributing centers in as many cities in the United States and Canada will attend the convention. Three private cars, containing Radio Pictures offícals and staff, will be joined by a special train in Chicago en route for the Hollywood convention. It is estimated that over 250 will be in the party.

Holding the distributing destinies of this company in their hands, under Joseph I. Schnitzer, president, are Charles Rosenzweig, vice president in charge of production; Frand O'Heron, vice-president in charge of operations; Jerome Safron, general sales manager of the East; Cleve Adams, general sales manager of the West, and Ambrose S. Dowling, general manager of foreign export.

Building adult patronage through the
is an unfailing plan that

(If you have no dull nights—congratulations!)

EACH boy and girl in your drawing radius will bring you 24 paid adult admissions in exchange for one of these 3-Wheel Safety Scooters. The Scooters are regular $3.00 retail values—the kind kids are bothering their parents for money to buy. And sometimes that money comes out of the family "talkie" budget, too, and parents miss shows they ought to see.

In the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN you get these identical scooters to offer every kid in your drawing radius—and you get them at factory price of $1.12 each. This offer is open to all chain and independent theatres in the U. S. We do not sell these Scooters to retail trade, but only through our premium plans. The SCOOTER-NITE PLAN will only cost you a fraction of what you can and often do spend on exploitation stunts that have nothing like the possibilities of permanently built up business, which the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN provides. You make friends with SCOOTER-NITE.

Most exhibitors work "SCOOTER-NITE" two or more days a week. For example, if the exhibitor finds Mondays and Thursdays are his dull nights, he works SCOOTER-NITE for those days; or if he should run the same picture two days in succession, he makes Mondays and Tuesdays, or Thursdays and Fridays, his SCOOTER-NITES. The quicker he gives away these Free Scooters the more advertising he gets through the children using them and showing them to their friends, relatives and neighbors. As long as the Scooters last—and they are of steel construction so will last indefinitely—you will be getting advertising value from them; children are proud to mention that they EARNED the Scooter at your theatre.

Children won't let their parents, relatives or friends alone until they have helped fill the Record Card. The Record Card is a card bearing the name of your theatre and with twenty-four printed squares on one side, in which your cashier or doorman stamps—with rubber stamp which we furnish—a square for each adult admission brought by the child. For example, if the child brought in four adults, the child would get four of the squares stamped.

When all twenty-four of the squares are filled the child turns in his Record Card and receives one of the 3-Wheel Safety Scooters. No strings—no contest. Every child has equal opportunity. You run no risk of disappointing anyone. You issue Scooters only for completely filled cards.

How to Order for Scooter-Nite Plan

Required starting order is 24 Scooters. You can best estimate the number you may require, but your first order must be at least for 24. Four Record Cards are furnished free, imprinted with your theatre name, for each Scooter ordered; thus on minimum order you would receive free 96 Record Cards. Heralds imprinted with theatre name, are furnished for $3.00 per thousand. A 120 -ft. Trailer is loaned for two weeks only, and a deposit of $3.60 is required if Trailer is desired. This deposit is returned to theatre on return of Trailer.

COSTS YOU LESS THAN $4\frac{2}{3}$ CENTS PER ADMISSION

To illustrate: The Scooters costs the exhibitor $1.12 each. There are 24 stamps on Record Card. 4-2/3c times 24 equals $1.12. Therefore cost to exhibitor is 4-2/3c per admission. Once a Scooter is awarded and appears in a neighborhood, youngsters' jealousy is started and no child will be content until he or she has received one of the 3-wheel Safety Scooters, free from your theatre. You will be proud to make this offer. It's fair and square.

Compare this tried and proved plan with any other. Judge it on your knowledge as a showman.

An Open Letter To

Motion Picture Exhibitors

March 31st, 1931.

To Motion Picture Exhibitors:

For nearly nine years this publication has been issued weekly with the honest attempt to be representative of everything beneficial to you and to acquaint you with local and national events of importance.

We have tried to make you feel that it was your medium of keeping in touch with things vital to the industry of which you are a part.

Our columns are, and always have been, accessible for you to use as a forum for open discussion of any of the industry's difficult problems.

During our term of existence this business of selling motion picture entertainment to the public has gone through many strange and remarkable phases. We have witnessed, since its inception in the trade paper field, the birth and growth of the talking picture which, in its newness, required that you, as an exhibitor, keep constantly in touch with what was going on in the world of motion picture science.

This publication has endeavored to keep you advised of these many changes as soon as they occurred so that you would benefit by early knowledge of current happenings.

Legislation and legal rulings affecting this industry have been published from time to time so that you would know immediately where you stood on these subjects.

These are only a few of the many departments through which this publication has endeavored to be an aid to you in profitably conducting your business.

We shall continue along these lines and welcome any suggestions from any exhibitor, whether a small independent or a member of a large circuit, that they feel should be carried out as part of our policy in trying to give you the greatest possible assistance.

In return for this we have merely asked you to mail us $2.00 for a year's subscription of 52 issues, less than 4c per week.

If you have not already subscribed, just pin a two-dollar bill to your letter head or business card and mail to your obedient servant,

M. E. CUFFELL, Editor,

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PICTURES

FEATURES AND SHORT SUBJECTS

PICTURE OF THE WEEK

Dishonored

Paramount—90 Mins.

Cast: Marlene Dietrich, Victor McLaglen, Warner Oland, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Barry Norton, Lew Cody, Davison Clark, Wilfred Lucas, Bill Powell. Directed by Josef von Sternberg.

If your patrons care for spy melodramas here is one they should like. In the short time Marlene Dietrich has been in the films—first as a success in "Morocco," again as a hit in "The Blue Angel," scores again as a spy in this thrilling war drama. For the first time Victor McLaglen is seen in a Paramount picture and he is excellent in his role as a Russian general opposite the alluring Dietrich.

The story, written as well as directed by Josef von Sternberg, opens with Dietrich as a woman of the streets who is hired by the chief of the Austrian secret service as a spy. Her adventures are interestingly portrayed. How she undergoes exciting experiences for the sake of her country and is finally court-martialed for letting McLaglen go free, form most of the plot, dramatized in a fascinating manner.

The picture has everything to make it box office—names, direction and story. Personally we don't think the average movie fan will care for the tragic ending. But the picture has some stirring war scenes and music added for effects to give the photoplay a fascinating touch.—J. S.

Doctor's Wives

Fox—78 Minutes

Cast: Warner Baxter, Joan Bennett, Victor Varconi, Helene Millard, Paul Porcasi, Nancy Gardner, John St. Polis, Cecelia Loftus, George Chandler, Violet Dunn, Ruth Warren, Louise Mackintosh, William Maddox. Directed by Frank Borzage.

An unusual film with Warner Baxter as a young surgeon whose wife (Joan Bennett) gets to believe that "the patient is the common enemy of every doctor's wife." She falsely accuses her husband of infidelity and, because she believes it true, accepts the love of another man (Victor Varconi). She becomes disgusted with her actions and becomes a nurse to try and win back her self-respect. When her husband is called in to perform a delicate operation on her lover she realizes his greatness and gets a new understanding as to why a doctor's time is not always at his wife's disposal.

Delicate situations are well handled and although not advised for the younger generation it has many good qualities in entertainment value. Miss Bennett's wardrobe will especially appeal to the feminine trade which is sure to be drawn in by the title. Settings are elaborate and no detail in modern medical equipment has been omitted. Cecelia Loftus as the cigar smoking aunt furnishes the only comedy relief.—Southwell.

Fifty Million Frenchmen

Warner Bros.—71 Minutes

Cast: Olsen and Johnson, William Gaxton, John Halliday, Helen Broderick, Claudia Dell, Lester Crawford, Charles Judels, Carmelita Geraghty, Nat Carr, Vera Gordon, Norman Philips, Jr. Directed by Lloyd Bacon.

This all-Technicolor screen adaptation of the stage play gives the vaudeville comedy team of Olsen and Johnson in the character of two fake detectives a fine chance to disport themselves in a laughable manner. The plot is laid in Paris and concerns a wager made by one American tourist that another cannot get himself engaged to an American beauty who also is in Paris.

The song and dance numbers in the stage show are missing but not missed. It retains all the spice and several of the wisecracks totter at the border line and often go over—on the wrong side. Helen Broderick, as an American tourist who wants to see the worst, shares the hot lines with the comedy team. She is from the orignal stage cast as are also William Gaxton and Lester Crawford. There is a very swell chase sequence that has never before been done in all the years of pictures. Olsen and Johnson are after their "men" and the whole police force of Paris is after the two detectives. They rush madly through the streets and literally slide their way for several blocks, push through fresh asphalt and when the traffic gets tied up, the pursuers continue on from taxi-top to taxi-top.

A bit sophisticated in dialogue but highly entertaining from a comedy angle.—Southwell.

The Tailor Made Man

M-G-M—70 Minutes

Cast: William Haines, Dorothy Jordan, Joseph Cawthorn, Marjorie Rambeau, William Austin, Ian Keith, Hale Hamilton, Hedda Hopper, Henry Armetta, Walter Walker, Forrester Harvey, Joan Marsh, Martha Sleeper. Directed by Sam Wood.

William Haines is here seen in another wisecracking role—not so good as some and better than others of its predecessors.

This is a family type picture. No one can take offense at a single word or a single situation in it. Neither can anyone get hilariously enthusiastic over the wisecracking pants presser of William Haines whose philosophy of life is that clothes make the man.

To prove it he borrows a dress suit from one of the customers, crashes a swell party and makes such an impression on the financial wizard who is the lion of the party that he draws a big job from him. His initial success in the world of big money is shattered when a jealous suitor exposes him as an imposter.

A plan to save the wizard from the proverbial crash works just in time to save Haines' job and to win the tailor's daughter from the jealous suitor.

Haines smiles through the role which is pleasing and fairly entertaining but is one which will not add greatly either to his reputation as an actor or to his popularity as a film star.

Joseph Cawthorne supplies the comedy as the owner of the tailor shop in which Haines presses pants, and as father of the girl whom Haines loves.

Dorothy Jordan is satisfactory as Tanya, the tailor's daughter, and Ian Keith, as the unsuccessful rival for her hand, plays the only heavy character in a story full of laughs. Sam Woods directed.—Elsie Loeb.

Not Exactly Gentlemen

Fox—60 Minutes

Cast: Victor McLaglen, Fay Wray, Lew Cody, Eddie Gribbon, Robert Warwick, Franklyn Farnum, David Worth, Carol Wines, Joyce Compton, Louise Huntington, James Farley. Directed by Benjamin Stoloff.

McLaglen goes "Western" in this film from the book "Over the Border" and gets the opportunity to display his fistic abilities in a bar-room brawl.

Story is one of the land rushes of the pioneer days so prevalent in many of the recent films. McLaglen as one of a trio of "bad men" with a price on their heads leads them to the rescue of a settler who is taking some racing horses to the border to enable him to make fast time when the starting gun is fired to start the rush and reach a gold mine which he has a map of. The settler is killed in the fracas but the trio finds his young daughter (Fay Wray) has saved the map. They cast their lot with her to help her stake the claim. When a notorious saloon keeper plots to steal the map the fights begin. He finally succeeds in abducting the girl and securing the map but the trio, after a rough and tumble fight, rescues her and start for the border line just as the rush has begun. With the race horses they go after the saloon keeper and arrive at the mine location together. Another fight results in the saloon keeper being knocked over a cliff. The girl stakes the claim just as the sheriff arrives in search of the trio who make a get-away.

Nothing outstanding to rate this above the average in entertainment value.—Southwell.

One Day To Live

Universal—20 Minutes

This is a fairly good short subject. In the cast are Emerson Tracey, Margaret Adams, Jack Duffy, Eddie Foyer and Nena Quarteno. Jack Duffy as the doctor who diagonses Tracey furnishes most of the comedy. The story is about a young man, believing he has only one day to live, tries to make the most of it by having a good time with a bunch of chorines at a night club. He is so busy enjoying himself that he forgets that he has asked his obedient servant to shoot him when the clock strikes 12. Here is where most of the comedy comes in. Most audiences should like this two-reeler.—J. S.

BY THE MERCHANDISER

The Merchandiser Says

IT has been said many times that regardless of how good a picture is, it has to be exploited to get the business it deserves. Exploitation is essential but in many cases it is costly. The average independent exhibitor cannot afford to spend a great deal of money to exploit and advertise, despite the fact that publicity is such an important factor of this business.

Therefore, when an exhibitor puts over an extensive, profitable and clever campaign at a minimum cost, he has accomplished something. But why keep it a secret? There are thousands of other exhibitors who have booked the same picture which he has exploited so successfully and economically. These exhibitors would like to know how he did it.

We recently received a letter from a successful small town exhibitor in the south who said: "I notice now that another trade magazine has a 'manager's club.' This is O. K. but what does it amount to for the small exhibitor who possibly cannot afford to spend more than $5 or $10 for advertising and exploitation?"

And that's just what we're driving at. Circuits can afford to spend young fortunes for exploitation, but the smaller independents know only too well just how much they can spend in order to come out on the right side of the books.

Have you ever put over a wow of a campaign for as little as $5? It takes smart showmanship and careful planning but it can be done—and it is being done. If you have worked a stunt, or a series of stunts, on a single picture which brought in big business at an advertising cost of $5 or less, we want to print the story. In a few weeks the merchandising page of this publication will be devoted entirely to "$5 stunts." We want your campaign to be included. Shoot us the story of how you did it. Others will profit by it and you will profit by the campaigns of others.

Don't delay—send us that story today.

—The Merchandiser.

APPAREL TIE-UP FARRELL SERIES

THEATRES booking the RKO-Pathe's Johnny Farrell golf series will have the merchandising co-operation of some 3,000 department stores, sports and other links apparel dealers carrying the McGregor line of sportswear through a national tie-up with the D. D. Doniger Company.

Farrell is being featured in a deluxe window card in action poses from his film subjects and a space is allowed for local sniping of playdates and theatre names. These cards will be the focal point around which special window displays will be centered. The stock poster issued by RKO-Pathe on the series is also suitable for display in these special windows. Special mats of Farrell making a perfect swing are being issued to each McGregor dealer for use in his newspaper advertisements in connection with the local window displays, both timed with the playdates. In addtion, the Doniger Company is featuring Farrell and the picture tie-up on the front cover of 60,000 special booklets to be broadcast to all sports wear dealers. A publicity campaign in behalf of the co-operative tie-up will be featured by Doniger in sporting goods publications to promote dealers to team with theatre exploiteers.

PRESS HEADLINE AROUSES INTEREST

WHEN inhabitants of the town of Menominee, Mich., looked at their morning papers one day last week they were electrified by an eight-column headline:

Police Hunt Costello Slayer!

They were shocked, too, for the amazing news signified that Chicago had moved its gangland activities in their otherwise peaceful midst. But further reading proved the story to be a swell publicity stunt on the part of Manager M. Rosenblatt of Lloyd's Theatre for "Costello Case," current Sono Art-World Wide special.

Manager Rosenblatt had made a deal with the local Herald-Leader to run off a measureable number of copies with the headline in question, and early the morning of its issuance had a flock of boys deliver them to the doors of residences. With the exception of the head line, the full paper was an exact duplicate of the regular edition issued that day.

The scarehead was tied up with a large ad on "Costello Case" in the amusement section.

WESTERN UNION TIEUP ON "CODE"

LOUIS Lamm, manager of the Palace Theatre, Lorain, Ohio, used Western Union to tell about "The Criminal Code." The tie-up proved its effectiveness in extra dividends at the box-office.

Lamm had a self-addressed telegram sent to his theatre by Columbia with Walter Houston's signature. The telegram read, "'The Criminal Code,' a Columbia Picture, is I believe my greatest picture to date Stop Phillips Holmes and Constance Cummings co-star. H-D-T-C-C-A-P—S-D-T-M-C-A-S."

The jumbled letters preceded Houston's signature in a contest that gave the telegram an excellent follow-up at the box-office.

THE PROJECTIONIST'S RESPONSIBILITIES

From the manufacture of raw film the process leading up to the production of the finished print are of purely academic interest to the projectionist, but from the moment he receives the reels of film from the exchange he is reponsible for the rest of its journey, from the celluloid to his audience.

In his projection room is apparatus no less delicate than that used in the various processes of production, and equally capable of ruining reproduction if any one of the numerous components should fall short of perfection.

It is regarded without question that today more than ever the projectionist runs the show. But at the same time it is a fact insufficiently realized by the operators themselves, and if the operator does not realize it, it is up to his manager to see that he does so.

In saying that the projectionist runs the show, it should perhaps be said that his apparatus does so. But since the talkie set capable of running with unskilled attention has not yet been evolved, it is vitally necessary that the operator should know and understand every portion of his equipment, and moreover keep every individual portion of it in perfect working order.

No two makes of sound equipment are identical in the attention they will require. Furthermore, different manufacturers vary in the thoroughness of their service.

Irrespective of these facts, however, it is the projectionist's duty to know all there is to know about his particular installation, not with the idea of supplanting the service man, but of giving the set the continual skilled attention which prevents breakdown. Yet he must restrain that very human tendency to meddle and interfere unnecessarily with the working of the set.

In the case of an emergency, it is imperative that the projectionist should be in a position to carry on until the service man can arrive. This naturally means that he must be able to locate the fault, and, if not cure it, at least repair it temporarily, and so enable the show to proceed. Great responsibility is therefore placed on the projectionist and the more he knows about his equipment the better results will be obtained.—Reprinted from The Film Daily.

Electrical Research Products announces the development and manufacture of a new, improved photo-electrical cell, to be known as the 3-A, which will be supplied with all Western Electric sound system installations in the future. It will also be listed as a regular replacement part.

Pending manufacture upon an adequate scale this new cell has been supplied in some cases in response to exhibitor demands at $25 each. The price in the future, as a replacement part, will be $16.50.

In appearance the new 3-A cell resembles its predecessors. The difference lies in that the old cells made use of potassium as the photo-electric element whereas the new ones make use of another metal base, caesium.

The advantages of the new cell are: a greater sound output with more effectiveness, immunity from the effects of shelf life and high temperature, greater stability and longer life.

NEW CLAIMS FOR SUPER-LITE LENS

Super-Lite Lens, put out by the Projection Optics Co., Inc., and adaptable to any projector, will increase illumination and reduce electricity expense, according to claims made by the company.

The construction of the lens, it is said, deviates radically from all previous types heretofore known and is guaranteed to increase the illumination and greatly reduce the electricity expense on projection.

The very long over-all length permits the rear lens to come as close as possible to the gate and therefore gather all the light rays, it is said.

Color Process

A new color process, Rotocolor, is the latest arrival on the market. Harold Muller of New York is the inventor of the process which involves a shutter device attachable to any standard projector and which is removable easily, allowing switching between black and white and color.

BIG DEMAND FOR PHOTOPHONE AC

New York — Between Feb. 24, when the first contract was signed and March 14, when the last report was transmitted to Sydney E. Abel, general sales manager, 104 complete units of the new RCA Photophone all AC operated sound reproducing equipment were contracted for by exhibitors in the United States and authorized distributors in foreign countries, according to G. K. Rudulph, director of publicity. Sixty-one units were for domestic installation and 43 were foreign orders. Twenty-six of the latter were for theatres in England, with the remaining 17 distributed among theatres in India, Venezuela and South Africa.

The following contracts for theatrical and non-theatrical installations were taken in the United States:

51 NOISELESS RECORDING UNITS

New York—Noiseless recording is being used by practically every Western Electric producer-licensee. How thoroughly Electrical Research Products' engineers have gone about meeting the demand for this improved recording is shown by the fact that to date 51 Noiseless Recording units have been installed in West and East Coast studios. There are 41 units in the West and 10 in the East, located as follows:

West Coast: Warner-First National, 16; Metropolitan Sound Studios, 2; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, 2; Paramount, 13; United Artists, 6; Universal, 1, and Columbia, 1.

East Coast: Audio-Cinema, 1; Eastman Kodak, 1; Jam Handy, 1; Paramount, 5; Paramount News, 1; and Warners, 1.

Attack On Defense Fund

Publix Plans No More Expansion in Northwest Territory, According to Ed Ruben.

Action of directors and members of the Northwest Allied States' unit in inaugurating plans, as individuals, to raise a $100,000 defense pledge fund "for the protection of Allied members against invasion of their towns by Publix," was characterized by local Publix officials as "the setting up of a straw man in order to knock him down."

"We have given absolutely no consideration or thought to further expansion in this territory," declared Eddie Ruben, Publix divisional head. "It is news to us that we have plans under way to build theatres in a number of semi-key towns, including Fergus Falls, Minn., and Jamestown and Valley City, N. D., as was said to be reported to Allied directors at their Minneapolis meeting last week.

"All that Publix wishes to do in this territory is to keep what it has. It doesn't want any more theatres. We wish to state emphatically that we have no further expansion in mind. Reports to the contrary, such as those which were said to have been circulated at the Allied directors' meeting, are ridiculous."

If Publix should proceed to invade present Allied strongholds, the $100,000 defense fund would be boosted to one million dollars and used to build competing theatres in many of the towns now considered as closed Publix locations, according to statements issued following the Allied directors' meeting. The independents expressed confidence that they could raise such a huge sum if necessary.

An Allied committee was appointed to make a survey relative to the invasion of Publix towns so that the independents will be pre-

Urges Exhibitors Be On Their Toes

Roeder Says Showmen Should Increase Their Advertising Appropriations for Next Year.

An appeal to Northwest exhibitors to be on their toes is broadcast by C. A. Roeder, Paramount exchange manager in Minneapolis.

If exhibitors tend to their knittings properly, theatres throughout the territory should prosper this spring and summer in spite of the general depression and adverse seasonal conditions, because the product to be released during the ensuing months is above the average in quality and it is being continually demonstrated that the public will go to see good pictures.

This is the opinion of Mr. Roeder who urges the exhibitors to Big Year for W.E.

Is Seen After Checkup of First Quarter on Installations; New Orders Coming In.

Results in the first quarter of 1931 for Electrical Research Products, Inc., of Minneapolis, indicate another banner year in distribution of the Western Electric sound system in this territory, it is announced.

Installations of Western Electric sound system now are in progress at Smith Brothers' Orpheum Theatre at Menonmonie, Wis., and J.

SEPARATE OFFICES

RKO and Pathe To Continue As Before

Despite their amalagamation, RKO and Pathe will continue to operate separate exchanges in Minneapolis, according to advice received here. "We'll be friendly enemies in the future, just as we've been in the past, it seems," said M. E. Montgomery, Minneapolis Pathe exchange manager. Separate sales' campaigns will be carried on by the companies the same as hitherto, he points out.

NEWS TO SCHANFELD

Realtor Knows Nothing of Pantages Deal

If Harold Franklin is negotiating for Pantages Theatre, Minneapolis, to add to his rapidly expanding theatre chain, the negotiations are being carried on directly with Alexander Pantages and without the knowledge of Joseph Schanfeld, local realtor who represents Pantages here and who is the rental agent for the house. The first that Mr. Schanfeld knew about the proposed entry of Mr. Franklin into the Twin City territory through operation of Pantages, which has been dark practically all season, was when he read the story in a trade publication, he says. With nearly all the picture product tied up by Publix and RKO it is thought hardly likely that Mr. Franklin will lease Pantages.

A Valid Solution

By M. E. CUFFEL
Editor

THE statement of C. A. Roeder, Paramount exchange manager, in the current MOVIE AGE should be read carefully by every exhibitor. Mr. Roeder furnishes what is probably the only valid solution of the problem of bad business which many theatre owners are wrestling with during these trying depression days. That solution is hard work and intelligent salesmanship, granting, of course, that the exhibitor enjoys the benefit of a salable product.

Mr. Roeder, unconsciously, makes it clear that such a trade publication as MOVIE AGE is indispensible to the exhibitor. In acquainting the theatre owner through its "merchandising column" and other features with selling methods successfully employed by other exhibitors in getting pictures across, MOVIE AGE performs a valuable and necessary service and indirectly puts many dollars into his pockets. A single good exploitation idea gleaned from one of its 52 issues may be worth many times the subscription price if it is the means of attracting more cus-

"Yankee" Top; "City Lights" and "East Lynne" Holdovers

Minneapolis (week ending April 3) — Business held up well through Week, generally regarded as one of the season's toughest periods for the show game.

"A Connecticut Yankee" was the big box-office knock-out of the week, drawing fine crowds to the Minnesota. This Will Rogers is quite some magnet here.

The RKO Orpheum also did well with "Behind Office Doors," while "City Lights" and "East Lynne," holdovers at the RKO Seventh Street and Century, respectfully, continued to pull profitable trade.

Aster—Part Time Wife (Fox), Edmund Lowe and Leila Hyams. Business: Fair. Summary: Fluffy and unconsequential comedy concerning the troubles of a husband with his golf-mad young wife. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; Screen Vaudeville.

Century — East Lynne (Fox), Ann Harding, Conrad Nagel and Clive Brook. Business: Good. Summary: Second and last week of the tear-jerking drama of a wronged woman; holds strong feminine appeal. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; Screen Vaudeville.

Lyric—It Pays to Advertise (Paramount), Norman Foster and Carol Lombard. Business: Fair. Summary: The amusing comedy of a rich man's son who makes good in business, even competing successfully with his father who had discarded him as a failure. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; Screen Vaudeville.

Minnesota—A Connecticut Yankee (Fox), Will Rogers. Business: Good. Summary: Rogers keeps audience in constant laughter as the Connecticut Yankee who invades King Arthur's court; good, clean fun. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage Show; Sound News.

RKO Orpheum—Behind Office Doors (RKO), Mary Astor and Robert Ames. Business: Good. Summary: A rather light story about a young woman who halted on the brink of moral disaster; conventional sex stuff. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville; Sound News; Golf Reel.

RKO Seventh Street — City Lights (United Artists), Charlie Chaplin. Business: Good. Summary: Second week of the inimitable comedian in this laugh and tear fest.

State—My Past (Warner Bros.), Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon. Business: Fair. Summary: The mildly interesting drama of a girl whose moral transgression blocks her roadway to real love and happiness; sophisticated fare. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; Screen Variety.

MILWAUKEE

Week Ending March 26

Alhambra — Once a Sinner (Fox), Dorothy Mackaill and Joel McCrea. Business: Fair. Summary: A modern sophisticated picture that does not pack the appeal which most Mackaill pictures do. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal Newsreel; Comedy.

Garden — City Lights (United Artists), Charlie Chaplin. Business: Fair (ended third week.) Entertainment Merits: 95 per cent. Short Subjects: Newsreel; Comedy.

Majestic—Aloha (Tiffany), Ben Lyon and Raquel Torres. Business: Fair. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy and Newsreel.

Palace-Orpheum—Stolen Heaven (Paramount), Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes. Business: Fair. Summary: Not as entertaining a production as some of her previous pictures. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Pathe News; Comedy.

Riverside — The Lady Refuses (Radio), Betty Compson. Business: Fair. Summary: A fair entertainment vehicle. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville; Pathe News.

Strand—It Pays to Advertise (Paramount), Norman Foster and Carol Lombard. Business: Fair. Summary: A comedy filled with a host of wise advertising cracks. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Colortone Review; Fox Movietone News.

Wisconsin—Honor Among Lovers (Paramount), Fredric March and Claudette Colbert. Business: Average. Summary: A thoroughly clever and modern picture with a good cast. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Fox Movietone News; Fanchon and Marco Idea.

Hope to Reunite Allied and Wisconsin MPTO

Milwaukee, Wis. — An effort was made March 27 by Al Steffes of Allied States to reunite the Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Wisconsin and the MPTO of Wisconsin. Nothing definite was accomplished, however, insofar as Fred S. Myer, president of the latter organization, was out of the city.

Steffes has advocated certain things for the MPTO including the abolishing of protection and zoning, and has held the matter in abeyance for a period of 60 days. In the meantime the newly formed organization will continue to operate as it has in the past and at the end of that time it is expected that some solution in the matter will be reached.

STAFF KEEPS JOBS

Century Employes Are Given Positions

The closing of the Century Theatre in Minneapolis will not result in any of the employes being thrown out of work, Publix announces. The entire staff of the darkened house has been taken care of by the big circuit through assignments to other theatres. Century employes greeted with cheers the announcement that they would not be forced to join the army of the unemployed.

"DIRIGIBLE" COMING

Picture Said To Be Real Air Thriller

Columbia Pictures' latest picture, "Dirigible," will soon be released generally throughout the United States.

This spectacular picture of the air is the third of Frank Capra's trilogy of United States service pictures, the predecessors of which were "Submarine" and "Flight," and it surpasses both in thrills, action, romance, drama, direction and acting, according to those who have seen it.

The picture has just been booked in Grauman's Chinese Theatre in Los Angeles, where none but the biggest productions play, which is acknowledgment of its greatness.

"Dirigible" stars Jack Holt and Ralph Graves, who acted in Capra's two previous successes, supported by Fay Wray, Hobart Bosworth, and Roscoe Karns.

This is the thrilling story of a dirigible flight to the South Pole, and the landing on the icy plateau and the smash-up of the big ship and the fight back to civilization of the heroes who went out to conquer are thrills that will not soon be forgotten in motion picture history.

QUICK THINKING

Rockne's Name Dropped From "Yankee"

As a result of some quick thinking by Manager Gordon Greene, the Minnesota Theatre and "A Connecticut Yankee" broke onto the front pages of the leading Minneapolis newspapers.

Immediately upon learning of the tragic death of Knute Rockne, Mr. Greene had the name of the famous football coach dropped from the humorous quips of Will Rogers in the picture.

The newspapers were quick to appreciate the story in the manager's action and they played it up, along with other Rockne news, on their front pages.

Showmanship

The Minnesota Theatre (Publix) in Minneapolis displayed some enterprising showmanship when it advertised and displayed pictures of Knute Rockne in its sound newsreels the night of the day on which the noted football coach lost his life in the airplane crash. The pictures, showing Rockne instructing his boys in football, was preceded by an announcement of the tragedy.

Urges Exhibitors

increase their advertising appropriations and to devote more effort to exploitation than ever before.

The Paramount exchange manager suggests that theatre owners study their pictures carefully for selling points, devise their own methods of attracting patrons and look to such columns as those of "Selling the Seats" in MOVIE AGE for additional selling ideas which have served other exhibitors successfully.

"A year ago talking pictures were still a novelty and required comparatively little advertising or exploitation," says Mr. Roeder. "But now the novelty is worn off and pictures must be sold to the public. The exhibitor must go out and get the business, but it's there for him if he has what the public wants and can convince the public of that fact.

"This is a time when real ability counts, not only in the show business, but every other line of industry. It is a time, too, for hard work. Increased efforts are certain to be productive of results if intelligently directed. The exhibitor has an opportunity to demonstrate his showmanship."

It cannot be emphasized too strongly that plenty of good advertising is necessary to put over even the best pictures, according to Mr. Roeder's belief. He cites the fact that the producers and distributors realize this fact and are increasing their advertising appropriations. He urges the exhibitors to follow in the latter's footsteps.

"If exhibitors only would devote the same energy now to talking pictures that they devoted to silent pictures in the days when they realized that they had to work and fight to get business, there'd be no complaining about grosses," asserts Mr. Roeder.

R. Elliot's Lakeland Theatre at Dassel, Minn.

William Gowan, well known Northwest showman, also has selected Western Electric equipment for his Orpheum Theatre at Ortonville, Minn., as has Jerry Hines at Pipestone, Minn. Mr. Hines is Pipestone's pioneer showman, having been identified with its theatres for a number of years.

Other theatrical and non-theatrical installations recently completed by the local distributor include the Iowa, Iowa City, Ia.; New Chisholm, Chisholm, Minn.; Gem, Waterville, Minn.; Hotel Nicollet, Minneapolis, and the Hotel Lowry, St. Paul.

Western Electric equipment for the hard of hearing has proved a box-office magnet and a source of much publicity, according to D. H. Ruliffson, district sales manager.

tomers to the box-office. Incidentally, MOVIE AGE, because of its nation-wide affiliations, is in a position to obtain the cream of exploitation ideas.

Economists believe that business has touched bottom, but that improvement will be slow and irregular. Even in normal times, summer is a difficult period for the theatre operator. The months directly ahead are naturally a source of concern for most exhibitors. Under all these circumstances, we feel it especially behooves theatre operators to expend the utmost possible effort to avert box-office troubles. If intelligent advertising and exploitation and hard work generally will not turn the trick the case is hopeless. But we believe they will because every indication, such as the patronage accorded good pictures all through the depression, points to anything but a hopeless situation.

HOUSE STAYS OPEN

Seventh Street Not To Close, Says Ames

Morgan Ames, RKO district manager, denies the report published in a trade paper to the effect that the RKO Seventh Street Theatre, Minneapolis, would follow the lead of Publix's Century Theatre, directly across the street from it, and close following the engagement of "City Lights."

No plans have been considered up to this time for the closing of the Seventh Street for the summer, according to Mr. Ames. The house lacks a cooling plant and, in most previous summers, including that of 1930, it closed during the heated spell. If similar action is taken this year it will be at a much later date, Mr. Ames says.

Mr. Ames also denies the statement in the erroneous story to the effect that the Seventh Street has been an almost continuous loser. As a matter of fact, he says, the theatre is well ahead for the present season and has been going along at a particularly progitable clip since the start of the new year.

"Painted Desert" follows "City Lights" at the Seventh Street.

Breese Popular

Lou Breese's new type of pit musical presentation is going over in fine style at the Minnesota Theatre in Minneapolis. An extensive exploitation campaign preceded the musical innovation, piquing public curiosity and putting patrons in a receptive frame of mind.

Celebrities Slated for Stock Company Here

Most of the big flesh-and-blood spoken drama news about the thetre is breaking in Minneapolis these days.

It's coming from a little office off the foyer of the Shubert Theatre where A. G. Bainbridge, manager of the Bainbridge Players and America's most famous stock producer, holds forth several hours a day planning entertainment for the lovers of the spoken drama.

It was from that office that word came not long ago that Miss Yurka, a star of "Lysistrata," and five other stage and screen luminaries would appear at the Shubert as guest stars with the Bainbridge Players.

And now comes another announcement that Jack Paige, former second man with the company here and for the last few months leading man with the Seattle Comuany of the Bainbridge Players, is returning here as leading man. He will succeed John A. Willarde, who is taking Mr. Paige's place in Seattle.

Miss Lurka opened her two weeks' starring engagement Sunday, March 29, in "The Squall." The week of April 5 she is appearing in "The Sea Woman." Both of the plays are her great successes.

Miss Violet Heming will begin a two weeks' engagement Sunday, April 12, in "This Thing Called Love." She will be supported by Mr. Paige. The following week she will play in "Ladies All,' a hit on Broadway this year in which she was the star.

Edith Taliaferro is coming to the Shubert for two weeks beginning Sunday, April 26. Leo Carillo, star of "The Saint," will play the week of May 10. Bert Lytell, motion picture and stage star, and his wife, Grace Menken, sister of Helen Menken, noted star, will appear week of Sunday, May 17.

Attacks Fund

pared in case that retaliatory steps become necessary.

It is expected that the present move will lead eventually to a demand that Publix return to independent operators all large town suburban houses and theatres in all towns not considered key spots. The claim is made that independent operation of such theatres would increase Paramount's film rentals and aid the fight against adverse legislation.

The Northwest Allied directors are on record as approving the proposal to support Universal by throwing as much business as possible its way so that the company may continue in existence as an independent and practically non-theatre operating unit in the producing and distributing field.

With only M. W. Miller of Cloquet, Minn., dissenting, the directors also approved the advertising sponsored newsreel deal. The vote was 20 to 1. Six directors were absent or did not vote.

Condemning the practice of some of the distributors in withdrawing certain pictures from their regular schedule and elevating them to the road show classification, the directors instructed W. A. Steffes, general manager, to advise exhibitors that they can cancel one picture from thier contract for each picture taken out for roadshowing. The suggestion was made that the highest priced picture on the contract be cancelled.

Specific mention was made of the M-G-M action in placing "Trader Horn" in the road show class. Mr. Steffes predicted that unless the distributors were brought to time at once they would raise their road show classification privilege as high as 50 per cent next year, in place of the present five to 12 per cent. He asserted that the "Trader Horn" road show engagement at the Century Theatre in Minneapolis, with Metro leasing the house outright, was unprofitable. The theatre records showing receipts in excess of $13,000 for the week, however, disputes this assertion.

EDDIE RUBEN BACK

Publix Manager Returns From Vacation

After a brief vacation at Excelsior Springs, Mo., permitting him to recuperate from his recent influenza attack, Eddie Ruben, Publix Northwest divisional manager, is back on the job.

The Northwest circuit is not contemulating any further theatre closings, according to Mr. Ruben.

"Now that the Century is taken care of for the summer, we're all through," he said.

Seek Approval Of Contract

M. P. T. O. A. to Send Committee to Dept. of Justice to Ask for Immediate Decision.

New York — Official approval of the Department of Justice on the new standard exhibition contract, drafted last year at the 5-5-5 conferences, is being sought by the M. P. T. O. A. The association plans to send a committee of independent exhibitors to John Lord O'Brien, the department's representative on film affairs, to take up the matter of immediae okay. M. A. Lightman, president of M. P. T. O. A., will appoint the committee which will go over the contract with O'Brien and advise him of the desire of both exhibitor groups to have the contract put into operation.

THREE CIRCUITS BAN AD FILMS

Loew, Fox and RKO Not to Use Screen Advertising; Publix and Warners to Play Own.

New York—The ad-film situation has developed to a place where circuits have announced definite policies regarding screen advertising. Loew, RKO and Fox will not permit advertising films on their screens, while Paramount and Warner Bros. are playing screen ads of their own.

Publix so far has played about 25 commercial films ,its policy being to use not more than one subject a week on each house. Product made by companies other than Paramount Business Films is not being used. The company is now considering its policy as regards playing its commercial productions in theatres of other circuits.

Warner Bros. is playing commercial subjects made by its industrial department exclusively, said Sam E. Morris last week. Beyond this, the circuit's policy is being worked out.

RKO, said Joe Plunkett, is now developing its policy on commercial pictures. Loew has no intentions of playing commercial pictures, said Charles Moskowitz, and the same applies to Fox.

Agreement Must Wait

NEW HAYS BOARD

Schnitzer and Brandt Are Elected Directors

New York—At the annual meeting of the Hays organization on March 30, Joseph I. Schnitzer and Joe Brandt were elected to the board of directors. Other members elected are: Hiram S. Brown, Capt. George McL. Baynes, Harley L. Clarke, Charles H. Christie, R. H. Cochrane, E. W. Hammons, D. W. Griffith, Will H. Hays, chairman; F. L. Herron, J. J. Murdock, David Sarnoff, Jos. M. Schenck, Nicholas M. Schenck, Albert H. Warner, Harry M. Warner and Adolph Zukor.

Joseph I. Schnitzer

Joe Brandt

Hays was re-elected president and Carle E. Milliken secretary. Tiffany and RKO-Pathe were elected to membership.

Hays recommended to the sales managers of the major distributing companies that the Film Boards be continued. C. C. Pettijohn pointed out the value of the Boards in handling legislative matters.

On Government Approval Says Sam Morris; Little Chance to Get It This Season.

Cleveland — Sam E. Morris, vice-president and general manager of Warners, sees little chance for the new contract to be adopted in time for the approaching selling season. In a letter to P. J. Wood, business manager of M. P. T. O. of Ohio, Morris declares that the distributors are making every effort to bring about a contract acceptable to all parties concerned. The legal departments are hard at work, but the task is a big one and it seems impossible to have the contract ready in time for the season's opening, he said.

Morris added that the distributors would not enter into any uniform contract or uniform agreement without the absolute assurance of the government's approval.

BAR DOUBLE FEATURES

New York—Wm. C. Hunt and Chas. C. Hildinger have barred double features from their circuits.

Hays Sees New Era of Entertainment Progress

New York — Will Hays, in his report to the annual meeting of the board of directors of the M. P. P. D. A. last week hailed as an encouraging sign the fact that "the outstanding feature pictures produced in 1930 dealt with great biological subjects, with themes of prison and civic reform, and with stirring epochs of American history."

"I am aware how often in the past pictures that dealt with such themes have proved abject and utter financial failures, but those who in 1931 are planning to invest millions in such future productions are no longer embarking on the great unknown."

More than 30 pictures based on historical, sociological, travel and other educational themes were made in 1930, said Hays.

Partly referring to censorship Hays asserted that in its program of self-reguulation the success of the motion picture industry challenges comparison with any instance of industrial or social progress effected through the fiat of law, the action of political censorship or the tyranny of dictatorship.

"The screen in recent months has done much to debunk the American gangster in films dealing with current crime conditions. The tide of public opinion is rapidly shifting from rawness to romance and a new era of entertainment progress is opening up for the screen," he declared.

Roadshow "Seed"

Universal will release "Seed" as super-special roadshow.

Lesser Joins "U"

Universal City—Sol Lesser has joined Universal as executive associate of Carl Laemmle. Lesser has been prominently identified in the industry since 1906. He was the founder of the West Coast circuit and Principal Theatres. He recently has been with United Artists' theatre department.

METZGER RETURNS

To Head Columbia Sales; Goldberg West.

New York — Lou B. Metzger, formerly Universal general manager and more recently Columbia's representative in England, succeeds Joe Goldberg as Columbia's general sales manager. It is understood Goldberg will manage Columbia's western division activities.

Merger Completed

New York — Consummation of the National Screen-Ad Vance Trailer merger was announced Friday. The merger will not involve any changes in operation or personnel of either company. Each concern will concentrate on the type of trailers each has been making.

Some Class!

Columbia's "Mickey Mouse" now rides about Hollywood in his own motor car a miniature automobile of the type now popular throughout the country. The car is a rich gold in color with "Mickey" and his sweetheart "Minnie," as its monogram embellishment It is used to transport the latest releases of the famous animated cartoon from the Walt Disney studios to the Los Angeles and Hollywood Theatres.

REPORTS OF RESULTS AT THE BOX OFFICE

. . . AS TOLD BY . . .
EXHIBITORS THEMSELVES

FIRST NATIONAL

The Gorilla—A mystery comedy that is a wow for a Saturday picture in small towns. Advertising on this is good. As a change from the western try this for Saturday and you will be agreeably surprised.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Truth About Youth, Loretta Young—A program picture for adult consumption. Not that it is offensive, but kids will not like this kind of a picture. Not much action. A fair story with a good ending. It rates a little better than average program. Loretta Young plays her part in a finished manner that shows she is a seasoned actress.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

FOX

Fair Warning, George O'Brien—O'Brien gives a good performance in this western. This picture will please one hundred per cent. It has a fine acting horse and dog that please the kids especiallly. A picture full of action and a good story well acted throughout. Saturday type sure fire—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Fair Warning, George O'Brien—Very good outdoor production—H. R. Cromwell, Bedford, Bedford, Pa.

Just Imagine, El Brendel—One of the most satisfying of the season from every standpoint—Ritz Theatre, Cordell, Okla.

Lightnin', Will Rogers—Satisfied those who were not too critical. Not as good as "Paris" and "London."—Ritz Theatre, Cordell, Okla.

Men on Call, Edmund Lowe—Just an ordinary picture.—H. R. Cromwell, Bedford Theatre, Bedford, Pa.

Once a Sinner, Dorothy Mackaill—Fair. —H. R. Cromwell, Bedford, Bedford, Pa.

Seas Beneath, George O'Brien—Something new. Story of mystery ship in world war. Very good.—H. R. Cromwell, Bedford, Pa.

M-G-M

Bachelor Father, Marion Davies—Very good and enjoyed by those who saw it. Weather rainy.—H. R. Cromwell, Bedford, Bedford, Pa.

Inspiration, Greta Garbo—If this star would show a little pep, perhaps she would pay her way in smaller towns—Ritz, Cordell, Okla.

Min and Bill, Dressler-Beery—Not a big hit, but pleased everyone.—Ritz, Cordell, Okla.

New Moon, Lawrence Tibbett—An excellent picture which nobody came to see. —H. R. Cromwell, Bedford, Bedford, Pa.

Paid, Joan Crawford—One of the best from anyone. Will please any type of audience.—Ritz, Cordell, Okla.

Reducing, Dressler-Moran—Very good. H. R. Cromwell, Bedford, Bedford, Pa.

The Easiest Way, Constance Bennett—Ordinary sex stuff that failed to justify the advanced rental—Ritz, Cordell, Okla.

PARAMOUNT

Animal Crackers, Marx Brothers—Played it late, but it is as good as ever—H. R. Cromwell, Bedford, Bedford, Pa.

Feet First, Harold Lloyd — Another "Safety Last." Flopped but not due to picture. Weather fair.—H. R. Cromwell, Bedford, Bedford, Pa.

Fighting Caravans, Gary Cooper—Fine western, but our cowboys didn't come to see it. Have no money.—H. R. Cromwell, Bedford, Bedford, Pa.

Morocco, Marlene Dietrich—A most unusual picture which caused much comment.—H. R. Cromwell, Bedford, Bedford, Pa.

RKO

Leathernecking — Dissatisfaction reflected at box office—Ritz, Cordell, Okla.

Leathernecking—A comedy drama with Benny Rubin, Louise Fazenda and Ned Sparks carrying off the honors. A story of the Marines in the grass skirt belt of the Philippines. A wholesome love story intermingled amid the songs and dances that were nicely set in the picture. Last two reels in Technicolor. Worthwhile production that will please.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Mickey McGuire Comedies—I have never had a Mickey McGuire comedy but what was good; pleasing both adults and children. They're well gotten up with trick wagons, airplanes, etc., supposedly made by the kids. They are packed with clean, wholesome fun and bring down the house every time.—J. W. Crabtreé, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Royal Bed, Lowell Sherman — Sherman in a supposedly intended comedy-drama that goes over the heads of small-town audiences. A long, drawnout, boresome picture that will make you wish the sheriff would hurry up. Had it dated two nights but dark housed the second rather than inflict it again on patronage. It may get over in the larger towns but in small situations it is a nightmare. Lots of walkouts and rabid comments.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

RKO - PATHE

Sin Takes a Holiday, Constance Bennett —Constance Bennett in a finished performance that has real entertainment for your better class crowd. Comments on this were very good and second night compared with first for attendance. This picture will sure please. Recording on disc exceptionally good.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

STATE RIGHTS

Beyond the Rio Grande, Jack Perrin—Poor story, no action, fair recording and no new ideas.—R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

TIFFANY

Love Trader, Leatrice Joy—Weak story, fair acting, poor sound.—R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

Third Alarm—Expected a better picture after reading the press sheet.—Ritz, Cordell, Okla.

UNIVERSAL

Indians Are Coming — Just finished playing second episode. It is going to draw fairly well but is too early yet to say how it will hold up the patronage. The kids and Negroes liked it especially well, but I'm afraid it will not draw the adult patronage like "Spell of the Circus," which played ahead of it.—J. W. Crabtree, Clarendon, Ark.

Spell of the Circus — Here is a serial that will draw equally as well as the old Tarzans did for you. I was surprised at the drawing power which held interest throughout the whole ten episodes. This serial played on Friday nights only and brought the gross receipts higher several times than Saturday receipts. You will certainly made no mistake in grabbing this serial and getting it started.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

WARNER BROS.

Illicit, Barbara Stanwyck—For some reason failed to click. Very good of its kind.—Ritz, Cordell, Okla.

WHAT to do!
HOW to do it!
WHEN to do it!

. . . . BY
PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

Novel Tie-Up Used to Boost "Min and Bill"

JOHN HRUBY, manager of the Harvey Theatres, Harvey, Ill., included a novel tie-up in the campaign he used to exploit his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production "Min and Bill."

Hruby arranged for a window display with the local Hartman Furniture Co., whereby they used two oil paintings which were brought down as a tie-up for home furnishings. They displayed the paintings on the wall of a living room display, and a card on the table contained copy reading: "Both 'Min and Bill' say: 'There is no place like home when it's furnished by Hartman.' See Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery break up their's in 'Min and Bill' at the Harvey."

One thousand small cards were imprinted with copy reading: "Called but you were out. See us at the Harvey, 'Min and Bill.'" Hruby had these cards distributed in the residential sections of Harvey and Homewood.

SELLS 'EM WITH FURNITURE TIE-UP

CHOICE of an electric refrigerator or $100 in cash was offered by Hanager Costa, Playhouse, Ridgewood, N. J., during the showing of "Little Caesar," "Divorce Among Friends" and "Outward Bound." It was a lucky number contest he arranged with a furniture house.

Everyone wanted the refrigerator in preference to the cash.

POCKET DIARIES GET INQUISITIVE

FOR "My Past," a pocket diary containing a number of addresses and then in a feminine hand a daily record of events was gotten out during its showing at the Strand, Albany, N. Y. Across it was written the name Dora Macey and was marked "Personal." The little books were dropped all over Albany to be picked up by the inquisitive.

"SELLING SEATS"

WE have removed the banner, "Merchandising the Picture" that has topped this page for a long time.

Now in its place you see vigorously commanding your attention is "Selling Seats."

In the language of the theatre it covers a multitude of achievements.

"Selling Seats" is a byword in the brilliancy of success that is the result of:

Rendering a sincere, gracious service by every contact staff member.

Maintaining an atmosphere of pleasant temperature and refreshing cleanliness.

Attaining perfect screen projection, together with sound equipment presenting only brilliant tone quality.

Offering complete entertainment programs selected with the ultimate thought of appealing to the consistent, habitual theatre-goer.

And everlastingly retaining the creative, enthusiastic power to arouse the buying of your combined offerings.

Selling Seats is the showman's perpetual job.

Selling Seats IS Success!

LOBBY CUT-OUT FROM 24-SHEET

A. RITZLER, of the Signa Theatre, used the line "Dwarfing All Previous Big House Pictures" throughout his campaign on Columbia's "The Criminal Code."

A feature of Ritzler's campaign was the special front he used for the Sigma, with compo board painted to make the house look enough like to jail to get over the prison atmosphere, without making it too heavy.

A twenty-four sheet cutout of Walter Huston was used behind the bars of Ritzler's central window, with a row of colored electric lights over the arch.

SPRING is here!

Lent with its seat-filling problems we've kissed goodby.

Now to plan the record-breaking campaigns for the spring and summer.

Schools will soon lock their doors. Graduates will be handed their diplomas.

Farmers will start their sowing.

Department stores will bring forth their vigorous selling campaigns. Grocers, druggists, motor car dealers and the hundreds of other high pressure merchandisers call for attention to their exceptional offerings.

They will use newspapers, billboards, window displays, radio broadcasting, handbills, direct mail matter and numbers of resultful dollar-making mediums.

Now, as always comes our easy opportunity, if we only use it to add greater strength and stronger appeal to our selling copy.

Your theatre, your stars, your catchy titles and your priceless passes used to a mutual advantage add the necessary essentials to the commercial merchandiser's results.

With endless abundance of these natural and ever-appealing values no one with an ounce of energy can fail to keep a theatre's seats continuously filled.

Study your attractions!

Turn the title over in your mind. Can I use it to the druggist's, grocer's or department store's advantage to sell merchandise as well as to filling my own seats?

Has it possibilities as a contest, window display, newspaper ad tie-up or as a topic of dinner table discussion? Pick the one that smashes and go out and put it over strong.

If its title is blank, analyze the star. Maybe he or she has strong interest.

Perhaps the star is waning.

Then again the type of story may offer you the golden selling opportunity.

Bisect the whole program. Tear it apart, put it together again, keep after it until you find what you believe will sell seats.—W. J.

LETTER CONTEST FOR "INSPIRATION"

DISTRIBUTING eight hundred special cards in all the sorority and fraternity houses of the Illinois University, A. Gonsior, Virginia Theatre, Champaign, Ill., got attention and interest for the showing of "Inspiration."

Ten monthly passes were offered for the best letters on "What creates the allure in Greta Garbo." Gonsior also placed stills in local druggists' windows in connection with the featuring of Luxurio face powder.

GETS NEWSPAPER AD FOR PASSES

NEWMAN THEATRE, Kansas City, Mo., has an indefinite weekly newspaper ad tie-up with an associated group of drug stores. In the druggists' full-page ad each Friday a four-inch space selling next day's opening picture, with top position, appears. The theatre offers passes to the first hundred readers finding incorrect words in the entire ad. Copy written and cut furnished by Newman advertising director.

Ten Successful Stunts for "Trader Horn"

EVEN big pictures need big selling to reap their full share at the box-office. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's regular field exploitation force aided exhibitors in roadshow engagements of "Trader Horn." Following are a dozen of the successful ideas used, most of which are inexpensive, and which can easily be duplicated by any exhibitor:

In each of 32 showings extensive advertising and publicity campaigns were launched. The ads were started eight days in advance of the showing. The first three days began with playing up the title and picture policy and followed with box-office policy ads to stimulate sale and then by large descriptive copy which was continued up to and two days following the opening. In each ad price and policy dominated.

Atmospheric Lobbies

Atmospheric lobbies were created in each city and special attention given to photographic reproductions, special ad blow-ups, Brisbane newspaper editorial enlargements, special compo display o fthrills in the picture, silk valances, muslin banner, compo shields, telescopic letter effects, trading posts and tropical atmospheric settings.

Reserved Seat Sale

Where the Publix and Loew houses have adopted the reserved seat policy for the first time, an empty store in the heart of the city was rented and a box-office installed in the doorway with large banners and flags calling to the attention of the public that they could secure reserved seats for "Trader Horn." Special uniformed barkers were stationed in front of the temporary box-office.

Novelties and Tie-Ups

Wide distribution of advertising material included tabloid newspapers, large circus heralds, attractive stickers and unique book marks. Over two thousand windows were secured during the engagments, and a valuable national tie-up which included: Shell Gasoline, Glaflex Cameras, Singer Sewing Machines, Underwood Typewriters, Coty Perfumes, Venida Hairnets, Columbia Portable Gramophone, Packard Cars, Gold Medal Noodles, Insurance Companies, Travel Agencies, Coco Cola, and Liberty Magazine; all these companies contributed special cards for newstands as well as news sheets posters on the side of their delivery wagons.

Library Co-operation

Libraries gave 100 per cent cooperation with attractive displays on their own adventure books and stories of exploitation. Special book marks and book lists were distributed by patrons of these libraries.

Teaser Snipes

The extensive bill posting and sniping campaign inclued regular 24-sheet posters, three and one-sheet cars, fourteen-foot banners, and gigantic 96-sheet posters, the largest used on outdoor billing on a picture or legitimate show. A special teaser campaign was used in several icties with stickers, posters, strips and sidewalk stencils. Each town was plastered with the teaser poster. "OO MOO LOO?" Later these were sniped with labels reading "OO MOO LOO means I love You 'TRADER HORN.' "

Educational Angle

Special attention was given to the educational angle, and both the students and the principals were canvassed for special student morning shows which netted additional revenue. For each engagement the busses and street cars carried attractive black and yellow panels.

Boy Scouts

Very valuable co-operation was given by the boy scouts, great lovers of outdoor life. The head of the scout movement distributed letters all over the country, complimenting this production. In one city a small safari was staged as a street stunt. This consisted of fifty colored people in native dress. "Trader Horn" and "Nina" the priestess, sat on a float, a duplication of a South African trading post. Tom Tom drums were used on the float.

Booth Double Contest

In all cities a special Edwina Booth double contest was conducted by leading department stores in co-operation with local newspapers. The store carried pictures of Edwina Booth in their daily ads and offered a complete spring outfit to the girl who most resembled this new screen star. This store also displayed the outfit in their window and the winner was presented with it before the beginning of the performance on the opening night of the picture.

Auto License Number

During several of the engagements, African relics, such as skins, antelope plaques, elephant's feet, and tusks, were displayed in theatre lobbies. Sma'l slips were placed in automobiles, reading: "Save This Slip, It May Entitle You to a Free Ticket to See 'Trader Horn.' Look in the Newspapers for 'Trader Horn' Ads, if Your License Number Appears in Same, Just Call at Theatre Box-Office, Present Your Registration Card and Receive Ticket to Show."

VARIETY IN SHORTS

Columbia Has Big Array of Subjects for April

New York—A diversified list of subjects, comprising sophisticated comedy, animated cartoons, current events and travelogues are included in Columbia's line-up of shorts for April release. The group includes a "Rambling Reporter," "Krazy Kat," "Silly Symphonies," "Mickey Mouse," "Screen Snapshots" and "Curiosities."

"Streets of Cairo," latest "Rambling Reporter," gives an account of life in the mysterious oriental city. It starts in the European quarter and journeys through the town to the outskirts of the desert. "Swiss Movements," a Krazy Kat Kartoon, is an account of further adventures of the feline, who dances and cavorts in the accepted manner; "Mother Goose Melodies," a Walt Disney "Silly Symphony," has all the famous fairy tale characters disporting themselves to appropriate rhythm.

"The Castaway," a Mickey Mouse cartoon, shows Mickey and Minnie, his sweetheart set adrift on the ocean and finally finding refuge on a cannibal island. "Talking Screen Snapshots" No. 6, presents intimate glimpses of celebrities of the sport world, stage and screen. Eddie Buzzell acts as master of ceremonies.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PICTURES

FEATURES and SHORTS

"The Lion and the Lamb"

Columbia—76 Minutes

Cast: Walter Byron, Carmel Myers, Montague Love, Miriam Segar, Raymond Hatton. Directed by George B. Seitz.

Here is a fairly entertaining program picture with several real amusing situations. The story is good and better direction would have helped. It is a typical Reginald Denny picture and Denny would have made an excellent lead. Not that Walter Byron isn't good, but the story would have been a better fit for Denny.

The story is laid in England. Byron, who has bummed around with Hatton on the seas, becomes the heir to an estate and a title and decides to quit his adventuring. He accidentally gets mixed up with some diamond thieves—a group known as the Lambs—and the complications are many. Hatton is not brought out to good advantage but at times he is funny. The picture isn't big but for straight program fare it's all right.

SELLING SEATS: Catch lines in your copy should read: "Who Are the Lambs?" A teaser campaign along these lines may add a touch of mystery to the billing. Play up the comedy sequences. Old-timers will remember Carmel Myers as a bright star of a few years ago. Bring out the fact that she is heading back to stardom and recall some of her past successes. If you wish to advertise the picture as a semi-underworld story, bring out the fact it is a story of the London underworld.

A Connecticut Yankee

Fox—96 Minutes

Cast: Will Rogers, Maureen O'Sullivan, Myrna Loy, Frank Albertson, William Farnum, Mitchell Harris, Brandon Hurst. Directed by David Butler.

Here is the smartest picture the screen has offered. Mark Twain would chuckle aloud to see Will Rogers as the Yankee who was hit on the bean and dreamed he was a member of King Arthur's famous court. Even King Arthur, himself, if he could come back, would get the kick of his life, seeing himself as William Farnum presents him in this inimitable entertainment.

Will Rogers' Connecticut Yankee is quite different from the Yank that Harry Myers offered in 1922. He's almost plausible and he draws a laugh with every miracle he puts over, and there are many miracles required to save him from the hard-hearted Arthur and his superstitious ally, Merlyn.

Roping his adversary in the contest is one of the scenes you'll never forget. Another is the fleet of Austins that come to Rogers' rescue when it looks as if the jig is up for him.

The dialogue smacks strongly of Rogers — which means that it crackles with wit and humor of the type peculiar to him alone. Direction is splendid, the story moves fast, and the action is consistent with the story.

But it's Will Rogers' picture. He shines in it. It should prove one of the best box-office attractions of the year for big and little houses, for sophisticated and mass audiences, for young and old.—Elsie Loeb.

SELLING SEATS: The silent version which came out in 1922 was one of the biggest successes of the season. Those who saw it then will want to see it again, so play it up as bigger and better. The book is an American classic and libraries should co-operate. Although Rogers is the principal drawing power, don't forget the picture has an excellent supporting cast. Farnum is still a favorite, so give him billing. Advertise it as a picture for the whole family.

United Artists—90 Minutes

Cast: Pat O'Brien, Adolphe Menjou Mary Brian, Edward Evertt Horton, Walter Catlett, Geo. E. Stone, Mae Clark Slim Summerville, Matt Moore, Frank McHugh, Clarence Wilson, Freddie Howard, Eugene Strong, Spencer Charters, Phil Tead, Maurice Black, Effie Ellsler, Dorothea Wolbert, James Gordon. Directed by Lewis Milestone.

As a stage play "The Front Page" was a big success. As a screen play it is destined for the same honors, although some of its broad comedy may not register so well with those who are inclined to be prudish. The dialogue of the screen version has been toned down a bit but the play has not lost any of its entertainment. It is still the wild, boisterous, fast-moving newspaper story and it should get over in the majority of instances.

Your fans should like Pat O'Brien, who, as Hildy Johnson, is the center of attraction in the picture and a likeable personality. Adolphe Menjou as the city editor puts over a masterful interpretation, while the entire cast gives its best to make "The Front Page" one of the highlights of the current season. The story tells about O'Brien's difficulties in deciding between feminine love and the love for the newspaper and the successful manipulation of affairs so that he wins out both ways.—S. F. D.

SELLING SEATS: The picture is packed with "names." Play up those names for all their worth. Emphasize the comedy and the fast action.

"Man of the World"

Cast: William Powell, Carole Lombard, Wynne Gibson, Guy Kibbee, Lawrence Gray, Tom Ricketts, Andre Cheron, George Chandler, Tom Costello, Maude Traux. Directed by Richard Wallace.

This is not the entertaining picture it might have been. In some unaccountable manner, it just misses. Story concerns an American ex-newspaper man working a shakedown racket in Paris by threatening to publish certain scandalous items if they do not buy him off. He falls for the niece (Carole Lombard) of one of his victims but his feminine partner in the racket keeps him from marry her by threatening to expose him to the police. Mr. Powell makes the best of the lines allotted to him and Miss Lombard renders a fine performance. Richard Wallace, who directed, should not be blamed too much for it failing to get over as, with the material he had, it was well handled. The production is handsomely dressed and artistically photographed and may possibly get over with the not too critical Powell fans.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Work a tie-up with men's furnishing stores, getting them to show the styles the "Man of the World" is wearing. Play up the star, who has scored in the Philo Vance stories, and make special appeal to the Powell followers. As Much of the dialogue is in French, it may be possible to get French teachers in your schools to recommend the picture to their students in order to test their knowledge of the language they are studying.

"The Hot Heiress"

First National—85 Minutes

Cast: Ona Munson, Ben Lyon, Tom Dugan, Elsie Bartlett, Thelma Todd, Holmes Herbert, Nella Walker, Inez Courtney, George Irving, Joe Bernard. Directed by Clarence Badger.

Good clean comedy that will get the laughs anywhere and send them out pleased. None too plausible story concerns an iron worker who gets acquainted with a wealthy blue-blood by going into her boudoir after a hot rivet which he failed to catch. She falls for his manly character and invites him to a week end party to meet her parents. He takes along his wisecracking co-worker and his "goilfriend." The difference between "Third" and "Park" avenue manners causes some embarrassments all around and due to a misunderstanding they part.

The girl finds out he is working on a construction job in the "Village" and rents an apartment nearby, attracts his attention and renews the friendship with the usual happy ending. The excellent performances of Ben Lyon as the boy and Ona Munson as the girl, who also renders a few appropriate musical numbers that seem to fit in well, are well supported by the swell comedy work of Tom Dugan and Inez Courtney. Direction and photography of the best and this one should get over well with any audience.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Put emphasis on the comedy angles. Ben Lyon won new admirers in "Hell's Angels," so play up his name in the billing. As the story concerns a riveter you might be able to put up posters on construction work in your neighborhood and have the posters read: "A Riveter's Life isn't all Work and no Play—See What Happened to One In 'The Hot Heiress' "

FAMILY PATRONAGE

FOR months a great deal has been said about bringing back juvenile trade and building up family patronage of theatres. Certain pictures have aided in this endeavor. But they have been few and far between. And in most every instance so far the pictures concerned were specials that sold themselves, more or less. Motion picture entertainment for the whole family, long neglected, is today vitally essential to the prosperity of the subsequent run and small town theatres—more so than it has ever been. It is important not only to get this class of trade started again but to keep it coming week after week.

There are many good pictures of the program variety that are suitable for family trade. But the thing that has been lacking has been the right method by which to bring these pictures to the attention of the public in such a manner as to guarantee their box-office success.

After many weeks of research we believe we have discovered "the plan." It has already been successfully tested in one region where it has proven a genuine winner for first run as well as the smaller theatres. It gives a merchandising value to pictures that ordinarily may not be termed "box office." Yet it does not tend to oversell. We don't want to seem secretive, but we're not ready yet to let the cat out of the bag. We want to have everything foolproof before announcing the details of this plan. Suffice to say, it's startlingly simple to handle, though productive of good results. It will all be announced in an early issue of this publication.

AN OLD SERVICE REVIVED

SPRING time is dress up time, so we've decided to follow some of our admonitions to exhibitors and have "redecorated" from cover to cover. We hope the new appearance of this publication makes a hit with you.

If you've read everything before this page, there's no need to mention the various features of this publication. However, we do want to make exception in the case of one department, "The Barometer." This department was originally titled "Box Office Reports," which had been discontinued some months ago. So many exhibitors had recently written us urging its revival and so convincing were their arguments in its favor that we were readily "sold" on its value to the subsequent run houses. We urge all exhibitors interested in better pictures to contribute their reports to this department. Accurate, unbiased reports of performance of pictures at the box-office in the exhibitor's own words can serve as a most helpful guide for producer and exhibitor alike in the constant search for good pictures and in the hope to eliminate inferior ones.

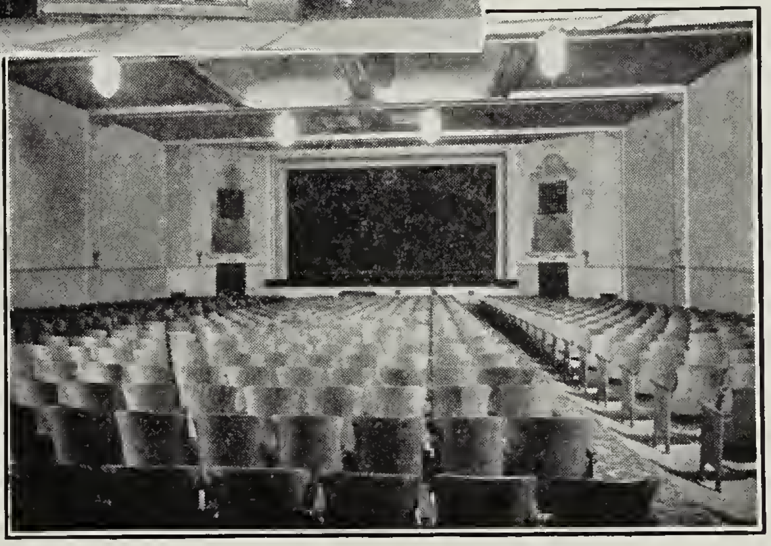
Kooler-Aire keeps this theatre COOL

OAK PARK
JEAN HARLOW
HELL'S ANGELS

The Oak Park, Kansas City, is kept refreshingly cool all summer by its Kooler-Aire System.



COOL, clean, comfortable fresh air—that's what Jay Means, of the Means Theatres, Kansas City, likes about Kooler-Aire. Mr. Means wrote us recently: "Your Kooler-Aire equipment has been in operation in our theatre for the past two summers. It has actually reduced the temperature from five to ten degrees, and even more on occasions, below the outside temperature.

"Many of our patrons remark about the fresh and wholesome atmosphere and really do appreciate the fact that it is not so cold that they experience a depressed feeling on leaving the theatre and going onto the hot streets.

"All in all we are very well satisfied with our cooling system and take pleasure in recommending it to others."

Nature's Healthful Coolness

makes good wherever used. It automatically lowers the temperature as much as 10 or more degrees—provides refreshing comfort in any weather. No recirculation of used air. Complete air changes as often as desired, regulated by Hydraulic Remote Control.

A custom-built job. Every installation is planned and engineered to meet the theatre's individual requirements—and guaranteed by us.

SOLD ON CONVENIENT TERMS

Kooler-Aire may be purchased on liberal time payments. Its low initial cost and small operating cost makes it the least expensive, most profitable cooling system obtainable. Get all the facts.

"SKIPPY" IS GREAT!

PERCY CROSBY'S nationally loved boy!

TRADEVIEWS

by W. R. Wilkerson

THIS—TO BE alliterative — is a paean of praise for Paramount. As part of its share in making attractions that will "bring the kids back to the theatres," it has turned out "Skippy," which will not only bring back the kids, but should bring every father, mother ,aunt, uncle, grandparent and big brother and sister along with them. Here is a picture with a universal appeal if there ever was one.

Someone in the Paramount organization, with the kid angle in mind, suddenly remembered that "men are but children of a larger growth," and "Skippy" is for kids of all ages. It would have been easy to err in this production and make it simply for the children. But those who wrote the story and Norman Taurog, who directed it, have not made this mistake.

THE KIDS IN the picture are perfect, and every grown-up will appreciate them. The parents — although the younger patrons will not realize it—are no less perfect. The mother who always understands, the father, who seldom if ever does, are wonderfully well drawn.

The scene in which the father, sitting on the bed beside his weeping son, tries to figure out what is the trouble and fails miserably, finally deciding that a bicycle will heal the wound, whatever it is, will bring lumps to many throats and tears to many eyes. Not only because of the really marvelous playing of the scene by little Jackie Cooper, but out of sympathy for the befuddled adult male, whose boyhood days are so far behind him that he cannot get the mental angle of his son.

THERE IS NO straining for comedy, for pathos, for any other effect anywhere in the picture. It is all natural, immensely human. It was written by people who can still remember their childhood, and directed by a man who, we are convinced, is still a boy and always will be.

This is not the place to give credit; that is done elsewhere. But if this picture doesn't break house records, if it doesn't get more word-of-mouth advertising than any film in months, the motion picture producers would better go out of business.

Publix to Fight Slump

Northwest Division to Prepare for Spring and Summer Drop; Going After Business.

Publix Northwest division is planning a terrific fight against the usual spring and summer slump which, it realizes, may be aggravated this year because of the generally depressed conditions, unless vigorous efforts are made to combat its ravages.

And just now the Publix executive staff in Minneapolis is preparing to expend those vigorous efforts in such a way that the public will find its showhouses irresistible even in the face of the inviting boulevards, lakes and other outdoor spring and summer attractions.

As the first step in this direction, it is lining up the strongest possible shows for its theatres. It realizes full well that "the show's the thing" and is firmly convinced, too, that if you have the picture or other attraction that the public wants, profitable patronage will be forthcoming, depression or no depression and beautiful outdoor weather or not.

For the Minnesota Theatre in Minneapolis during the next six weeks, for instance, it has lined up what it believes to be sure-fire box-office pictures. In the order named these are "Man of the World" (this week) "Strangers May Kiss," "Skippy," "Front Page" and "Torch Song." Special big name stage attractions also will be offered as they are available. This week, for example, the house has the famous Duke Ellington and his Cotton Club band. The management also is gunning for a number of other big name acts to be used as special added attractions, but the bookings have not yet been completed.

"Trader Horn," following its recent roadshowing at $1.50 prices at the Century, where it did a big business, will go into the State in Chain Now Includes Twelve Small Town Theatres in Minnesota and Iowa.

Continued growth and expansion and profitable operation of the recently organized Harold Finkelstein independent theatre chain are reported.

Herman Fields, well-known maintenance director with Publix Northwest theatres, has resigned to become affiliated with the Finkelstein circuit. He will occupy a theatre managerial position for the present.

The Finkelstein chain now comprises 12 theatrs in small Minnesota and Iowa towns. Under its

Blue Law Repeal

Hoped for in Wisconsin Following Plan to Put Question to Referendum in Near Future.

Madison, Wis. — Another attempt will be made to repeal the state's present blue laws, according to plans now under way in the assembly. The Grobschnidt bill, which sought to repeal the statutes, was passed in the assembly but defeated in the senate. It is planned to refer the question to a referendum soon.

It's An Ill Wind

By M. E. CUFFEL, Editor

THE saying that "it's an ill wind that blows no good" holds good in the case of the present general business depression and the theatrical industry.

For one thing, it seems likely that fewer automobiles will be driven or, at any rate, there'll be less motoring this spring and summer than usual. In an effort to reduce expenses, no doubt many people have put away their cars and will continue to do without them during the ensuing months. Others, accustomed to do considerable summer touring and driving, undoubtedly will devote much less time than formerly to their machines. Some cannot afford to indulge in the usual amount of driving which is a rather expensive luxury; not a few will be restrained by the present wave of economy.

These exmotorists are likely to turn in goodly numbers to the showhouses for their spring and summer amusement. They can attend the movies several times a week for much less than it costs them to take long drives. And in the refrigerated showhouses they will find as much or

MORE ROAD SHOWS

"Seed" and "Dirigible" Scheduled Here

"Seed" may be released by Universal in Minneapolis and the territory as a roadshow attraction, according to advices received by J. E. Garrison, Universal manager in Minneapolis. This plans is being adopted in other sections of the country, he is informed.

"Trader Horn" was first introduced into the territory as a roadshow. It also is believed that "Dirigible" will be presented as a roadshow, although Columbia has not made a definite decision in this regard yet.

Helps Lent

Milwaukee, Wis.—All local first run houses observed Good Friday and remained closed until one o'clock in the afternoon. Ordinarily the box-office opens at 11 a. m. The Alhambra Theatre turned over the house to noon-day Lenten services and did not open until 1:00 o'clock all during the week. Noon-day Lenten services during Holy Week were also held at the Davidson, local legitimate house, and the Oriental, Fox neighborhood house.

Organist Resigns

Madison, Wis. — Mac Bridwell, organist at the Parkway Theatre here, has resigned to become organist for the RKO Majestic Theatre at San Antonio, Tex.

Spring Days Hit Grosses; Keaton and Dietrich Draw

Minneapolis (week ending April 10) — Business was not so brisk the past week. The spring-like weather probably had something to do with it. Lack of outstanding attractions was another reason.

It was "laugh week" with four of the first-run loop houses offering comedies. "City Lights" concluded its three weeks' run at the RKO Seventh Street.

"Dishonored," starring Marlene Dietrich, at the Minnesota, went over fairly well. The Buster Keaton picture, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," won much favor at the State and drew good houses.

Aster—Woman Hungry (First National), Lila Lee and Sidney Blackmer. Business: Fair. Summary: A rather tame drama of an eastern girl, who seeking adventure in the wild and woolly west, finds herself the captive of three bad men who gamble for possession of her. Entertainment Merits: 70 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, serial.

Lyric—Finn and Hattie (Paramount), Mitzi Green, Leon Errol and Zazu Pitts. Business: Light. Summary: A none too funny comedy concerning the experiences of a small-town family on a European trip. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, cartoon comedy, screen vaudeville.

Minnesota—Dishonored (Paramount), Marlene Dietrich. Business: Fair. Summary: The moderately engrossing drama of a woman spy who falls passionately in love with the man whom duty compels her to lure to his destruction as an enemy spy. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, sound news.

RKO Orpheum—Laugh and Get Rich (RKO), Edna May Oliver, Hugh Herbert and Dorothy Lee. Business: Good. Summary: Fairly amusing comedy concerning a boarding house keeper and her lazy husband. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville and sound news.

RKO Seventh Street — City Lights (United Artists), Charlie Chaplin. Business: Light. Summary: Third and final week of this comedy riot which drew large houses during its first two weeks.

State — Parlor, Bedroom and Bath (M-G-M), Buster Keaton. Business: Good. Summary: The funny experiences of a shy young man who is mistaken for a noted lover and tries to live up to his pseudo-reputation of being a devil among the fair sex; good for a lot of laughs. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, cartoon comedy, screen vaudeville.

MILWAUKEE

(Week ending April 1)

Alhambra—The Boudoir Diplomat (Universal), Betty Compson and Ian Keith. Business: Good. Summary: A mild film. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjcts: John Boles in person, Universal Newsreel

Garden—Illicit (Warner Bros.), Barbara Stanwyck and James Rennie. Business: Good. Summary: A rather wild story about a girl who has the theory that marriage is spoiled by its pretty everyday intimacies. Entertainmnt Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjcts: Newsreel, comedy.

Majestic — Man to Man (Warner Bros.), Grant Mitchell and Lucille Powers. Business: Fair. Summary: An honest sort of a picture with some fine acing by Grant Mitchell, formerly of the stage. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjcts: Comedy, Newsreel.

Palace — Behind Office Doors (Radio), Mary Aster and Robert Ames. Business: Fair. Summary: A milder film than the title would seem to indicate. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: "Tigers of the Deep," sportlight; "Rough House Rythm," comedy; Pathe News.

Riverside—Mothers Cry (First National), Dorothy Peterson and Helen Chandler. Business: Good. Summary: A worthwhile picture outstanding for its sincerity and rstraint. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, Pathe News.

Wisconsin — Men Call It Love (M-G-M), Adolphe Menjou and Leila Hyams. Business: Fair. Summary: A good program movie for idle hours with modern settings and good photography. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon & Marco Idea, Fox Movietone News.

Strand—The Conquering Horde (Paramount), Richard Arlen and Fay Wray. Businss: Fair. Summary: A picture western border days with excellent outdoor photography. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Charley Chase Comedy, Fox Movietone News.

more comfort, pleasure and entertainment as are obtainable anywhere or under any conditions.

In this connection, it seems to us that independent operators well might give consideration at this time to the installation of cooling and ventilating systems. Houses so equipped will be in a better position to go after and land the business of these ex-motorists. The opportunity will be afforded to make permanent summer movie converts of the former motorists.

There are a number of inexpensive cooling systems now on the market so that even the smaller houses should not be deterred by initial costs from such an investment which usually can be depended upon to pay fine dividends in the shape of greatly increased summer patronage. At least, the matter of cooling plant installation should be given serious consideration and should be thoroughly investigated by every theatre operator, large and small. This is no time for false economy. Nobody gainsays that it's difficult to get business today, but we believe that the business is still there for those who go after it properly. And the matter of proper cooling and ventilating of theatres is one of the stones which should not be left unturned.

FROM THE RANKS

Ames Believer in Promotion From Within

Morgan Ames, RKO theatres division manager, is a firm believer in the system of promotions within the organization. He will only employ as assistant managers men whom he believes can be developed into managers. The chance for advancement is a plum always held before RKO employes in the Ames' division and continuously spurs them on to their hardest and best efforts.

Mr. Ames recently instituted the plan of holding a managers' meeting in a different city of the division every month. The purpose is to afford the house managers an opportunity to study local operation at first hand and profit by ideas which can be gathered outside his own particular territory.

A number of personnel changes and revisions just have been made by Mr. Ames. Lee Davis from Phoenix, Arizona, formerly with Publix, has been appointed assistant manager of the St. Paul Palace Orpheum, replacing Irving Koeningshrider, resigned.

Roland Davis, former assistant manager at the Omaha Orpheum, has been promoted to advertising manager. Cleaton Neary, former assistant manager at the Minneapolis Orpheum, has been transferred to Omaha as assistant manager. Jules Gershon has resigned at Omaha. William Orrel is the new assistant manager at the Minneapolis Orpheum.

Ray O'Connell, manager of the St. Paul RKO Orpheum, suffering from nervous breakdown following injuries sustained in an automobile accident, has been granted a six weeks' leave of absence and will recuperate on the West Coast. Mickey Gross, formerly of the Sioux City Orpheum, will be manager of the St. Paul Orpheum during O'Connell's absence. Richard Zeller replaces Gross at Sioux City.

CELEBRATION

Sue Carol and Nick Stuart Present

Milwaukee, Wis. — NVA Week was celebrated here with the appearance of Sue Carol and her actor-husband, Nick Stuart, at a dinner-dance at the Hotel Schroeder, April 8. The party was open to the public and tickets for the event sold at all local theatres.

Several orchestras were engaged for the occasion and entertainmnt included acts from various theatres. The party was heavily advertised and proved to be a big success.

PROSPEROUS THEATRES ARE WELL EQUIPPED THEATRES

OF COURSE, there is the occasional exception to the above stated rule—for example, "the hole-in-the-wall house" that with little or no attention to, or investment in, equipment from lobby to screen, is a virtual gold-mine for its owner.

But for the rank and file of theatres—the houses that must alertly fight for profits—there is no question but that good equipment and good projection go hand-in-hand with good attractions and good management to make the fight for profits a winning one.

WRITE to your local dealer-member of Affiliated Theatre Supply Dealers for the newest price bulletins and catalog information of what is worthwhile in theatre equipment—equipment backed by the A. T. S. D. mark of value, and by the individual dealer's guarantee.

No other business can invest in equipment to such immediate advantage as can the theatre; the comforts of your house, the quality of your projection, the beauty of surroundings—all these are really what you are selling to your patrons constantly, over and over, in addition to the merits of the entertainment on your screen.

May on a grind schedule at regular 60c popular prices. It is being counted upon to do a land-office business.

Managers of exploitation and advertising managers of the various districts and towns will be spurred on to leave no selling stone unturned and to get the utmost possible out of their attractions. Everybody will be expected to work longer and harder than usual, and that's saying considerable for the reason that Publix executives always must be on their toes and expending their utmost efforts in order to hold down their positions.

Special drives already are being launched throughout the territory. Martin Kelly and Don Chambers have had their heads together working out campaigns and there'll be something doing every minute for the next five months. Kelly is in charge of advertising and exploitation for all the Twin City houses while Chambers performs a similar duty for the theatres outside of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

"The ordinary theatre, of course, cannot go out like the Minnesota and obtain outstanding stage attractions, but it can select its pictures with the utmost care and can advertise and exploit its screen attractions intelligently and realize every ounce possible of selling value out of it," points out Eddie Ruben, Publix divisional manager for the territory. "In this way, much can be done to offset the usual adverse spring and summer box-office effects. Let everybody take off their coats, roll up their sleeves and work as hard as they can and, at the same time, use a high degree of intelligence.

"If this is done, we feel, worthwhile results will be attained, in spite of any handicaps and other difficulties that may be imposed upon us."

PAID TO SMILE

Madison House Receives Good Publicity

Madison, Wis. — John Scharnberg, RKO manager in Madison, promoted a clever publicity tie-up in connection with the showing of "Laugh and Get Rich," at the RKO Capitol. For ten days before the picture opened, a daily newspaper snapped pictures of persons wearing the biggest smiles. These persons were awarded with $2 in cash and ther photos appeared in the paper. In addition they received a guest ticket to see the picture. The stunt resulted in plenty of splendid front page publicity for the theatre.

Ruben Recovers

Believed to be fully recovered from his recent serious illness, I. H. Ruben, formerly of Finkelstein & Ruben, owners and operators of the Northwest chain of theatres now owned by Publix, is back in Minneapolis after a winter in Florida. He will spend the summer at his Lake Minnetonka home. Mr. Ruben retired after the sale of the F. & R. interests to Publix for a sum reported to be in excess of $6,000,000.

"LIGHTS" SCORING

Chaplin Film in Third Week at 7th St.

"City Lights," the Charlie Chaplin picture at the RKO Seventh Street Theatre, is continuing to draw large crowds in its third week. It is indicated that house records will be broken by the attraction.

On Easter Sunday, "City Lights" started a two-weeks' run at the Granada Theatre in Duluth. It also has been booked by Al Hoffman, United Artist exchange manager in Minneapolis, in East Grand Forks, Mich., Bismarck, N. D., and Brainerd, Minn., for week runs. The aforementioned towns usually are single-day or two-day stands, also, Mr. Hoffman points out that product is the main issue of the theatre business, and that United Artists have it, and all that exhibitors have to do, is give it a little judicial advertising and exploitation to put it over. The year 1931 is destined to be a bumper year for good showmen.

MANAGERS CHANGE

Publix Announces Personnel Shifts

A number of managerial changes are being made by Publix Northwest division.

Harold Kaplan, highly popular and efficient manager of the Century Theatre, Minneapolis, which closed for the summer last week, will work out of the main office. He had been slated to go to Rochester, Minn., temporarily, to replace Ray Niles as city manager of the Publix houses there. Niles resigned to go with the Harold Finkelstein theatre chain, but has decided to remain with Publix at Rochester.

Dave Wells comes to the Paramount, Bismarck, N. D., to the Aster in Minneapolis. G. F. Spaeth, formerly at the Aster, goes to the Lyric, Duluth. J. B. Reisman has ben transferred from the Lyric in Duluth to the Grand, Minneapolis.

STROCK "AT HOME"

Personnel Manager Takes Manager's Post

Clyde Strock, personnel manager for the Publix Northwst division, took a whirl at house managerial duties during the last week of the Century Theatre's season when he acted as house manager after Harold Kaplan had departed from Minneapolis for Rochester, Minn., to take over the reins of the Publix theatres in the latter town.

It was like old times for Mr. Strock. Before becoming personnel managr he was assistant manager of the Minneapolis Theatre, Minneapolis, and is fully conversant with the task of running a showhouse from the front.

RELEASE MAY 17

Africa Series in Spring Vitaphone Group

"Adventures in Africa," Vitaphone's twelve-episode, two-reel short subject series filmed by Wynant D. Hubbard, Fellow of the American Geographical Society, author, traveler and wild animal trainer, on a two-year expedition into Upper Rhodesia and Portugese East Africa, is scheduled for spring release. The first of the series, titled "Into the Unknown," will be released on May 17, with the other eleven following at weekly intervals. Out of the 103,000 feet of film shot by Mr. Hubbard, Vitaphone has selected 24,000 feet of the most thrilling and sensational sequences for inclusion in its "Adventures in Africa" short subjects series. Company officials are of the opinion that these are the most authentic and sensational of wild animal pictures ever filmed in Africa.

Store Celebrates

Two thousand employes of the largest Minneapolis department store celebrated their annual party at the Minnesota Theatre. They followed the regular show with their own stage acts. The theatre prepared a souvenir program for the occasion.

Organist Resigns

Madison, Wis.—Mc Bridwell, organist at the Parkway Theatre here, has resigned to accept a similar post at RKO's Majestic Theatre at San Antonio, Tex.

Reopen at Racine

Racine, Wis.—The Capitol Theatre here reopened on Easter Sunday after being dark for a number of weeks.

plan of operation, the local house manager becomes a partner in the enter prise. Mr. Finkeltsein is the son of the late M. L. Finkelstein, partner in the F. & R. circuit, which was sold to Publix. He was general manager for the F. & R. chain for a number of years and, after its acquisition by Publix, was employed as assistant divisional manager.

Offices of the Finkelstein theatres are in the Hamm building, St. Paul. Mr. Finkelstein at present is vacationing at Excelsior Springs, Mo., where he drove in his new twin six Packard.

Road Show Ends

Road showing of "Trader Horn" by M-G-M in the the territory has been discontinued and the picture is being released at present on regular schedule. It will return to the Minneapolis loop for grind showings at the State Theatre on May 7. The picture has enjoyed big business wherever shown. When roadshowed at the Century Theatre, Minneapolis, recently, it drew more than $13,000 for the week at $1.50 top and all seats reserved.

Busy Buzzell

Hollywood — Eddie Buzzell is one of the busiest men on the Columbia lot. In addition to playing the starring roles in his own series of "Specialties," he directs and writes them. He recently had some spare time on his hands and he was immediately pressed into service to act as Master of Ceremonies in "Screen Snapshots" No. 6.

On Sales Trip

Having taken up his new duties as Big 4 special sales representative working out of the Celebrated Film Exchange of Minneapolis, Phil Ford has launchd on an intensive sales campaign which will carry him through the Minnesota and South Dakota territory.

Rogers in Town

F. B. Rogers, central division sales manager for E. R. P. I., paid a visit to the Minneapolis office last week.

Paramount Publix Corporation in its consolidated statement for the year 1930, which includes earnings of subsidiary companies, reports combined net profits of $18,381,178.00 for the year and $4,834,989.55 for the three months just ended December 27, 1930, after deducting all charges and reserves for Federal income and other taxes.

New Drive Against Bicycling

Violations Costing Producers $10,000,000 a Year; Bureau to Watch Observances.

New York — Distributors are making an intensive effort to check up the amount of playing time and rental receipts that are lost as a result of exhibitors holding over, bicycling and sub-renting pictures without authority or payment of rental. These practices are said to be costing the producers more than $10,000,000 a year.

Through the medium of the Copyright Protection Bureau, the distributing companies will endeavor to bring about a better observance of contracts and business relations on the part of many exhibitors who have been laying all their violation sto misunderstandings of contract or to special agreements with salesmen or exchanges.

In the case of a theatre operator with 300 days' playing time in the course of a year, the holding over of pictures without sanction or payment frequently means a loss of 100 days' playing time for the year. Non-payment of films held over and incorrect box-office reports also are to come in for attention. It is figured that the checking of about 25 per cent of the country's independent houses four days weekly would involve an expense of $26,000,000 a year, and to obviate this overhead as far as possible the cooperation of exhibitors has been sought in connection with eliminating exhibitions not authorized by approved contracts, as well as curbing salesmen and exchanges who continue to deviate from policy in their selling activities. Sales managers of different companies have issued strict orders to field representatives that no verbal agreements of any kind are to be made with exhibitors, and the men have been warned that violation of this rule will bring a severe penalty.

Cooperation of exhibitor leaders also has been obtained in many sections with constructive results.

Allied Newsreel Will Start in June

Extensive Campaign to be Launched by Allied for 3,000 Contracts at Outset.

New York—With the first appearance of the Allied-Kinograms newsreel scheduled for June, Allied States is planning, and executing, an extensive campaign for the sale of the produce to theatres included in the membership of the body.

Under the present plan Kinograms will devote its entire efforts to production and sale of space to national advertisers. Allied will handle the sales organization, either through outside salesmen or through its own members. More than 1,500 contracts for the reel, which will be issued twice weekly, have been obtained, with a goal set for 3,000 when the newsreel gets into active operation.

The plan calls for he theatre to book the reel on a rental basis, and in return receive financial remuneration for the advertising contained in the subject. Part of this remuneration is expected to be turned over to the Allied national and state bodies.

Fire Rules Revision

To be Recommended at Association's Convention in Toronto May 11 - 14.

New York—Revision of the regulations governing measures for fire prevention in the handling of film in exchanges and theatres will be recommended at the annual convention of the National Fire Protection Association in Toronto, May 11 to 14.

The new regulations, drawn up by the association's committee on hazardous chemicals and explosives, provide for fire-resistive construction wherever feasible, automatic sprinkler protection over all rooms where film is handled in any quantity, standard vaults for storage, and strict control of smoking and any other potential source of ignition of the film.

The regulations adopted in 1910 and amended in minor details in 1922 and 1926 have proven fully satisfactory in their application to exchanges, but with new developments in the industry it seemed advisable to revise them in order to bring them up to date and make them more inclusive in application.

COMMITTEE OF 10

Columbia Affairs Are in Charge of Group

New York—A committee of 10 will supervise the handling of all distribution for Columbia, under the general guidance of Jack Cohn, according to plans announced last week. The committee will be headed by Lou B. Metzger. The committee is composed of Abe Montague, Joe McConville, Lou Weinberg, Morris Safier and Wayne Pierson, director of road shows, all of whom will work out of New York. Joe Goldberg will be in charge of the West Coast, Phil Dunas will have the middle west, Sam Moscow will head the south and Phil Meyers guiding Greater New York.

GRANGE IN SERIAL

Football Star Signs With Mascot

New York — Harold E. (Red) Grange, the famous grid star of Illinois, announced last week that he had signed a contract with Mascot Pictures Corporation to return to the screen in a twelve-episode, all-talking serial. The first episode of the picture will be released throughout the country on September 1, so that the subsequent installments will be shown throughout the football season.

BIOGRAPHY READY

Laemmle's Life Story Is Published

New York — John Drinkwater's latest biography, "The Life and Adventures of Carl Laemmle," was published by the Putnam press on April 10. It will be a still further event in the celebration of Carl Laemmle's Silver Jubilee.

Sex And Crime Films Waning, Survey Shows

Berkeley, Cal.—Crime and sex pictures are on the wane, according to Clinton Wunder, executive manager of the M. P. Academy of Arts and Sciences, in an address before the Berkeley Women's City Club. Mr. Wunder said:

"All motion pictures that touch on the commission of crimes show some form of punishment or restitution for criminal behavior. In January and February, 1931, 48 feature pictures were released by studio members of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America and only 9 of these were the type of picture in which sex or crime had any degree of prominence. Of these latter 9 pictures, 8 received endorsement by one or more of the official reviewing groups in Hollywood representing great national organizations including the D. A. R., the University Women's Association, Y. M. C. A., Federated Women's Clubs, the Internaional Federation of Catholic Alumnae, etc."

Huston Signed

Universal City—Walter Huston, one of the big personalities of the talking picture era, has been signed by Carl Laemmle, Jr. He will co-star with Genevieve Tobin in "Boulevard," an original story by Ernest Wolf, which Mr. Laemmle, Jr., will produce as a new season special.

Renew Contract

Hollywood — Lily Damita, imported from Paris two years ago by Samuel Goldwyn to appear opposite Ronald Colman in "The Rescue," has signed a new contract which will prolong her services with Goldwyn for three years more. The first contract expired last week.

Regulated Rodent

Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America last week announced that, because of complaints of many censor boards, the famed udder of the cow in the Mickey Mouse cartoons was now banned. Cows in Mickey Mouse or other cartoon pictures in the future will have small or invisible udders quite unlike the gargantuan organ whose antics of late have shocked some and convulsed other of Mickey Mouse's patrons. In a recent picture the udder, besides flying violently to left and right or stretching far out behind when the cow was in motion, heaved with its panting when the cow stood still; it also stretched, when seized, in an exaggerated way.

Already censors have dealt sternly with Mickey Mouse He and his associates do not drink, smoke or caper suggestively. Once a Mickey Mouse cartoon was barred in Ohio because the cow read Elinor Glyn's Three Weeks. German censors ruled out another picture because "The wearing of German military helmets by an army of cats which oppose an army of mice is offensive to national dignity" (TIME, July 21) Canadian censors ruled against another brand of sound cartoon because a leering fish in it writhed up to a mermaid and slapped her on the thigh. As a result of their precise appreciation of movement and pattern plus the ability to visualize and execute the contours of their scenes and characters, the makers of animated cartoons enlarge cinema's prerogative in the fantastic treatment of time form, space, gravity, or place.

Like the better Russian films or a film by Chaplin, the cartoon film is planned to strike all the emotional centers of the spectator, but with this exception, that the animated cartoon takes far greater liberties with causality and limitations either spatial or physical. Throwing causality to the winds, the animated cartoon shows a sled and mule which, while speeding along, suddenly become detached and alternate as they ascend into mid-air and come down to resume their journey, or a slave mouse escapes from a galley ship, jumps into the sea, discovers a swordfish for a steed, drives the sword of the fish into the side of the ship and sinks the vessel with its slave-driving black cat. Buildings acquire legs, curl, or shake their sides with emotion. Pianos box, dance, and grimace. A wolf removes his false teeth to sharpen them with a file. Penguins dance rhythmically upon their bellies. Fish do their daily dozen, dart through a glass water bowl, swim in space, and dash back again through the side of the bowl. Baby seals play t

Newsreel Plans Expansion; Will Gather Own News

Terminate Arrangement With Kinograms, and Issue Reel of Greatly Broadened Scope.

New York—Gathering of news pictures by its own staff will be started by the Universal Newspaper Talking Newsreel, within sixty days, it was announced last week. The cooperative arrangement in which Universal and Kinograms have participated is being dissolved, and the U reel will be produced entirely independently.

When Universal decided two years ago to re-enter the newsreel field on its own, a company was incorporated under the title, Associated News Reels, Inc., by Universal and Kinograms for the joint gathering of news, the idea being the same as that of press associations in the newspaper field. At that time, it was expected that other newsreels might join the group.

Although news pictures were pooled between the two concerns, under this arrangement, the Universal newsreel has been entirely individual under the editorship of Sam Jacobson. It was Jacobson who suggested to Carl Laemmle that the "talking reporter" be created on the screen, and with the signing of Graham McNamee for this star role, the U newsreel has grown rapidly.

Jacobson is now assembling the staff of cameramen throughout the world for the newsreel under the new plan. The number of news sources is being greatly increased, and other big expansion plans are under way, soon to be announced.

Warns Against "Ads"

John R. Freuler Says Industry is Menaced From Within Because of Screen Ads.

"The motion picture industry, having overcome external obstacles by great effort, is now menaced from within," according to John R. Freuler, president of Big 4 Film Corp.

"After long probation, and, having successfully weathered the annexation of acoustics, a new hazard now appears on the screen in the form of merchandising propaganda," Freuler says.

"Having been associated with the exhibition of pictures, through the operation of theatres in several key points over a period of years, as well as the production and distribution of film, I am convinced that the keynote of successful operation has been, is, and always will be, the importance of supplying the buyer with exactly what he is paying for—entertainment, with no strings attached.

"It is true the saving involved in the industrial subject is attractive, not only to Class A theatres, but to subsequent run houses; however, these latter, which draw consistent audiences, can, even less, afford to run advertising film.

"The public, while cheerfully accepting a carefully selected, limited amount of advertising, per se, will resent the subtle short. They resent it because they are taken unaware, have no redress, and, in order to receive what their money has bought, they are required to bear with 'subsidized' entertainment. They feel, and rightly, the theatre has received just revenue at the box office, without seeking additional source of revenue at their expense.

"Propaganda of this kind should, at the outside, last no longer than two and a half minutes for a complete program. That time should include the theatre's own announcements in slides or trailers."

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, who for several years have been outstanding stars on the roster of New York's Theatre Guild, have signed a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to make a motion picture during the coming summer, with an option calling for an additional film the following year.

GOLF SHORT READY

First of Bobby Jones Series April 27

Hollywood—Bobby Jones is now well into production on his series of twelve one-reel short subjects on "How I Play Golf" for the Vitaphone Corporation. Actual filming was begun early in March and it is expected that the international champion will complete the series early in April, with the initial release being made on April 27.

The use of the various clubs will be explained and illustrated by Bobby in the various issues. The titles for his twelve short subjects are: 1—The Putter; 2—Chip Shots; 3—The Niblick; 4—The Mashie Niblick; 5—The Spade Mashie and Fron Iron; 6—The Three and Two Iron; 7—The Two Iron and Spoon—A Comparison; 8—The Brassi; 9—The Driver; 10—Trouble Shots; 11—Practice; 12—A Complete Round of Golf.

IN "STREET SCENE"

Nancy Carroll Borrowed by United Artists

Hollywood—Nancy Carroll has been borrowed from Paramount for the leading role in the forthcoming United Artists production of "Street Scene," according to announcement by Samuel Goldwyn.

This marks the first appearance of Miss Carroll for another company since she soared to stardom and is an indication of the importance of the Elmer Rice stage play in the eyes of Hollywood film authorities in general.

Another Juvenile

Hollywood — "Queen of Hollywood," from Sinclair Lewis' novel depicting adventures of child film celebrities, "Let's Play King," will be Paramount's next juvenile grown-up screen production to follow the success of "Tom Sawyer" and the recent enthusiastic reception by press and public of the previews of "Skippy." Direction has been assigned to Norman Taurog and Norman McLeod.

SENNETT RENEWS

Hollywood — E. W. Hammons, president of Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., announces the consummation of negotiations with Mack Sennett for renewal of the contract between Educational as exclusive distributor, and Mack Sennett, as producer of the Mack Sennett Comedies.

This is the third consecutive season that the comedy producer will release his short features through Educational exclusively, the affiliation of Educational and Sennett having marked the entry of both Educational and Sennett into the sound field.

"ALL QUIET" SEQUEL

"Fate" to be Title of Remarque Story

Universal City—Carl Laemmle, Jr., is making elaborate plans for the filming of Erich Remarque's sequel to the world-famous book and film, "All Quiet on the Western Front." The sequel's title is "Fate," an original story by Remarque, and it will go into production this month when the Universal studios resume full activity again after the current vacation period.

Careful consideration is being given by Mr. Laemmle, Jr., to the choice of director and cast for this important picture, and announcement of these will be made soon.

BIG CAMPAIGN

Vitaphone Will Exploit Africa Series

The Vitaphone Corporation's faith in the great drawing power of its African wild animal series of shorts, "Adventures in Africa," filmed during a two-year expedition into interior Rhodesia and Portugese East Africa, to be released in twelve 2-reel episodes—is evidenced in the complete advertising, publicity and exploitation campaigns which it is putting back of the series.

The film trade paper advertising campaign is now under way; a broadside on the series has been mailed to exhibitors; posters are in work; a large general press sheet is on the presses; 11 x 14 cards are in preparation; also a window card, lobby cards on each individual episode, a herald and a press sheet for each issue.

NO. 7 FOR JONES

Western Star Near End of His Series

Hollywood—"The Texas Ranger," seventh production in a series of eight outdoor "specials" which Buck Jones, Western star, is making for Columbia Pictures, is the company's second April release. Jones is starred in the title role, with Carmelita Geraghty in the leading feminine part.

Studio Closed

Culver City — Until May 4 the Hal Roach studio will suspend all business. Because all companies finished two weeks ahead of time, and the yearly production schedule for 1930-31 has been completed, it was decided to give the benefit of the two extra weeks to the studio employees.

'Skippy' Makes Possible Big Inexpensive Selling

THE presentation of "Skippy" at the Newman, Kansas City, Mo., gave Jack Shelley, its advertising director, an opportunity to execute an elaborate but inexpensive campaign.

Being a picturization of Percy Crosby's widely published cartoon strip offered a perfect tie-up with the Journal-Post, evening newspaper.

Great Newspaper Tie-up

They put behind the showing of "Skippy" the full use of their news columns, picture page, advertising space, rotogravure and comic section. Amusement editor, feature story writers, photographers and advertising departments were instructed to go the limit.

The publisher offered free guest tickets to the needy children and their parents. About five hundred called at the newspaper office for them.

Groups of orphan home inmates were brought to the theatre in cars and buses during dull periods.

Ace, their widely known columnist and amusement reviewer, devoted two different daily columns to "Skippy." He told the censors and advocates of cleaner amusements that here was their golden opportunity to get behind the picture that was the answer to their pleas.

Four-Page Tabloid

The newspaper printed on its presses 105,000 special four-page tabloid newspapers, for which no charge was made to the theatre. Fifty-five thousand of these contained on the two inside pages a "Skippy" cartoon coloring contest. The tabloids were distributed from house to house by the theatre staff. Front and back pages were devoted to detailed story and picture layouts.

The other 50,000 were distributed by an associated group of drug stores. They are an exclusive weekly full-page advertiser with the paper. The inside two pages of this section contained the druggists's ad. Throughout the ad the title "Skippy" was inserted. The ifrst 100 finding the correct locations of picture names received passes.

Preview, Trailers, Other Tie-ups

An advance preview was held for ministers, Parent-Teachers' officials, school supervisors and newspaper reviewers.

The Newman screen carried trailer announcements two weeks before opening date.

From the Paramount-Publix exchange 100 tire covers were purchased. These were placed on rear tires of seven different taxicab companies. Passes were given to the drivers.

After "Skippy" opened sidewalks in front of schools were stenciled in white, "See 'Skippy' Today!"

The news agency, handling the distribution of Screen Play magazine which carried a feature story of Bobby Coogan, placed 300 quarter-sheet cards. They were paid for by the theatre.

Daily newspaper ads, Shelley states, were created with the thought of appealing to those between the ages of 16 and 23 years. The lobby display of brilliant illustrations was held to minimum cost.

Shelley was asked what this elaborate campaign cost. "We spent below the average amount allowed us for the usual picture," is how he put it.

Radio Tie-Ups on "New Moon"

EDDIE FURNI, manager of the Paramount Theatre, St. Paul, Minn., included radio broadcasts in his campaign on "New Moon."

He arranged with radio station KSTP, whereby every morning for seven days, they played a record of "Lover Come Back To Me," the song hit from "New Moon." Announcements were also made of the theatre and playdate and the fact that two famous singers were being co-starred in the production, namely, Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore.

Window displays were secured in music stores, on sheet music. Stills were used in the displays.

Furni also arranged with distributors for Atwater Kent Radios for several other displays of stills in radio stores.

SELLING the "angle" that sells.

Many elaborate and expensive campaigns have met with dismal failure at the hands of those who have not given the utmost thoughtful consideration to the vital selling angle.

Yes, the angle that arouses the attention, the interest, the desire, the conviction and the action of those who fill the additional seats that make business better or establish new records.

The selection and understanding in choosing the successful selling angle distinguishes the ability of a good seat filler.

We have known where western pictures have failed to draw. But booking circumstances made it necessary to occasionally play them. Was the gun-toting cowboy plastered all over the newspaper ads, lobby, etc., let it go at that? Emphatically no! They talked only about its love and romance.

Another instance brings to mind an outstanding picture based on a story about "kids." With this one they were sure of the children's business, but they needed adults to fill the empty seats. What was the decision? Sell the comedy angle! Tell them it has laugh after laugh; that they'll be living their kid days all over again. It brought the adults.

Every cigarette advertiser year in and year out has spent a fortune selling, "They're the best," "Turkish and domestic blend," "There is no finer or smoother cigarette made."

Then Lucky Strike dug up an angle and told the world to tremendous profits, "It's toasted" — "Reach for a Lucky" and "Sunshine mellows, heat purifies, etc." Now other cigarette advertisers are groping for new angles.

The right angle backed up by an enthusiastic campaign brings exceptional results for the ordinary entertaining picture.

Ability to pick the right angle means selling extra seats.

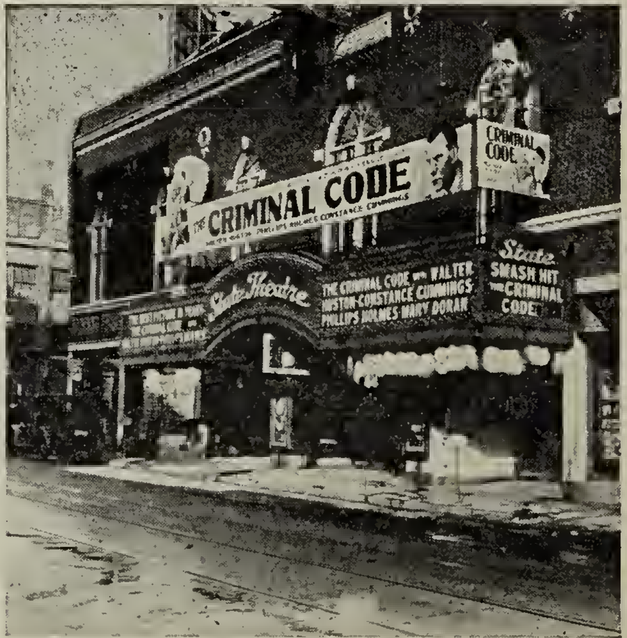
Effective Cut-outs

Harry Zeitz, manager of the State, New Bedford, is a firm believer in cutouts and used them extensively in boosting "The Criminal Code."

He used four cutouts on a three-way front, as illustrated here. The result was an attention-getter that got 'em.



PICK OF THE PRESS SHEET

Newspaper Lingo As Attention Getter

"THE Finger Points" press sheet has an interesting list of newspaper terms that can be utilized for a contest or lobby poster. It should attract attention. It also has a line of gang-slang expressions. The terms and expressions can be displayed on a poster in the lobby in advance of the picture's showing with answers omitted. Offer a shiny new dime to the first twenty-five persons getting twenty out of twenty-five correct answers, turning them in to the box-office every day, the cashier giving the dime immediately to the correct guessers.

Gary Cooper Shirt Tie-up

PARAMOUNT has tie-up with Salisbury Shirt makers for "Gary Cooper Shirt." Special 22 by 28 color enlargements are furnished free to merchants handling the Jackson and Jackson of Salisbury, Maryland, line. Your exchange ad sales manager can provide you with names of local dealers.

Cigar Burning Contest

SEVERAL days in advance place various size cigar butts on trays in cigar or drug store window, marking them as going out at various times. Then place also whole cigar used in tie-up with card reading, "How long will this one last?" Then on announced time and day have someone in window smoking cigar. Offer passes to first number of winners. This should get prominent corner windows. (Taken from "City Lights")

File This Idea For Next Year

THE Friendly Theatres in Kansas City admitted free any child under twelve years of age to its Saturday afternoon performance, upon donation of a hard-boiled colored Easter egg. The Easter eggs were turned over by the theatres to charity institutions on Easter Sunday.

Nutty Angle on "Royal Family"

IN Oakland, California, C. A. Tompkins and Phil Phillips of T. & D. Theatre, through a tie-up with the Squirrel Nut Shop, distributed hundreds of packages of nuts. Girl ushers were used to hand them out on prominent corners to sell the nutty angle on "The Royal Family of Broadway."

Pets Parade for Mickey Mouse

ERNEST LUDWIG of the Coliseum Theatre, Seattle, used a pet parade in connection with a plug for his Mickey Mouse club. The Seattle Star gave it much publicity. It was a parade of kiddies, strutting dogs, cats, chickens and every conceivable domestic animal. Prizes were given participants after a performance in front of the theatre.

Birthday Club to Get the Kids

HARRY SHAW, manager of Loew's State Theatre, has launched a city-wide campaign to enlist the interest and loyalty of the children of Cleveland. He has inaugurated a "birthday club." Every child in the city is eligible to membership upon registering his birthday with the management and securing a certificate of membership. Although started only two weeks ago, the Birthday Club already has more than 500 members.

BIG RCA SALE

Washington Buys Units for Institutions

Seattle—In addition to having broken all records for the sale of sound apparatus for theatre installations during the past sixty days, RCA Photophone, Inc., has increased its activities in the non-theatrical field to a marked degree. The largest single order for sound apparatus ever placed by the authorities of a state was received last week by Sydney E. Abel, general sales manager of RCA Photophone, Inc., from the Department of Business Control of the State of Washington. Four complete units of sound reproducing apparatus were ordered for the Washington State Reformatory at Monroe; the Washington State Penitentiary at Walla Walla; the Eastern State Hospital at Medical Lake and the State Training School at Chehalis. F. W. Normand, district manager of RCA Photophone at Seattle, negotiated the contracts with O. L. Olsen, director, and J. A. McKibben, supervisor of institutions.

8 FROM RICHMOUNT

To Make Pictures From Popular Novels

A series of dramas taken from popular detective and secret service novels and magazines, to be known as "The Supreme Eight," will constitute a part of the production schedule of Richmount Pictures, according to D. J. Mountan, president.

The first to be completed is "The Last Ride," to be released April 15. Featured players in "The Last Ride" are Dorothy Revier, Charles Morton, Frank Mayo, Virginia Brown Faire, Tom Santschi and Blackie Whitford. Duke Worne directed. The entire eight have been sold for English distribution to Universal Pictures Corp.

Mae Marsh Returns

Hollywood—Mae Marsh, star of a few years ago in silent films, is to emerge from retirement to play the principal feminine role in "Over the Hill" for Fox. For several years Miss Marsh, now Mrs. Louis Lee Arms, and the mother of three children, has been living in the hills of Flintridge, not far from Pasadena.

Record Bookings

New York—Warners announce that the bookings already received for the Bobby Jones 12 one-reel Vitaphone shorts, "How I Play Golf," have gone into the thousands which means the series will break all records for the number of contracts.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PICTURES

FEATURES and SHORTS

Skippy

Paramount—88 Min.

Cast: Jackie Cooper, Robert Coogan, Mitzi Green, Jackie Searl, Willard Robertson, Enid Bennett, Donald Haines, Helen Jerome Eddy, Jack Clifford, Guy Oliver. Directed by Norman Taurog.

Following upon the heels of Tom Sawyer, Paramount has come through with another kid picture which is bound to register box-office throughout the country.

The picture is based upon the Percy Crosby cartoon of the same name and can be classed as one of the best kid pictures ever made. A few more like this and the children should be coming back to the theatre in droves. In the opinion of this reviewer Jackie Cooper in the name role gives one of the finest kid characterizations in celluloid history. The story concerns Skippy and his pals, their trials and tribulations and the loss of a dog, taken away from his playmate Sooky because he fails to pay the license fee. Skippy puts on a show in order to raise funds for the release of the dog. His father, the dog catcher, shoots the dog without waiting three days as required by law and Skippy is off the parent for life. The highest point of artistry has been reached in this particular scene. Skippy has all the ear marks of a natural. It's great entertainment for the entire family.—Warren Stokes.

SELLING SEATS: If a newspaper in your town carries the Skippy cartoons, you can rely on co-operation. If Skippy doesn't feature the cartoon page of a local newspaper, announce the fact that Skippy is one of the most beloved of kid comics. Appeal to the grown-up men in your advertising, advising them that they will see themselves again as kids in this picture. Play up Jackie Cooper as one of the principal members of the "Our Gang" comedies. If you put over a good campaign of juvenile appeal on "Tom Sawyer," a similar campaign will also work on "Skippy." Don't advertise it too much as a picture for children. It's good stuff for the adults and go after them as well. Don't forget to play up Mitzi Green and Robert Coogan, Jackie Coogan's brother.

Subway Express

Columbia—68 Min.

Cast: Jack Holt, Aileen Pringle, Fred Kelsey, Allan Roscoe, Aggie Herring. Directed by Fred Newmeyer.

Excellent picturization of the popular stage play which ran two years in New York. It is a murder mystery with all the action taking place in a New York subway and rates as good entertainment with bits of comedy here and there.

Jack Holt, as a police inspector, solves a complicated murder mystery of a man killed in the subway. The story is cleverly handled and there is good dialogue. The picture should generally please the fans who do not expect too much —that is, crashes and dare-devil stunts as the title might indicate. —Jesse.

SELLING SEATS: Play up Jack Holt and advertise the fact that the stage play ran two years on Broadway and is classed as one of the greatest murder mysteries of its type. Tie-up with your local newspaper by offering a prize for the best solution of the murder mystery.

Gentleman's Fate

M-G-M—94 Min.

Cast: John Gilbert, Louis Wolheim, Leila Hyams, Anita Page, Marie Prevost, John Miljan, George Cooper, Ferike Boros, Ralph Ince, Frank Reicher, Paul Porcasi, Ten Holtz. Directed by Mervyn Le Roy.

At last they have produced a masculine voice for John Gilbert and have given him a he-man role. The title can be taken in a prophetic sense to apply to the star as we'd say he's fated for a successful career in the talkies.

While Gilbert is exceptionally good he is forced to relinquish first honors to the late Louis Wolheim, who does his last picture-stealing in this film.

Gilbert, believing himself to be an orphan, is raised in luxury and when he becomes betrothed to a society girl discovers that his father is dying, the victim of a rival bootlegger's hi-jacking. Wolheim, as the brother, forces him into the racket by making him take the rap for a stolen necklace he has given his fiancee. Released from jail he joins the gang, becoming a full-fledged racketeer and a marked man when he kills a hi-jacker to save his brother's life.

He stages a swell fist fight with Wolheim in an attempt to quit the racket, exhibiting a lusty pugnacity that wins admiration from the tough brother. He is finally shot by rival gangsters and dies a lingering death with the brother promising to go straight. Excellent supporting cast makes this fine entertainment.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Gilbert has been criticised for a poor voice. But in this picture he surprises everybody with a very satisfactory voice and if your fans still believe his speech is poor, concentrate your campaign on the improvement. Louis Wolheim makes one of his last appearances in this one, which should be included in the billing. Campaigns on other racketeer pictures may be used successfully on this picture. If "Little Caesar" made money for you, play up the fact Mervyn Le Roy, who directed that picture, also directed "Gentleman's Fate."

Woman Hungry

First National—67 Minutes

Cast: Sidney Blackmer, Lila Lee, Raymond Hatton, Fred Kohler, Kenneth Thompson, David Newell, Olive Tell, J. Farrell MacDonald, Tom Dugan, Blanche Frederick. Directed by Clarence Badger.

This picture is in Technicolor and from the title one might get the impression it is a sophisticated drawing-room narrative. However, it is based on "The Great Divide," which has been made in silent form several times. It is a western although hard to believe, judging from the title. There is a considerable comedy relief and some very fine acting by Sidney Blackmer, the male lead. Lila Lee is satisfactory as the feminine support.

The story tells of how Blackmer saves the girl from his two tough companions, on the promise that she will marry him if he will save her. He makes good his promise and she carries out her end of the bargain, although she does not love him. And it is up to Blackmer to win her love.

The settings are good and the story runs smoothly and convincingly. "Woman Hungry" has considerable merit.—S. F. D.

SELLING SEATS: Play up the title to the older folks and get the idea over that it is a western to the younger folks. Play up the fine scenery and the fame of the play. First National has a good press sheet on this picture, containing some good suggestions. Use the press book.

The Devil's Cabaret

M-G-M—17 Minutes

Here is an excellent short if it doesn't offend those who look too seriously upon Heaven and Hell. Eddie Buzzell is featured and a fine dancing chorus is displayed to good advantage. The idea of the whole thing is this: Eddie, as a representative of Satan, is sent to earth to get more patrons for Hell, Satan declaring that Heaven is getting too much of the earthly trade. Buzzell brings down quite a party to Hades and gives everybody a big time. Finally, Eddie tells the crowd that the men will retire in the men's quarters and the women will go to the women's ward. One of the girls objects to being separated from the men, but Eddie explains that that is the Hell of it. Short made in Technicolor and well done.—Steen.

Hot Wires

Pathe—20 Minutes

A comedy that had possibilities but something went haywire, either in the writing or the direction. Daphne Pollard works hard to get in the laughs but many of the gags and situations fall flat. She takes the part of the new cook in a bootlegger's home, coming to the job after the man had shot another cook for serving poor food. A few comical situations but it failed to get much of a rating with a reviewing audience. —G.

THE LAST WORD

SEX-HAUSTED

A SAGE once said, "Any virtue carried to excess soon becomes a vice." That statement seems to well fit the trend of pictures and the advertising that some have been using to sell them in recent months, if we may be excused for inferring that such a trend is even closely related to being a virtue. The sex theme has been overplayed. It has been carried to excess and its overdoing, if not stopped, is going to have a startlingly bad effect on the industry.

Censorship has been openly invited by some of the so-called sophistication that has cropped out in dialogue and spoiled, rather than helped many an otherwise fine picture. A current instance is in the case of "Strangers May Kiss." Here is a vehicle that is finely acted and directed and excellently produced. It has a sex theme but it is delicately handled in a manner that is not offensive, yet it is purely adult entertainment. But two lines of dialogue that were totally unnecessary blemish all the fineness of this production and invite the condemnation of those people who have been advocating screen censorship and looking for just such open causes for their action.

It may be true that we have the freedom of speech in this country and that may apply to dialogue in motion pictures. But motion pictures have not yet been so liberated as a whole that they cannot carry the liberty of speech too far in their dialogue.

One of the lines we refer to is, "She will teach you what to do to arouse a man." The other, not quite so bad, because it was spoken in more or less jest, but bad, nevertheless, was, "You are the object of my passion." Here is probably the case of a thing being done so much, because it was thought to be box-office, that, like a habit, it is done even where it is uncalled for. The picture has plenty of attributes to sell it to the public without degrading it.

During the present legislative sessions throughout the country more censorship bills have come up than ever before. Even local censorship has been sought in large cities where state censorship measures have failed. The industry can't go on saying that it doesn't need censoring and continue to present objectionable plots, scenes and dialogue. The public has thought that the cycle of this "modern" trend had reached its end, but, if it hasn't, they'll bring that end about themselves.

Producers have made a lot of pretty statements about the need for family trade, but they haven't backed them up with pictures that invite it. The thousands of neighborhood and small-town theatres, where family patronage counts heavily, are especially affected by pictures with a class appeal that does not include parents and their children. Even in ultra-sophisticated New York it's this type of play that has brought about advocation of censorship for the stage. We think the public is fed up with "life as it is in all its natural drabness."

A change to the cleaner romantic type of production, that was the very foundation of the motion picture's success, would be a healthy change.

Scooter-Nite

Wins Kids on Sight!

Full Description of $3 Retail Value 3-Wheel Safety Scooter

Of very newest speed design, built of first quality steel to hold any weight up to 200 lbs. Beautifully finished in red and green enamels. Has large reinforced natural wood handle-bar, balanced hinge for easy turning; 5-inch double disc steel wheels. Platform of one-piece heavy-pressed steel.

EACH boy and girl in your drawing radius will bring you 24 paid adult admissions in exchange for on of these 3-Wheel Safety Scooters.

In the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN you get these identical scooters to offer every kid in your drawing radius—and you get them at factory price of $1.12 each. This offer is open to all chain and independent theatres in the U. S. We do not sell these Scooters to retail trade, but only through our premium plans. The SCOOTER-NITE PLAN will only cost you a fraction of what you can and often do spend on exploitation stunts that have nothing like the possibilities of permanently built up business, which the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN provides. You make friends with SCOOTER-NITE.

Most exhibitors work "SCOOTER-NITE" two or more days a week. For example, if the exhibitor finds Mondays and Thursdays are his dull nights, he works SCOOTER-NITE for those days; or if he should run the same picture two days in succession, he makes Mondays and Tuesdays, or Thursdays and Fridays, his SCOOTER-NITE. The quicker he gives away these Free Scooters the more advertising he gets through the children using them and showing them to their friends, relatives and neighbors. As long as the Scooters last—and they are of steel construction so will last indefinitely—you will be getting advertising value from them; children are proud to mention that they EARNED the Scooter at your theatre.

Children won't let their parents, relatives or friends alone until they have helped fill the Record Card. The Record Card is a card bearing the name of your theatre and with twenty-four printed squares on one side, in which your cashier or doorman stamps—with rubber stamp which we furnish—a square for each adult admission brought by the child. For example, if the child brought in four adults, the child would get four of the squares stamped.

When all twenty-four of the squares are filled the child turns in his Record Card and receives one of the 3-Wheel Safety Scooters. No strings—no contest. Every child has equal opportunity. You run no risk of disappointing anyone. You issue Scooters only for completely filled cards.

Costs You Less Than 4 2-3 Cents Per Admission

To illustrate: The Scooters cost the exhibitor $1.12 each. There are 24 stamps on Record Card. 4 2/3c times 24 equals $1.12. Therefore cost to exhibitor is 4 2/3c per admission.

How to Order for Scooter-Nite Plan

Required starting order is 24 Scooters. You can best estimate the number you may require, but your first order must be at least for 24. Four Cards are furnished free, imprinted with your theatre name, for each Scooter ordered; thus on minimum order you would receive free 96 Record Cards. Heralds imprinted with theatre name, are furnished for $3.00 per thousand. A 120-ft. Trailer is loaned for two weeks only, and a deposit of $3.60 is required if Trailer is desired. This deposit is returned to theatre on return of Trailer.

NORTHERN THEATRE SUPPLY CO. TO DISTRIBUTE UNIVERSAL SOUND SYSTEM

WE GRATEFULLY ACKNOWLEDGE

These Letters of Compliment on Our New "Dress"

Based upon a long experience as a magazine and newspaper editor and having been identified with the motion picture industry in publicity and advertising capacities for the past several years, I believe I have acquired sufficient knowledge to pass judgment upon the quality of a medium designed and compiled for circulation among those who are interested in the production, distribution and exhibition of present day screen fare.

Assuming the prerogative thus established, I hasten to felicitate you upon the splendid piece of work you have done in connection with the changes made in your group of magazines, copies of which have reached my office today. Artistically, and I am thinking of the bright, new covers, the several magazines are exceedingly attractive. Editorially and typographically, I note much improvement. Your plan to devote more attention to regional news is commendable.

As a firm believer in the value of regional publications, having had their value demonstrated, I congratulate you and the members of your organization upon the change you have brought about in Associated Publications. Such noteworthy improvement merits unstinted praise and I bespeak for you the success to which you surely are entitled.

G. K. RUDULPH,
RCA Photophone, Inc.

The new covers certainly dress up the Associated Publications and make them very attractive indeed. They should stand out in any group of magazines.

W. RAY JOHNSTON,
President, Monogram Pictures Corp.

We think the change is a very noticeable one for the better which no doubt will bring results and we trust you might be more successful than ever.

SAM E. MORRIS,
Vice-Pres., Warner Bros. Pictures.

I hope you will accept our sincere compliments on a very fine job. We of Radio Pictures have always considered your group especially noteworthy.

DON EDDY,
RKO Studios, Inc.

I have had an opportunity of seeing your decidedly "dressed up" issues. This is certainly a great improvement.

W. E. GREEN,
President, National Theatre Supply Co.

May I congratulate you on the new style you have adopted for your publications. The covers look alive, modern and in keeping with the editorial matter and general contents of the publications themselves.

GEORGE R. BILSON,
Warner Bros. Pictures.

Got a load of your new regionals and want to congratulate you on the snappy sheets. The inside pages are very lively and your front opening pages are very smart. Keep hitting 'em on the nose!

SAM WARSHAWSKY,
RKO Distributing Corp.

Your publications have always been bright and interesting and recent changes somewhat enhance their exterior appearance.

E. G. BENTLEY,
American Seating Company.

I like your new spring dress immensely and I hope it will never fade. I'm sure it won't.

P. D. COCHRANE,
Universal Pictures Corp.

I want to compliment you on the appearance of your new issues. They are 100% better looking and have much more life than before.

DON M. MERSEREAU
The Film Daily.

What! You mean to say I have been reading your ten publications every week and have not discovered they have a new face of type? The Associated Publications always looked keen and inviting to me.

FRANK J. WILSTACH,
M. P. Producers and Distrs., Inc.

Many thanks for the set of April 7th issues, remodeled and retitled. I think your idea of localizing the headline is an excellent one. That, combined with the greater amount of local news, strikes me as being of considerable interest to showmen in each of the various territories. So far as I can see your entire redecoration plan is a tremendous improvement and I feel that by the time you receive this the result will already have been noticeable to you.

GOV. ON SCREEN

La Follette to Make a Vitaphone Debut

Milwaukee—Governor Philip F. La Follette of Wisconsin will go to New York within the next two or three weeks for the purpose of making a Vitaphone picture at the Warner Bros.' Vitaphone studio in Brooklyn. In this picture Governor La Follette will make a speech which will later be reproduced in connection with the coming opening of the new Warner Theatre in Milwaukee. The theatre will open for the first time during the first week in May. Governor La Follette has promised to be present on that occasion, and as a member of the audience he will see and hear himself on the screen. This is believed to be the first time that the governor of a state has made a trip halfway across the continent in order to appear in a motion picture.

MECHANIC'S LIEN

Madison Theatre is Taken Over

Madison Wis. — The Eastwood Theatre, local neighborhood house, has been taken over under foreclosure of a mechanic's lien. The theatre, which has been closed for redecoration, is expected to reopen within ten days under new management. Paul Norris has been manager of the theatre for the past several months.

Pictures in Churches

By M. E. CUFFEL, Editor

THE inauguration of talkies as part of the regular Sunday night church services of a Minneapolis house of worship is a development which should receive the consideration of every motion picture interest.

Here is a potential source of competition which eventually may prove as hurtful to theatres as the free shows of the small towns which have been combatted vigorously the past several years. The possible dangers from this new form of opposition should not be disregarded.

Supposing that a large number of the more important churches should be similarly wired and should offer talkies as a part of their regular Sunday night services. It is conceivable that, under such circumstances, patronage at the showhouses might be seriously affected. When it is borne in mind that Sunday nights provide the main revenue for many showhouses the matter takes on an even greater importance.

The whole problem will resolve itself into the type of film which distributors will make available for the Minneapolis and other churches. If releases are restricted to "educationals," including travel and hunt pictures, we do not believe any great amount of harm will be done. Few prospective theatre customers will be lured away from the Two Hotels and Church Install Sound Equipment and Offer Picture Programs.

With two hotels and one church in the Twin Cities already wired for sound pictures, non-theatrical competition looms as a bugaboo for the film showhouses. The situation, however, is not disturbing W. A. Steffes, general manager for the Northwest unit of Allied States, who does not fear any threat from these quarters.

The Nicollet hotel, Minneapolis, and Lowry hotel, St. Paul, recently installed sound equipment. Church of the Redeemer, one of the largest and most important Minneapolis loop houses of worship, followed quickly in their footsteps. What is more, it offered its first talkies last Sunday night.

Church of the Redeemer is said to be the first church in the United States to install sound equipment. It is Universalist in denomination and comprises many wealthy and prominent parishioners. For several years the church has been showing silent pictures as part of its Sunday night services.

The first talkie to be offered at Church of the Redeemer was "Tiger Hunting in India." It attracted more than 300 people and will be repeated next Sunday. Other talking pictures, mostly hunting and travel subjects, will follow, the plan being to include a talkie every Sunday night as part of the regular services.

"Talking pictures will take the place of travel lectures," says the Rev. Marion D. Shutter, pastor of the church. "They furnish a legitimate source of entertainment and instruction and encourage attendance.

"I do not believe talking pictures ever will supplant sermons. You cannot mechanize everything. We are the first in the country to

"Subway Express" Good at Orpheum; Others do Fair

Minneapolis (week ending Apr. 21)—There were no particularly outstanding pictures the past week, but the general average was fairly high. Business was somewhat slow at all the houses except the Minnesota and RKO Orpheum.

Duke Ellington and his band, a stage attraction, drew throngs to the Minnesota. At the RK0 Orpheum "Subway Express" pulled a lot of customers.

In her local screen debut, Elissa Landi, in "Body and Soul," made a fine impression at the State where business was fair.

Aster—Men Call It Love (M-G-M), Adolph Menjou and Leila Hyams. Business: Light. Summary: A racy and sophisticated comedy of a young wife who attempts to play at the same game as her unfaithful husband; adult entertainment. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; "Our Gang" comedy and serial.

Photophone Busy

RCA Photophone in Minneapolis is busy with new installations. The Star Theatre, Duluth, opened April 19 with Photophone sound equipment. Emil Nelson is manager. Ells Larson of the Cokato, Minn., theatre, also has installed new RCA Photophone equipment following acoustical treatment of the walls and ceiling.

Adverse Measure in Wisconsin Assembly

Milwaukee, Wis. — Although Wisconsin theatre operators have not been endangered by any adverse theatre legislation since the opening of the legislature, several bills have been introduced into the state assembly within the past week, which, if they become laws, will add to the exhibitors' difficulties.

The one bill seeks to regulate motion picture machine operators and would make it illegal for one projectionist to operate more than one machine in a theatre. The bill further provides that the projectionist must be at least 21 years of age.

Another bill which has been introduced into the assembly would place a 4 per cent tax upon the gross receipts o feach theatre in the state. The proceeds from this tax would go to the common school fund of the state. This bill also provides for an annual five-dollar license fee to be paid by theatres.

Penalty for violation of the law ranges from a fine of from $100 to $300 or a six-months' jail sentence. Second or snbsequent offenders would suffer repeal of the license one year. Shows staged by religious or charitable organizations would not be included under the provision of this bill.

ting exceptionally fine results with a new deluxe model.

Universal has incorporated into the deluxe model a new type of optical system with an optical slit. This gets many times more light to the photocell than has been accomplished hitherto, it is claimed by S. J. Segal, general manager for the Northern Theatre Supply Co. The range of the equipment has been increased in an electrical way so that the lowest known tone as well as the highest can be distinctly reproduced and heard.

"Universal has developed a marvelous system of proper filtering out of all mechanical noises, a new corrected exciter lamp mount using wiping contacts; new cushion photocell mount, and a new non-microphonic head amplifier that is mounted on a unit on the film head itself," says Mr. Segal. "Electrically, every unit is perfectly matched in order to get fidelity and a quality of reproduction unheard of heretofore."

Mr. Segal says that Universal regards MOVIE AGE as an outstanding regional trade paper in the territory. He has a high opinion of it as an advertising medium.

"We feel that MOVIE AGE covers the field either 'like a snowstorm in the winter or a shower in the summer,' to quote our friend, Jay Se Jenkins."

ACTION POPULAR

N. W. Likes Melodramas, Tom Burke Says

Northwest exhibitors want good action melodramas because their public is demanding this sort of talkie entertainment, Tom Burke, Minneapolis exchange manager for Tiffany, finds.

Among the new Tiffany product are three melodramas said to be crammed full of thrills and action. They are "Drums of Jeopardy," "Hell Bound," and "The Single Sin," and they are selling like hot cakes in the territory, according to Burke.

"The reception accorded to these three splendid pictures in the territory leaves nothing to be desired," says Mr. Burke. "Our business is far ahead of the corresponding period a year ago."

Paramount's Program

REAL ADVENTURES

Paramount News to Record Them

Atlantic City—Two special adventures of unprecedented nature, over the land and under the sea, will be exclusively recorded by Paramount Sound News in th near future, according to an announcement made by Emanuel Cohen, head of the Paramount News Reel organization, before the twentieth jubilee convention of Paramount at the Hotel Ambassador here.

These exploits are respectively the venture of Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted polar explorer to the North Pole in the submarine Nautilus—an achievement never before tried in the varied flights of Arctic history—and a solo flight by Ruth Nichols, noted woman flier of today, who will take off by herself in an attempt to span the ocean by air to Europe, marking the first time that a woman dared alone to duplicate the pioneering feat of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

"Family Films"

New York—John R. Freuler, president of Big 4 Film Corporation, for many years an ardent advocate of "family films," says: "Only that picture, that play or that book which is of such a nature that the whole family may consume it generally and unqualifiedly, is truly successful. And the picture, play or book which meets these requirements generously must attain fulfillment!"

Ben Lyon Cast

Hollywood—Ben Lyon will be Constance Bennett's leading man in "Virtue's Clothes," the picture in which she will first be starred by Warner Bros. under her new long-term contract with the company. "Virtue's Clothes" is an adaptation of the novel, "Jackdaws Strut," by Harriet Henry. Archie Mayo will direct. The adaptation is by Charles Kenyon and Raymond Griffith.

Paramount's twentieth anniversary program of pictures, backed by two decades of production experience and the vast resources of three great studios in Hollywood, New York and Paris, presents the strongest line-up of productions in the history of the company, it was declard at the sales convention here last week.

A wider variety than ever before is comprised in the new schedule of feature pictures.

In addition to the features, further scope will be given to the programs of the leading theatres throughout the country through the presentation of a list of Paramount short subjects consisting of 104 issues of the sound news, 100 one-reelers and 32 two-reelers.

Among the productions will be: "Strangers and Lovers," "A Farewell to Arms," "No One Man," "Twenty-four Hours," "Morals and Marriage," "The Man I Killed," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," with Frederic March. "Step-daughters of War" with Ruth Chatterton, Marlene Dietrich in two pictures.

Three Maurice Chevalier pictures, including "The Smiling Lieutenant." "Love Me Tonight," "Girls About Town," with Paul Lukas. "Monkey Business," with the Marx Brothers. "Secrets of a Secretary," with Claudette Colbert, "An American Tragedy," "Shop Girl," "Rose of the Rancho" with Dolores del Rio. "Silence," "Strange Guest" with Paul Lukas. "Roundup," "This Is New York," "The Daughter of the Dragon," "The Marines Have Landed," with Buddy Rogers. "Tomorrow and Tomorrow."

"Wild Beauty" and "Personal Maid," with Nancy Carroll.

Tallulah Bankhead in three picturs, first of which is "China."

"Murder by the Clock," "Huckelberry Finn," "Sooky," Harold Lloyd in one picture. "Tom Sawyer, Detective." "Manhandled," with Clara Bow. "Evenings for Sale," with Paul Lukas. "Graft" with Gary Cooper. "Mr. Noodle," with Jack Oakie and Skeets Gallagher.

George Bancroft in three pictures, the first of which will be "Rich Man's Folly."

"Help Wanted," "Cheated," 'Caught," "Uncertain Women," with Claudette Colbert. "Tabu," "Imperial Palace," "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "The Kaiser's Coolie."

RKO Pathe Production to be Based on Timely Value

RKO-Pathe to Feature Stars in Stories of Timely Value; Also Making Big Group of Shorts.

Chicago—The first annual convention of RKO Pathe which closed in Chicago Wednesday developed a new system of motion picture production. Instead of plotting a schedule a year in advance RKO-Pathe is presenting each of its notable stars in a series of 21 pictures, but the stories are to be selected on the basis of their timely value. In other words, each star is to be bright-lighted in a group of features, each one to be chosen on the strength of its appeal at the particular moment of production.

Responsibility for the foregoing announcement rests with Ned E. Depinet, vice-president and general sales manager.

To Follow Public Taste

Constance Bennett, whose current feature is "Born To Love," will be starred next in "The Common Law." During the next year she will make three other pictures for RKO-Pahe, each of them to be selected or written particularly for her.

"The public taste changes so swiftly in these modern days that we believe it is policy to base our production upon it," said Mr. Depinet. "We believe it is common sense to turn out pictures that are in tune with the age."

Ina Claire is starring in "Rebound" and will be in several other feature pictures. In her supporting cast are Robert Ames, Myrna Loy, Robert Williams, Hedda Hopper and Hale Hamilton. Edward H. Griffith directed. The story is based on the Arthur Hopkins stage success by Donald Ogden Stewart.

Helen Twelvetrees, whose recent marriage made first page copy, will star first on the new schedule in "A Woman of Experience." In the supporting cast she will have Billy Bakewell, Lew Cody, H. B. Warner, Zasu Pitts, Franklin Pangburn, Nance O'Neil, George Fawcett and Edward Earle. Harry Joe Brown directed.

Bill Boyd's first starring vehicle will be titled "Suicide Fleet," from an original story by Lew Lipton. He will make at least four other starring features during the year.

Ann Harding is to be starred first this year in "Devotion," based on the novel, "A Little House in the Temple" by Pamela Wynne.

In addition to the foregoing features, RKO-Pathe will produce others starring Eddie Quillan and James Gleason. Quillan will appear first in "Whoop-Te-Do Kid." His supporting cast will include Jimmy Geason, Marion Nixon and other well known players. Al Rogell will direct.

New Series of Shorts

Over and above the feature program RKO-Pathe will produce the regular quota of comedies, Van Buren specials and 104 issues of Pathe News. Also there will be six novel short subject comedies to be produced by a group of the most famous stars in Hollywood on the RKO-Pathe schedule this year. This series will be known as the Masquers, and will be produced by the Masquers Club of Hollywood.

The first of the series is titled "Stout Hearts and Willing Hands." A partial list of the cast includes Frank Fay, Laura La Plante, Jack Holt, Lew Cody, Tom Owen and Matt Moore, Mal St. Clair, Chester Conklin, Clyde Cook, Ford Sterling, Alexander Francis, Glenn Tryon, Franklin Pangborn, Hallam Cooley, Frank McHugh, Mack Swain, Mary Carr, Mathew Betz, Maurice Black and Earle Fox.

To Attract Family Trade

Announcement by Lee Marcus, president of RKO Pathe and Ned E. Depinet, general sales manaegr, states that a series of six western pictures has been scheduled for production this year in addition to the major program.

"These pictures," Mr. Depinet said, "will be designed to appeal to the entire family and to regain for the exhibitors patronage of the younger generation. They will appeal to all classes. While they will present the story of the West when it was 'wild and wooly' they will carry the elements of romance and adventure which appeal to all types and all ages."

Another outstanding feature of the schedule will be a series of thirteen pictures starring Floyd Gibbons, noted war correspondent, radio announcer and author. This series will be produced by A. P. Waxman, advertising counsel for R K O Pathe, collaborating with Michael Mindlin, pioneer of the art theatre movement in the United States.

Big Schedule of Comedies

The short subject material during the year will include 26 Aesop's Fables, 26 Grantland Rice Sportlights and 13 Vagabond Adventures. Pathe News will turn out 104, releasing on Wednesdays and Saurdays of each week. The schedule includes 42 feature comedies, 6 with James Gleason; 6 with Benny Rubin; 6 with Frank McHugh; 6 Gold-Diggers; 6 Cuckoo Cops, 6 Manhattans and 6 Traveling Salesman's.

incorporate voice with church pictures. It is impossible to say how soon other churches will follow our example."

Mr. Steffes says he is not worried about this new type of opposition because he feels that churches and hotels will be unable to obtain in the sort of pictures which would bring them into serious conflict with the regular theatres. He admits that even the showing of so-called sound educationals may have the effect, however, of drawing into the churches some of the people who otherwise might patronize the theatres on Sunday nights.

The matter of this non-theatrical competition from wired hotels, etc., came before the recent Minneapolis convention of Allied States. At that time Mr. Steffes spoke in opposition to any resoluion protesting against sound installations in buildings other than theatres. He expressed the view that hotels and churches would have difficulty in obtaining picures because it was unlikely that the exchanges would do anything to hurt the theatres and cut down their sources of revenue from the showhouses when the amount o be realized by selling to theatres and churches would be comparatively small.

showhouses and into the churches by such attractions. The showing of pictures of this nature even may benefit the theatres in the long run by making additional talkie fans.

We hardly can believe that distributors will do anything to the detriment of their chief customers and mainstays, the exhibitor, in supplying films for churches and other non-theatrical customers whose contributions to their revenues would be comparatively infinitesimal. They realize only too well that if they hurt the theatres they hurt themselves.

NEW OMAHA FIRM

Midwest Establishes Another Branch

Omaha — A new independent film exchange is planned to open in Omaha May 1 to serve the Omaha and Des Moines territory, it is announced.

The new company will be a branch of the Midwest Film Distributors, Inc., of Kansas City, Mo. C. M. Parkhurst, who has been connected with the Midwest organization in Kansas City for the past three years, will be in charge of the Omaha exchange. "Parky," as he is more intimately known, is a likeable personality.

The Midwest company has for a long time held an enviable reputation among the independents in the Kansas City territory. Under the leadership of C. A. Schultz, its president, Midwest has been successful in creating good will among the territorial exhibitors. The organization was originally known as the A. H. Blank Enterprises. The company handles a varied line of product, both shorts and features. The various companies' product handled are Continental, Syndicate, Big 4, Fitzpatrick and Mascot. The Omaha exchange will carry the same lineup of product, it was reported.

Midwest was recently affiliated with the Monogram Pictures Corp., newly formed organization of independent companies from coast to coast.

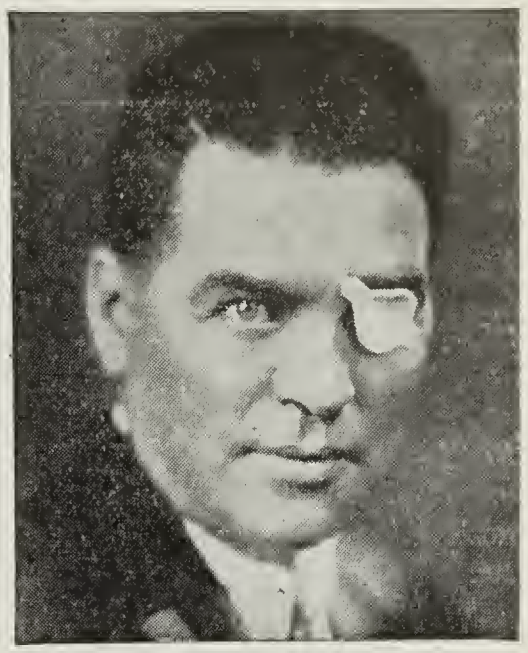
FLOYD GIBBONS

HEADLINE HUNTER



FLOYD GIBBONS

FLOYD GIBBONS, war correspondent whose "beat" has extended to almost every corner of the world, is a hero of adventure fiction come to life. Before he came to the National Broadcasting Company to recount his hair-raising adventures, he had made an enviable name for himself as a reporter, a war correspondent, an author, an explorer and a lecturer.

His twenty years as a "Headline Hunter" have been replete with thrills. Today, as a radio personality, he is known to millions for his gripping tales of adventure and his interest-compelling manner of interpreting the day's news over the air.

Gibbons was born in Washington, D. C. After being graduated from Georgetown University he took the advice of another famous journalist and went West to launch his newspaper career. He got his first job twenty-three years ago on the Minneapolis Star. His salary was $7 a week. Little realizing that the cub reporter was later to reach the heights of journalism, his city editor fired him for—of all things—incompetency.

But young Gibbons was not discouraged. He developed a clarity of style and a keenness of observation that soon won him recogniion as a star reporter.

War Correspondent

His first experience as a war correspondent was in 1914, when he was assigned to cover the Battle of Naco on the Arizona-Sonora front. He remained in Mexico to file vivid reports of the battles and skirmishes in the many revolutions and counter-revolutions of the Latin-American Republic.

When the notorious Francesco Villa terrified the Mexican countryside, Gibbons was with him reporting the Guerrila warfare. Later he accompanied General Pershing on his punitive expedition against Villa.

His reports were widely read and were largely instrumental in bringing about the Pan-American conference on the Mexican question. He also wrote a series of articles exposing the conditions of the poorly equipped state troopers on the Mexican border that were extensively quoted in the campaign throughout the United States for military training.

Sent to England

Before the United States entered the World War, he was assigned by the Chicago Tribune to go to London as its war correspondent. This was on the same day that Germany announced to the world the submarine blockade of the British Isles.

Gibbons decided to risk the blockade. His newspaper insured him for $25,000. Providing himself with a non-sinkable garment and carrying a supply of compressed food tablets, he booked passage on the S. S. Laconia, a Cunard liner carrying munitions and war supplies.

The night the Laconia entered the U-boat zone, a torpedo from a German submarine found its mark and the Laconia slowly settled as the passengers crowded to the lifeboats. Gibbons donned his lifesuit and got into a boat filled with terrified passengers. The boat drifted about all night until he and his companions were picked up by a British vessel and brought to Queenstown harbor, Ireland.

Gibbons was reported lost at sea. But a few days after his obituary was read in America, the 4,000-word story of the sinking of the Laconia which he cabled from Queenstown was printed in the Tribune. The story stirred great interest and was read on the floor of the United States Senate at a time when America was only awaiting an "over act" to declare war on Germany. Five weeks later the United States entered the war.

Goes to Front

When the A. E. F. landed in France, Gibbons was among the first of the American war correspondents to go to the front with the American troops. He was under fire during the remainder of the war. At the Battle of Chateau Thierry he was wounded and lost the sight of his left eye.

The croix de guerre was conferred on him and he was later made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor. He also received the Italian war cross.

Since the World War, Gibbons has participated in at least one war or revolution almost every year, covering rebellions and uprisings in every nook and corner of the globe. He has had adventures all over Europe, Africa and Asia.

He was the first war correspondent to defy the ukase of the Soviet government against foreign newspapermen by reporting first-hand post-revolution conditions in Russia. He gathered news in battle-scarred Balkans. He covered the Spanish Riff war and was with the French when they were closing in on Abd-El-Krim. His adventures even carried him to Timbuctu.

Lost in Sahara

Four years ago he was lost in the Sahara desert when he led an American expedition through blinding sandstorms across a waste of blazing sand. For three months and five days he pushed on across the Sahara until he finally reached Timbuctu. The expedition kept on through the jungles of Central Africa for 11,000 miles until the party reached the Cape.

In addition to his many magazine articles and signed dispatches, Gibbons is the author of "The Red Knight of Germany" and "The Red Napoleon."

He became a broadcasting artist accidentally. He had visited M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, to get information for "The Red Napoleon." In that book he told of war correspondents who described wars through portable microphones, while flying over the battlefields in radio-equipped planes. The NBC executives suggested that he try broadcasting. Gibbons gave up his newspaper connections and has been on the air ever since.

Radio Debut

More than a year ago he made his radio debut as the "Headline Hunter." Later NBC assigned him to cover the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin at Lakehurst, N. J. He described the return of the giant dirigible as he walked about the field with a microphone and a portable transmitter hung about his neck, thus fulfilling the prophecy he made in his book.

Some months ago he became a radio war correspondent, describing a mimic battle of the Argonne at the War College in Washington. Recently he has announced over the air the day-by-day reports of the Literary Digest's prohibition poll, with a resume of the day's news.

He is one of the fastest speakers on the air and recently was clocked speaking at the rate of 217 words a minute.

Waxman and Mindlin Associated in Production

A. P. Waxman

In April, 1931, Gibbons signed with A. P. Waxman and Michael Mindlin to produce a series of 13 pictures for RKO-Pathe Van Beuren, titled "Floyd Gibbons' Supreme Thrills." It was his first adventure into motion pictures. The series consisted of interviews with World War celebrities on their most thrilling moments during the conflict. The scenes were visualized with sound effect. The producers are well known in their respective fields, Mr. Waxman having been a producer and motion picture executive for many years. Mr. Mindlin is the pioneer in America of the art theatre movement.

Eschmann Joins

Ed Eschmann, widely known and popular sales executive, has been appointed branch manager of the RKO-Pathe exchange at Pittsburgh. Sam Lefko- formerly in the job, goes back home to Philadelphia.

Del Rio in "Dove"

Hollywood — Rumors that Dolores Del Rio, Mexican screen beauty, would star in a film adaptation of Willard Mack's "The Dove," for Radio, have been verified by William LeBaron, vice-president in charge of production. Story preparation is under way and screening will start at an early date.

NEW BIG 4 SERIES

Stimson Announces Increased Schedule

New York—C. A. Stimson, vice-president of Big 4 Film Corporation, announces that a new series of westerns will be produced by his company, as soon as the present group of twelve all-talking outdoor westerns—with ten already produced—has been completed. This swells the 1930-1931 program to thirty-two features and twelve two-reel comedies.

It is planned that the new series of westerns will be more pretentious than the present group and will be based on carefully selected stories with hand-picked casts of Western favorites. They are to be recorded in the new "silent recording equipment."

Along with its elaborate western program Big 4 continues with the eight melodramas, two of which "Sheer Luck" and "Trapped," are now completed.

In conformity with its present policy the subsequent six pictures will be built along lines of progressive improvement and will contain several box-office names to augment the productions. The series of twelve two-reel comedies directed by Craig Hutchinson continues active with "The Big Flat," third of the series, in preparation.

Fox Sells Loew's

New York—Judge John D. Knox in the Federal Court here last week signed a consent decree permitting Fox Theatres and Fox Films to divest themselves of all Loew stock to the newly-formed Film Securities Corp. The action was brought in answer to suits of minority stockholders who hoped to hold up the sale.

The order provides that Film Securities shall hold title to the Loew stock only if its affairs are managed so as not to substantially lessen competition between the corporate defendants.

Upholds Music Tax

Supreme Court Hands Down Decision in the Case of Composers vs. Realty Co.

Washington — The theory that payment of score charges precludes payment of the music tax was upset by a decision handed down by Justice Brandeis of the supreme court last week. The decision entrenches the distributors' position in the matter of damages recoverable on infringements against those who bicycle or hold over pictures.

The case involved was Jewell-LaSalle Realty Co. vs. Gene Buck as persident of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

In a case disclosing infringement of a copyright covering a musical composition, there being no proof of actual damages, Justice Brandeis ruled that a court is bound by the minimum amount of $250 set out in the socalled "no other case" clause of the Copyright Act.

EDUCATIONAL-TIFFANY DEAL

Completed; One Exchange System for World Wide, Tiffany and Educational.

E. W. Hammons, president of Educational Pictures, Inc., and chairman of the executive committee of World Wide Pictures, and L. A. Young, president, and Grant L. Cook, vice-president of Tiffany Productions, last week jointly announced the completion of negotiations, which have been in progress for several weeks, for the reorganization of Tiffany.

Under the agreement, the sales, exploitation, and distribution activities of Tiffany will be taken over by the enlarged organization within a few weeks. One exchange system will operate for the physical distribution of Educational, Tiffany and World Wide Pictures, Educational's exchanges being retained for this purpose, except in a few locations where the Tiffany exchange offers more adequate space or greater adaptability. Production of pictures still to be made on the current Tiffany program will go forward immediately, through a newly-formed corporation known as Tiffany Productions of California,

Reduce Score Charges; A $750,000 Saving

New York—Through the efforts of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America a reduction in score charges has been made effective as of April 11 by Electrical Research Products, according to an announcement by M. P. T. O. A.

On March 14 a committee from the theatre owners national organization called on C. W. Bunn, general sales manager for E. R. P. I., the sales division for the Western Electric Company, and after several hours' conference concluded an arrangement whereby the score charges were to be reduced. As a considerable number of installations wre affected the work of making the readjustment fit into each case was commenced and finished a few days ago.

The saving in score charges will aproximate $750,000 annually and affects over 2,000 of the smaller Theatres of the country. It is likely that as the mechanism is being constantly improved, additional reductions will be made so as to bring the expenses of the talking picture apparatus well within the means of all theatre owners.

This result of a round table conference entirely justifies the policy of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America along the lines of mediation and mutual concessions within the industry.

The committee waiting on Mr. Bunn consised of M. A. Lighman, M. P. T. O. A. president; Vice-Frank C. Walker; chairetaoinoin Presidents Charles Picquet and Frank C. Walker; Fred Wehrenberg, chairman of the board; Director E. M. Fay and Secretary M. J. O'Toole.

Uphold Contract Divisibility

Exchange May Enforce Agreements Without First Resorting to Arbitration.

New York — The U. S. circuit court of appeals of the fourth circuit has handed down a decision holding that a distributor is not required to proceed first to arbitrate as provided in the standard exhibition contract before bringing action against an exhibitor for breach of contract. This sweeping decision is expected to be followed by all U. S. district courts throughout the country.

The case involved is that of Paramount vs. National Theatre Corp., in which the distributor charged breach of contract in the distribution of certain films which the company furnished and for which the defendant agreed to pay. The theatre concern claimed among other things that the plaintiff could not maintain the action because it had not submitted the matters in controversy to arbitration as provided in the contract. Paramount countered with the statement that this condition could not be complied with because the arbitration boards specified in the contract had ceased to function due to being outlawed by the Thacher decision. The case, however, was decided in favor of National Theatre Corp. by the U. S. district court for the Western District of Virginia, Lynchburg. Paramount then carried it to the court of appeals, and among the points raised was whether or not the contracts sued on are entire and indivisible. The appellate court ruled that, where agreements in restraint of trade are unlawful in part, they are enforcible as to the parts that are not unlawful, and that this holding runs back to the earliest authorities. In consequence, the judgment of the lower court was reversed.

No Star Series

Atlantic City—In announcing the production schedule for Paramount's 1931-32 program, Sidney R. Kent said the company's features will be sold individually and not as star series. Paramount product will be sold exclusively on the basis of the potential and actual box-office value of each picture, Kent said.

FIRST NATIONAL

The Lash, Richard Barthelmess—Unusually good production in spite of costumes. Was afraid it wouldn't click but it did. The picture has plenty of action to please your western fans and plenty of high class scenes and singing to please your high class patronage, so play it Saturdays and you please them all.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Girl of the Golden West, Ann Harding—It's hard to class this picture. I played Saturday night to under par crowd. The picture pleased, however, about 50 per cent.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Little Caesar, Edward G. Robinson — A gangland picture that I played to good audience and went over in great style. Plenty of action and suspense. Story is interesting and well directed. A good production in every respect. Ending okay.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

FOX

Liliom, Charles Farrell — The wrong kind of story for Farrell. He's not himself without Janet Gaynor.—R. C. Gentry, Lyric, Baldwyn, Miss.

Lightnin', Will Rogers—Poorest of Rogers' productions and yet it proved good entertainment and Rogers' reputation gets it by.—Ike Katz, Tivoli, Montgomery, Ala.

Part Time Wife, Leila Hyams—A really good picture with a really bad title. A family picture that has lots of heart interest. Will please the kids, too, as the little boy and his "shepp'er - Newfoundler" dog steals their hearts. If you can get them out, this one will please.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Lightnin', Will Rogers—A picture everyone should see. Pleased the kings. It was a money maker for us.—Holland & Venable, Liberty, Lone Wolf, Okla.

M-G-M

A Lady's Morals, Grace Moore—Reginald Denny and Miss Moore in a weak story based on the life of Jenny Lind. Not so good.—R. C. Gentry, Lyric, Baldwyn, Miss.

Bachelor Father, Marion Davies.—A picture with an English setting is poor business the second night and this was no exception to the rule. Marion Davies played her part well, but the rest of the bunch was punk. You can fool them one night only on this one.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Remote Control, William Haines.—This star well liked here with his smart wise-cracking. This picture is good. Bill takes the part of a radio announcer for a practically bankrupt radio station, puts it on a paying basis and wins the girl. Good ending with plenty of comedy all the way through.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Remote Control, William Haines—One of Haines' best. Pleased everyone. For real comedy Bill can't be beat.—Holland & Venable, Liberty, Lone Wolf, Okla.

STATE RIGHTS

Ten Nights in a Barroom, William Farnum—Doubled our normal business. Put it over with big ballyhoo truck and special front. Great attraction for small towns.—James Costello, Starland, Michigan City, Ind.

SELLING SEATS

PRACTICAL IDEAS . . .

WHAT to do!
HOW to do it!
WHEN to do it!

. . . . BY PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

"Dracula" Can Offer A Variety of Stunts

"DRACULA" is said to have caused the start of a flood of ghost stories by various producers. Its successful selling campaigns during its eastern showings is reported to have brought it much added box-office value.

Managers and publicity directors used ideas and stunts that can be included in the smallest inexpensive campaign as well as in the costly, extravagant ones.

Its short snappy title lends itself to smashing display. There is an air of mystery about it that arouses curiosity.

A few of the seat-selling ideas used follow:

Serial Broadcast and Ballyhoo

George Brown for the State-Lake, Chicago, used a six-day radio broadcast of a serialization of "Dracula." It was presented by a tie-up with a dramatic school, without cost to the theatre or studio.

The Chevrolet distributors cooperated with Brown on a street ballyhoo. They supplied one of their new models with driver, gas, oil, etc. A local stock company actor who played "Dracula" rode around in the car. During the first week he wore a mask. The following Monday and Tuesday he rode without the mask. A cash prize was offered for the first person to identify him on these days. The Chevrolet dealers bannered their windows announcing the stunt and distributed throw-aways on it through their mailing lists and in the showrooms and from the car.

The Chevrolet company also planted pictures of the ballyhoo in the auto sections of the Chicago papers and gave it a two-minute announcement on their national radio hour.

The wolfsbane envelopes containing tea leaves were distributed. Bricks with the title and theatre name lettered on them were given to newsstands.

The whole front of the theatre was tied together by a huge spider web made of rope. Behind this web was a large face of "Dracula" with green eyes flashing on and off.

A Variety of Ideas

Manager Golding of the St. Louis Theatre, St. Louis, Mo., used the kiss throw-away idea taken from the press sheet. These were used in the downtown office buildings as were strips on mirrors in barber shops, beauty parlors, soda fountains, etc. Letters were sent to all doctors and clergymen. Thousands of the "Don't Dream" envelopes were distributed to patrons after they had seen "Dracula" on the opening day. A mammoth street banner, stretching the entire width of the theatre building, was used to display the title. Ushers wore masks the entire week preceding the opening.

Newspaper Ghost Story Tie-up

With the Baltimore Post, the Auditorium Theatre and Station WCBM cooperating together, prizes of cash and tickets were offered for the best local ghost stories received at the theatre, the newspaper or the radio station. The newspaper gave the idea daily stories and the radio station gave it time on the air.

Stores, Newspaper Cooperation

With the Baltimore Post, the Falls, S. D., had the whole city on the hunt for "Dracula" as the feature of its campaign. Its tie-up included the support of 21 local stores and radio station KSOO. Heralds were distributed giving details of the hunt, and daily announcements were made from the radio station. All stores cooperating had window displays and the theatre lobby carried a special announcement of the stunt. At stated hours on each of five days a man dressed as "Dracula" appeared in various stores. In order to win the prize it was necessary to step up to the man, tap him on the shoulder with the right hand and say: "I have been looking for you, Dracula. By day you are dead. By night you come forth to haunt youth and beauty. You will appear at the Egyptian Theatre one week starting (date)." Twenty-five dollars was awarded to the first person to identify "Dracula" each day.

Window Display Tie-Ups

"STEPPING Out" is a title that offers opportunity for many window displays. Press sheet reproduces stills that can be used effectively.

AD - it - orial

By William Jacobs

"KEEP everlastingly at it."

These vigorous words greet one in conspicuous display in the office of a widely known successful eastern advertising corporation.

It is not an expression read and thought clever, then forgotten.

These four words of simple wisdom indicate clearly and forcibly the general spirit and unified movement, this merchandising organization marches on to selling victories.

Edison did not create the light bulb during his first, second or third experiment.

Bell did not perfect the telephone during his first few trials.

Motion pictures did not entertain millions daily during their early days.

Campbell's soup was not an overnight selling sensation.

However, each of the aforementioned triumphed only by keeping everlastingly at it.

No theatre will permanently keep its seats filled by spurts of selling effort.

Valuable tie-ups, no matter how clever, are not put over successfully with only one or two visits to a merchant.

Publicity material cannot be placed with newspapers by mere luck. You have to crash through by consistently creating something worth while.

Successful campaigns are resultful only when every detail is followed through step by step to their very end. When there is no let up in pressure. When obstacles and refusals are passed off as mere trifles and considered as encouragement to push them all the stronger.

Live—breathe—think—talk—feel and see seat selling ideas, and above all—

Believe in "Keep everlastingly at it."

Animation in Lobby Gets the Eye

GEORGE LABEY, manager of the Publix Olympia Theatre in Boston is to be complimented on the attractive arrangement of his lobby display. Fortunately he has quite a good space to fill and this he does in a very able manner. As the theatre is located across the street from where the crowds pass he has made it a habit with each feature to have some sort of animation in the display which arrests the attention from a distance and creates a desire to see "what makes the wheels go 'round." Much credit should also be given the Publix sign department for the beauty of designs which they create for all displays for the Boston houses which show a real interest in the work they are doing.

Exhibitor Puts On a "Radio Week"

MANAGER E. FITZPATRICK of the Fox-Poli Theatre in Meriden, Conn., worked out a fine tie-up with local radio merchants recently by holding a "Radio Week."

He arranged with eight local distributors of radio sets and secured a double truck of co-operative advertising in the local paper with the theatre getting all the best of it in publicity breaks bringing in a vast amount of good will besides. The exhibition was held in the lobby of the theatre for four days and drew a large enthusiastic crowd who came to see the display of latest type radio receivers. On the final day of the exhibit a credit slip for $25 was presented to holder of the lucky number given out.

Try This One On Your Fire Plugs

WHEN "The Third Alarm" played the Fox Bijou Theatre in New Haven, Manager Harry Cohen obtained permission from the fire department officials to place "No Parking" signs on all the five hundred hydrants in the business section carrying an advertisement about the feature. He also went quite a ways from home to obtain an old-fashioned horse-drawn fire engine which he had manned with uniformed firemen and drove through the principal streets with the bell clanging and drawing considerable attention.

Teaser Campaign

"GOD'S Gift To Women" is an exceptional title for an advance teaser campaign. Arrange plenty of time in advance to start placing cards in various parts of lobby, at head of aisle entrances, men's and women's rooms, box-office and outside of theatre reading, "What Is 'God's Gift To Women'?" "Who Is 'God's Gift To Women'?" "Do You Know 'God's Gift To Women'?" "'God's Gift To Women' is coming." Flash it on your screen between subjects. Then follow up with "Enjoy 'God's Gift To Women' here (date)." "Learn the secret of 'God's Gift To Women' (Date)." Carry one-inch ads scattered throughout newspaper with choice of above copy.

Jumbled Sentence Tie-Up With School

TO interest the high school students, Robert Gilmour conducted a jumbled sentence contest with the Lowell Beacon, official organ of the Lowell High School, San Francisco.

Scattered between the regular ads in the paper were thirteen sets of words. The first appeared in his theatre ad and read—"We are glad." From this the students were to find the other groups, and put the words together so that they made readable sentences.

Seven hundred handed in their efforts to one of the teachers. The first ten received tickets as prizes.

Prizes to Readers of Paper Series

ZACK HARRIS of the Golden Gate, Los Angeles, offered free tickets to the Tribune as a further interest to readers enjoying a series of short, short stories that the paper is publishing.

Those who wrote the best letters pointing out the errors in spelling, transposition of words grammar or the introduction of an unrelated sentence received passes. Only first, second and third prizes were offered.

Want-Ad Tie-Up On "Body and Soul"

THE classified ad pages of the Minneapolis Star were used as an aid in selling "Body and Soul" by the State Theatre, Minneapolis.

At the top of the page each day a 2x5-inch display ad announced that to anyone who returned an article which previously was advertised as lost in the newspaper's "lost and found" column the publication would give two tickets to see the picture.

A note from the party who lost the article verifying the fact that it had been returned was all that was required of the finder to get the passes.

The top of the lost and found column carried an additional box ad.

Educational Deal

Inc., Ltd., of which Mr. Hammons is president.

Educational's policy of dealing in short features exclusively will in no way be affected by this arrangement. Educational will take over the handling of the short subjects on Tiffany's program, leaving Tiffany and World Wide dealing in full length feature pictures only, and Educational specializing in short subjects as it has been doing for more than a decade.

A separate feature sales force will handle the sale of Tiffany and World Wide feature subjects, operating out of Educational's branches in the United States, but maintaining the Tiffany identity. This feature sales force, which will be of much greater strength than either Tiffany or World Wide has had heretofore, through the transfer of many of Tiffany's men to the new organization, will be ready to take the field on the day of the transfer of activities. This date will be announced later but will be some time within two to three weeks.

Del Rio to Para.

Hollywood — Dolores Del Rio, romantic star of "What Price Glory," "Ramona" and "Resurrection," was signed last week by Paramount for the role of an aristocratic senorita in "The Rose of the Rancho," talking picture version of the stage success by David Belasco and Richard Walton Tully. Jesse L. Lasky stated that the picture will be filmed entirely in Technicolor under the direction of Edward Sloman.

Has New Title

Hollywood—The title of Dolores Costello's new Warner Bros.' starring picture, now in production at the West Coast studios, has been changed. Heretofore known as "The Passionate Sonata," it will in future bear the title "Expensive Women." The picture, which is being directed by Hobart Henley, is an adaptation of an unpublished novel by Willison Collison which will be in the bookstores next fall.

The Spy

Fox—65 Minutes

Cast: Kay Johnson, Neil Hamilton, John Halliday, Freddie Frederick, Milton Holmes, Austen Jewell, Henry Kolker. Directed by Berthold Viertel.

Exceptionally well made dramatic story with Soviet Russian background that packs a real punch and has plenty of romance and action.

Neil Hamilton as an exiled aristocrat decides to return and visit his wife and child and to kill the "Tcheka," head of the secret police system. His wife has been forced to accept the favor of one of the members of the secret police, who learns of the husband's return and a code message which he brings with him He obtains possession of the message and uses it as a bait to get the wife to visit him alone in his apartment. The young son, realizing the importance of the message to his father's welfare, gets a gang of urchins, who making a living by stealing, to get it away from the member of the police system.

The police spy is found dead outside the wife's home and she, on finding the body, thinks her husband has killed him and assumes the guilt. At the investigation it is found that he was stabbed and not shot and evidence finally shows him to be the victim of the urchins' leader. The aristocrat is exiled for ten years to Siberia. Excellent cast who render above average performance put this over big. Suspense well held and climax is strong. Fine entertainment.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Play up the suspense angle. As Russia holds a news spotlight at present, mention the fact it has a Russian background. Bill it as an exciting, breath-holding and absorbing drama of intrigue. Love element is strong, so push it.

Beyond Victory

RKO-Pathe—73 Minutes

Cast: Bill Boyd, Zasu Pitts, Lew Cody, Marion Shilling, James Gleason, Lissa Arna, Theodore Von Eltz, Mary Carr, Russell Gleason, Fred Scott, Frank Reicher, Wade Boteler, E. H. Calvert, Chas. Coleman, Max Barwin, Hedwiga Reicher. Directed by John Robertson.

Comedy-drama with World War as a background. Story opens with five men left to cover an American retreat and flash backs to show their different reasons for joining the army. Bill (Bill Boyd) had left his fiance, Katherine (Lissa Arna) because he didn't want to shoot his wife's brother, she being of German descent Jim (James Gleason) enlisted because he thought he would be safer in the army than dodging knives which his wife (Zasu Pitts) threw at him in her act. The quintet is reduced to these two, who are finally wounded just before the armistice and come to in a German hospital where Bill's sweetheart finds him needing a blood transfusion, which she gives him.

The end of the war and the recovery of Bill and Jim, who are decorated for bravery, also brings about the reunion of Bill and Katherine.

James Gleason steals this one from Bill Boyd and his snappy wise cracks furnish the comedy relief.

Excellent cast well directed, together with some fine photography help keep this somewhat jumbled story from complete failure and make it an average program feature that will please most anywhere—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: You can use some of your previous ideas in selling war pictures on this one, although the comedy angles should be given a bigger play. Gleason should be given strong billing.

Cracked Nuts

Radio—64 Minutes

Cast: Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Dorothy Lee, Edna May Oliver, Limi Stengel, Stanley Fields, Harvy Clark and Boris Karloff. Directed by Eddie Cline.

Here is a picture that is a sure cure for the blues — for the patrons and the box-office alike. This picture is a hilarious comedy and highly entertaining and will force a chuckle from the lips of the "crabbiest crab." Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey keep the audience in a constant uproar—the laughs come one after the other.

The dialogue was written by Ralph Spence and Al Boasberg. Briefly, the story concerns two "cracked nuts" — Woolsey and Wheeler—who are rivals for the throne of the mythical kingdom, Eldorania. Wheeler buys a revolution for $100,000 and is to be king of Eldorania. On his arrival there, however, he finds that the present ruler of Eldorania is his old friend from Brooklyn. But before Wheeler can become king, he is commanded to assassinate his old friend, the present ruler. The complications that develop and the results that follow, keep the audience in constant hilarious laughter. Dorothy Lee plays the leading feminine role and is as charming as ever.

The plot of the story, however, is rather ridiculous and impossible, but if the audience enjoyed Wheeler and Woolsey in "Rio Rita," "Half Shot at Sunrise," "Hook, Line and Sinker," and others, they will without doubt like this hokum comedy. There is only one song in the picture, and that is reminiscent of Wheeler's and Dorothy Lee's part in "Dixiana." Some of the "gags," too, and a couple of scenes are practically the same as that which appeared in some of their other pictures.

Taking it all in all, however, this picture should appeal to any audience. They can drop their worries at the door and follow the two "cracked nuts" to Eldorania, and for a long time after they will remember their "trip" to the kingdom of Eldorania.—E. S.

SELLING SEATS: Advertise this picture to your public as an all-laugh production starring the world's prize nut combination with the stars of "Cuckoos," "Half Shot at Sunrise" and "Hook, Line and Sinker." As the title indicates the picture has something to do with nuts, the exhibitor can hold a special nut matinee for the kiddies or tie up with the neighborhood drug store by featuring a special Wheeler and Woolsey nut sundae.

THE LAST WORD

WANTED: MASS APPEAL

ANNOUNCEMENT that the newly merged Tiffany-World Wide company will aim its production efforts in the direction of supplying the demand for family type product should be welcome news to the suburban run and small town theatre owners. These houses have been suffering from a lack of wholesome picture fare that has been crowded from current feature programs by the overdoing of sex stories. A return of good wholesome picture entertainment, not just program stuff, but quality product, will do much to revive the lagging public interest in pictures at this time and kill off the growing evil of double featuring.

Reports are also current of the return to independent production of a number of men who supplied much of the good independent product during the days of the silent picture. While the reason is reported as the increased demand for product to supply double feature programs, we look upon this as the wrong answer. Too little income would result from supplying a market of such low rentals as double feature programs afford for individual pictures. Besides the double feature idea will be short-lived at best. A bargain ceases to be a bargain when it becomes a regular thing and the public will go only so long for quantity without quality.

The answer to the present need of suffering box offices is, as it has always been, quality product. There has been too much of the same thing; too many pictures with the same plots; too much class appeal and not enough mass appeal. Pictures made their success on being a popular entertainment for the masses. They should continue to cater to the tastes of the vast public that made them and still wants them.

Independent production by the right men will do a great deal to alleviate the monotony of sameness and to supply originality and variety that picture fans want. Independent exhibitors can encourage independent production by giving it more playing time on their screens.

GOOD WORK WELL DONE

ANOTHER worthwhile service has been rendered exhibitors by the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America. This time it is a reduction in the service charge to approximately 2,000 small theatre owners who use Western Electric equipment. This saving of $375.00 annually to each theatre or a total of $750,000.00. President M. A. Lightman of the M.P.T.O.A. deserves commendation for his efforts which brought about this big saving to exhibitors, which goes for non-members as well as members of the national exhibitor organization.

With the Tried and Proven

Scooter-Nite

EACH boy and girl in your drawing radius will bring you 24 paid adult admissions in exchange for on of these 3-Wheel Safety Scooters.

In the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN you get these identical scooters to offer every kid in your drawing radius—and you get them at factory price of $1.12 each. This offer is open to all chain and independent theatres in the U. S. We do not sell these Scooters to retail trade, but only through our premium plans. The SCOOTER-NITE PLAN will only cost you a fraction of what you can and often do spend on exploitation stunts that have nothing like the possibilities of permanently built up business, which the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN provides. You make friends with SCOOTER-NITE.

Most exhibitors work "SCOOTER-NITE" two or more days a week. For example, if the exhibitor finds Mondays and Thursdays are his dull nights, he works SCOOTER-NITE for those days; or if he should run the same picture two days in succession, he makes Mondays and Tuesdays, or Thursdays and Fridays, his SCOOTER-NITE. The quicker he gives away these Free Scooters the more advertising he gets through the children using them and showing them to their friends, relatives and neighbors. As long as the Scooters last—and they are of steel construction so will last indefinitely—you will be getting advertising value from them; children are proud to mention that they EARNED the Scooter at your theatre.

Children won't let their parents, relatives or friends alone until they have helped fill the Record Card. The Record Card is a card bearing the name of your theatre and with twenty-four printed squares on one side, in which your cashier or doorman stamps—with rubber stamp which we furnish—a square for each adult admission brought by the child. For example, if the child brought in four adults, the child would get four of the squares stamped.

When all twenty-four of the squares are filled the child turns in his Record Card and receives one of the 3-Wheel Safety Scooters. No strings—no contest. Every child has equal opportunity. You run no risk of disappointing anyone. You issue Scooters only for completely filled cards.

Costs You Less Than 4 2-3 Cents Per Admission

To illustrate: The Scooters cost the exhibitor $1.12 each. There are 24 stamps on Record Card. 4 2/3c times 24 equals $1.12. Therefore cost to exhibitor is 4 2/3c per admission.

Two First Runs to Close

Twin Cities Theatres Go Dark May 1 for the Summer; Deny Others to Follow.

The RKO Seventh Street, Minneapolis, and President Theatre, St. Paul, will close about May 1, it is announced by Morgan Ames, RKO divisional manager.

Both houses close regularly every year about this time for the summer, neither being equipped with a cooling system. Present plans are to reopen them in the fall.

The Century (Publix) and Pantages Theatre are other large loop first run theatres already dark. The former is closed for the summer. Pantages has been dark almost the entire winter and there are no definite plans for its reopening.

Reports have been in circulation that other loop first-run houses in the Twin Cities also will close down during the summer months. Eddie Ruben, Publix divisional head, denies, however, that Paramount-Publix has any further closings in contemplation.

Both Mr. Ruben and Mr. Ames aver that business, particularly in Minneapolis and especially at the Minnesota and RKO Orpheum theatres, has been exceptionally good. Neither of these houses, it is asserted, is feeling any ill effects from the depression, judging by the weekly average grosses, the executives assert.

Exchanges Cooperating More Here

Salesmen Instructed to Assist in Putting Over Attractions; Are Givng More Service.

One of the reasons why business has held up camparatively better in the Northwest for the picture houses during the current depression is believed in film circles to be due in part to the fine spirit of co-operation between distributors and exhibitors in the territory.

Minneapolis distributors are not content simply with selling their product to the exhibitor. Even when the sale is outright and no percentage arrangement is involved they assist the exhibitor to the fullest possible extent in getting the utmost revenue out of the product, managers declare.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has Morris Abrahams, veteran exploitation expert, considered one of the in N. W. Territory; Several New Houses Planned and Are Being Constructed.

The current depression is not thwarting theater construction in the Northwest. Indicating a feeling of confidence regarding the long-pull trend of the movie industry, far-seeing and courageous individuals continue to build and plan new showhouses.

At Knapp, Wis., near Minneapolis, the local school board has decided to build and operate a sound equipped theatre. The town has been without talkies and members of the school board have come to the conclusion that the lack of this entertainment and educational

TO REMODEL

State and Racine Theatres to be Renovated

Racine, Wis. — Announcement has been made by Robert Ungerfeld, manager of Fox's State Theatre here, of the remodeling at a cost of $65,000. A new stage and proscenium arch will be installed while the entire auditorium will be redecorated and the latest type projectors installed in the projection booth.

The theatre has been featuring a request program daily except Sunday, from 11 a. m. to 12 noon, over the radio station. Marie Dechant presides at the theatre's Barton organ in connection with this program, with Mr. Ungerfeld at the "mike."

Central City, Neb. — Talking equipment has been installed at the State Theatre here.

Hopeful

Milwaukee, Wis. — Prospects for the defeat of the motion picture operators' bill is promising, following a hearing held on the measure recently in Madison. Approximately 25 exhibitors were on hand to appear against the bill. The measure would require the hiring of one operator for each machine, the projectionist to be at least 21 years old.

Spirit of Cooperation

By M. E. CUFFEL, Editor

IT seems plausible that the spirit of cooperation in evidence between distributor and exhibitor in this territory may help to explain why business is holding up better throughout the Northwest than in most other sections.

This cooperation is being manifested particulary in the special help which the distributor is giving to the exhibitor in selling pictures to the public.

Every film company has impressed upon its salesmen the desirability of aiding their theatre-owner customers in the retail marketing of screen attractions. In addition, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer employs Morris Abrahams, an outstanding expert in his line, to work with exhibitors on exploitation.

The selling points of the picture are gone over in con-

F. B. T. Moves

The Minneapolis Film Board of Trade has moved its offices from the Film Exchange building on Fourth street north to 515 Pence Building on Hennepin avenue and Eighth street. The new quarters are much more centrally located and convenient to the various exchanges.

"Kiss" and "Cracked Nuts" Highest Draws for Week

Aster—God's Gift to Women (Warner Bros.), Frank Fay. Business: Light. Summary: A raw and not overly funny farce comedy about a modern Don Juan who is tricked into believing that kissing a woman will kill him. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, serial.

Lyric—June Moon (Para.), Jack Oakie. Business: Fair. Summary: A moderately amusing satire on the popular song industry, with many clever lines and sallies that seemed to go over the heads of the average film fan. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Minnesota—Strangers May Kiss (M-G-M), Norma Shearer. Business: Big. Summary: The story of a young woman who defied the conventionalities by living with the man she loved without benefit of clergy and nearly came to grief; great box-office stuff. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, organ novelty, sound news.

RKO-Orpheum — Cracked Nuts (RKO), Wheeler & Woolsey. Business: Big. Summary: The laugh besprinkled comedy of a goofy American youth who buys out a South American revolution and has himself made king; not as funny as some of its Wheeler-Woolsey predecessors. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, sound news, golf film.

RKO Seventh Street—The Lady Refuses (RKO), Betty Compson. Business: Fair. Summary: Rather slow moving and tame story of a street walker whose hand in marriage is sought by a wealthy British aristocrat and his son; thoroughly artificial and unbelievable. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

State—Fifty Million Frenchmen (Warners), Olsen & Johnson. Business: Light. Summary: A few laughs in this comedy anent a wealthy young American in Paris who wagers that he can win the girl of his heart without utilizing any of his filthy lucre in the accomplishment; too thin material. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, cartoon comedy and Grantland Rice Sportlight.

Minneapolis (week ending April 24—"Strangers May Kiss" at the Minnesota and "Cracked Nuts" at the R K O Orpheum were the big draws the past week. Both of these attractions did an exceptionally big business and praise was showered on the Norma Shearer picture from all quarters. "Cracked Nuts" also gave good satisfaction. Miss Shearer and Wheeler & Woolsey are top-notch box-office magnets in Minneapolis.

Advertised for adults only, "The Lady Refuses" at the RKO Seventh Street did a very fair business. Clever advertising was mainly responsible for the draw in this instance.

MILWAUKEE

(Week Ending April 16)

Alhambra — The Southerner (M-G-M), Lawrence Tibbett and Esther Ralston. Business: Fair. Summary: A mild sort of photoplay with some excellent singing by Lawrence Tibbett. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Oswald Cartoon; Lloyd Hamilton comedy; Universal Newsreel.

Garden — The Jazz Singer, and Caught Cheating (Warner Bros. and Universal. Business: Fair. Summary: A revival of the "Jazz Singer" held over for three days and was pulled for "Caught Cheating," with George Sidney and Charlie Murray.

Riverside—Lonely Wives (Radio), Edw. Everett Horton, Esther Ralston. Business: Good. Summary: A slapstick bedroom farce with a plot made for hilarity. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Eight RKO Vaudeville acts; Pathe news.

Strand — Dishonored (Para.), Marlene Dietrich and Victor McLaglen. Business: Good. Summary: A story wherein a woman spy for Austria meets a Russian spy, with some very fine acting by Miss Dietrich. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Our Gang Comedy; Fox Movietone News.

Garden — Today (Majestic), Conrad Nagel and Catherine Dale Owen. Business: Fair. Summary: Story of a wealthy couple temporarily down on their luck. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy; News Reel.

Wisconsin—Charlie Chan Carries On (Fox), Warner Oland and Marguerite Churchill. Business: Fair. Summary: A murder mystery fairly interesting with Warner Oland playing the Chinese detective excellently. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon & Marco Idea; Fox Movietone News.

Palace — Comrades of 1918 (Nero Films). Business: Fair. Summary: A German film which appears to be a combination of "All Quiet on the Western Front" and some other American war stories. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Pathe News.

Industry Saved from Adverse Legislation

The film industry in the Northwest is breathing easier.

The various state legislatures, excepting that of Wisconsin, have adjourned without enacting any adverse movie legislation. The Minnesota lawmaking body was the last one to call it a session.

For a time it was feared that efforts would be made to put through tax and censorship measures in the Minnesota legislature. But the Northwest unit of Allied States and Publix and RKO representatives were on the job and squelched all such moves in their incipiency.

Proposals for a 10 per cent tax on admissions were defeated in the legislatures of both North and South Dakota, with Allied States taking an active part in the fight against the measures.

Two adverse measures are up before the Wisconsin state legislature. One provides for a 4 per cent tax on theatre grosses. The other calls for a minimum age requirement of 21 years for movie machine operators.

ADOPTS FIGHTER

Breese Puts Over Big Publicity Stunt

Lou Breese, master of ceremonies at the Minneapolis Theatre, Minneapolis, got a corking publicity break, crashing into the columns of the Minneapolis Journal aplenty when he adopted one of the headline fighters on a recent fight card as his protege.

A large cut in the sporting section of the newspaper showing Breese and his adopted fighter in training started off the barrage of publicity. His name also was linked with that of the fighter in the various stories published prior to the bout.

Hale Cavanagh of the Minnesota's advertising department, assisted by Tommy O'Laughlin of the theatre staff, a well-known figure in local fistic circles, engineered the unusual exploitation stunt. Just before the fight at the Minnesota Auditorium, attended by a crowd of 8,000, Breese was introduced from the ring.

SUNDAY VICTORY

Two Towns Approve Sabbath Pictures

Sunday movies have been approved by the voters in Worthington and in Northfield, Minn. Proponents of Sunday entertainment, however, lost out at Pelican Rapids, Minn., by a narrow margin. A fight is still on at Willmar, Minn.

Newspapers in various towns throughout Minnesota now without Sunday shows have been coming out editorially in no uncertain terms for the Sabbath day movies.

The prediction is being freely made that before another year there will not be a town in the state without Sunday shows.

ANIMAL SERIES

Going Over Well in This Territory

Animal serials are going over well in the territory, according to H. O. Mugridge, manager of Celebrated exchange, which is distributing a number of these pictures.

Mr. Mugridge recently closed with Publix for the showing of his serials in a number of their houses, including the Aster, a first-run theatre, in the Minneapolis loop.

NEW SERIAL SOON

Midwest to Release Film Starring Harry Carey

Omaha, Neb.—The Midwest Film Distributors, Inc., of Kansas City, Mo., who will open a new branch here May 1, announce that the company will distribute "The Vanishing Legion," a twelve-part serial, starring Harry Carey, now in production by Mascot Pictures Corporation, the only serial specialist in the film industry.

The story by Wyndham Gittens and Ford Beebe, two of Mascot's staff of writers, is being written especially for Carey. "The Vanishing Legion," which will be released in early summer, will be Carey's first serial. Carey recently returned to California from Africa, where he spent many months making "Trader Horn."

Levine plans a cast of well-known serial and feature players in the supporting roles. Rex, known as the "King of Wild Horses," will be featured in support of Carey. Frankie Darrow, the popular child player, has also been engaged for an important role. The balance of the cast will be announced shortly.

B. Reaves Eason, popularly known as "Breezy," who was responsible for the direction of the thrilling chariot race in "Ben Hur," will personally direct the production. Nat Levine will supervise.

Following "The Vanishing Legion," Levine will make three other chapter plays for release this year. Harold E. (Red) Grange will star in "The Galloping Ghost," which will be shown throughout the football season. Rin-Tin-Tin, who made his first serial, "The Lone Defender," under the Mascot banner last year, will be starred in the third attraction, "The Lightning Warrior." The fourth serial will be a detective thriller, "The Eagle's Shadow." All of the Levine serials will be released in twelve all-talking installments.

3 to Johnson

Falls City, Neb.—Sale of the Rivoli, Electric and Sun Theatres here by the Falls City Amusement Co. to O. J. Johnson of Atlantic, Ia., has just been announced. Mr. Johnson recently sold his Atlantic Theatre interests to the Harold Finkelstein Theatres circuit. He, however, has a house at Red Oak, Ia., which he will retain. J. W. Harms of Omaha will manage his local theatres.

ference with exhibitors. Exploitation stunts and tie-ups are suggested. Assistance even is given in arranging tie-ups.

It is well that the distributor realizes that his own prosperity depends upon the exhibitor customers' prosperity. The present system of doing business makes a foundation upon which solid and lasting prosperity can be built.

In the movie business, as well as in every other line of industry, service is the keystone of success.

The selling of the produce to the exhibitor is only the start of the relationship between distributor and exhibitor in the Northwest, not the end. The contact continues until the product is sold by the exhibitor to the public.

This is as it should be.

Governor to Open New Milwaukee Theatre

Milwaukee — Governor LaFollette of Wisconsin has accepted the invitation to make the dedicatory address at the opening of the new Warner Theatre now nearing completion in Milwaukee. The house will be opened, it is now planned, on May 1.

The dedication of the Milwaukee Theatre is to be made an impressive local event, a number of stage and city officials as well as members of local business organizations having accepted invitations to take part in it. The new house is described as one of the most elaborate of all the lately built Warner theatres and has been built in connection with a fourteen-story office building.

APPOINT JANECKY

Kenosha Manager to Milwaukee House

Milwaukee, Wis.—Harold Janecky, formerly manager of Warner Bros.' Kenosha Theatre, Kenosha, has been named manager of the circuit's new house in this city, which is scheduled to open early in May. Mr. Janecky has been connected with Warner Bros. for several years and is succeeded in Kenosha by F. (Doc) Westphal.

Lon Ramsdell, formerly manager of the circuit's Venetian Theatre, formerly with Community Theatres, Inc., operators of several houses in the state, has been named manager of the Venetian.

New Manager

Madison, Wis.—J. B. Kennedy, for the past eight years manager of the Apollo Theatre in Indianapolis, Ind., has been named manager of Fox's Strand Theatre here, succeeding Charles Loewenberg, who has been named state supervisor.

BROWN PROMOTED

Paramount Poster Clerk to Sioux Falls

R. B. Brown, poster clerk with Paramount film exchange in Minneapolis the past year and a half, and well and favorably known along Film Row, received congratulations of his many friends last week upon his promotion to the position of advertising sales manager of the Sioux Falls, S. D., Paramount branch. The promotion came just in time for Mr. Brown to get the benefit of a trip to the Paramount San Francisco sales convention.

Pat O'Halloran from the shipping room succeeds Mr. Brown as poster clerk in Minneapolis.

RULIFFSON UP

Erpi District Manager to New Post

R. H. Ruliffson, Minneapolis district sales manager for Electrical Research Products, Western Electric sound equipment distributors, for the past two years, has been promoted to the position of asisstant to F. B. Rogers, sales manager for the entire central division, with headquarters in Chicago.

The central division embraces all the territory from Ohio to Colorado and from the Canadian line to the Gulf of Mexico.

Mr. Ruliffson is succeeded in Minneapolis by E. C. Leeves, who has been in the E.R.P.I. Chicago sales office. D. E. Maxwell continues in charge of the E.R.P.I. operating department in Minneapolis.

best men in his line in the United States, working out of the Minneapolis office, assisting Northwest exhibitors in the proper exploitation of the product, helping the exhibitor to sell the pictures to the public, and, thus, aiding in every way to obtain the maximum amount of box-office possibilities.

To a lesser extent, other companies, through the Minneapolis exchanges, help the exhibitors. Salesmen are instructed to assist the local exhibitors in the exploitation of pictures sold to the latter. Advice and suggestions are given by the film salesmen relative to the proper way to handle individual pictures.

"The matter has been before the film board and every distributor has expressed himself emphatically on the subject of cooperating to the fullest extent with the exhibitor in helping him to put over his attractions," says W. H. Workman, president of the Minneapolis Film Board of Trade. "The transaction doesn't end with the sale of the product to the exhibitor. It just begins."

force is a handicap to the community.

A new theatre also will be built at Cambridge, Minn., in competition with the showhouse operated there now by Ed Behrendt. Ben Berger, president of the Northwest Allied unit, who recently sold several of his theatres to Publix, has announced his intention of building a new showhouse at Ely, Minn., where two other theatres now are in operation.

A new theatre recently was opened by Bonnie Benfield in Milbank, S. D. Several new neighborhood houses have been built during the past summer in Minneapolis.

52 Silent Houses

There's still some work left for the sound equipment folks to do in the territory.

A check-up of the territory by Mrs. Mable Dietz, secretary of the Minneapolis Film Board of Trade, shows that 52 silent houses remain. The survey covered the northwest quite extensively.

Many of these theatres, however, already are doing to sound or have plans to install talkie equipment during the ensuing months. Difficulty is being encountered now in obtaining silent product to supply the needs of these theatres.

NEW DEVELOPEMENTS
in
THEATRE EQUIPMENT

New Improvements in 3-A Photoelectric

THE new 3-A photoelectric cell, recently announced by Electrical Research Products, offers another example of the constant improvement being made in Western Electric sound picture equipment.

The first cell to be used in Western Electric Sound System was the 1-A cell. This was replaced by the 2-A which embodied structural improvements over the 1-A. The 2-A now is replacd by the 3-A which has a number of improvements over its predecessors both physically and electrically.

The greatest difference lies in the use of caesium compound as the photo-active element instead of a preparation of potassium as used in the two earlier cells. The caesium oxide is coated on a half-cylindrical electrode and a small vertical rod forms the positive electrode. The former cells employed as the photo-active element a potassium preparation coated on th inside of the bulb, with a ring-shaped member forming the positive electrode.

To appreciate the nature of the advantage gained by this change, it is necessary to consider the relation that exists between the characteristic of a photoelectric cell and the light used to operate it.

In apparatus for reproduction from sound recorded on film, the most practical type of exciting lamp, or "sound lamp" as it is frequently called, is a metallic filament incandescent lamp. Most of the light produced by sources of this type consists of yellow, red and infra-red radiations, there being comparatively little blue or violet radiation.

The sensitiveness of a photoelectric cell, that is the current it will pass for a given amount of illumination, usually varies with the color of the illumination. In other words, the cell is more sensitive to some parts of the spectrum than others. In the case of the potassium cell, the sensitiveness was greatest for blue and violet radiation. The greater part of the light produced by the exciting lamp was therefore not utilized. The caesium cell, however, is highly sensitive to radiation within the range produced most abundantly by the exciting lamp, namely yellow, red and infra-red.

This results in the 3-A having much greater efficiency than the 1-A or 2-A. This greater efficiency is such that the output averages more than 20 decibels higher. Individual cells, of course, may show a gain less or greater than the average.

A highly important advantage gained from this greater efficiency is the reduction in system noise which accompanies its use. The response from the cell being greater, the amplifiers can be operated with a reduced gain, thus reducing the volume level of any noise-producing element within the system. This makes the new cell an important factor in enabling sound-reproducing equipments to do full justice to recordings made by the new noiseless process.

Besides output efficiency, there are other improvements to be found in the new cell, such as its ability to produce a more faithful electrical copy or translation of the sound track; its ability to maintain its electrical and circuit characteristics unchanged and its immunity from rapid deterioration and loss of sensitiveness in storage or use.

Sufficient time has not yet elapsed to show what are the ultimate limits of service to be expected from the 3-A cell, but it may be said that whereas the life of the average potassium cell was from nine months to a year, or less if kept in too high a temperature, laboratory tests on the 3-A cell have shown no appreciable deterioration over a period of nine months, whether stored or operated.

NEW TYPE SCREENS

Beaded Screen Corp. Has 2 New Ones

AFTER more than a year of laboratory experiment, the Beaded Screen Corporation announces the forthcoming production of two new sound screens: "Chromolite"—a white, porous, diffusive screen, having a reflective value of over 30 per cent, with perfect permeability to sound without the unsightly perforations now in use, and with the ability to render all the color values projected through color films: "Silverlite"—a combination of the best qualities of the silver and gold fibre screens of the past, improved and brought up to date. This screen is also porous without the unsightly perforations common to the usual run of sound screens.

Both of these screens are designed primarily to meet the demand for more light on the screen. These screens are also characterized by an agreeable half-tone effect.

LIGHT VALVE CONTROL

By V. A. SCHOENBERG
of the Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.

The light valve control as used on the Motiograph Deluxe sound equipment is a means for the regulation of sound level by controlling the amount of light falling upon the light sensitive surface of the photo-electric cell, thereby controlling the amount of electrons emitted from cell.

It is this particular feature that permits positive control of volume from a slight whisper to maximum output of amplifier system without any sacrifice of frequency response; by its use, the fader device is eliminated from the audio circuit thereby gaining the losses that normally are associated with such devices such as frequency losses and absorption.

Tests have shown that the number of stages heretofore used can be greatly reduced, also that frequencies never before heard were reproduced in naturalness.

The light valve consists of a mechanical means for increasing or decreasing the amount of light permitted to fall upon the cell; it is located within the sound aperture block and controlled at the machine proper. The control dial is over a range of 180 degrees graduated in a series of 15 steps. Its action permits an exceptionally even, smooth change which is gradual and not in steps of several D. Bs, which feature makes sound regulation ideal.

Sound regulation by means of electronic emission control is the most logical position whereby sound reproduction should be regulated, as it eliminates from the audio circuit such devices as pads, faders and the like, also permits the reduction in the number of stages required, the sound reproduction then is equal to that of amplifiers, speakers, and slit adjustment, whatever is recorded on the film, whether it be variable area or variable density—it will be reproduced in accordance to the frequency response of the abovementioned equipment.

Its use permits all stages of amplification to operate at an equal proportional amount, thereby overcoming the possibility of some stages, such as are in the head or pre-amplifier, being crowded and then having its output reduced to a suitable level so as not to overmodulate the first stages of the power amplifier. Usually the output of some head amplifiers are far in excess as to the required amount for the input of the power amplifier. In such cases pads and the faders are used acting as a dam and used also to regulate the input to the power amplifier for sound regulation. By eliminating such device and regulating the amount of input to the head amplifier instead of regulating the output of head amplifier. It can readily be seen that the proper and only practical way of presenting sound as recorded is to regulate and control it at the cell proper.

Sound changeover is accomplished by means of 4 and 3-way switch wired in the 500 ohm output circuits of the head amplifiers. These switches are placed in convenient location in the booth. The light valve need not be adjusted once a level has been ascertained, only for such increase or decrease of volume as required during screening of film.

GIVES WARNING

Alleged Infringement on Sound Head

Northwest exhibitors are warned by Universal Sound System, Philadelphia, manufacturers of Universal sound-on-film, of an alleged patent infringement on the part of another Minneapolis company distributing a sound-on-film equipment. It is claimed that theatres using the alleged infringing equipment, as well as the offending distributor, will be held responsible for the damages on account of the infringement.

The Universal sound-on-film is distributed in the Minneapolis territory by the Northern Theatre Supply Company at 19 Glenwood avenue, Minneapolis.

In a letter to the alleged offender, Edwin Schweriner, president of Universal Sound System, Inc., announces that the matter will be placed before DeForest Radio Co. and Jenkins Television Corporation.

"Our distributors at Minneapolis and also at Sioux Falls call our attention to the fact that you have imitated our product and are offering same in competition with the genuine Universal sound-on-film which is fully protected by patent licenses," Mr. Schweriner notified the company in question.

"In order to protect the theatre owner against any confusion and also to protect him against liabiltiy on account of patent infringement, we are compelled to communicate this extremely important matter to the licensors of Universal sound heads, which are the DeForest Radio Company and Jenkins Television Corporation. Corporation. The latter may take whatever steps they deem advisable.

"Universal is a licensed equipment and any limitations do not carry the licensed protection. Not only will you be responsible for patent infringement, but any theatre in which your equipment may be installed also will be responsible for damages."

FABLES BOOK

Second Edition of Pathe Subject

The demand for the Aesop Movie Fables book issued by the Sonnett Publishing Company in cooperation with the Van Beuren Corporation to promote interest in this RKO-Pathe cartoon release, has proved such a success that a second edition is under way.

The Aesop Movie Fables book contains cartoon drawings, puzzles, an Aesop's Fable story and songs. The books are being sold in five and ten and chain and syndicate stores as well as being used extensively by exhibitors showing this popular series.

"HORN" POPULAR

M-G-M Special Breaks House Record

Released on a percentage arrangement, instead of being roadshown, "Trader Horn" is breaking box-office records in the territory, according to W. H. Workman, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer exchange manager in Minneapolis.

The demand for the picture is so big that difficulty has arisen in obtaining sufficient prints. The picture had its premiere in the territory as a roadshow attraction at the Century Theatre, Minneapolis, where it played to $13,000 during its week-run at $1.50 prices. This was considered a very good showing.

"Trader Horn" returns to the Minneapolis loop next month for a grind showing at the State Theatre, one of the leading Publix first-run houses, where regular 60c prices will prevail.

New Par. Opens

North Platte, Neb.—One of the first ten theatres in the United States to be designed especially for sound pictures, the new Paramount here has just been opened. The house seats 1,400 on its lower floor and balcony. It is complete and up-to-the-minute in equipment. Irving Cohen is manager.

Nebel at Racine

Racine, Wis. — Charles Nebel, formerly of the Community Theatres, Inc., Milwaukee, has been named manager of Warner Bros.' Venetian Theatre here, succeeding Lon Randsdell, who has managed the theatre for the past several months. Henri Margo, formerly of the circuit's Sheboygan Theatre, has been named assistant to Nebel. He succeeds Robert Clark.

PUBLIC APPEAL

RKO-Pathe Advertises to the People

New York — Newspapers, fan magazines, and radio will be used by RKO-Pathe to advertise direct to the public in an intensive campaign to aid the exhibitors, according to Ned E. Depinet, vice-president and general sales manager.

Details of the campaign will be handled by A. P. Waxman, advertising counsel. The personality group of stars, the 21 feature productions and RKO-Pathe's short subjects will be exploited in full page ads in fan magazines and key city newspapers. In addition, a weekly broadcast through 42 radio stations from coast to coast will carry the company's message. The hour is 10:30 to 11 Eastern Standard Time, through the RKO Theatre of the Air, NBC hook-up.

TO CONVENTIONS

Managers Departing for Conclaves

There has been an exodus from Minneapolis Film Row eastward and westward convention bound.

C. A. Roeder, Paramount exchange manager, headed by a party of Paramount staff men which went to the San Francisco sales convention as guests of their employer. In the party were Ben Blotchky, district manager; L. M. Palmquist, advertising sales manager, and six salesmen.

L. E. Goldhammer, Minneapolis manager of Warner Brothers' exchange, has been in California the past several weeks on his vacation. He went from Los Angeles to San Francisco for the Warner Brothers' sales convention. Six salesmen from the Minneapolis exchange went to the Frisco convention.

M. A. Levy, Minneapolis Fox exchange manager, and his staff of salesmen left for New York last week to attend the Fox convention. M. E. Montgomery, Pathe exchange manager, and his salesmen are in Chicago at the annual meeting.

A REAL ISSUE

Freuler Points Out a Real Necessity

Popular entertainment at popular prices, according to John R. Freuler, president of Big 4, is the real issued at any time, and particularly now. Trends may come and go, but the practice which has made for the success of American business is the public's money's worth at pirces the public can pay.

If, as has been rumored, "many theatres will be forced to close before summer unless the supply of wholesome family pictures is increased to meet the demand," the situation presents a very serious problem to all concerned. Large producers, independent producers and exhibitors of all classes are involved. It is clearly a case of underproduction of playable product. Product should be built of wholesome, de-sexed, action material along popular lines, sacrificing lavish sets, costuming and overhead which increase production costs, says Freuler.

Recognition of the imporance of keeping houses open during the summer months should be seriously regarded by major and independent producer alike, Freuler believes. If, in certain territories, the double-feature policy results in added revenue to the independent producer, in additional playing situations to the major companies, and permits exhibitors to keep their doors open it should be welcomed, and studio activities should be speeded to meet a two-fold market.

TIFFANY TO MOVE

To Operate From Educational Office

Tiffany's Minneapolis exchange will move on May 3 from its present quarters on Western avenue into the Educational offices, 1111 First avenue north, as a result of the Tiffany-Educational consolidation.

Separate sales' organizations are to be maintained by the two companies, with Tom Burke continuing as Tiffany manager and Harold Johnson remaining as Educational head.

Exceptionally strong product is resulting in the biggest Tiffany business in the history of its local exchange, Mr. Burke reports. The demand for "Hell Bound" and "The Single Sin," two outstanding pictures, is particularly heavy, he says.

Contracts with Publix for loop first-run showings for "Hell Bound" and "The Single Sin" in both Minneapolis and St. Paul were closed last week by Mr. Burke. Both pictures will play all the Publix situations in the territory.

GOOD LEGIT BIZ

Talking not Hurting Stock Shows

The talkies are not hurting the flesh-and-blood spoken drama in Minneapolis, judging by the attendance at the Shubert Theatre where the Bainbridge dramatic stock company holds forth.

Bolstered by noted guest stars, the stock company is doing a splendid business despite unfavorable general conditions.

With Violet Heming, one of Broadway's most popular luminaries, heading the cast the past two weeks, the Shubert played to large crowds.

A. G. Bainbridge, managing director of the stock house, says the talkies make converts for the flesh-and-blood drama.

On the other hand, the movies believe that the stock house also makes converts for them.

Neither regards the other as opposition.

Incorporation

Manitowoc, Wis. — Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Great Lakes Amusement Co. Signers of the articles are Francis Kadow, George Erdman and Arthur Wysemann. The corporation will operate the Mikadow Theatre here which has been conducted for the past many years by John Mikadow.

Deny Contract Enforcement

Oklahoma Court Refuses to Force Showman to Abide by Paramount Contract.

Pawhuska, Okla.—Judge Jesse Worten in the district court here last week ruled that the standard exhibition contract was in restraint of trade and that his court would not enforce it. The ruling came in the suit of Paramount against E. V. Weaver, owner of the Osage Theatre, Shidler. The suit asked damages of $1,081 for Weaver's refusal to play and pay for 29 pictures on his contract which called for 69 pictures.

Testimony showed that the plaintiff and 11 other major distributing companies engaged in interstate commerce controlled 98 per cent of the picture distribution in Oklahoma. Testimony further showed that these 12 companies had an agreement among themselves by which they would not furnish pictures to any exhibitor unless he signed the standard contract they used.

This section of the contract, according to attorneys for the defendant, had been adjudged by the United States supreme court in a case, in which the plaintiff in the local case had been a party, to be unreasonable and material restraint of interstate commerce in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

In deciding the case Judge Worten said there were only two decisions that he could make: to enforce the contract and render judgment in full or to refuse to enforce the contract as a whole. He held that the contract was one-sided and in restraint of trade and said the court could not enforce it.

MORE ARBITRATION DECISIONS

to Follow That of U. S. Opinion in Case of National vs. Paramount, Says Gabriel Hess.

"The importance of the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the fourth circuit in the case of Paramount-Publix vs. National Theatres Corporation, lies in the fact that it will be followed by all of the United States district courts throughout the country," says Gabriel Hess.

"While the U. S. District Court in several jurisdictions has decided some of the questions involved in the instant case in favor of the distributors' contention, this is the first case passed upon by any United States court of appelholds that the distributor is not required to proceed first to arbitrate as provided in the standard exhibition contract before bringing an action for breach of contract; that the standard exhibition contract is divisible and that where agreements in restraint of trade are unlawful in part, they are enforceable as to the parts that are not unlawful."

Musicals Going Out

New Programs Show Fewer of This Type of Entertainment; Only Shorts in Music.

Hollywood—A survey of the producers' new program schedules indicates that musical features have been practically eliminated from the season's programs. It is felt by the producers that the public is not yet ready for a sudden return of this type of entertainment and only musical shorts will be included in the lineups.

There is a belief, however, that musicals will return next season, but the trend back to them will be a slow and gradual one.

CAREY SIGNED

Star to Appeal in Mascot Serial

New York — Nat Levine, president of Mascot Pictures Corporation, the only serial specialist in the film industry, announced last week that he had engaged Harry Carey, featured player in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Trader Horn," for the leading male role in "The Vanishing Legion," a twelve-part, all-talking serial. The story by Wyndham Gittens and Ford Beebe, two of Mascot's staff of writers, is being written especially for Carey. "The Vanishing Legion," which will be released in early summer, will be Carey's first serial. Carey has recently returned to California from Africa, where he spent many months making "Trader Horn."

BRANDT DENIES

Cartoon Subjects to Stay With Columbia

New York—When Joe Brandt, president of Columbia Pictures, returned from the coast last week and learned of the printed reports that Disney's "Mickey Mouse" and 'Silly Symphonies" would be released through United Artists next year, he issued the following denial:

"Columbia Pictures have the "Mickey Mouse" and "Silly Symphonies" cartoons internationally. Despite rumors to the contrary the distribution of the Disney features is still vested in Columbia under the terms of a contract which is drawn for an extended period. Columbia has a new series of both brands of the Disney shorts scheduled for the new season and will make it public at the same time that it announces its new program."

Radio Pictures have purchased "The Slander Girl" by Rex Beach for its coming production program. "White Shoulders" and "Young Donovan's Kid" from "Big Brother" are two other Beach stories which are yet to come from this producing company.

Buys "Girl Crazy"

Hollywood—Radio Pictures has has finally completed contracts with John McGowan and Guy Bolton, authors, and George and Ira Gershwin, composers, for all screen rights to "Girl Crazy," musical hit now holding the boards on Broadway, according to an announcement by William LeBaron, production head.

To Start Monogram Sales Drive on May 1

New York—Monogram Pictures Corporation, through Harry H. Thomas, vice-president of exchanges, has announced that the first big shot in the Monogram drive which is to be put on for contracts on the new "Monogram Twenty-Eight," released by the cooperative exchange group recently formed, will be fired May 1 when one hundred salesmen will be turned loose in twenty-four Monogram branches on the new product.

The personnel in charge of the various branches for this drive has been ennounced as follows:

Morris Epstein, New York; Herman Rifkin, Boston; B. H. Mills, Albany; Jay Berkowitz, Buffalo; Sam Seplowin, Detroit; Sam Flax, Washington, D. C.; H. H. Everett, Charlotte; Arthur C. Bromberg, Atlanta; Leo Seichnaydre, New Orleans; James Alexander, Pittsburgh; Irving Mandel, Chicago; W. M. Sipe, Indianapolis; Nat Steinberg, St. Louis; Robert Withers, Kansas City; Harry Silverman, Oklahoma City; Joe Silverman, Dallas; J. T. Sheffield, Denver; M. D. Dryness, Portland; M. Hammond, Salt Lake City; W. H. Lamont, Seattle.

1,100 New Accounts

New York — A. H. Schnitzer, short subject sales manager for RKO-Pathe, announces an increase of 1,100 theatres newly contracted for Pathe Review, the Magazine of the Screen. Thomas Chalmers, now editing Pathe Review, is lining up many new angles of interest to incorporate in the thirteen scheduled releases for the coming year.

New Title

Hollywood—The title of Richard Dix's next picture, "Born to the Racket," has been changed to "Young Donovan's Kid." The picture is from the Rex Beach opus, "Big Brother," and contains a cast which includes Boris Karloff, Marion Shilling, Frank Sheridan, Jackie Cooper, recent kid sensation, Fred Kelsey, Dick Rush, Robert Wilber, Harry Tenbrook and Jane Talent.

Maurice Goodman With Columbia

Nw York—Negotiations which have been under way for some time between Joe Brandt, president, and Jack Cohn, treasurer, of Columbia Pictures Corporation, and Maurice Goodman, for brniging the latter into Columbia in an important advisory capacity, have just been concluded. Mr. Goodman is to become chairman of the frinance committee. Mr. Goodman is well and favorably known in the theatrical industry generally, having been associated for many years with the Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuit, of which he was vice-president and general counsel. He resigned some eighteen months ago and resumed the private practice of law.

TO DIRECT CANTOR

Sutherland Will Guide "Palmy Days"

Hollywood — Eddie Sutherland will direct Eddie Cantor in "Palmy Days," the new comedy which will be produced by Samuel Goldwyn for United Artists release. Sutherland is under contract to Paramount, but Goldwyn prevailed upon officials of that company to spare the director for the Cantor feature.

Sutherland has just completed "Up Pops the Devil" for Paramount, and among his other successes are "June Moon," "The Gang Buster" and the Wallace Beery-Raymond Hatton comedies.

NEWS REPORTER

M - G - M Newsreel Adds Innovation

Chicago — The news-gathering and disseminating resources of the newspaper, the radio and the screen are to be combined in the reproduction of an entirely new type of newsreel, according to announcement made by E. B. Hatrick, general manager of International Newsreel Corporation, at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sales conference held in the Drake hotel in this city, April 26-27.

Acocrding to Mr. Hatrick, the Hearst Metrotone News, distributed by Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer, will under the new arrangement, include in addition to news subjects in natural sound, an annoucer to be known as "The Globe Trotter, the Radio Voice of the Hearst Newspapers." At the present time, daily throughout the country in every city where Hearst newspapers are located, "The Globe Trotter" broadcasts the interesting news dispatches of the day.

48 Features, 197 Shorts from M-G-M for 1931-32

Prominent Players and Directors Included on New Schedule Just Announced.

Chicago — Forty-eight feature productions and one hundred ninety-seven short feature releases will make up the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production output for the 1931-32 season, according to announcement made at the annual sales conferences held at the Hotel Drake, April 26-27.

More than half of the feature releases for the coming season are vehicles for the fifteen leading stars now under exclusive contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. This star line-up is the largest to be presented in the history of the company. Simultaneously working at the Culver City studio will be Marion Davies, Greta Garbo, John Gilbert, Ramon Novarro, Marie Dressler, Joan Crawford, William Haines, Norma Shearer, Buster Keaton, Robert Montgomery, Wallace Beery, and Lawrence Tibbett.

Among the players under contract to M-G-M who will support these stars, or who will appear themselves in leading roles are Dorothy Appleby, Lionel Barrymore, Edwin Bartlett, William Bakewell, Charles Bickford, Lilian Bond, Edwina Booth, John Mack Brown, Janet Currie, Reginald Denny, Kent Douglass, Cliff Edwards, Phillis Elgar, Madge Evans, Clark Gable, Ralph Graves, Charlotte Greenwood, Neil Hamilton, Leila Hyams, Jean Hersholt, Hedda Hopper, Leslie Howard, Dorothy Jordan, Joan Marsh, Adolphe Menjou, John Miljan, Ray Milland, Conchita Montenegro, Polly Moran, Karen Morley, Conrad Nagel, Ivor Novello, Monroe Owsley, Anita Page, Irene Purcell, Majorie Rambeau, C. Aubrey Smith, Ruth Selwyn, Gus Shy, Lewis Stone, Ernest Torrence, Lester Vail and Robert Young.

197 Shorts

The Hal Roach studio looks forward to one of its busiest seasons with Zasu Pitts and Thelma Todd added to the studio roster as an important co-starring team. The line-up for the coming year includes eight pictures starring these two comediennes; eight Laurel and Hardy releases; eight comedies starring Charley Chase; and eight Our Gang productions.

48 from Fox Films

Season Starts July 26; Important Screen Styles Observed in Selection by This Producer.

New York—Forty-eight feature pictures will be released by Fox Film Corporation during the season of 1931-32 beginning July 26. In the line-up the picture-going public will see the names of many of their favorite screen personalities.

More than ever before in the history of Fox Films, Vice-President Winfield Sheehan, in charge of production, has built the appeal of the company's product around the drawing power of its stars and featured players. This policy is in response to the public's evident preference for "names" with box-office appeal, supported by good stories.

This sales plan is the result of year-round contact between J. R. Grainger, vice-president in charge of distribution, and the leading theatre owners throughout the country, which serves to keep Mr. Grainger and Fox Film Corporation alert to the changing demands of motion picture patrons. The production policy of the company for the new season therefore embraces all the important screen style indications, as well as some novelties. The program of forty-eight pictures announced for next season will be kept sufficiently elastic to permit inclusion of up-to-the-minute ideas as they develop through the year.

N. S. S. SALES MEET

Announce 3 New Type Trailers

Chicago—A sales conference for National Screen Service officials and representatives was held here for two days, April 25 and 26.

Three new types of trailers will be handled by National this season, it was announced. There will be an organlogue, a song number specialty and an announcement trailer on summer cooling.

Since the consolidation of National Screen with Ad-Vance Trailer Corporation, Morton Van Praag is the new sales manager, while Pat Garyn is assistant to the president.

VOLTAGE CONTROL

New Unit for Sound System Used

In order to obtain most satisfactory results from sound equipment of the type utilized in the amusement field and in hotels, apartments, and theatres it is essential that the input power to the amplifier be maintained constantly at the rated voltage. Although the various power transformers in an amplifier are usually equipped with primary switches so that the unit can be adjusted for any input voltage within certain limits, if there is a tendency for line voltages to fluctuate a master power control is essential.

A manually-operated-line-voltage control unit of convenient size has just been announced by the American Transformer Company, of Newark, N. J. This unit was especially designed for the purpose described above, is for use in 50/60-cycle circuits, and consists of an adjustable auto-transformer with a meter for indicating the voltage supplied to the power circuits of the amplifier. The device will permit of maintaining the voltage at a constant value of 110 or 115 volts, as desired, and may be used where the existing supply is between 90 and 130 volts. Adjustment is accomplished by a special multipoint switch which increases or decrease the potential in 5-volt steps without opening the circuit at any time. It has an electrical rating of 750 va.

The AmerTram power control Type T-750 is housed in a compact sheet metal box designed for wall mounting. It requires a wall space of 6¼" by 11¼" and the overall depth is only 9". The meter employed is a 3" diameter flush-mounted instrument and the control is a large bakelite knob 2¼" in diameter.

Dolores Del Rio has been signed to a one-year contract, rather than for one picture only, according to an announcement by William LeBaron, production head for Radio Pictures. The company has ambitious plans for the fiery little Mexican heroine of numerous screen hits.

REPORTS OF RESULTS AT THE BOX OFFICE

. . . AS TOLD BY . . .
EXHIBITORS THEMSELVES

COLUMBIA

The Last Parade, Jack Holt—A darn good picture and one that wil bring them in and satisfy them, too. Recommended for everyone.—Art B. Taylor, Emerson Theatre, Brush, Colo.

FIRST NATIONAL

Top Speed, Joe E. Brown—A proproduction that gives satisfaction in every respect. "Big Mouth" Joe E. Brown displays his usual mirth-provoking actions and hokum in a comedy-drama of more than usual interest. It has more than usual drawing power.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

Widow From Chicago, with Alice White—Has unusual situations and holds the crowds' interest throughout. Then it ends good and sends them out smiling.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

FOX

Connecticut Yankee, Will Rogers —Held over for second week. Excellent picture and business.—William Nobe, Midwest Theatre, Oklahoma City, Oka.

The Princess and the Plumber, Charles Farrell—One sweet little family picture. A clean story all the way through and it will send them all home smiling and pleased.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER

Good News, Bessie Love — This picture is sure nuff "good news" to your box office. Draws and pleases and how! A peppy college picture full of life and vim that make the whole crowd wiggle with joy. Recording on disc good.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Carendon, Ark.

Min and Bill, Dressler-Beery—They sure liked this one. It has more than usual interest and the acting is so good you almost forget it's a "picture." Drew well.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

Reducing—Dressler and Moran—Another of the fine shows these two have been turning out. Plenty laughs and a tear or two.—Art B. Taylor, Emerson Theatre, Brush, Colo.

Strangers May Kiss, with Norma Shearer—Picture pleased and enjoyed good business.—Wm. Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla.

War Nurse, Anita Page—A good picture of its kind. Didn't click here, however. Anything that looks like a "war" picture is taboo in this town.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

Love in the Rough, Montgomery-Jordon—A very good picture with Benny Rubin stealing the lead. It's a golf story.—R. C. Gentry, Lyric Theatre, Baldwyn, Miss.

RKO

Beau Ideal, Ralph Forbes — A Herbert Brenon production. Pictures like this are a total loss to the average small town. Slow, draggy, confusing in picturization on screen makes it more than boresome. How this Herbert Brenon has got them fooled as a director is beyond me. Every picture I have had with this bird directing has been a terrible flop. No good for small towns.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

Half Shot at Sunrise, Wheeler and Woolsey — An excellent picture with the "cukoo" nit-wits at their best. You can't go wrong on this one.—R. C. Gentry, Lyric Theatre, Baldwyn, Miss.

Hook, Line and Sinker, Wheeler and Woolsey—An excellent comedy that somehow did not click for me. No fault of the picture for it's extra good all the way through. The boys get into the hotel business and get mixed up with two rival gangs. They carry off the honors of war and one gets the girl and the other gets her "ma" so they live unhappily ever after. Play it, sure! —J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

Silver Horde, Brent-Wolheim—A mighty good picture with the right amount of action; a very good saturday picture; sound on disc is good—R. C. Gentry, Lyric Theatre, Baldwyn, Miss.

RKO-PATHE

Her Man, Heen Twevetrees—A splendid production that failed to click on account of poor advertising. Posters (11x14) on this are color. No interest pictured. The picture is more than good, too.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

Painted Desert—Wm. Boyd.—A high class western production that is exceptionally good for Saturdays. Has plenty of action all through and will please the crowd 100 per cent. Good story and cast.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

PRACTICAL IDEAS . . .

WHAT to do!
HOW to do it!
WHEN to do it!

. . . . BY PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

"Freak" Campaign on "Cracked Nuts"

FREAK exploitation stunts befitting the picture were utilized by the RKO Orpheum, Minneapolis, to put over "Cracked Nuts," the latest Wheeler and Woolsey comedy.

Through a tie-up with a leading food establishment, small packages of nuts were given away in the store and in the theatre lobby in advance of the showing. "Crack these and then see 'Cracked Nuts,'" the envelopes stated.

Two men with their clothes on backward were employed as a ballyhoo in the loop. They pushed a baby carriage containing a doll and a phonograph with a crying record concealed through the downtown streets. Signs on their backs read: "We're just a couple of cracked nuts. See 'Cracked Nuts' at the RKO Orpheum."

On Saturday two youngsters staged a peanut pushing contest down Hennepin avenue, one of the main thoroughfares. They carried "Cracked Nuts" signs on their backs. A truck also was out with 24-sheets on it, covering the Twin Cities.

Front Display on "Seas Beneath"

AN attractive front display was turned out by the Publix art department for the showing of "The Seas Beneath" at the Lyric Theatre, Minneapolis.

A large German submarine in full camouflage colors was painted over a 30-foot canvas banner which spanned the outer lobby. There were 4x12 panels which were covered with stills and which butted a 30-foot banner on each side. The box-office face was covered by a 7x12 panel upon which was reproduced in water colors a sinking fish, torpedoed by a submarine in the foreground.

In addition there was used a 4x6 board covered with newspaper clippings tying the submarine "Nautilus" in with the picture. There also was a mirrored perescope built of compoboard through which was shown the picture of a sinking ship at the other end.

U. S. Navy posted special one-sheets on their conscription boards which were used throughout the city.

This Is Good

A WEEK before the opening of the picture "The Front Page," at RKO's Capitol Theatre, Madison, Wis., John Scharnberg, manager of the theatre, together with a local daily featured a clever publicity stunt. To the first person calling the newspaper and giving a tip on a front page news story, one dollar in cash and a guest ticket to the theatre to see the picture was awarded the winner.

The stunt came in for plenty attention and resulted in an excellent amount of publicity for the theatre.

Tie-up With Baby Ruth Gum

THE Minnesota Theatre, Minneapolis, had an unusual tie-up with the Baby Ruth chewing gum people in connection with the picture, "Strangers May Kiss," current attraction.

In the Minnesota lobby, more than 25,000 sticks of gum were distributed by Baby Ruth representatives with slips stating, Strangers May Kiss After Chewing Baby Ruth gum."

The reading matter on the covers of the sticks drew many a hearty laugh and caused considerable comment which didn't hurt the picture's box-office chances any.

Tie-Ups On "Lonely Wives"

THE exploitation pages of "Lonely Wives" mentions national tie-up possibilities. The Underwood portable typewriter scene stills are available and dealers have been notified to cooperate. With Radio-Victrola is a tie-up on window and loan of instrument for lobby. Kellogg's Corn Flakes lends itself to many grocery store display and tie-ups. Printing on paper towel with copy, "Crying towel—you'll laugh till you cry, etc." is an inexpensive way of getting attention.

Do You Know Your Neighbor?

By WILLIAM JACOBS

"ONE hand washes the other."

No stronger truth can be applied to the never-ending task of keeping a theatre's seats filled.

If you work with the merchant, he will work with you.

Downtown merchants are primarily interested in bringing great crowds to their district. They want ideas and stunts that will draw them there.

Get acquainted with the advertising managers. Meet their bosses. Establish their confidence in you and your house.

Don't run to the same group every time you want to put over a campaign. Go the rounds. Don't wear out the easy ones. The hard ones will go along with you when you least expect it.

Our experience proved: never make a promise to a merchant you can't possibly keep. Not to permit your enthusiasm to oversell an idea. Nor to play one merchant against another. And above all to remember to give them a little more than their share.

You of the residential, suburban and rural districts have the same opportunity. Every community, whether large or small, high, middle or low class, is susceptible to the same appeal. Give it to them.

Cooperating sincerely and fairly with newspapers brings vigorous reciprocation.

Supporting civic undertakings brings invaluable good-will.

Helping charitable institutions in time of need has established lasting gratitude.

Join the booster business clubs; they will boost for you.

Schools, colleges, associated business organizations and other bodies are yours for the using, when you have wisely cultivated their good will.

We have had the "onetime around" so-called selling "expert" scoff at this thought. His blind philosophy was, "Leave 'em alone, until you need 'em." Our experience has blasted this arrogant theory.

Isn't it easier to sell to someone you know?

Try it!

"A clean hand washes the other one clean."

Another Want-Ad Opportunity

IN Pocatello, Idaho, R. E. Archibald, of the Orpheum, got together with the Tribune there and offered passes to boost the want ad page. In return for passes the Tribune agreed to give Orpheum all the free space possible. Tickets were offered to all those who placed ads in the classified columns a few days in advance of the showing, "It Pays to Advertise." The paper used one-inch ads throughout, reading: "If you'd like to see one of the year's best talking pictures, free, turn to page seven." On page seven appeared a three-quarter page ad detailing all information.

Paper Money In Action

TO secure an important window location in a bank or a building and loan association on "Quick Millions" use this one. A display can be constructed of wire mesh tapering from two feet wide (at top) by three feet high to several times these dimensions, space permitting. A hole is cut in the baseboard to admit air current from small fan beneath. Paper money will circulate, falling directly aided by tapering construction which causes them to drop in direct line of air current. Space at top and bottom or sides is utilized for picture title and theatre.

Varied Selling Ideas Used on "Dirigible"

NEW YORKERS were hailed and sold right and left, before and during, the premier presentation of "Dirigible" at the Central Theatre.

Every publicity selling source was tapped. Spectacular as well as modest ideas were included in the campaign.

Al L. Selig, J. H. Gallagher and assistants set out in a thoroughly organized manner to build up an etensive interest in keeping with the importance of "Dirigible."

While not all of the ideas and stunts can be used in their entirety for subsequent runs, a majority of them with minor deviations are applicable.

Tabloid Cooperates

The Daily Graphic cooperation formed the foundation for a wide appeal. It printed the story of 'Dirigible" in serial form for fourteen days. It used a banner across the front page when the first episode appeared. Two-sheet posters were placed on both sides of the many trucks. On the opening night, the Graphic pulled out a two-column by ten-inch photo of its front page and in its place used copy specially written, headed "xtra," and publicity matter on the picture. Ten thousand copies were printed and handed out by regular newsboys at all theatre exits.

Display at Theatre

A model of a captive dirigible was flown from the roof of the theatre. A spotlight played on it from the roof.

A truck with two sunlight arcs was placed in front of the theatre across the street on Broadway and were kept burning from 7:30 until 11:30.

Three weeks prior to the opening a huge banner was hung from the Broadway front of the Claridge hotel. Another was placed at another prominent spot.

A special sign with five-foot letters of the title was painted on the side of the theatre.

An arrangement with the U. S. Navy Recruiting Bureau makes possible the use of ten thousand "A" boards throughout the country which will carry a specially designed poster, combining recruiting copy with advertising about "Dirigible."

In stores and windows throughout the country, 50,000 cards called Pictorial News and carrying stills from 'Dirigible" will be displayed.

Ideas Easily Used

While the following tie-ups were used in New York the biggest percentage of them can be used effectively in any size campaign.

The Liberty distributor covered the entire five boroughs with 35,000 tabloid heralds.

Men calling out a sensational headline handed out 15,000 tabloids in Times Square.

Fifteen hundred windows in New York City displayed special window cards using copy on Jack Holt.

On all news stands in Manhattan 1,500 special cards were tacked reading, "Read the Story in the Graphic and See the Picture at the Central Theatre."

Arrangements were made with leading hotel managers to stuff the guests' mail and key boxes with small cards. Twenty-five hundred were used.

The Majestic distributor placed 1,500 window streamers in all Manhattan and Bronx dealers' stores.

A picture of Jack Holt was used on 1,000 window cards distributed by the Remington Arms Company dealers, selling their gun.

Stores selling the Sheaffer Fountain Pen used 1,500 window streamers showing Holt holding their pen.

Three hundred and fifty tie-up cards and mounts were placed in windows handling Radiotron radio tube.

Dealers in Barbasol placed 200 tie-up cards with Jack Holt on them.

A photo of Frank Capra and the Royal typewriter was placed in all windows of stores selling this typewriter.

A scene of Jack Holt in his car on 150 cards were used on the window of Cord car dealers.

Fashion Knit men's ties with Jack Holt and this tie were used on 150 cards placed.

Book Display

The Whalen Drug Company gave 50 windows to the display of the A. L. Burt book on "Dirigible." There were 50 windows in various Liggett's Drug Stores as well as seven Penna Drug Company Stores and fifty windows by the Womrath Book Company.

With Jack Holt and Lucky Strike tie-up, 1,000 window strips were distributed by the American Tabacco Company.

Four special windows in the Conn Musical Instrument Stores, using the still on the band playing and Jack Holt directing.

The Jacobs' Stores, men's furnishers, displayed Jack Holt in a new mode pajama suit in their four Broadway windows.

Newspapers in seventeen Westchester counties were covered with sepcial stories on aviation.

Thirty-two Walgreen drug stores used 50,000 special throwaways. They were inserted in the packages as they were wrapped. Walgreen also used 50,000 special napkins.

Heavily Billed

One hundred and five 15 by 19-inch enlargements of Jack Holt were placed in Broadway and Times Square windows.

In the Times Square district 250 regular "Dirigible" window cards were placed, and 300 one-sheet cards were tacked.

This selling campaign should prove the possibilities of "Dirigible."

COPY!!

For that emergency use when words fail you and you want to get away from using "greatest," "best;" "marvelous" and other over-used superlatives. Here is COPY that has been successfully used and which you can clip and paste for newspaper advertising.

Ask your newspaper editor what constitutes the most important part of any newspaper story. He will tell you, first the "head" and second, the first paragraph. He will tell you that many people read only the "head" and that a majority read only the first paragraph.

It is then logical to assume that very few people read your entire ad, and it follows that you must get the public's eye with your first line and carry them with that line to the balance of your material if possible. These headlines, catch lines and phrases are put at your disposal in order that they may, if possible, pique the curiosity of your patrons and get them to read your entire message.

FEATURES and SHORTS

The Secret Six

M-G-M—85 Mins.

Cast: Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, John Mack Brown, Jean Harlow, Marjorie Rambeau, Paul Hurst, Clark Gable, Ralph Bellamy, John Miljan, DeWitt Jennings, Murray Kinnell, Fletcher Norton, Louis Natheaux, Frank McGlynn, Theodore Von Eltz. Directed by George Hill.

Another of the recent influx of gangster films with plenty of gunplay and thrills. Wallace Beery, a tough slaughter-house worker, is urged to join a bootleg gang by the temptation of big money. The gang is headed by Lewis Stone, an unscrupulous lawyer. They "muscle in" on rival territory and kill the leader's kid brother. The rival gangsters demand the killer be given up to them. Ralph Bellamy as the leader of Stone's crowd, who did the killing, tells them it was Beery, who retaliates by killing Bellamy and taking control of the gang which plans to kill John Miljan, leader of the rival gang, and handle both gangs.

John Mack Brown and Clark Gable as two newspaper men and rivals for the love of Jean Harlow, a cabaret girl, furnish the romance, if any. Their search for new finally ends in Brown being "bumped off" for connecting Beery with the shooting of Miljan. An organization of business men called "The Secret Six" is formed to drive out the gangsters. Beery is brought to trial for the killing of Brown but a fixed jury acquits him. Police and vigilants make a raid on the gangster headquarters and in the getaway Beery kills Stone in an argument over the division of the gang's accumulated wealth. The death of Stone removes the legal brains of the gangster organization and they all finally pay the penalty in the execution chamber.

While this one sticks pretty close to the producers' code of ethics, it has too much gunplay and strong-arm work to suit the majority. However, it is an exciting film and will surely please those who like the underworld stories. The excellent cast was worthy of a much better story, as it contains many good box-office names. Direction was satisfactory.—Southwell.

Tarnished Lady

Paramount—83 Mins.

Cast: Tallulah Bankhead, Clive Brook, Phoebe Foster, Alexander Kirkland, Osgood Perkins, Elizabeth Patterson. Directed by George Cukor.

Paramount brings us a new star, in this sophisticated film offering, who seems to possess the qualities of the late Jean Eagels. Miss Bankhead as the daughter, descended from a long line of indigo-brooded ancestors, of a mother with more social ambition than wealth, gives an excellent performance even though at times her voice did not record clearly. To please her mother she forsakes the boy she loves to marry a man of wealth. She is not happy and decides to leave her husband, not knowing that he had lost his money in the stock market crash. On arriving at the former boy friends apartment she discovers him entertaining her former rival for her husband. Pride keeps her from returning to her husband and she even refuses to inform him that he is a father. A mutual friend finally persuades her that she should return to her husband who, in a bad way financially, is about to divorce her to marry her former wealthy rival. She goes to him and a reconciliation follows and it is only then that she introduces him to his son.

Story by Donald Ogden Stuart furnishes a fine vehicle for the new star who is given excellent support. Direction could have been better but the good performance puts it over. With the right stories and direction this new star should soon become very popular. —Southwell.

Clearing the Range

Allied—65 Mins.

Cast: Hoot Gibson, Sally Eilers, Hooper Atchley, George Mendoza, Robert Homans, Mme. Eva Grippon, Maston Williams, Edward Peil, Jack Byron, Edward Hearn. Directed by Otta Brower.

This is Gibson's first under the Allied Pictures banner and out of some 75 odd westerns that he has "heroed," we can justly classify "Clearing the Range" as his masterpiece. The story is one of human interest with a love affair appetite, while Hoot's hard riding should have the kids in the gallery shouting for more, and there's plenty of hard riding backed up with a reason for every ride.

While adapting the role of a sap to disillusion the villain, Hoot garners laughs and scornful glances from his friends who thought him fearless. The time comes for action, however, and he gets his man. There are many new wrinkles unfolded in the story and it has been told with a finesse seldom accomplished in western action pictures. Sally Eilers makes a delightful heroine and registers a finished performance. The photography and direction is top-notch. Scenic shots are a delight for the optics and it looks like a gem for lovers of action and the great outdoors. — Warren Stokes.

Iron Man

Universal—74 Mins.

Cast: Lew Ayres, Robert Armstrong, Jeana Harlow, John Miljan, Eddie Dillon, Mike Donlin, Mollie Cohan, Mary Doran, Mildred Van Doran, Ned Sparks, Sam Blum, Sammy Gervon. Directed by Tod Browning.

A good action story of the fight game depicting the making and breaking of a champ. In this instance the champ is broken as a result of paying more attention to his wife's whims than his manager's advice. Becoming a champ he immediately gets a swelled head, moves into high society to please his wife, forgetting all the old friends who enabled him to reach the top. He becomes a pawn in the hands of his somewhat loose wife, who manipulates the cards so that her lover can be near her as her husband's manager. The old manager gets the gate but brings the fighter back to his senses by training another scrapper to knock him out. The action is fast with the suspense element well sustained and the end comes with a genuine surprise twist. Robert Armstrong gives a splendid performance as the scrapper's manager and would-be friend and counsellor; in fact, he almost steals the picture completely.—Warren Stokes.

Quick Millions

Fox—68 Mins.

Cast: Spencer Tracy, Marguerite Churchill, Sally Eilers, Robert Burns, John Wray, Warner Richmond, George Raft and John Swor. Directed by Rowland Brown.

Here is a racketeer picture that is fast-moving and furnishes good entertainment. Story concerns an ambitious truck driver (Spencer Tracy) who uses strong-arm coercion with the building contractors to make them use his fleet of trucks. Falls for the daughter of wealthy builder and by bringing gangster pressure on the father makes him take him in as partner. His social ambition causes him to high-hat his former pals and sweetheart. Because of her father's position the girl is forced to tolerate his attention. His former pals frame him for a killing, and when the daughter turns him down and tells him she is going to marry someone in her own set, he goes to his gangster friends to enlist their aid in kidnapping her at the wedding. They apparently fall in with his plans and when the time comes, start for the church in a limousine. Instead of going there they take him for his last ride.

Direction and camera work of the best and this one will get over almost anywhere. Cast in support of Tracy do excellent work. Title furnishes good exploitation angles.—Southwell.

Aloha

Tiffany—90 Minutes

Cast: Ben Lyon, Raquel Torres, Robert Edson, Alan Hale, Thelma Todd, Marian Douglas Otis Harlan, T. Roy Barnes, Robert Ellis, Donald Reed, Al St. John, Dickie Moore, Marcia Harris, Addie McPhail, Phyllis Crane, Rita Grey. Directed by Albert Rogell.

Ben Lyon as the son of a South Sea trader is sent to the post for experience and after much vamping marries a native half caste (Raquel Torres) who has foresworn her own people. He takes her back to his folks who are high in social position and his attempt to fit her into the picture makes her miserable by his friends' insults. They return to the South Seas on a cruise and the girl realizing that she does not belong to his world escapes from the yacht by swimming ashore and casting herself into the crater of a volcano according to her people's traditions. The husband attempts to reach her before the fatal plunge but arrives just too late. He returns to the States and becomes reconciled to his former society sweetheart.

Direction is slow in spots but with better attention to the scenic backgrounds this one would have made a fine feature.—G. L. S.

THE LAST WORD

ABOUT CONTRACTS

IT is unlikely that a standard exhibition contract will be in use in this industry this season, even though effort is being made by exhibitor organization heads to obtain government approval of such an instrument. The use of a different contract by each distributing company, of course, complicates matters for the exhibitor. It means that he will have a lot more of fine print to read and more clauses to comply with. However, a healthier competitive situation exists through the use of individual contracts by individual firms than is the case where a standard instrument is in use. So the situation may be only as bad as one makes believe it is.

When all companies operate under one standard agreement there is no opportunity for any competing distributor to make better terms or agreements than another. Each contract is the same except for price, protection and percentage arrangements. So, perhaps, the exhibitor is the gainer after all, if a free competitive condition exists. There is as much danger in standardization of film selling as there is in producing.

If an exhibitor is careful in his buying when he is negotiating for product and does not permit himself to be oversold, there will be rare cause for contractual differences to come up. He can always read over a contract before he signs it and, if he doesn't understand it, he can have his lawyer interpret its legal phases to him. In our own experience as an exhibitor we found no cause for contractual tilts as long as we paid for our pictures, settled percentage arrangements properly and returned the film promptly. We made mistakes in buying, of course, but we tried to profit by not repeating them.

A GOOD PLAN IF---

MOTION pictures this coming season are going to have a more timely value, if announcements made at two producers' sales conventions are a criterion. On the one hand RKO-Pathe will feature its stars in types of stories that measure up to the trend of public tastes as near as that can be gauged just prior to their starting into production. Then, too, Paramount will make a goodly portion of its 1931-32 releases on a similar basis, reserving, as it does, the right to change titles, casts and stories on about 30 per cent of its program to fit them to the trend of the picture-going public's demands.

These are good plans and should result in better business at the box offices. However, we hope this method will not result in giving the public so much of one cycle of entertainment or story that it will defeat its own purpose.

PROGRESS

---that the industry may be better served

The ability of any organization to serve its trade rests to a very great extent with its man-power. Man-power is the locomotive force that turns the wheels of industry. Man-power is the main-spring that guides progress. And it is man-power—31 active men in the field—in addition to an executive editorial force maintained by Associated Publications, that affords the people of the motion picture industry quality trade journals with features and departments that are of real and practical value.

In keeping with the march of progress in the industry Associated Publications was organized to afford the readers of its trade papers the best that brains and man-power could give. Its resources—the efforts of its large staff of journalists—assure consistency. Each trade paper in its group of ten is built to serve its specific film markets, not overlooking the important national trade activities that are of interest locally.

It is said that "two heads are better than one." Here you have 31 plus—keeping apace with industry progress, if not a step or two ahead.

Scooter-Nite

Wins Kids on Sight!

Full Description of $3 Retail Value 3-Wheel Safety Scooter

Of very newest speed design, built of first quality steel to hold any weight up to 200 lbs. Beautifully finished in red and green enamels. Has large reinforced natural wood handle-bar, balanced hinge for easy turning; 5-inch double disc steel wheels. Platform of one-piece heavy-pressed steel.

EACH boy and girl in your drawing radius will bring you 24 paid adult admissions in exchange for on of these 3-Wheel Safety Scooters.

In the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN you get these identical scooters to offer every kid in your drawing radius—and you get them at factory price of $1.12 each. This offer is open to all chain and independent theatres in the U. S. We do not sell these Scooters to retail trade, but only through our premium plans. The SCOOTER-NITE PLAN will only cost you a fraction of what you can and often do spend on exploitation stunts that have nothing like the possibilities of permanently built up business, which the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN provides. You make friends with SCOOTER-NITE.

Most exhibitors work "SCOOTER-NITE" two or more days a week. For example, if the exhibitor finds Mondays and Thursdays are his dull nights, he works SCOOTER-NITE for those days; or if he should run the same picture two days in succession, he makes Mondays and Tuesdays, or Thursdays and Fridays, his SCOOTER-NITE. The quicker he gives away these Free Scooters the more advertising he gets through the children using them and showing them to their friends, relatives and neighbors. As long as the Scooters last—and they are of steel construction so will last indefinitely—you will be getting advertising value from them; children are proud to mention that they EARNED the Scooter at your theatre.

Children won't let their parents, relatives or friends alone until they have helped fill the Record Card. The Record Card is a card bearing the name of your theatre and with twenty-four printed squares on one side, in which your cashier or doorman stamps—with rubber stamp which we furnish—a square for each adult admission brought by the child. For example, if the child brought in four adults, the child would get four of the squares stamped.

When all twenty-four of the squares are filled the child turns in his Record Card and receives one of the 3-Wheel Safety Scooters. No strings—no contest. Every child has equal opportunity. You run no risk of disappointing anyone. You issue Scooters only for completely filled cards.

Costs You Less Than 4 2-3 Cents Per Admission

To illustrate: The Scooters cost the exhibitor $1.12 each. There are 24 stamps on Record Card. 4 2/3c times 24 equals $1.12. Therefore cost to exhibitor is 4 2/3c per admission.

How to Order for Scooter-Nite Plan

Required starting order is 24 Scooters. You can best estimate the number you may require, but your first order must be at least for 24. Four Cards are furnished free, imprinted with your theatre name, for each Scooter ordered; thus on minimum order you would receive free 96 Record Cards. Heralds imprinted with theatre name, are furnished for $3.00 per thousand. A 120-ft. Trailer is loaned for two weeks only, and a deposit of $3.60 is required if Trailer is desired. This deposit is returned to theatre on return of Trailer.

Theatre Admissions Cut

Publix Paves Way in Twin Cities; Ames Is Skeptical of Value of Price Cutting.

Theatre admission prices are breaking in the territory for the first time during the current depression.

Publix is paving the way with slashes in the Minneapolis and St. Paul loops.

Among the houses cut is the Paramount, leading St. Paul theatre, which drops from 60c to 50c after 6:30 p. m.

Three Minneapolis Publix loop theatres reduced their prices this week, including the State, ranking next to the Minnesota as the leading Publix downtown house since the Century's closing. Starting with "Trader Horn," current attraction, the State lowers its price at night from 60c to 50c and for matinees from 40c to 35c.

Other Minneapolis loop theatres which altered their scales, starting this week, were the Lyric, where five cents was lopped off the former 40c night and 30c matinee tariff, and the Aster, where 25c, instead of 30c, will be the night admission. The matinee charge remains 25c.

The lowering of theatre prices is in line with the downward trend of prices generally. It is believed to forecast a general slash throughout the Publix territory and among independents.

There will be no drop at the RKO Orpheums in Minneapolis and St. Paul, however, according to Morgan Ames, division manager.

"The prices at these houses were brought down to a rock-bottom basis a long time ago," said Mr. Ames. "With our scales at pre-war levels and as low as operating costs will permit, we have no work to do along this line. Even in relation to present reduced opposition prices, we regard our scales as at bargain levels."

Mr. Ames is skeptical as to the Double Features Not Popular in NW

Circuit Heads Opposed to Policy; Territory Is Free From the Evil Now, Survey Shows.

The Northwest territory will be free from the double-feature evil, it is indicated by a MOVIE AGE survey.

Two heads of opposing theatre chains are unequivocally on record against the enlarged programs.

Independent exhibitors in this section are fighting shy of the double features, too, and, in the opinion of leading distributors, thev will continue to do so.

As far as can be learned, there is not a single house in the territory now playing double features or planning to do so.

Eddie Ruben, Publix divisional director, and Morgan Ames, RKO division head, with offices in Minneapolis, have come out flatly against the double features and declare that such a policy will be

'Skippy' Magnet

For Ace Publix House in Minneapolis; Bigger Draw Than "Sawyer" at Same House.

Vieing with "Tom Sawyer" as a box-office sensation, "Skippy" last week gave the Minnesota Theatre, 4,200-seat ace Publix house, one of its biggest seven days of the season.

On the opening days, the business exceeded that done by "Tom Sawyer," which also rates among the theatre's best gross getters of the season. The week, as a whole, also ran ahead of the "Tom Sawyer."

The showing is all the more notable in view of the fact that the "Skippy" cartoon strip does not

HEADS FOX BRANCH

Jack Lorentz New Mgr. in Minneapolis

Jack Lorentz is the new manager of the Fox exchange in Minneapolis. He succeeds M. A. Levy, who has been branch manager for the past several years, during which he enjoyed considerable popularity in film circles. Mr. Levy has been transferred to Chicago where he will manage the Fox exchange, the switch being in the nature of a promotion.

Mr. Lorentz's elevation from assistant to manager of the Fox exchange here is in recognition of his faithful and efficient service. He recently had been transferred temporarily to Milwaukee to perfect a reorganization of the office there.

HOPEFUL

Milwaukee Opposed to Daylight Saving

Milwaukee, Wis.—Present indications are that local exhibitors will not be bothered with daylight saving time this year. The Milwaukee Association of Commerce has resolved that it will not sponsor any movement in this direction this summer.

Last year, daylight savings time was observed by a number of the city's leading industrial and retail concerns, while theatres and other businesses operated on standard time. The result was considerable inconveneince on the part of local citizens.

More Kid Pictures

By M. E. CUFFEL, Editor

THE splendid patronage attracted to the Minnesota Theatre, Minneapolis, last week by "Skippy," on the heels of the big business enjoyed at the same house recently by "Tom Sawyer," undoubtedly is a typical situation, judging by reports from other cities, and it should afford plenty of food for producers' thought.

If pictures of the type of "Skippy" and "Tom Sawyer" can draw so well in these trying times, why not let us have a good many more of them? We do not mean that we have a surfeit of boyhood stories, but we do mean that we should have more clean, wholesome offerings suitable for the kiddies and for all members of the family.

The box-office experience of "Skippy," "Tom Sawyer" and other such pictures demonstrates conclusively that there is just as big an audience—perhaps a larger one—

"Skippy" "Ten Nights" and "Bachelor Apartment" OK

Minneapolis (week ending May 1—"Skippy" was the box-office sensation of the past week. This fine picture of boyhood days drew splendid crowds to the Minnesota and won praise on every hand.

"Bachelor Apartment," at the RKO Orpheum was another box-office winner. "Ten Nights in a Barroom" gave the Aster its biggest week in a number of months. "Mr. Lemon of Orange" at the State did not go over so well as previous El Brendel pictures here.

Aster — Ten Nights in a Barroom (Roadshow), William Farnum and Tom Santschi. Business: Good. Summary: The old thriller anent the mill owner whom drink ruins; prohibition propaganda is packed into this one, but it holds elements of popular appeal and has a corking rough and tumble fight for a climax. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; Serial.

Lyric—The Conquering Horde (Paramount), Richard Arlen and Fay Wray. Business: Fair. Summary: A number of thrills in this drama of the Texas plains. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; Screen Vaudeville.

Minnesota — Skippy (Para.), Jackie Cooper, Robert Coogan and Mitzie Green. Business: Big. Summary: A delightfully human story about the joys and griefs of childhood; a picture that every member of the family will enjoy. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage Show; Sound News.

RKO Orpheum—Bachelor Apartment (RKO), Irene Dunne, Mae Murray and Lowell Sherman. Business: Good. Summary: A spicy comedy-drama concerning a modern Don Juan and his escapade with a truant wife. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville; Sound News; Comedy and Golf Serial.

RKO Seventh Street—Comrades of 1918 (Independent), All-German cast. Business: Light. Summary: German-produced drama depicting war's horrors and entirely German dialogue. Entertainment Merits: 70 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; Screen Vaudeville.

State—Mr. Lemon of Orange (Fox), El Brendel. Business: Fair. Summary: Too inane even for farce comedy; not a semblance of reality in this yarn about a simple Swede who is mistaken for a gang leader. Entertainment Merits: 70 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Cartoon Comedy, "Strange As It Seems."

MILWAUKEE

(Week Ending April 23)

Alhambra — Parlor, Bedroom and Bath (M-G-M), Buster Keaton and Charlotte Greenwood. Business: Good. Summary: A hilarious piece with a good cast and settings. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: "Strange As It Seems," "Copy," Comedy, Universal Newsreel.

Garden—Kiki (United Artists), Mary Pickford, Reginald Denny. Busienss: Good. Summary: A picture which fails to cast Mary Pickford in a natural role. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Ruth Etting Song Cycle; Paramount News.

Majestic—The Single Sin (Tiffany), Kay Johnson and Bert Lytell. Business: Fair. Summary: A problem play concerning two men and a woman in an underworld setting. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Looney Tunes; Pathe News.

Palace-Orpheum—Cracked Nuts (Rado), Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey. Business: Fair. Summary: The regular type of Wheeler and Woolsey comedy with plenty to laugh at. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: "Golf," Johnny Farrell, Pathe News.

Riverside — Man of the World (Paramount), William Powell and Carole Lombard. Business: Good. Summary: A story of blackmailing in Paris rather weakly presented. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Eight RKO Vaudeville Acts; Pathe News.

Strand — Dishonored (Para.), Marlene Dietrich and Victor McLaglen. Business: Fair (ended second week.) Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Our Gang Comedy; Fox Movietone News.

Harold Finkelstein, head of the recently organized Finkelstein chain of theatres, is back on the job after vacationing at Excelsior Springs, Mo. He drove to the resort and back in his new Packard.

Elaborate Opening for W B Milwaukee House

Milwaukee, Wis.—May 1 marked the opening of Warner Bros.' new $2,500,000 theatre in this city. Among those appearing at the theatre in connection with the dedicatory program were Gov. Phil La Follette, Mayor Daniel Hoan, and a host of executives from New York.

The 12-story building is in French renaissance and modernistic styles. The auditorium, in black and gold and ivory, is in the Louis XIV period. It has six panels showing court scenes. The foyer, men's and women's rooms and the promenades are modern in design. The women's rooms are in green and lavender; the men's in black and green.

All wood used in the building has been imported from Spain, Italy and South America. All metal work is in chromium. The theatre has a seating capacity of 2,500, and is managed by Harold Janesky.

The first showing of Bobby Jones (series of short reels, "How I Play Golf," and "Sit Tight," with Joe E. Brown and Winnie Lightner, featured the opening program. The theatre will operate as a straight photoplay house. A disappearing organ has been installed in the theatre at a cost of $110,000.

Admissions Cut

wisdom of price-cutting in stimulating business.

"We tried it at the RKO President in St. Paul," said Mr. Ames. "It cut our revenue without boosting our attendance. We played to practically the same number of people, but our returns were considerably smaller. Our overhead, however, remained the same."

Incidentally, the RKO Seventh Street and RKO President in Minneapolis and St. Paul have closed for the summer. The Publix Century in Minneapolis, leading loop house next to the Minnesota, closed several weeks ago for the summer.

The scale at the Minnesota is 75c after 6:30 p. m. It is not believed that the prices will be cut at this theatre as the overhead is so heavy it probably will not permit the reduction. However, when first opened two years ago, the night price here was only 60c and a slash is not outside the realm of probability.

In the absence from the city of Eddie Ruben, divisional director, and L. T. Ludwig, division manaber, no statement relative to Publix price policy could be obtained from the local Publix offices.

Mr. Ames said that the eight-act vaudeville bill, being tried out in some RKO spots, would not be used at the Twin City Orpheums at least for the present summer. Four acts now are being played.

"I am not convinced that an 8-act vaudeville program would be desirable or would benefit attendance," said Mr. Ames.

STRAND TO RKO

Madison House to New Control

Madison, Wis.—At the end of eighteen months, Fox Midwesco's Strand Theatre here will revert to RKO, which has taken up the lease on the house at the end of that period. The move gives RKO control of four first run houses in Madison, insofar as the circuit has also taken a long term lease on the Parkway Theatre here.

RKO now controls the Capitol, Orpheum, Garrick, Strand and Parkway. The circuit will expend approximately $40,000 in remodeling the Parkway, which will continue to show legitimate attractions. R. R. Miller is expected to continue as manager of the Parkway, which is the oldest in the city.

The Garrick Theatre, formerly showing stock attractions, has been dark for a long period of time. John Scharnberg is in charge of RKO theatres in Madison.

Doubles Not Popular

taboo in the theatres supervised by them.

"I am strongly opposed to double feature programs," said Mr. Ruben. "I feel that they do much harm and no good. In my opinion, well-balanced programs, affording diversified entertainment and offering a number of pleasing short subjects along with a single feature, is what the vast majority of film fans desire. Double features are just as likely to drive as many people away from a showhouse as they will attract. A single good feature, surrounded by a well-chosen program of shorts, invariably can be depended upon to provide the maximum amount of pleasure and satisfaction and to stimulate the greatest box-office response."

Similar sentiments are voiced by Mr. Ames who can discern no virtues in the double-feature program.

"My observation has led me to believe that the average entertainment seeker wants variety," said Mr. Ames. "Double features tire him and provide him with a surfeit of the same sort of screen fare. They tax his endurance. He may be attracted at the outset by the seeming bargain aspect, but after his first few encounters he is apt to lose all interest in the theatre and be lost as a prospective patron."

With both Eddie Ruben, divisional director, and L. J. Ludwig, division manager, out of the city, Hal Daigler, district manager ,is in charge of Publix division headquarters in Minneapolis. The two heads are attending the meeting of Publix executives in New York. They will be back on the job this week.

Tax Bill Out?

Madison, Wis. — Indications are that the Engel bill, seeking to place a 4 per cent tax on the gross receipts of all theatres in the state, will meet with defeat, was seen when no appearances were made in favor of the measure at a hearing held April 24.

Exhibitors from all over the state appeared against the measure as well as Sen. Oscar Morris and Assemblyman Harold M. Groves of Madison. Others appearing against the measure included F. J. McWilliams, president of the Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Wisconsin; Ben Koenig, secretary of the Film Board of Trade; Fred S. Meyer, president of the M.P.T.O. of Wisconsin, and J. J. Hanley of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor.

awaiting the well-done, thoroughly human screen plays free from the usual superabundance of sexiness as there is for the sensational sex dramas unfit for juvenile consumption.

In voicing a sentiment that the scales at least should be more evenly balanced between the simple, wholesome entertainment fare suitable for children and young people on the one hand and the sophisticated love and triangle dramas on the other, we believe that we are giving expression to the wishes of most exhibitors. On every side, among theatre operators is heard a demand for more pictures that will bring the children into the showhouses in greater numbers. The feeling is that it behooves the industry to make fans out of the youngsters who are the adults of tomorrow and that the only way to do this is to offer the sort of pictures which merit parents' approval.

Offerings like "Skippy" also serve an invaluable purpose in creating goodwill in a community for the movie industry as a whole as well as for the theatre which shows them.

Again we repeat, let's have more pictures like "Skippy."

O'CONNELL RETURNS

St. Paul Mgr. Recovers From Accident

Fully recovered in health, Ray O'Connell is back on the job as manager of the RKO Pathe Orpheum Theatre, St. Paul. Following convalsecence from a serious automobile accident injury, Mr. O'Connell suffered a nervous breakdown and he has been in California for more than a month, regaining his health. He says he is as fit as a fiddle and he looks it. Mr.O'Connell is one of the most aggressive, hardest working and efficient managers in the RKO Northwest division and if, as he says, he is back in old form again, the fur will fly along the St.Paul rialto and the RKO Palace Orpheum will be very much in the spotlight this summer.

Mickey Gross, who was brought on from Sioux City to substitute for Mr. O'Connell and who filled the latter's shoes in a most acceptable manner, will be transferred to another spot. At this writing he is still unplaced.

Morris Abrahams, popular M-G-exploiteer, is recovering from an emergency appendicitis operation at St. Mary's hospital, Duluth. His many northwest friends as well as exhibitors generally, who receive much assistance from Morry in putting over their attractions, will be glad when he's back on the job again.

WAR ON DOUBLES

Schnitzer Attacks Two Feature Policy

Hollywood, Calif. — Open warfare against the "double-feature" policy prevalent in many theatres was declared by President Joseph I. Schnitzer, addressing Radio Pictures' sales convention.

Permitted to continue, he said, the "double feature" policy would seriously threaten the stability of the entire motion picture industry.

"The very theatres that are maintaining this policy," he declared, "are digging their own financial graves. Actual box-office figures prove that the public is looking for quality in its entertainment, not quantity. The public will be the first to realize, and to demonstrate by their lack of interest, that no theatre can give them two quality productions for the price of one.

"By the same token, no studio can produce two quality productions for the price of one.

"This studio, for one, will attempt no such things!"

"Skippy" Magnet

run in any of the Minneapolis newspapers and the character was unknown here. Splendid exploitation by Manager Harold Kaplan and Press Agent Cliff Gill, however, paved the way for the remarkable opening, and the picture itself built up consistently throughout the entire week.

"Skippy" is one of the few pictures shown here during the past year to win a five star rating from Merle Potter, Journal film critic. This is his highest rating.

Patrons along with the critics showered praise on this Paramount boyhood classic. It is said by the management that many people returned to see it a second time. The attendance of kiddies was of record breaking proportions.

Ask Referendum

Madison, Wis. — Despite the fact that a measure to repeal the Sunday blue laws in the state was defeated in the senate several weeks ago, Assemblyman J. Grobschmidt, author of the repeal-joint resolution proposing a referendum to be held in the general election in November, 1932. Public hearings will be held before the assembly acts upon the resolution.

Independents in Comeback

More Than 20 Companies to Produce Between 100 and 150 Features for New Season.

The independent producer, who took a back seat when sound pictures swept the industry, is making a comeback. The independent market was hurt but not completely wrecked by the talkie avalanche and, although 1930 saw a gradual recovery of state rights producers, 1931 seems destined to be a banner year for the independents.

It is estimated that between 100 and 150 independent features will be turned out by the twenty or more companies producing for the state rights market during the new selling season. A survey of the independent production plans indicates that the pictures are mainly western and action stories aimed principally at family trade with due consideration for child patronage.

Some of the companies producing for independent distribution are Monogram, Big 4, Headline, Allied, Mascot, Ideal, Chesterfield, Hollywood, Congo, Liberty, Reed, Talking Picture Epics and First Division.

TURN TO WIDE FILM AGAIN

All Fox Theatres to be Equipped for Standard Wide Film; Production Is Included.

New York — Despite the fact that wide film has been pushed into the background in recent months, Fox theatres throughout the country will be equipped with dual projectors, adaptable to standard and wide film, according to The Film Daily. Plans are said to be under way for the production of wide film versions of all Fox pictures.

Fox houses will be equipped by General Theatres Equipment, the report says. The studios are really for production of wide film pictures.

This step by Fox may be a forerunner of another revolution in motion picture presentation if the public accepts it as readily as it did to sound pictures.

Two Trust Charges

Dropped by Fed. Trade Commission in the Case Against Paramount; Set Trial for October.

New York — Two of the three charges in the "cease and desist" anti-trust action against Paramount have been dropped by the Federal Trade Commission. "Conspiracy to monopolize" the film business and the "acquiring of theatres with purpose of compelling exhibitors to buy Paramount product" are the charges that have been abandoned. The U. S. court of appeals has granted permission to eliminate these two counts from the committee's petition.

The trial at which a petition asking for a court order to force Paramount to end block booking will come up in October. The case began in 1921 and hearings have been held in 1923 and 1927.

CUE SHEETS OUT

Distribution Discontinued Effective at Once

Hollywood—The establishment of the standard release print has made possible the abandonment of cue sheets for the projection of sound pictures, according to announcement of the technical bureau of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Studios and exchanges have been notified by Lester Cowan, manager of the bureau, that the distribution of cue sheets with prints may be safely discontinued. Spaces left for the purpose in the standard release print will be used by the studios for any special information or statement of fader settings which the projectionist should have to run the show. Approval of this change in practice has been given by the producers-technicians committee of the academy.

DECIDE ON TITLE

"Woman of Experience" for Twelvetrees

Hollywood—"A Woman of Exeprience" will be the release title of the new Helen Twelvetrees picture, temporarily called "The Registered Woman," according to Charles R. Rogers, production head of RKO-Pathe.

The cast includes William Bakewell, Lew Cody, Zasu Pitts, H. B. Warner, C. Henry Gordon, Franklin Pangborn, Nance O'Neil, Geo. Fawcett and Edward Earle.

W. B. Building

San Francisco — A $25,000,000 theatre building program is scheduled by Warner Bros., according to Jack Warner, who was present at the western sales convention here. This announcement spikes the rumor that Fox West Coast would take over the operation of the Warner houses.

Sign Richards

Universal City—Stanley Bergerman, in charge of Universal short reel production, has announced the signing of Vincent Richards, the famous professional tennis star, for two subjects in which he will demonstrate the fine points of the game. He will go to Universal City shortly to make these pictures.

NOW VICE-PRES.

Laemmle, Jr., Honored on 23rd Birthday

New York—At a special meeting of the board of directors of the Universal Pictures Corporation, held last week, Carl Laemmle, Jr., general manager of Universal City, was elected second vice president of the corporation.

Contract Illegal Says Philadelphia Court

Philadelphia—Another court declared the old standard exhibition contract illegal last week when Judge Dickinson in the Federal court, eastern district, handed down a decision in favor of Clayton Buss, an exhibitor of Easton, Pa. Action was brought against Buss by Vitagraph, which sought to compel the showman to play out pictures bought on his 1929-30 contract.

According to the Philadelphia court, the Thacher decision outlaws the former standard contract.

Change Title

Hollywood — William Powell's first starring picture for Warner Bros. will bear the title "The Other Man" instead of "The Co-Respondent." This is the picture in which Marian Marsh, John Barrymore's leading woman in "Svengali" and "The Mad Genius," will appear opposite Mr. Powell. Allison Skipworth is also to be prominent in the cast. 'The Other Man" has been adapted by J. Grubb Alexander from a story by Roland Pertwee.

CRIME FILMS OUT

LeBaron Sees Need for Healthier Stories

Hollywood — William LeBaron, vice-president in charge of production for Radio Pictures, made the announcement at Radio Pictures sales convention in Hollywood that sex and gangster pictures have run their course and are to be replaced by productions depicting healthier and more virile phases of life.

Virile melodrama and comedies stressing the normal, human side of life are to be produced by Radio Pictures, according to this policy. Colorful adventure and interesting metropolitan backgrounds, with glamor, romance and the spell of illusion are once more to be dominant in motion picture production, according to the executive.

"Doubles" Out

New York—A clause forbidding the sale of a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture for a double-feature program will be added to the present M-G-M contract, it became known here, following the recent Chicago convention.

FIVE COMEDIES

Announce Educational on May List

Hollywood—Five new two-reel comedies and three one-reelers have been set for May release by Educational.

Mack Sennett will have two comedies on this schedule; namely, "Cowcatcher's Daughter," which will be released May 10, and "Ghost Parade," which has a May 24 release date. In both comedies Andy Clyde, Harry Gribbon, Marjorie Beebe and Frankie Eastman are featured. Babe Stafford, who directed "Cowcatcher's Daughter," appears in a small part in "Ghost Parade," which, as the title implies, is a spook comedy.

"Windy Riley Goes Hollywood," based on an original story by Ken Kling, the creator of the comic strip, "Windy Riley," will be released May 10. This is the fifth in the Mermaid series, the sixth and final Mermaid. "The Back Page," to be released May 24. "The Back Page," a comedy with a newspaper background, is a take-off on "The Front Page." It co-features George Chandler and Virginia Brooks. Both Mermaids were directed by William Goodrich.

"Don't Divorce Him," a Tuxedo, featuring Clyde Cook, John T. Murray and Vernon Dent, and directed by William Watson, will be released May 31.

"Cross Roads," a new Romantic Journey, featuring Claude Flemming, world traveler, and "The Firemen's Bride," a Terry-Toon, are scheduled for May 3 release, while "The Sultan's Cat," another Terry-Toon, will be released May 17.

Blondes Win

Hollywood—Blondes outnumber brunettes two to one in the 48 productions to be released by the Fox Film Corporation during the 1931-32 season beginning in July.

Salesmen Vote on Radio's Policies of Production

Reduction of Gangster Pictures Recommended by Film Men at RKO Convention.

Hollywood, Calif. — A decision by Radio Pictures executives to permit salesmen attending its second annual convention to vote on vital matters of policy last week resulted in important developments.

1. The salesmen voted unanimously for the return of musical interpolations in pictures. Their decision was based on a careful check of exhibitors and motion picture enthusiasts throughout the country. However, it was decided that the music should be part of the story filmed and not a side issue.

2. It was decided that the public's best interests would be served by eliminating "program" pictures and substituting instead 36 productions, each of "super" magnitude.

3. Unanimous recommendation that Edna May Oliver, Broadway star who distinguished herself in "Cimarron," be starred in future pictures.

4. That Irene Dunne's experienced singing voice be utilized in future films. Miss Dunne, former star of the musical comedy stage, won screen fame opposite Richard Dix in "Cimarron."

5. That the number of sex and gangster pictures be reduced to an absolute minimum and that strong and virile dramas and melodramas and clean human comedies be substituted instead.

Deny G.T.P. Rehearing

Patent Litigation Ends With Decision of U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Last Week.

New York — Western Electric, which successfully defended its position of non-infringement of the Ries patent held by General Talking Pictures, solidified its position last week when the U. S. circuit court of appeals for the third circuit denied General Talking Pictures a rehearing of the case.

For all practical purposes this marks the end of patent litigation, in which General Talking Pictures was the plaintiff, that has extended more than a year. General Talking Pictures brought suit for patent infringement against the Stanley Company for use of Western Electric equipment in the U. S. district court at Wilmington on four patents. In the case of three the court decided in favor of Western Electric ruling that no infringement existed. In the case of one, the Ries patent, the court ruled there was an infringement; but this ruling was reversed in a decision given last March by the U. S. third circuit court of appeals. It is with respect to this decision that General Talking Pictures had asked for and has now been denied a rehearing.

NEW COMPANY

Resurfacing of Screens Is Its Purpose

New York — Announcement is made of the formation of a new organization with headquarters in New York, for the purpose of cleaning and resurfacing motion picture screens of all types.

This organization is affiliated with the Beaded Screen Corporation, makers of Vocalite and Superlite screens, and is the outgrowth of over a year's experiments and developments in cleaning and resurfacing of screens.

Many special surfacing and cleaning processes have been worked out and tested under all conditions met with in service.

It is now possible to create a surface superior to that of the average screen when it was originally installed, the company announces.

One of the surfacing materials is the one used in the manufacture of the new "Chromolite" screen, which has just been announced by the Beaded Screen Corporation, and furnishes to the old screen the advantages of perfect color rendition, a brighter picture, and freedom from harmful ultra-violet rays.

A minimum price has been established for screens up to twelve by sixteen feet in size. For screens above this size, a definite price per square foot.

MOUSE INJUNCTION

Court Favors Disney in Infringement Case

Los Angeles—The Federal District of Southern California last week granted Walt Disney Productions, Ltd., an injunction restraining Pathe Exchanges, Inc., and the Van Buren Corp. from distributing any cartoons imitating Mickey and Minnie Mouse, the characters in the popular short reel distributed by Columbia Pictures. The injunction further stated that any animated drawings imitating the two characters, such as those used by Van Buren in the "Aesop's Fables" series were a direct infringement of the copyright held by Disney.

BIG FOUR PREPARES

Stories and Stars Lined Up for Season

New York—Big 4 is lining up stories, stars and directors for its new 1931-32 program, and will shortly make its announcement for the coming season.

It has been decided to follow the general trend to "names" which is widely popular this year, and the sales force has been notified that stories will include, in their array of big all-star casts, names that have proven themselves at the box-office. Information from the company's executives gives assurance that the new lineup will include many top-notchers of the class of product produced by Big 4. This product is built for the popular-priced theatres.

REPORTS OF RESULTS AT THE BOX OFFICE

. . . AS TOLD BY . . .
EXHIBITORS THEMSELVES

FOX

Part Time Wife, Edmund Lowe, Lelia Hyams — Delightful. It's an answer to an exhibitor's prayer for general audience entertainment.—Ike Katz, Tivoli, Montgomery, Ala.

Big Trail, John Wayne — An excellent production. Pleased audience, registered well at box office. —R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmort, Kas.

Big Trail, John Wayne—Powerful, well produced epic—but failed to click because of unfortunate lack of stars in the cast.—Ike Katz, Tivoli, Montgomery, Ala.

Man Who Came Back, Farrell-Gaynor—Heavy and morbid tale but drew on strength of team—Ike Katz, Tivoli, Montgomery, Ala.

RADIO

Cimarron, Richard Dix — A picture of no regrets. Good photography, sound and story. Pleased our audience 100 per cent.—R. G. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

Silver Horde, Louis Wolheim and Evelyn Brent — Good program but not the special it was sold for.—R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

STATE RIGHTS

Ten Nights in a Barroom, William Farnum, Tom Santschi—Story well known as silent picture and stage play. With extra exploitation did big business. About 50 per cent above average.—Thos. J. Finin, Empress, Decatur, Ill.

Ten Nights in a Barroom—Farnum—Good small house or town attraction. Bill as a circus. Strand Theatre, Duluth, Minn.

UNITED ARTISTS

Raffles, Ronald Colman — Another delightful picture for general audience entertainment.—Ike Katz, Tivoli, Montgomery, Ala.

Evangeline, Dolores Del Rio—Although silent and belated showing, this picture drew strong with elderly people and school children.—Ike Katz, Tivoli, Montgomery, Ala.

Eyes of the World, John Holland —Very poor recording. Not much drawing power.—R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

Whoopee, Eddie Cantor—One of the best musical comedies I have run, if you have appendicitis don't see this one, it's made for laughing. —R. C. Gentry, Lyric Theatre, Baldwyn, Miss.

What a Widow, Gloria Swanson —What a Flop! Don't waste your money on this excuse for a story.—R. C. Gentry, Lyric Theatre, Baldwyn, Miss.

UNIVERSAL

Lady Surrenders, Genevieve Tobin.—Pleased the crowd. Capably handled. Hard to beat.—I. J. McIntyre, Gardens, Laconia, N. H.

Free Love, Genevieve Tobin. This one went over big. A peach of a show. Had poor print and audience knew it.—I. J. McIntyre, Gardens, Laconia, N. H.

Free Love, Genevieve Tobin and Conrad Nagel—It is my opinion that it takes more than a family row to make good entertainment. Not for small towns. Set it out.—R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

Boudoir Diplomat, Betty Compson Poor for small towns. Just another one of those sophisticated flops.—R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

Lady Surrenders, Conrad Nagel. —Universal pictures this year have been uniformly good and this one is no exception. Not a picture for children. Nothing in it to offend, but there is nothing of interest for children, as there is no action. Picture gets over with its dialogue and situations beyond small kid understanding.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

See America Thirst, Harry Langdon and Slim Summerville—A comedy that makes the shekels rattle in the box office and makes the walls rattle with laughter inside. Pleased them all—kids, grownups, and grandpas. Full of foolishness but that's what gets it over. Good crowd second night. Recording not so good on disc.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

Discontented Cowboys, Geo. Sidney, Charles Murray. A very good comedy. At least it got a few laughs.—R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

Night Work, Eddie Quillan — A very good picture; will please the majority of your patrons.—R. C. Gentry, Lyric Theatre, Badwyn, Miss.

WARNER BROS.

Office Wife, Dorothy Mackaill— A well produced, well enacted modern drama, spiced with keen subtle humor. Splendid adult entertainment.—Ike Katz, Montgomery, Ala.

Oh, Sailor Behave, Olsen & Johnson—Very good. At least it seemed to please the majority of patrons. R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

Doorway to Hell, Lew Ayres—A very clever portrayal of gangster life. May it be a pattern—R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

PRACTICAL IDEAS . . .

WHAT to do!
HOW to do it!
WHEN to do it!

. . . . BY
PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

Producer Points out Value of Shorts Exploitation

Can a short subject be exploited to good results. "Yes," is the answer given by Larry Darmour, producer of Mickey McGuire and other Radio comedies, "and with a series to results that reach further than the exploitation of a feature.

"The wide difference in exploiting the short as compared to the feature is that in the latter the ballyhoo is for the one time only, whereas with the short of a series you are building your patronage over a long period of time."

"I have a number of communications from exhibitors who have used solid exploitation on our Mickey McGuire comedies. The results in each case have been highly satisfactory. Particularly has it helped the exhibitor in building the kid matinee business. Wherever, for instance, a Mickey McGuire Club has been organized, the exhibitor assures us that the attendance of kids has increased each time one of the Mickey McGuire series was shown.

"There is such a thing, however, of hopping on at the right time. As in the case of the feature, one short may have better exploitation possibilities than another. Illustrating this point, let me again call your attention to the Mickey McGuire series. Our latest release is "Mickey's Crusaders," a comedy of Toonerville dealing with the circus. Here is a form of exploitation that always has brought good results. There is color and lots of it in circus exploitation—parades, stuffed animals in cages, clowns and plenty of noise. We learn that this year there hasn't been a circus picture produced for release during the present circus season. Here then is the opportunity to give full exploitation to a short subject with almost assured success.

Swimming Suit Display

M-G-M has a tie-up with the Catalina Swimming Suit manufacturers. Joan Crawford, Leila Hyams, Anita Page and others appear in full-length pictures in the dealer's book. Look up the Catalina dealer in your town for window displays.

Chickens Sell Short Subjects

LAUREL and Hardy's "Chickens Come Home to Roost" was exploited by Russell Brown, McDonald Theatre, Eugene, Ore. Twelve chickens were borrowed and a pair of red pants were made for each one. In each pocket was placed a pass to the theatre. News stories told of the idea in advance. The first to catch the chicken took the pass and released the fowl. Then the one who caught it and returned it to the theatre received a pass also. At high noon, the dozen birds were released. Imagin the excitement. The birds flew, ran and squawked. Crowds gathered to watch the fun. Multitudes joined in the chase. Nevertheless, after a couple of hours all the chickens were back in their crates unharmed.

Bring Tin Cans For Admittance

IN Olathe, Kansas, the Chamber of Commerce put on a spring clean-up campaign. The theatre offered free admittance to every child who brought three cans. The city had trucks backed up in front of the theatre. Kiddies threw cans into them and were then admitted. Every back yard and alley was soon devoid of cans.

Tabloid Newspaper On "Finger Points"

WITH all the earmarks of genuineness, profusely illustrated, and containing the story of the crime on which "The Finger Points" picture is based, a tabloid newspaper was distributed in Cleveland. This was used in connection with the pictures showing at the Lake, Uptown and Variety Theatres.

An army of leather-lunged newsboys put them into the hands of two hundred thousand Clevelanders on the eve of the picture's three first-run openings.

AD-it-orial

By William Jacobs

"HOT Days Are Coming!"
That's the signal for the preparation to overcome another three to four month seat selling obstacle.

The wise and energetic start early to sow selling seeds that grow into "bumper" seat crops.

Resorts don't wait until vacation times comes to sell their appeal. They start early.

Railroads start in the early spring to sell summer tours.

Start now to pound, sell and exploit the idea to the family, "Seek the theatre during the hot days for hours of cool, refreshing and joyous relaxation."

Be the first to make a bid for summer entertainment attendance. Beat the amusement parks to the appeal. Scoop the miniature golf lots. Plant the thought with strong emphasis on the manufactured comfortable temperatures maintained, combined with entertainment of invigorating and refreshing happiness.

"Cool Days Are Coming!" makes an appropriate title for the campaign.

Start now to sell the thought on your screen. Put it before them in the foyers and rest rooms. Build an inside lobby display. Mention it in the newspaper ads.

Build to its peak of importance just before the hot days come on.

Then pull down the scorching red colors from the inside and outside of the theatre. Put up the cooling blues and greens. Make a radical change for the cooler.

Decorate your newspaper ads with a background of ice and snow enhanced with figures of refreshing youth. Use similar ideas on posters. Greet them with exaggerated icicles from the canopy and box office.

Use every device to impress cooling comfort.

Start early to build, "Cool Days Are Coming!"

Prescription and Pill Humor 'Em

TO put Springfield, Ohio, seat fillers in good humor during the showing of Winnie Lightner and Joe E. Brown in "Sit Tight," Regent Theatre management distributed a doctor's prescription with a small dried pea accompanying it. It advised to take the pill in a tub of fervent water and then rush madly to the theatre, disregarding traffic signals, and meet Dr. Winnie and Jojo, the tiger. It was signed "Dr. Bunkem."

Big Co-operation On Fashion Show

THE Stanley Theatre, Utica, N. Y., put over a "fashion week" that had the cooperation of the merchants and the daily newspapers. Mannikins wearing the latest fashions were presented. The show was extensively advertised. The Daily Press issued a special Stanley Theatre fashion section of its Sunday edition. The merchants took considerable space, calling attention to the theatre exhibit in all the ads.

PICK OF THE PRESS SHEET

Stars Fingerprint Display

"SECRET SIX" has a mat that should make interesting herald. It contains fingerprints of players in picture. At bottom is pictures of them. Each fingerprint is numbered. Contestant is to designate to whom fingerprints belong. Passes are offered as prizes. This can be utilized for lobby display.

Fireman Hats For Kiddies

THE serial, "Heroes of the Flame" has an idea for pulling the kiddies. A fireman's hat with child's head size offered to the first 200 or 300 kids in line on opening morning should create a furore. The hats are made of heavy cardboard and printed in flaming red with black letters. There is ample room for imprinting theatre name and dates.

A Novel Throwaway

EXPRESSIONS on matrimony are reprinted in the "Too Young to Marry" press sheet. Make up folder with front cover reading, "What Wise Men Say About Marriage." At the bottom place, "Maybe you're too young to marry?" On back page use title, date and theatre. Distribute these to high schools, to shop girls leaving work at closing time at main exit door, beauty parlors, restaurants, etc.

Garden Contest For Mickey Mouse

TO plant a garden, either vegetable or floral, cultivate it well, water it, keep the weeds out, is a Mickey Mouse Club contest being used in Riverside, California, by the Riverside Theatre.

The local newspaper, a flower and seed store, two nurseries, and a hardware company are working with the theatre to encourage the interest of children in planting fine gardens.

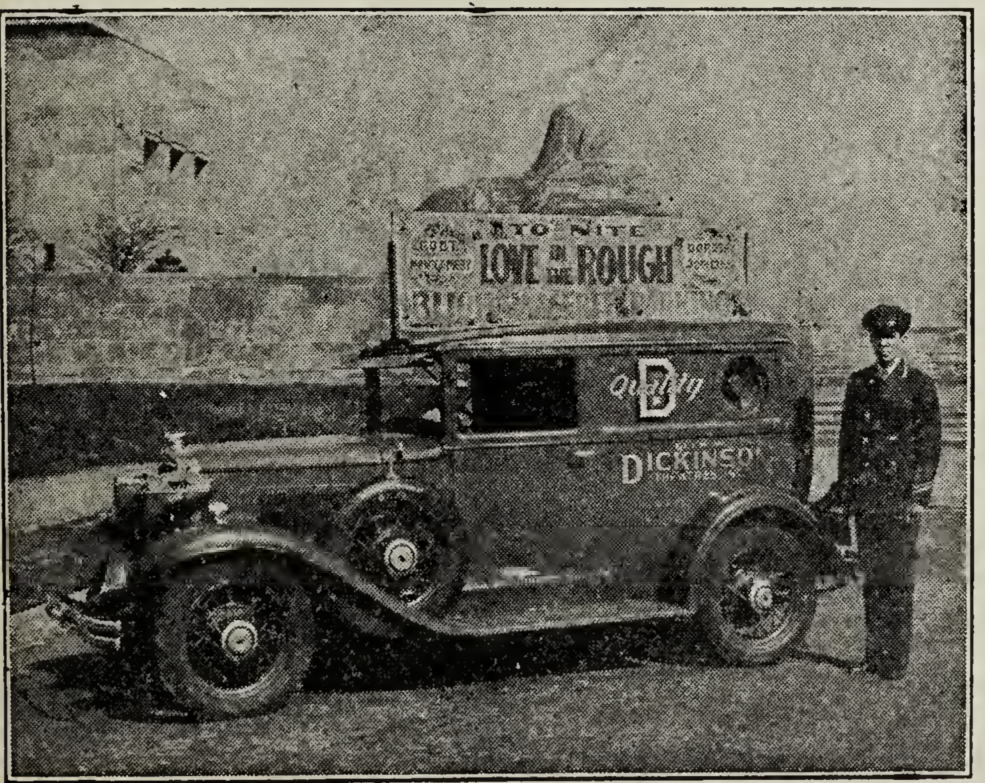
A full-page ad, paid for by merchants, announced the idea. The theatre offered free admission to youngsters to see the opening chapter of a new serial. To secure free tickets the kiddies called at one of the stores, purchased necessary supplies and the merchant okayed the coupon.

Prizes were offered for the biggest and best vegetables, largest and most beautiful gardens and various periods when the gardens come into bloom. Cash prizes totalling $300 were put up by the merchants.

Here's Enterprise For You!

WHEN F. T. Thomas, manager of the Fox Capitol Theatre in Hartford, Conn., learned that a local agent for the DeSoto car was to hold a 100-mile endurance drive to demonstrate one of its cars, he hustled out and got the dealer to have the drive start and finish in front of the theatre. The story was carried in all the automobile dealers' ads and broke the news columns for plenty of publicity.

DICKINSON'S "HOT-SHOT" CAR



The above photo shows the "hot-shot" advertising car used by the Glen W. Dickinson theatre circuit of Kansas City for publicizing its shows and circuit. The car is equipped with loud speakers that furnish music. On top there is a special carrier in which an advertising card is inserted for the currently playing attraction. This car is used by all the Dickinson houses where ballyhoo of this kind best fits in with other exploitation.

COPY!!

For that emergency use when words fail you and you want to get away from using "greatest," "best," "marvelous" and other over-used superlatives. Here is COPY that has been successfully used and which you can clip and paste for newspaper advertising.

Once in a while a picture comes along that completely "stumps" an exhibitor. They are so different that an exhibitor is puzzled as to the best method of exploiting them. Several such pictures appeared this year. Wild animal picture represent an interesting field for the motion picture, and should be exhibited widely for the future benefit and improvement of the industry along artistic lines. On subjects like this the advertising must be as unusual and different as the pictures themselves. Note the copy below.

GEE WHIZ! AREN'T YOU TIRED!

of the same old stuff? Wouldn't you like to see something different for a change? Here's a picture that will make you gasp with astonishment—it's as different from the average picture as the stage is different from the screen.

IF YOU'RE TIRED OF THE OLD STUFF

The melodrama, "the triangle," the insipid romance, come down to the ____________. We've got something that will hand you the surprise of your life.

WE SAID IT WOULD BE A SENSATON—AND IT IS!

We said it would surprise and startle (name of city). And it did! If you are interested in the movies, and in their progress, you should see it. It's as different from the average movie as the photoplay is different from the stage.

Next (   ) we show a picture that critics have hailed as a great advance in motion pictures.

Personally we make no comment on that question. But we do promise you that it is the most unusual picture ever flashed upon the screen.

It has one great feature that the public is looking for. It's different. You've never seen anything like it. It's an experiment and we offer it on that basis. Are you willing to take a chance?

WITHOUT HESITATION,

we pronounce this the equal of any production ever shown in this theatre, and we know that there are many of our patrons who will think it is the greatest screen drama ever made.

(Copy like this should be used only on rare occasions when you have the production to back it up.)

Did it Go Over?
Did it Flop?
Is it a Good Picture?

Join the ranks of the Better Pictures Club and send in your box office reports every week. Other exhibitors will want to know what to expect from pictures you have played and what they have yet to play.

FEATURES and SHORTS

The Millionaire

Warner Bros.—82 Minutes

Cast: George Arliss, Evalyn Knapp, David Manners, Florence Arliss, Noah Beery, J. Farrell MacDonald, Bramwell Fletcher, James Cagney, Tully Marshall, Ivan Simpson, J. C. Nugent, Sam Hardy. Directed by John Adolfi.

"Idle Hands" by Earl Derr Biggers has received excellent treatment in its transposition to the screen. Superb direction of that master dramatic character, George Arliss, and a perfect supporting cast has turned out a smart entertaining film with clever dialogue and rich humor.

Mr. Arliss portrays the successful business man who is ordered by his physician to retire if he desires to continue living. Against his wishes he does this and goes to a western health resort with his family, which consists of a wife and daughter. Inactivity and being fed on pills becomes very irksome to him and when he sees an opportunity to buy a half interest in a service station he does so, unbeknown to his family. The former owner puts over a fast one on him and another young man, who bought the other half interest, as the main highway was changed, making the station valueless. The younger man, whose entire fortune was invested, wished to go and fight it out with the former owner but the older man had ideas of his own which was to build on the main highway directly opposite the former owner's new station.

In the meantime the younger man and the daughter had become acquainted through her visit to the station for gas, each unaware of the connection of the other with the older man. After the new station is opened and he sees that he is going to make money enough to finish his course as an architect, he goes to ask the girl's father for her hand. She has already told her father of their love for each other and it meets his approval. His former business associates have had reverses and bring the doctor out to see if he has recovered sufficiently to return and take charge. He finds him much improved and takes the credit for pulling him through.

If this picture does not rate first among this year's productions it will surely be among the top numbers.—Southwell.

Shipmates

M-G-M—72 Minutes

Cast: Robert Montgomery, Ernest Torrence, Dorothy Jordan, Hobart Bosworth, Cliff Edwards, Gavin Gordon, Joan Marsh, Edward Nugent, E. Allyn Warren, George Irving, Hedda Hopper, William Worthington. Directed by Harry Pollard.

Montgomery's first stellar role in a story of the navy that, while not plausible, is highly entertaining. As a gob assigned to an oil barge he goes ashore and poses as a big oil man from South America. Runs into a party at which he falls for the girl who afterwards turns out to be the retiring admiral's daughter. Against his wishes he is assigned to the flag ship and reports for duty on the admiral's barge. The girl discovers his deception but still cares for him, but at her father's request refuses to speak. At gun practice he wins the admiration of his chief with whom he is always at loggerheads. He is recommended for appointment to Annapolis. Passes his examination but gets into a fight with a young lieutenant who has been going around with the girl. Knowing he has violated the code and is subject to arrest, he is planning to desert when he runs into the admiral who is on the wharf for a farewell look at his ships. The admiral demands an explanation but at this time an oil tanker blows up in the harbor in close proximity to an ammunition barge. The burning oil threatens the ammunition which, if blown up, would destroy every ship in the harbor. The gob and the admiral go out in a launch and open the sea cocks and flood the ammunition barge. In the attempt to leave the admiral is lost and the gob badly burned and comes to in the hospital bay where the young lieutenant tells him their fight is a purely personal matter. He goes to Annapolis and the fade out is with the girl who promises to wait the four years for his graduation.

Plenty of action in the shipboard scenes made through the cooperation of the navy and in the harbor fire sequence. Excellent supporting cast and smart, clean comedy should put this over big anywhere. Good exploitation angles will help you sell it.—Southwell.

Dirigible

Columbia—100 Minutes

Cast: Jack Holt, Ralph Graves, Fay Wray, Hobart Bosworth, Roscoe Karns, Harold Goodwin, Clarence Muse. Directed by Frank Capra.

Columbia comes forward with what looks like a box office smash and we say this after witnessing the opus cold in the preview room.

Jack Holt and Ralph Graves are together again, this time as two navy airmen making dashes to the South Pole. The story concerns a flight to the pole by Holt whose dirigible is wrecked in a storm before he reaches his goal. Graves, who is scheduled to make the flight with Holt, is taken off the crew just before the ship sails, his wife having begged of Holt to leave him behind. Holt's love for his pal's wife being greater than friendship for his pal he agrees.

While another ship is being built for Holt's trip, Graves goes southward on a sailing vessel, then pilots a plane in an attempt to reach the pole. In attempting to make a landing he is wrecked and marooned. Holt hears of the disaster via radio and sets sail in the newly finished dirigible to the rescue. Graves' wife is on the verge of divorcing him because of his love for air voyages being the greater. With the return of the party the greater love wins, however, with Holt getting the acclaim of the public and Graves the attention of his wife.

The direction is splendid. Some tense and thrilling moments and excellent photography. — Warren Stokes.

3 Girls Lost

FOX—72 Minutes

Cast: Loretta Young, John Wayne, Lew Cody, Joyce Compton, Joan Marsh, Katherine Clare Ward, Paul Fix. Directed by Sidney Lanfield.

Here is light flim fare that should please most any type audience. Romantic enough to satisfy without being too sophisticated and slopping over. Story concerns the adventures of three girls of distinctly different types who come from their respective homes to make good in Chicago.

Loretta Young as Noreen, who is reserved and sincere, acts as a mediator for Marcia (Joan Marsh) of the gold digger type and Edna (Joyce Compton), the romantic one who loves well but not wisely. Marcia becomes acquainted with John Wayne, a young architect, who introduces her to his employee, Lew Cody, a wealthy racketeer. House parties jazz it up a bit and an underworld killing adds a thrill, but the story is mostly romance which brings together the young architect and Noreen, the sincere one. A little comedy would have helped this one out but it is, however, good entertainment.—Southwell.

Ladies' Man

Paramount—75 Minutes

Cast: William Powell, Kay Francis, Carole Lombard, Gilbert Emery, Olive Tell, Martin Burton, John Holland, Frank Atkinson, Maude Turner Gordon. Directed by Lothar Mendes.

Sophisticated film adapted from Rupert Hughes' story of the same name with some changes that appear to be made for the better. Powell as the hero has hard work to make the audience sympathetic but by excellent ways wins you over. It is quite an unusual film and has an exciting and surprising ending. The acting is its strongest point and the entire cast was good, as they all had rather stiff tasks assigned them. Powell who toned down his role of a sort of super gigolo, Olive Tell as the foolish matron infatuated with him, Carole Lombard as the no less foolish daughter who wanted him for herself, and Gilbert Emery as the hapless husband who finally vindicates the family honor, each carrying out his or her part in a convincing manner. Kay Francis as the heroine gives her usual suave portrayal of the part assigned her.

Fine direction and photography with lavish settings play their part in making this film entertainment of the highest type.—Southwell.

The Big Bluff

Universal—20 Minutes

This could have been a good comedy but its slow motion makes it drag. It seems to have been directed indifferently and Sumverville is capable of better stuff. There is one sequence, in which a girl is hidden in the soldiers' quarters, which is risque and uncalled for. Story is about American soldiers in Russia. And that's about all.—A. F. S.

SHOW ESSENTIALS

THE business of serving motion picture entertainment to the consuming public seems to entail much more than just projecting a feature and several short subjects on a screen, even though the picture be of the very best quality. There are a number of important considerations, not the least of which is the patron's comfort, a matter which seems to have been grossly overlooked by many exhibitors. Negligence in the case of projection equipment also has done its share in the lowering of box office receipts for which exhibitors, guilty of such carelessness, have placed the blame elsewhere. We have just completed a 1,500-mile motor trip and were amazed at the lack of progressiveness shown in many theatres in communities that would rally to the support of these theatres, now failing, were they made more inviting.

Perhaps there is an object lesson in the answer to a query on the subject, received from Gordon S. White, director of advertising for Educational Film Exchanges, who cites a specific example that undoubtedly fits many situations. Following is Mr. White's letter:

"I live in a suburban town which, although decidedly progressive in every way, is unfortunate in having only one picture theatre, and this is one that might have gotten by fifteen years ago but suffers sadly by comparison with the modern up-to-date theatre. The lighting is poor; it is cold and unattractive; even the odors are offensive. The projection is terrible; the sound reproduction is worse—in fact, it is the poorest I have heard in any theatre, and this in a high class suburban community of almost 20,000 people. Is it any wonder that it takes one of the year's "Ten Greatest Pictures" to bring out a crowd?

"If I were not in the picture business and did not consider it necessary to see certain pictures at this theatre to avoid inconvenience in hunting them up elsewhere, I probably would never attend it. As a matter of fact, recently I have formed the habit of watching the announcements of a subsequent run theatre in a town five miles away and catching the pictures there instead, driving the ten miles gladly in order to find some personal enjoyment in attending the very much better theatre I find in the neaby town. I have recently discovered that a number of other people in my town do the same thing.

"Even with pictures they are very anxious to see they prefer to wait until the picture reaches the subsequent run house in the other community and drive there because at that theatre they find comfort, beauty, decent projection, acceptable sound reproduction and an opportunity to enjoy themselves. The amusing part of this is in the fact that the town I live in is a larger and better town and that the smaller community to which we go to see the movies has nothing else in it to attract us there. It is out of our usual lines of travel and we would almost never go there at all except for this theatre. I really do not know how to draw a more positive picture of the effect of decent surroundings than this one from my own personal experience."

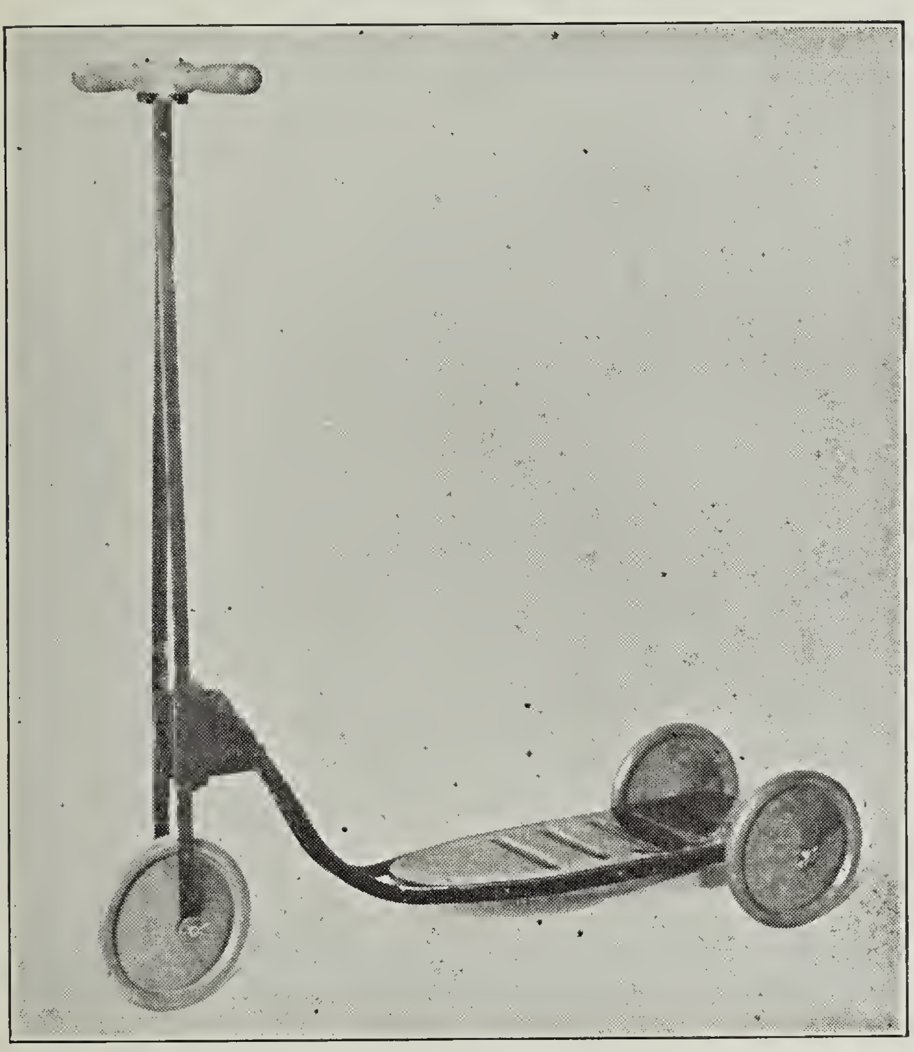
Scooter-Nite



Wins Kids on Sight!

Full Description of $3 Retail Value 3-Wheel Safety Scooter

Of very newest speed design, built of first quality steel to hold any weight up to 200 lbs. Beautifully finished in red and green enamels. Has large reinforced natural wood handle-bar, balanced hinge for easy turning; 5-inch double disc steel wheels. Platform of one-piece heavy-pressed steel.

EACH boy and girl in your drawing radius will bring you 24 paid adult admissions in exchange for on of these 3-Wheel Safety Scooters.

In the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN you get these identical scooters to offer every kid in your drawing radius—and you get them at factory price of $1.12 each. This offer is open to all chain and independent theatres in the U. S. We do not sell these Scooters to retail trade, but only through our premium plans. The SCOOTER-NITE PLAN will only cost you a fraction of what you can and often do spend on exploitation stunts that have nothing like the possibilities of permanently built up business, which the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN provides. You make friends with SCOOTER-NITE.

Most exhibitors work "SCOOTER-NITE" two or more days a week. For example, if the exhibitor finds Mondays and Thursdays are his dull nights, he works SCOOTER-NITE for those days; or if he should run the same picture two days in succession, he makes Mondays and Tuesdays, or Thursdays and Fridays, his SCOOTER-NITE. The quicker he gives away these Free Scooters the more advertising he gets through the children using them and showing them to their friends, relatives and neighbors. As long as the Scooters last—and they are of steel construction so will last indefinitely—you will be getting advertising value from them; children are proud to mention that they EARNED the Scooter at your theatre.

Children won't let their parents, relatives or friends alone until they have helped fill the Record Card. The Record Card is a card bearing the name of your theatre and with twenty-four printed squares on one side, in which your cashier or doorman stamps—with rubber stamp which we furnish—a square for each adult admission brought by the child. For example, if the child brought in four adults, the child would get four of the squares stamped.

When all twenty-four of the squares are filled the child turns in his Record Card and receives one of the 3-Wheel Safety Scooters. No strings—no contest. Every child has equal opportunity. You run no risk of disappointing anyone. You issue Scooters only for completely filled cards.

Costs You Less Than 4 2-3 Cents Per Admission

To illustrate: The Scooters cost the exhibitor $1.12 each. There are 24 stamps on Record Card. 4 2/3c times 24 equals $1.12. Therefore cost to exhibitor is 4 2/3c per admission.

How to Order for Scooter-Nite Plan

Required starting order is 24 Scooters. You can best estimate the number you may require, but your first order must be at least for 24. Four Cards are furnished free, imprinted with your theatre name, for each Scooter ordered; thus on minimum order you would receive free 96 Record Cards. Heralds imprinted with theatre name, are furnished for $3.00 per thousand. A 120-ft. Trailer is loaned for two weeks only, and a deposit of $3.60 is required if Trailer is desired. This deposit is returned to theatre on return of Trailer.

YOUR THEATRE

Has A PERSONALITY!

WHAT sort of "personality" has your theatre registered for itself with the public? Personality in a theatre exists and is a box office asset, making people choose to attend your theatre in preference to some other offering similarly good attractions, just in proportion to the quality of your projection, and the appointments of your auditorium making for comfort and enjoyment of your patrons.

Making investments in theatre equipment for the comfort and pleasure of your patrons is the soundest kind of "business insurance." Little things that might not seem noticeable, such as slightly worn rugs or carpets, an occasional neglect of keeping the lobby spic and span and up-to-the-minute, may make many a patron feel that this theatre cannot possibly be giving the best entertainment value in town.

YOUR nearest Affiliated Theatre Supply Dealer store has in stock every item you need to keep the "personality" of your theatre at its best. When you visit your dealer take time to look around. You'll find many suggestions for the aid of your box office. Investing in the attractiveness of your theatre will help your screen attractions go over to bigger, steadier business.

Testing Admission Cuts

In Minneapolis Loop Houses Where Publix is Giving Plan a Trial; Grosses Good.

Increased patronage was reported at Minneapolis loop theatres where lowered admission prices went into effect last week. The houses, however, had exceptionally strong attractions and the larger crowds might have been due to the strength of the screen offerings, rather than the cuts in scale, it is conceded.

Managers of the houses in question state that they want to wait another week or two to observe results before forming a definite conclusion as to whether the price reductions are a helpful influence.

All three theatres—the State, Lyric and Aster—are operated by Publix. The State now rates next to the Minnesota as the leading Publix loop house. The Lric follows after the State, while the Aster is at the foot of the first-run list.

It is significant that the Grand, a Publix loop theatre, playing second runs, which did not lower its scale, had a very big week. Here again, however, the strength of its attraction, "A Connecticut Yankee," was undoubtedly the principal factor in the heavy trade. Charging 10c higher prices than the first-run Aster, next door, the Grand enjoyed a splendid gross. There is no plan at this time to lower the prices at the Grand where 35c is charged at night.

In the face of the price cuts all around it, the RKO Orpheum, refusing to lower its scale, had one of the biggest weeks of the season. But in view of the fact that the house was offering Olsen and Johnson in person, outstanding box-office attractions here, this was not significant. However, the RKO Orpheum scale has been exceptionally low for more than a year, considering the quality and quantity of entertainment presented, so that undoubtedly there

Neighborhood Supper Hour Shows

Successful in Allied Theatres at 10c Admission Prices; Plan is Boosting Business.

Allied theatres in Minneapolis have hit upon a new and highly effective scheme to boost their grosses. It is a special 10-cent admission scale between 6 and 7 p. m. nightly at houses where the regular night price is 20c or 25c.

One Minneapolis neighborhood house, the Princess, has increased its takings an average of $300 a week by the scheme. Clyde Hitchcock, manager of the theatre, states that the special inducement for early attendance has been a remarkable revenue producer.

A survey of Allied theatres using the scheme reveals that the pre-war price for the supper hour is bringing into the houses many

Last of Silents

Passes in Minneapolis With the Closing of the Unique; Stores to Occupy Site.

Taps are being sounded for the last of the loop silent theatres and one of the oldest and most successful Minneapolis showhouses, the Unique.

This oldtimer is being permanently closed by Publix and will be turned into store space.

Publix has been operating it as a grind silent theatre at a 15c admission scale. Inability to obtain sufficient silent product to satisfy its needs is given as the reason of abandonment of the theatre. The company does not deem it advisable to install sound

5 FIRST RUNS

Closed Theatres Represent 4,000 Seats

The number of loop first-run theatres in operation in Minneapolis at the present time is the smallest for any corresponding period in many years. There are but five in all—the Minnesota RKO Orpheum, State, Lyric and Aster.

If overseating has been an adverse factor in the loop business situation, it surely has been eliminated, or, at least, greatly reduced in scope, by the closing of the Century, the RKO Seventh Street and Pantages.

The houses now closed have a total seating capacity of nearly 4000. Taking these seats "out of circulation," as it were, brings the total loop seating capacity of the first-run movie houses down to approximately 12,000, which surely should not be excessive for a city of 500,000 population, it is pointed out.

Pantages has been closed most of the season. It seats about 1,500. The Century, which closed several weeks ago, seats 1,600. The RKO Seventh Street, which went dark week before last, has a 1,400 seating capacity. The Century and Seventh Street are announced as closed for the summer. There are no plans for the reopening of Pantages.

Price Cutting

By M. E. CUFFEL, Editor

PRICE CUTTING now is general not only in the Twin Cities, but over the entire territory.

Reports received by MOVIE AGE indicate a feeling on exhibitors' part that lower admissions are essential in order to revive declining business.

While the writer believes that theatre admission prices undoubtedly should follow the trend of prices generally and while he recognizes that this trend is now downward, he, at the same time, feels that this practice is not one to be entered into lightly.

Before finally deciding upon a step of this character, we think that the exhibitor well might analyze with great care to determine if his theatre can operate profitably under lower prices. Perhaps, his prices now are at rock bottom from the standpoint of cost of doing business. Even in relation to the drastically deflated commodity prices

Olsen and Johnson Big Draw Here; Others OK

Minneapolis (week ending May 8)—The RKO Orpheum, with Olsen & Johnson in person on the stage in a big new act and with "Bad Sister" on the screen, carried off attendance honors here last week. The theatre was packed to capacity at every performance. In its second loop engagement, following a $1.50 roadshowing at the Century, "Trader Horn" also drew very well at the State. "Three Girls Lost," at the Aster, was another good drawing card. "City Streets," the Minnesota offering, did not prove an outstanding magnet, the public evidently being fed up on gangster dramas.

Aster—Three Girls Lost (Fox), Loretta Young and John Wayne. Business: Good. Summary: The adventures and romance of a trio of young and pretty small-town girls in the wicked city of Chicago. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Carton Comedy; Serial.

Lyric — Charlie Chan Carries On (Fox), Warner Oland. Business: Good. Summary: Thrilling murder mystery yarn. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Comedy; Screen Vaudeville.

Minnesota—City Streets (Paramount), Gary Cooper. Business: Fair. Summary: Another gangster drama with thrills and romance, but built pretty much along conventional lines. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage Show; Sound News.

RKO Orpheum — Bad Sister (Universal), Conrad Nagel. Business: Very big. Summary: The story of how a selfish girl is brought to her senses; small-town family life well depicted. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville; Sound News; Golf Reel.

State — Trader Horn (Metro Goldwyn), George Carey. Business: Good. Summary: Greatest of all jungle films with thrills galore. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News; Cartoon Comedy.

Comedians Score

RKO prospered in Minneapolis and St. Paul last week. Olsen and Johnson in person turned the trick at the Minneapolis Orpheum, attracting holdout crowds at every performance. The Constance Bennett picture, "Born to Love," was the big drawing card at the St. Paul Palace Orpheum.

Cooperation

With Bert Lytell scheduled to appear in person as a guest star with the Bainbridge Dramatic Stock Company at the Shubert Theatre, Minneapolis, next week, Tom Burke, Tiffany exchange manager, put over a deal for the simultaneous first-run Minneapolis showing of his latest starring picture, "The Single Sin," at one of the Publix loop houses. Both the flesh-and-blood speaking drama theatre and movie house are expected to benefit from the unusual situation.

RADIO CONTEST

Publix to Test Public's Film Reaction

Publix in Minneapolis has inaugurated a four-weeks' radio contest which is being plugged during the Minnesota Theatre's broadcast over WCCO. Cash prizes of $25 are being awarded each week to the person sending in the best letter giving comments and opinions covering a picture witnessed during the particular week at any Publix local house.

The contest's purpose is to determine how far and completely the Minnesota broadcast covers the Northwest division, to obtain the actual public reaction to pictures of all kinds, to discover evidence of any change in public taste and to induce listeners-in to attend Publix theatres so that they may qualify for the cash prizes.

New Ad Man

Richard B. Gilbert of New York has succeeded J. C. Keefe as divisional director of advertising and publicity for RKO in Minneapolis. Mr. Keefe, who came to Minneapolis from the Fox offices in Milwaukee, resigned. Mr. Gilbert formerly was with a theatrical trade publication in New York City.

Price Cutting

and lower wages and salaries, his admission scale may not be too high, despite the fact that it has not been lowered during the past year.

The exhibitor must calculate how much of an increased patronage it will be possible to attract, under the most favorable circumstances, by the reduced prices, with the larger attendance necessary to offset the smaller revenue per patron. He also should take into consideration his ability or inability to reduce his costs in proportion to his cut in prices.

It may be that he feels that, under such trying conditions and times as the present, he should be content with smaller profits. But let him be sure that there can be profits or avoidance of the "red" under reduced prices.

The exhibitor should know definitely whether or not his prices are keeping away many prospective patrons in his community and he should endeavor to gauge the number of such persons. In the vast majority of cases, he will find, of course, that if he has a strong enough attraction—a picture that the public actually wants—his present prices are no deterrents. In most instances, the weakness of his product probably is the principal reason for empty seats.

Whether reduction of prices should be uniform is another matter for the exhibitor to consider seriously. A question that merits thorough consideration is whether Saturday and Sunday prices should be any higher than those prevailing on week days.

AD FILMS DEPT.

Paramount Transfers its Sales Policy

Handling of Paramount advertising films has been transferred from the salesmen to the advertising sales' department. L. M. Palmquist is in charge of the advertising sales' department.

Advertising film distribution affects but few exhibitors in the Northwest as there are only a comparatively small number of houses, aside from those operated by Publix, which are qualified to use the pictures. In order to qualify, theatres must be able to show an average attendance of 1,000 for every program prior to change. Theatres using the advertising films are paid by Paramount according to attendance.

There will be 52 of the advertising pictures released during the year at the rate of one a week. Such talent as Will Rogers will be utilized in the films. Entertainment value will be stressed in the pictures, the advertising being only incidental.

BERG WITH RKO

Former Tiffany Salesman Joins Frisch

A. W. Berg, formerly with Tiffany, has joined RKO under Mike Frisch, exchange manager, and will be the company's North Dakota salesman. Mr. Berg became affiliated with RKO just prior to the California sales' convention and, as a result, was taken along with the local party on the trip west.

Paul Perrizo, whom Mr. Berg replaces in North Dakota, resigned on account of ill health. Mr. Perrizo is a veretan film salesman.

Grace Menken Here

Grace Menken, well-known actress and wife of Bert Lytell, noted movie star, is the guest luminary with the Bainbridge Dramatic Stock Company at the Shubert Theatre in Minneapolis this week, appearing in "Petticoat Influence," Broadway and Chicago comedy hit.

Miss Menken will be joined at the Shubert next week by her husband, Mr. Lytell, and the pair will be seen in "Death Takes a Holiday."

Buy Cohen Story

Hollywood—"The Iron Chalice," one of the best Octavus Roy Cohen's serious novels, has been chosen as Bill Boyd's first starring feature on the new RKO-Pathe production program. It will be placed in early production.

equipment and run it as a talkie house.

The boast has been made that the Unique is one Minneapolis theatre that never has had a losing week. This may be an exaggeration, but the fact is known that, over a period of years, it has been a consistent winner.

During various periods of its career, the Unique has housed vaudeville, dramatic stock and vaudeville. It was the first popular priced vaudeville house in Minneapolis. Its seating capacity is approximately 700.

FOX SALES CHANGES

Eckhardt and Roth to O. M. Posts

Changes in the personnel of the Fox Film Corporation sales forces resulting from the promotion of Clyde W. Eckhardt and Mox Roth to district managerships, have been made, according to announcement by James R. Grainger, vice-president in charge of distribution.

Mr. Eckhardt is now supervising the Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and St. Louis territories. His place as Chicago exchange manager is taken by M. A. Levy, who has been in charge of the Minneapolis exchange. J. H. Lorentz, a Minneapolis salesman, is now exchange manager there.

Mr. Roth, exchange manager at Cincinnati, will assume position after June 1 as district manager of Kansas City, Omaha, Des Moines, Oklahoma City and Memphis, with headquarters at Kansas City. His place at Cincinnati will be taken by W. C. Gehring, who was formerly connected with the corporation.

The Minnesota Theatre, Minneapolis, took advantage of the appearance of George Prize and his "Punch and Judy" show with the Publix unit by taking Prize and his dolls to the Michael Dowling school for crippled children for a performance. The Star, local daily, used a photograph taken at the school and ran a story giving all the details.

Fay Wray Loaned

Hollywood—Fay Wray will have the ingenue lead opposite Ronald Colman in Samuel Goldwyn's production of "The Unholy Garden." She has been borrowed from Paramount for the picture. She has recently been seen in "Dirigible" and "The Finger Points."

HONOR BIRNBACH

Banquet Given for Musicians' Former Secretary

Minneapolis film circles were well represented at a farewell banquet tendered to Fred W. Birnbach, who resigned as secretary of the Minneapolis Musicians' Association to become executive assistant to Joseph N. Weber, president of the American Federation of Musicians, in New York. He has been secretary of the Minneapolis association for nearly 14 years and is highly regarded in local theatrical circles.

Among the speakers at the farewell banquet were W. H. Workman, president of the Minneapolis Film Board of Trade, and Eddie Ruben, Publix divisional director. Lou Breese, orchestra conductor and master of ceremonies at the Minnesota Theatre; Clem Borland, singer from the same house, and acts from the RKO Orpheum Theatre were among the entertainment features at the dinner.

L. A. Brewer was named as temporary successor to Mr. Birnbach.

Testing Cuts

is no need for any reduction here. In fact, the house could not afford to charge less than it is doing.

The Minnesota, ace Publix house, seating 4,200, where the highest admissions in town prevail—75c at night—had a comparatively poor week, but this, it was felt, was due to its lack of any outstanding attractions on screen or stage. When this theatre has strong shows it experiences no difficulty in drawing profitable patronage at its present prices. Its cost of operation is so large that it is doubtful if any lowering of scale can be effected.

The State, which dropped from 60c to 50c at night, had "Trader Horn" last week, the first of the lower prices, and its gross was the largest in a number of months. The Aster, with "Three Girls Lost," also reported exceptionally fine business, while the Lyric, with "Charlie Chan Carries On," did well, too. All three of the aforementioned pictures, however, are unusually good drawing cards everywhere.

Taking a leaf from the movie's book, "Three Little Girls," big musical show at the Minneapolis Metropolitan Theatre this week, engaged in a big advance radio advertising campaign. The show was plugged hard over the ether for several weeks ahead and listeners-in were requested to forward the names of triplets who are to receive free tickets for the show.

FRISCH HAPPY

RKO Manager Forecasts Bright Season

Back from California sales' convention, Mike Frisch, Minneapolis RKO exchange manager, is confident that RKO is set for a sensational banner year which will place it at the top of the list of producing firms. After previewing a part of next year's product, Mr. Frisch brims all over with enthusiasm.

What's more, declares Mr. Frisch, RKO still has some great releases left on the current season's program. Among these is "Donavan's Kid," starring Richard Dix in a character role similar to the kind he played in "Cimarron" and Jackie Cooper who played the title part in "Skippy." This picture is destined to be a box-office knockout in the territory, according to Mr. Frisch.

Among next season's product viewed by Mr. Frisch at the convention were five two-reel comedies which, he declares, outdo everything ever before witnessed by him in fun-making quality and the stars of which include Chic Sales, Roscoe Ates and Mickey McGuire; "Traveling Husbands," "The Woman Between," "Too Many Cooks" with Bert Wheeler, "Everything's Rosy" with Robert Woolsey and "High Stakes" with Lowell Sherman and Mae Murray. Each of the features is surefire box-office, Mr. Frisch avers.

PAT IN PERSON

O'Brien in Homecoming in Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis.—Two personal appearances were made by Pat O'Brien at L. K. Brin's Garden Theatre here during the opening week of "The Front Page." Pat appeared on a Friday evening, the opening night of the show, and again on a Tuesday night, which was designated as Marquette Night. O'Brien is a graduate of Marquette University of this city and his parents reside here.

As a result of his personal appearance and visit with his parents here, the picture received a great deal of newspaper publicity. In addition the theatre featured in its lobby, a display showing how the front page is made up from the time the copy is written until the pages leave the presses.

The display was coöperated in by the Wisconsin News, local daily. The picture enjoyed a splendid run in Milwaukee and enjoyed a business at the Garden in excess of any picture shown at the theatre for many weeks past.

Supper Hour Shows

entire families which cannot afford the regular admission scale and which, otherwise, would not attend the theatre. Whereas, the supper hour formerly had found the houses practically empty, it now finds them, as a rule, filled to capacity.

Managers point out that, especially where there is a good-sized seating capacity, it is better to fill their theatres to capacity at 10c than to play to less than half-filled houses at 25c. Furthermore, the attendance after 7 p. m., when the higher price obtains, has not been affected as adversely, in most instances, as one might is pointed out, is because the 10c is poined out, is because the 10c admission has created many new customers and brings in a large number of people who had not been in the habit of attending the theatre.

BIG OPENING

Hollywood Atmosphere at Milwaukee Premiere

Milwaukee, Wis.—A Hollywood atmosphere prevailed at the opening of Warner Bros.' new $2,500,000 Warner Theatre here May 1. Bebe Daniels attended the performance to extend her congratulations, while Mayor Daniel W. Hoan made the dedicatory address.

The photoplay "Sit Tight" with Joe E. Brown and Winnie Lightner opened the new house. A newsreel of Phil LaFollette conveyed the governor's message to the audience, while Steve Beauclair presided at the Kimball organ.

The theatre is of a combination French renaissance and modernistic design. Forty original oil paintings are included in the theatre, which has a seating capacity of 2,500. The house will adhere to a straight photoplay policy with prices ranging from 25 to 60 cents. Harold Janecky, formerly manager of the circuit's Kenosha Theatre, is manager of the new house.

A feature of the new theatre's service is a staff of uniformed chauffeurs to park the patrons' cars. The theatre occupies the site formerly occupied by the Butterfly Theatre.

Kill Tax Bill

Madison, Wis.—A bill to place a 4 per cent tax on the gross receipts of all theatres in the state was defeated in the assembly May 1 by a vote of 72 to 3. No appearances were made for the bill and a large delegation of exhibitors opposed the measure.

Brookhart Bill Passage

Sought by Allied States Assn. Through State Units; Lining Up Petitions for Adoption.

New York—According to current reports, Allied States Association is preparing a new campaign designed for the purpose of bringing about the passage of the Brookhart bill. This bill is scheduled to be introduced again when Congress re-convenes in December.

It is understood that Allied officials are getting in contact with state units throughout the country, asking them to line up petitions calling for adoption of the measure, which, among other things, would outlaw block booking.

'U' THEATRE CHAIN TO EXPAND

Under the Direction of Sol Lesser, According to Reports; 40 Houses Now in Chain.

New York—Universal is understood to be planning a theatre expansion move under the direction of Sol Lesser, who recently became an executive associate of Carl Laemmle. Under Lesser's guidance all Universal's theatre interests will be consolidated and uniform operation established. Closer cooperation between the theatre department and the distribution branches of Universal will be inaugurated.

There are approximately 40 theatres in the Universal group at present. The eighteen theatres comprising the Principal Theatres Corp., on the West Coast, of which Sol Lesser is president, do not figure in the deal.

Play Up Screen Stories

Rather Than Stars Is Universal's Policy for 1931-32 Season; Will Push Own Stars.

New York — Universal's policy for the new season will be the concentration on stories rather than on stars, according to Phil Reisman in an address bfore salesmen attending the New York convention last week.

This policy is a departure from the policies being followed by other companies. Reason given for this plan is the belief that stars can be borrowed to fit the stories, although Universal will push its own stars.

COLUMBIA ADDS 6

Program to Include 26 Features

New York—Columbia will make 26 features for the 1931-32 season instead of 20 as originally announced. Columbia officials have been preparing the production schedule in New York.

AD MAT CHANGE

United Theatre Advertisers Is New Name

New York—United Theatre Advertisers, Inc., is the new name of Theatre Ad Mat Service which now is headed by Walter J. Stein, formerly of Balaban & Katz. Sidney Davidson, formerly Universal exploitation director and more recently with Warner Bros. advertising department, is director of advertising. Terry Turner remains as director of exploitation and Irving Frankel continues as director of service and production.

The organization has moved into larger offices at 580 Eighth Ave. Under a change in policy proof sheets of ad mats will be supplemented by the addition of specially written advertising copy and punch lines. Ad mats will be released on all features of the major companies as well as a special monthly service of general seasonal and institutional mats. The concern's studio personnel has been augmented by a staff of 15 artists and another studio, to concern itself with creation of first run campaigns, it is planned.

Retains Name

Hollywood — Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Kenyon Nicholson's play, "Torch Song," will retain the title of the original drama in its screen transcription, instead of being known as "Complete Surrender." Harry Beaumont is the director of "Torch Song," which is a Joan Crawford starring film. The cast includes Neil Hamilton, Marjorie Rambeau, Clark Gable, Roscoe Karns and George Marion.

Screen Ads Still on Trial Declare Agents

Washington, D. C.—With comments pro and con on the subject of screen advertising, the American Association of Advertising Agents in convention here last week took little action on the matter. According to the agents the screen ad situation is still in a stage of experimentation and the discussions of the subject were held in secret. The committee, appointed to consider the innovation, made the following report:

"It is easy to get pictures made, but adequate distribution is neither simple nor certain. Your committee can perhaps be of no greater service to you at this stage than by emphasizing the highly experimental character of the medium at present. There is ground for belief that, properly handled, it can prove a highly profitable medium for advertiser and agent alike.

"There has been some loose talk lately in opposition to screen advertising. Most of it emanates from competitive interests in the motion picture business, but, curiously enough, few complaints have come from the real judges—the public. Certain of the entertainment films, sponsored by advertisers, have already so established themselves in public favor that the first title of a new subject is applauded when shown.

Films Must Be Interesting

"Sponsored films, designed for showing to the general public, should be sufficiently entertaining to deserve a place on the programs of first run theatres."

The tie-up of Carl Laemmle with Allied States has brought out the following statement on sponsored reels by the Allied organization:

"Carl Laemmle has warned producers and exhibitors alike that overdoing screen advertising will be bad for business. His readiness to enter into an arrangement with Allied States is all the more significant, therefore, since it shows that he considers Allied States on the right track in the present situation, not only in reducing advertising to a minimum but in making it possible for the exhibitor to gain as well as the producer."

Bizzelle Moves Up

New York—John R. Bizzelle has been appointed general sales manager of Pacent Electric Co. and Pacent Reproducer Corp. Bizzelle formerly was assistant sales manager.

NEW PORTABLE

RCA Recording Device Weighs 400 Pounds

New York — RCA Photophone engineers, in collaboration with the engineers of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company and the General Electric Company, have produced a new portable sound recording equipment for use in connection with the Mitchell camera that is claimed to be the most efficient apparatus of its kind that has been introduced in the field of outdoor recording activities.

For newsreel and "location" work, it is said to meet demands that have heretofore been impossible and in connection with the recording of industrial and commercial pictures and the chronicling of expeditions upon land and sea and in the air, the apparatus appears to fill a long-felt want.

Including cables, cases and all accessories, the entire equipment weighs less than 400 pounds and can be easily transported in the rear compartment of a small automobile. The operating equipment necessary for "location" work weighs about 245 pounds.

Paper Co-operates On 'The Front Page'

"THE Front Page" was put over with a bang by Manager Harry Gammett, of the Globe Theatre, when it played in Bethlehem, Pa., recently.

The Bethlehem Globe-Times co-operated to the extent of publishing "Front Page News" and "Front Page Bargains" in their advertising section in tying up local products. Across the front page of the Globe-Times, in huge red letters, appeared "'The Front Page', at the Globe Theatre, starts Tomorrow." Fourteen 24-sheet stands, one hundred 1-sheets, street car advertising, and a three-day calliope parade through the streets, were all employed in advertising the picture.

Five thousand copies of the "red letter" edition announcing the arrival of the picture were distributed through rural towns adjacent to Bethlehem. Twenty tire covers carried the news around the city.

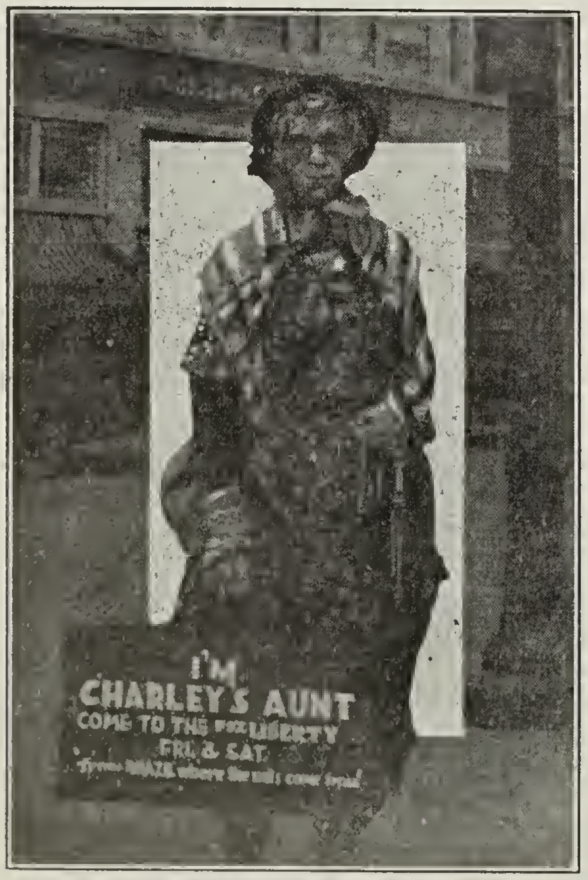
Smaller towns have put over similar campaigns on this picture at a small cost.

$5 Campaigns

SEVERAL weeks ago it was announced in this department that a page would be devoted to successful exploitation stunts put over at a cost of $5 or less. Since publishing this announcement we have received a number of encouraging letters from exhibitors, complimenting the idea.

Big circuits can afford expensive campaigns, but the average independent exhibitor's budget for exploitation is limited. If a showman in another part of the country put over a campaign on—for example — "Scandal Sheet," at a cost of $3 and brought in one of his biggest grosses, you'd like to know how he did it, especially if you had that picture booked. And perhaps you put on a wow of a campaign on "Charlie's Aunt" for less than $5. Some other exhibitor would want to know how you did it.

Why not exchange ideas?



Extra business came to the Fox Liberty Theatre, Astoria, Oregon, on Columbia's "Charley's Aunt" as a result of a fine ballyhoo. Edgar Hart, the theatre's manager, dressed up his doorman as "Charley"'s Aunt" and had him parade the streets of the city.

Capitalize on Vacation

By William Jacobs

SCHOOL bells soon will be silent.

Its stillness permits the kiddies and students to stay up later every night. And an opportunity for them to nag mother to take them to a matinee.

During their months of vacation their only thought will be to seek various forms of entertainment.

Have you made plans to capitalize on this thought? Have you given consideration to the ideas that can be put over economically to draw the youth to your theatre?

The book of exploitation is stuffed full of inexpensive stunts.

Think of youth's psychology.

Create stunts that will attract youth. Something that will cause them to talk.

Offer inducements that pep them up to point of their dragging parents out of the fireside easy chair to the theatre. Ideas which cut short the evening drive in the family car.

Display in your lobby stills and posters of your short subjects. Play up the cartoon comedies. Book them heavily during vacation days. Feature them.

Use advance screen announcements on short subjects.

Devote at least forty per cent of your newspaper space to short subjects and cartoon comedies. Don't merely mention the titles and stars. Use saes copy! Most short subject producers provide cuts. Put enthusiasm behind them.

Also play up the children's admission price.

Capitalize on youth during their leisure entertainment seeking vacation days.

They'll help fill those extra seats!

Two Ideas on "Tabu"

TRACING a path with pen or pencil such as will permit Matahi to reach imploring Reri without crossing any of the lines is shown with mat furnished for "Tabu." This cut lends itself to a herald or newspaper contest. A lobby display of praise by N. Y. critics is good idea offered by the press sheet. Basing the whole campaign on reviews will create the entertainment importance this type of picture needs.

Flying Lessons

W. O. JAMES, manager of the Oriental Theatre, Milwaukee, has effected a tie-up with the Curtiss-Wright company which permits patrons of the theatre to avail themselves of a complete ground course in aviation. The course will take about three months to complete, and classes will be held at the Curtiss-Wright headquarters. A diploma will be given to those students who meet the requirements of the school and a credit of $50 allowed on the cost of any additional flying courses.

Ten Nights in a Bar Room—Wm. Farnum—This picture went over well, playing to big crowds. Pleased audience immensely. This is just the kind of a picture that our audience thoroughly enjoys from start to finish.—Palace, Danville, Ill.

WARNER BROS.

Illicit, Barbara Stanwyck — For some reason this failed to click. But it's very good of its kind.—Ritz, Cordell, Okla.

UNIVERSAL

Little Accident, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—This picture went over better than it deserved. Situations are funny but the acting was below par for Universal. However, it got by nicely in spite of being a little boresome in spots.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

East is West, Lupe Velez — A dandy production that pleased them all. Good story, good acting, good recording and it ended well. An American boy rescues a Chinese girl from slavery and they fall in love regardless of racial differences. When it ends that the girl is white and she tells him, "Now, our children won't be born with pigtails," they all go out laughing.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

Young Desire, Mary Nolan—A production that I played pretty old. A good picture with a punk ending, though ending is logical. The crowd will like the circus setting, and comedy is worked in nicely. Recording good on disc.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

Indians Are Coming, serial — Started out rather draggy but gets into good swing on third episode and is exceptionally good by the fifth episode, the last one I have played. However, do not consider it as good as "Spell of the Circus." —J. W. Crabtree, Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark.

See America Thirst, Summerville-Langdon—This is fair entertainment for small town patronage, but too silly to be called good comedy. —R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PICTURES

FEATURES and SHORTS

Young Sinners

Fox—78 Minutes

Cast: Thomas Meighan, Hardie Albright, Dorothy Jordan, Cecelia Loftus, James Kirkwood, Edmund Breese, Lucien Prival, Arnold Lucy, Nora Lane, Joan Castle, John Arledge, Eddie Nugent, Yvonne Palletier, David Rolkins, Gaylord Pendleton, Billy Butts. Directed by John Blystone.

Fox has made an excellent picturization of the popular stage play from the pen of Elmer Harris. It is a story teeming with flaming youth and their wild antics. Should click with any audience. Until the time Thomas Meighan comes into the picture there is a lack of human interest.

Meighan as a rough Irishman is placed in charge of a millionaire's son and takes him up into the mountains to try to make a man of him in a year's time which the father failed to do in 20 years. The way he goes about it, finally bringing the boy to his senses, makes this picture really belong to Meighan.

Hardie Albright plays his part well as the dissipated youth. He graduates from Meighan's school with honors and gets his diploma when he knocks out his instructor. Dorothy Jordan makes a convincing heroine. Edmund Breese shares top honors as the boy's father.—Jesse.

SELLING SEATS: Play up Thomas Meighan. He should mean something to old-time fans at the box-office. The story having been a successful stage play should not be overlooked. Tie-up with the parent-teacher societies as the picture has a good moral for fathers as well as for children.

Born to Love

RKO-Pathe—84 Min.

Cast: Constance Bennett, Joel McCrea, Paul Cavanagh, Frederick Kerr, Anthony Bushell, Louise Closser Hale, Claude King, Mary Forbes, Elizabeth Forrester, Edmond Breon, Reginald Sharland, Daisy Belmore, Fred Esmelton, Martha Mattox. Directed by Paul L. Stein.

Here is a great woman's picture with the star suffering from start to finish. Has an "East Lynne" theme with the World War as a background.

There is hardly a light moment in this film story of misunderstandings between two young lovers. Miss Bennett endures all sorts of anguish, looking beautiful, if a bit worried, through it all. Emotional drama does not become her as well as the light sophisticated roles. The ladies will like Joel McCrea and Paul Cavanagh in the leading male roles which they handle with exceptional brilliancy. Director Paul Stein has shown some sharp flashes of genius. His Armistice Day scenes in London are exceptionally well done. All in all a rather sordid picture that starts off well but slows up midway with a fairly good finish.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Play up the love interest and star as they are the best selling points. Lends itself for good tie-up with local Red Cross for benefit. Get furniture stores to display baby outfits.

Seed

Universal—97 Minutes

Cast: John Boles, Genevieve Tobin, Lois Wilson, Zasu Pitts, Richard Tucker, Frances Dade, Kenneth Seiling, Helen Parrish, Don Cox, Terry Cox, Dickie Moore, Raymond Hackett, Bette Davis, Jack Willis, Bill Willis, Dick Winslow. Directed by John M. Stahl.

The producer, director and principals climb to new heights in "Seed." Surely John Boles and Lois Wilson never gave more convincing performances, Stahl never gave a picture a more appealing touch and Universal hasn't produced such a magnetic story. It is adult entertainment mainly, and not too sophisticated to please only the so-called intellectuals.

The book is more daring than the picture insofar as the advocating of birth control is concerned, but the picture implies what the book tells and there is nothing offensive in any part. It is a human story humanly depicted and should be a money maker. Its absorbing theme makes up for any lack of action.

The story tells of an ambitious writer who hasn't time to write because of the attention he must give to his home, wife and five children. But along comes an old sweetheart, manager of the Paris office of the publishing house for which the hero works, who assigns him to the task of finishing a novel which he had started several years before. She let him use her apartment for writing and in time he forgets home ties for the other woman. There is the separation, his marriage to the other girl and the passage of ten years. He returns from Europe a great writer. His children have grown up but he sends each to school, leaving their mother alone. The return awakens the love of the hero for his children and the other woman admits her defeat.

Genevieve Tobin, as Mildred, the other woman, gives a finished portrayal, while Lois Wilson has made a triumphant return to popularity. The children are excellent types. There are tears and laughter in "Seed." It's a real picture. —Steen.

SELLING SEATS: Play up the popularity of the book. Universal has an elaborate herald which should be used Joe Weil, exploitation director for Universal, has issued a comprehensive exploitation bulletin on the picture which covers every angle. It is suggested that exhibitors use it in the advertising. The bulletin may be obtained at the exchanges or from the home office.

Father's Son

First National—75 Min.

Cast: Lewis Stone, Irene Rich, Leon Janney, John Halliday, Mickey Bennett, Gertrude Howard and others.

A marvelous and decidedly human picture, with excellent cast and direction. Highly entertaining. Very good for Sunday night show or special family night program. Suitable for both parents and children.

The story concerns a strict father (Lewis Stone), who through lack of understanding of children and lack of companionship with his son (Leon Janney), unknowingly makes his home an unwelcome place for his son. He is so wrapped up in his business and has such set opinions concerning the obedience of children, that he expects his child, who is only ten, to act like a grownup man. His mother (Irene Rich), however, understands him perfectly and although she loves her husband, she loves her son, too, and consequently leaves Stone and lives in a modest bungalow with her son. The family doctor is a constant companion of Leon's. Stone's son realizes how neglectful he has been to his son and begs his wife and son to come back. They return and the picture ends with Stone a changed man—an understanding father and a loving companion to his son.

The picture is based on the novel, "Old Fathers and Young Sons," by Booth Tarkington. The story is so vivid and realistic in its portrayal of youth that it will bring the adults back to their own childhood days, and will make each boy see in himself the person of young Leon. There are several emotional scenes that will bring tears to the eyes, but they will immediately be turned into tears of laughter.—E. S.

SELLING SEATS: Being a family picture this should be advertised as such to induce family patronage. Start a Leon Janney club. The kiddies should go for it as Leon is the typical American boy. Juvenile magazines and stores catering to children should lend their cooperation.

Chasing Trouble

Pathe—20 Minutes

Franklin Pangborn, Dot Farley and Junior Coghlan work pretty hard to make this funny but it misses fire some place. The women will get a kick out of watching Pangborn make sandwiches for a bridge party and a few other attempts at kitchen science as only a man can do it, but as a whole this is just an ordinary short subject. Pangborn comes home after a business trip which has taken him away for a year. Wife greets him by making him serve at a bridge party. And he just about ruins the affair.

The Check-Up

Vitaphone—10 Min.

This Vitaphone subject is a clever little skit featuring Jack Hazard and Ruth Donnelly. Complications arise when Jack gives checks for ten dollars to his wife and another woman in love with him unaware that he is married. The plot is really nothing new—just another triangle. However, the manner in which it is handled makes this short subject really interesting.—J. S.

Pip From Pittsburgh

M-G-M—20 Minutes

Charley Chase in a comedy which seems to measure up to previous efforts. As the man who is forced into a "blind date" with a girl from Pittsburgh, Charley gets off some of his usual comedy antics. Thelma Todd again is the leading lady. There are many good laughs and the entire short should fit in on almost any type program.

THE LAST STEP

MANY exhibitors, whose business has not been thriving and who have gone the wrong route to build it up through double featuring, are now pondering over the question of reducing admission prices. That's usually the next step after the quantity program loses its first magnetic touch and it's a mighty dangerous step to take without most careful study and consideration beforehand.

Price cutting will boost gross receipts for a while as will any other innovation. But, as we have said before, a bargain ceases to be a bargain when it becomes the regular thing.

There are situations, of course, where the admission price was boosted too high when sound first warranted an increase. Reduction in these instances may prove good business. The location of a theatre, its class of patronage, its drawing radius and its drawing possibilities must enter into the consideration where an admission price reduction is contemplated. Selling more tickets is one thing but increasing the gross is another. We know of several instances where the price cut was carried too far. Attendance increased but box office intake was less than before the cut. Those exhibitors are now facing a bigger problem than before, for a price hike is not so easy to put over as is a price reduction.

At best an admission price cut should be the final step of an exhibitor who is attempting to build up his gross. There are many other things that should be tried first. Among them is bolstering up your programs with name attractions that will draw; better short subjects to give the proper balance to every program; new methods of advertising; greater cooperation with local merchants, civic clubs, etc.; and a little fresh paint in the lobby, on the front and in the interior, if it needs it; brighter lights over and under the marquee. Yes, these things cost money but they represent a more or less permanent investment that is bound to bring a return.

Keeping up price and quality and improving that quality (but let your public know about it when you do) is often a better policy than reducing price and giving with it lowered quality, which is usually its companion.

"FOR THE KIDS AND THE GROWN-UPS"

THAT line is used throughout RKO-Pathe's attractive new season announcement. It has a lot of significance at this time when sexy plots seem to have run their limit—and they have!—and when bringing back not alone, juvenile patronage, but family patronage as well, is a most important consideration for the entire industry. It's a good line for exhibitors to incorporate in their advertising of every feature that has family appeal.

There is no gainsaying that current announcements of the forthcoming product output of all producers have the semblance of containing more wholesome entertainment than has been the case in the past two seasons. That's a good box office sign, particularly for the small town and neighborhood theatres who depend on family patronage for their livelihood.

Poor Legitimate Season

In Twin Cities; Films Seem to be Pulling the Bigger Part of Local Patronage.

The film houses shoved the Twin City legitimate theatres further into the discard in the season now ending, a survey of results indicates.

That the public virtually has deserted legitimate road attractions for the films was indicated by the fact that leading screen houses enjoyed a prosperous winter while the two legitimate theatres in Minneapolis, the Lyceum and Metropolitan, and the one house in St. Paul, the Metropolitan, are said to have suffered heavy losses.

The development of the talkie apparently has served to put the movie houses still further out front and is sounding the death knell for the legitimate theatres whose admission prices are four times as high as those of their more attractive competitors which seem to be able to furnish the public what it wants in quality and quantity entertainment.

The big Lyceum Theatre in Minneapolis was only able to book a total of six attractions the entire season and of these half-dozen shows only one attracted large patronage. The Twin City Metropolitans also had but seven shows and not more than two of these drew profitable crowds.

Loss of the Lyceum on the season is believed to have run into the five figures. It is believed doubtful that the house will play road attractions again next season, as those brought in this season were paid stiff guarantees, with one exception. Reports have it that in only one instance did the theatre come out even. The Metropolitan, however, operates at a lower cost and its losses are not believed to have been so heavy.

Roadshow Picture Drawing Well

In Minneapolis; "Trader Horn" and "Dirigible" Pull Patronage at $1.50 Top at the Century.

The day of the roadshow picture is far from ended as far, at least, as Minneapolis is concerned, according to present indications.

For the second time within a few months, the Century Theatre will house a roadshow picture when "Dirigible," big Columbia production, opens there May 23.

Several months ago "Trader Horn" was roadshowed at the same house and did a big week's business at $1.50 top for two performances daily.

QUALITY DRAWS

Benfield Says Good Films Make Money

Good pictures continue to draw paying patronage despite the depression.

Independent exhibitors from small towns throughout the territory declare that all they want is an even break on product.

"Give us the pictures and we'll get along," is the gist of their demand.

Bonnie Benfield, who operates a new theatre in Milbank, S. D., as well as a house at Morris, Minn., and Al Ashenbrenner, owner of a theatre at Staples, Minn. voice the sentiments of the independent exhibitor generally in declaring that if you give the public what it wants in the way of entertainment you don't need to be afraid of the hard times.

As a typical instance, Mr. Benfield cites the case of his Milbank Theatre on a Sunday night recently. With Douglas Fairbanks in "Reaching for the Moon" as its attraction, the house was packed to the doors 15 minutes after it had opened.

Mr. Benfield was not deterred by the depression from building his new 400-seat house at Milbank. He is confident that the picture industry will emerge from the present situation stronger and more powerful than ever and feels that the present is the time to buy or build theatres because costs are low and prices depressed.

Road Shows

By M. E. CUFFEL

IN these depression times when price reductions seem to be in vogue, it is encouraging, indeed, to find that the industry still has the temerity and confidence to roadshow exceptional pictures in key spots like Minneapolis at $1.50 prices.

There is no question but that such attractions as "Trader Horn" and "Dirigible" are worth the advanced admission prices. Compared to legitimate road shows which charge double their $1.50 admission, they offer a great deal more in entertainment value. Moreover, they are sufficiently outstanding, different from the general run of pictures and far superior in quality to the average film to justify the higher prices.

"Trader Horn" did a highly profitable business as a road show at the Century Theatre, Minneapolis, and we anticipate that "Dirigible," andother corking picture, will be equally successful. Despite the hard times and the lateness of the season, Publix is sufficiently impressed by "Dirigible" to reopen the Century, which had been closed

"Millionaire" and "Born To Love" Get Top Money

Minneapolis (week ending May 15)—"The Millionaire," with George Arliss, was the week's outstanding draw, with "Born to Love," starring Constance Bennett, a close second. The former played at the Minnesota and the latter at RKO-Orpheum. Both Arliss and Miss Bennett are popular favorites here and rate among the top-notch box-office magnets. Otherwise, business was only fair, although "Doctors' Wives," at the State, did pretty well.

Aster — Misbehaving Ladies (First National), Lila Lee. Business: Fair. Summary: Misleading title on scrupulously clean and proper comedy-drama of a princess who returns to her small home town and is mistaken for a seamstress; slow moving and dull in many spots. Entertainment Merits: 65 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy, serial, screen vaudeville.

Lyric—Not Exactly Gentlemen (Fox), Victor McLaglen, Lew Cody and Eddie Gribbon. Business: Fair. Summary: A stereotyped and frequently slow-moving western redeemed by a thrilling land rush and several exciting fights. Entertainment Merits: 70 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Minnesota — The Millionaire (Warner Bros.), George Arliss. Business: Good. Summary: Another splendid characterization by Arliss of an elderly self-made Croesus who meddles in his children's love affairs. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, sound news.

RKO Orpheum—Born to Love (Pathe), Constance Bennett. Business: Good. Summary: Miss Bennett, good as usual, in the sophisticated and sexy drama of a girl who defied the conventions. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, vaudeville, comedy, golf series.

State— Doctors' Wives" (Fox), Joan Bennett and Warner Baxter. Business: Fair. Summary: A highly artificial drama depicting the jealousy of a doctor's wife; many situations which stretch the bounds of credibility; strong cast. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Laurel-Hardy comedy, sound news, Mickey Mouse cartoon comedy, Grantland Rice Sportlight.

MILWAUKEE

(Week Ending May 5)

Alhambra—Iron Man (Universal), Lew Ayres and Jean Harlow. Business: Fair. Summary: A prize-fighting picture in which Ayres appears unhappily cast. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Burton Holmes' tabloid travelogue, "Modern Madrid," "Geography Lessons," M-G-M review, Universal newsreel.

Garden — The Front Page (United Artists), Adolphe Menjou, Pat O'Brien and Mary Brian. Business: Good — ended second 2nd week. Entertainment Merits: 95 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy, newsreel.

Majestic—Kiss Me Again (First National), Bernice Claire and Walter Pidgeon. Business: Good. Summary: A pretty operetta elaborately staged in technicolor and acted by veterans of the screen. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Poodles Hannaford in "The Riding Master" and "Straight and Narrow."

Palace — Born to Love (RKO-Pathe), Constance Bennett and Joel McCrea. Business: Good. Summary: A picture featuring the war as a background but lacking a show of honest emotion. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: "In the Rough," Johnny Farrell, RKO News.

Riverside—The Subway Express (Columbia), Jack Holt and Fred Kelsey. Business: Fair. Summary: A rather tepid mystery story concerning a murder on a speeding underground car. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville.

Strand—A Connecticut Yankee (Fox), Will Rogers and Myrna Loy. Business: Good. Summary: A modernized version of Mark Twain's story with plenty of unique comedy. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: "Bum Bandit," comedy, Fox news.

Wisconsin — Tarnished Lady (Paramount), Tallulah Bankhead and Clive Brook. Business: Good. Summary: A rather weak vehicle for the introduction of Paramount's newest star, despite the fine supporting cast. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon & Marco Idea, Fox newsreel.

ALONG FILM ROW

The Columbia exchange in Minneapolis has engaged Joe Beahen as booking manager. He succeeds Eddie Johnson, who resigned. Mr. Beahen was with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for a considerable time. Ben Marcus is exchange manager.

Joe Lorentz, new Fox exchange manager, has obtained the services of Frank Halowell to represent his company as salesman in the North Dakota territory. It's a case of "back to the old love" for Halowell as he is returning to the company which he served in the same capacity for 10 years. After leaving Fox, the veteran film salesman went with Educational. He resigned from the latter to go back to Fox.

* * *

Hales Cavanagh of the Minnesota (Publix) theatre exploitation and publicity department has resigned to accept the exploitation post with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Minneapolis exchange. He takes the place of Morris Abrahams, veteran popular exploiteer, who has been ill for the past month. Cavanagh's place at the Minnesota has been taken by Robert McDonald, another member of the theatre's advertising force.

* * *

The Minneapolis theatre publicity offices have been moved from the basement of that house to the second floor of the Century Theatre building. In its new quarters the department has considerably more office space. Cliff Gill is head of the department.

* * *

With everything in readiness for the launching of the new selling season by Minneapolis film exchanges, there is every indication that exhibitors will do their buying much earlier than ever before. During the past few weeks, exchanges report that inquiries have been pouring in at a record-breaking rate. Competition for pictures in many spots is unusually keen.

* * *

W. H. Workman, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer exchange manager, is back at his desk after a business trip to Chicago. Mr. Workman is manager of the Film Board of Trade which, he announces, will resume its meetings next week after nearly a month of inactivity due to various sales' conventions.

MORE FILM UNITS

RKO-Orpheum Not to Add Vaudeville Acts

That public taste inclines toward screen entertainment rather than vaudeville in Minneapolis, at least, is indicated by the fact that the RKO-Orpheum is enlarging the number of its screen units, instead of putting on more vaudeville acts, in an effort to stimulate patronage and offset price reductions at nearby competing Publix houses.

Not that any particular efforts are necessary at the RKO-Orpheum to boost business, inasmuch as grosses at this house have been holding up remarkably well throughout the entire depression and at the present time are running along at a highly satisfactory arte. But the management does not believe in letting any grass grow under it and feels that it always must be on its toes if it is to retain its place among the leaders.

In many cities, RKO has doubled and tripled the number of its vaudeville acts comprising a program. A study of the local situation, however, evidently has convinced Morgan Ames, RKO divisional manager, that the Minneapolis preference is for pictures. In addition to the feature, his bills now include a newsreel, comedy and another added novelty, such as the Farrell golf series. All this is in addition to the four regular vaudeville acts.

Hitherto, for the most part, the screen portion of the RKO-Orpheum consisted solely of the feature and the newsreel. The shorts now included on the bill strengthen the program considerably and the entertainment value of shows at this house rates very high.

Security Branch

Milwaukee, Wis.—Security Pictures has opened an exchange here in quarters formerly occupied by Warner Bros. The exchange will handle the Monogram product and is managed by Max Wiesner, formerly with Red Seal in this city.

tury outright for the "Trader Horn" engagement of one week. Publix, however, is reopening the house itself for the "Dirigible" booking. It previously had been announced that the theatre would be closed for the summer.

"Dirigible" is going into the Century on a percentage arrangement between Publix and Columbia. Two exploitation men have been sent here from New York to handle the attraction's publicity. Howard Herick is from the roadshow department and Robert Horten from the exploitation department.

With the prestige of the "Trader Horn" roadshowing in Minneapolis, the Metro picture has been one of the biggest and best bets in the whole territory. "Dirigible" is expected to prove a similar sensation. It has been going over big all through the country and has been acclaimed one of the year's outstanding pictures.

Open in June

New York — Dan Michalove, head of the Warner theatre chain, announces that the new theatre in Morgantown, W. Va., will be ready for opening early in June.

BIG FAN MAIL

Mickey McGuire Clubs Aid Theatre Owners

Hollywood — The value of fan mail was never more clearly established than in the case of the juvenile star who is the recipient of such mail. Mickey (Himself) McGuire, Larry Darmour's young star of the series bearing that name, receives on an average of 3,000 letters every month. Mainly his admirers are children of his own age. It is natural then that they will confide more readily in Mickel than they will with an older star. Their secrets become his and his youthful enthusiasm encourages still further correspondence.

Of late Larry Darmour has organized a series of Mickey McGuire Clubs throughout the country, thus creating a still larger following for the youngster. Now Mickey's fan mail is increasing by leaps and bounds. He goes over every letter that he receives and if one requires a personal reply Mickey answers with zest and sincerity. In many of these he is asked to give his school year, the kind of games he plays, what type baseball he uses and countless other exchanges that are dear to the heart of every youngster.

The result of this mail has been far-reaching. Here is a screen favorite who might well be one of their own playmates, consequently wherever there is a Mickey McGuire fan there is bound to be a bombardment upon the local theatre manager with demands for the name of the next comedy and when it is to be played.

Completes "Corner"

Hollywood—Herbert Brenon announces that he has completed the filming of "The Next Corner" for Radio Pictures, featuring Kay Francis and Ricardo Cortez. Featured players in the cast are William Welch, Adrienne D'Ambricourt, John St. Polis, Wilfred Noy and David Dunbar. It's from a novel by Kate Jordan.

Road Shows

for the summer, and play it on a percentage arrangement.

A roadshowing of a picture lends it dignity and adds to its prestige. It enhances its value as a drawing card when it is regularly released. We have no doubt but that "Trader Horn" is playing to larger business throughout the territory than it would have if its reputation had not been enhanced by its Minneapolis road show engagement. "Dirigible" should have a similar experience.

Child Patronage Being

Sought by RKO-Orpheum in Minneapolis; Franke Gives Away Pony to Lucky Patron.

The RKO-Orpheum Theatre, Minneapolis, has launched a vigorous campaign to bring back the kiddies. As part of this campaign, Manager Emil Franke last week presented a beautiful white pony to a lucky child patron.

Chances on the pony were given out during the two preceding Saturday mornings. The drawing occurred last Saturday at 1 p. m. The house was packed with children and there was an overflow into the street.

Soon after his appointment as manager of the RKO-Orpheum, Mr. Franke started a drive to get the children in for the Saturday morning performance starting at 11 a. m. Special outdoor pictures, designed particularly to appeal to the youngsters, were offered in addition to the regular show.

Mr. Franke also organized the RKO Kiddies' Club. Members received buttons free. There also have been gifts of various prizes every Saturday morning. The pony gift last week capped the climax for elaborateness.

NEW DEVELOPEMENTS in THEATRE EQUIPMENT

"Lustro-Pearl" New Metal Type Screen

A new type metal mesh projection screen, known as "Lustro-Pearl," has been placed on the market by the Mandalian Manufacturing Co., of North Attleboro, Mass.

The advanced features claimed for this new screen includes: A surface treated with the purest of known chemicals, entirely free from gloss, eliminating all distortion common to ordinary types.

Highest reflection factor known to reputable light testing laboratories, effecting a considerable saving of electric current.

Constructed so as to distribute sound very clearly and uniformly throughout the entire theatre.

Can be washed with hot water and soft brush without injury to its surface.

Affords a clear view of any picture from any angle of observation, eliminating eye strain or discomfort to patrons.

Surface may be sprayed periodically for many years, and for this purpose, the company plans to loan for a period of ten years a complete up-to-date spraying outfit with each screen purchased, and furnish chemical solutions from time to time for resurfacing this type screen.

Its high reflective qualities bring out objects in a manner which might be termed the nearest approach to three dimensional pictures, the company claims.

RKO Proctor's 58th Street, New York, is among the first houses to install this new type screen.

FILM TONIC

Yankee Lubric Protects Film Damage

Yankee Lubric Co. of Louisville, Ky., is producing a film tonic known as Yankee Lubric ,which is said to prevent damage to films. Films sprayed with this tonic in the exchange and at intervals in the theatres will be kept moist and flexible, preventing buckling and breaking, it is said. It also protects the emulsion and eases the strain on sprocket holes and lessens projector head wear. The company declares that Yankee Lubric is not a grease and will not streak or spot.

CUTOUT DEVICE

Cutawl for Making Lobby Marquee Displays

A device known as the Cutawl, for making various kinds of exploitation cutouts and lobby and Marquee displays, is being put out by the International Register Co. of Chicago.

The design for the desired cutout display is traced on whatever material is to be used and with this device the cutout is easily made by guiling the machine over the pattern. The machine is convertible into a saw by substituting a saw blade which can be used for cutting anything from felt to steel, the company claims.

Good Sound Dependent on Care of Exciting Lamp

By R. H. McCULLOUGH

(Reprinted from Fox Theatre House Organ.)

A sharp focused slit on the sound track cannot be obtained if the lamp is dirty. A finger print on the bulb in front of the filament obstructs the image. Dirt of any kind in the filament image path will reduce the volume and besides certain high frequencies will be eliminated. The filament of the exciting lamp must be absolutely horizontally level to produce best results. Discoloration of the bulb will cause loss in volume. Discoloration usually appears first at the top of the exciting lamp, which does not obstruct the intensity of the filament image. When checking a lamp for discoloration, remove the lamp holder from the exciting lamp housing and look at the lamp against a white background—this will give you positive proof of discoloration at the top and walls of the globe. Make sure that the glass is perfectly clear and clean in front of the exciting lamp filament; otherwise, loss in volume will be the result.

There are many things which will cause flutter in sound reproduction. With the first Western Electric sound installations, trouble was encountered with the take-up assembly. Bent take-up reels would cause an uneven pull on the sound sprocket which has caused considerable flutter. This trouble has been corrected by the Electrical Research Products, Inc., by installing an additional sprocket, called the holdback sprocket, which is installed directly under the sound reproducing mechanism.

This sprocket takes care of any uneven pull, which may be caused by the take-up assembly. Motor and projector couplings should be checked quite frequently—if they work loose, a jerky action will result which will cause flutter. I found, on one occasion, that a small piece of lint, which was caught in the sound aperture, caused a very bad flutter in Movietone reproduction.

EMERGENCY LIGHT

Roth Brothers Markets New System

Roth Brothers & Co. is marketing a nemergency lighting system to protect exhibitors from dark houses in case power is shut off.

In case of power failure, the current supply, which is furnished by batteries, operates from an automatic transfer switch by gravity action and transfers the load to the storage batteries so rapidly that there is only a slight flicker in the changeover, according to a Roth Brothers report.

The load also is transferred automatically back to the power supply on resumption of the normal power service. By means of an electric clock control the batteries are kept fully charged so that they are always in condition to supply the load during emergencies.

Refrigeration Unit for Small Theatres

Carrier Engineering Corp. is putting out a refrigeration unit especially desgned for theatres with seating capacities from 500 to 900. The unit is said to require no engineer or attendant and the company claims it is economical in operation.

This small unit is similar in operation to the centrifugal refrigeration machine now used in a large number of the de luxe theatres, but it introduces radical features of design, including complete automatic operation. It is fully enclosed, requires no operating engineer to run it, and the economy of maintenance is indicated by the fact that it can be serviced by the company installing it for a flat sum of $200 a year, without any charges whatsoever to be paid for service of a theatre engineer, the company states.

The refrigeration unit is used in conjunction with a complete air conditioning unit, which includes the fan, spray and cooling chamber, automatic dampers, heaters and sound silencers, in a compact machine especially developed for small theatre use.

FOUR FROM MASCOT

Nat Levine Announces Serial Lineup

New York — Nat Levine, president of Mascot Pictures Corporation, announces that he will produce four, twelve-part, all-talking serials for the 1931-32 season. Levine, the only producer in the industry who is specializing in serials, will distribute through independent exchanges.

The first serial, which is scheduled for release on June 10, will star Harry Carey, whose sensational success in M-G-M's "Trader Horn," makes him one of the outstanding stars in the independent field. Carey's vehicle will be "The Vanishing Legion," a mystery melodrama, especially written for him.

Harold E. (Red) Grange will be starred in the second serial, "The Galloping Ghost," a stunt serial, which will give Grange his first opportunity to exhibit his versatility as an athlete. Football, of course, will not be overlooked.

Rin-Tin-Tin, whose first serial, "The Lone Defender," was one of last season's most successful chapter plays, will be starred in "The Lightning Warrior," Mascot's third offering. The fourth will be a detective thriller with a Metropolitan background, "The Eagle's Shadow."

NO SCREEN ADS

Roach Says No Paid Ads in His Comedies

Culver City—Emphatic denial that paid advertising had appeared in one of his short features was made by Hal Roach, whose Our Gang, Charley Chase, Laurel-Hardy and Boy Friends comedies are released through Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Suggestion had been made that scenes showing the use of a well-known insecticide and a popular soap came under the category of commercial advertising.

"I have never accepted one cent from any advertising company for any advertising that ever appeared in a Hal Roach comedy," said Roach. "I can promise every exhibitor that we will never accept any money for advertising until the theatre has first been informed of that fact and is asked to run the picture knowing that it is paid advertising."

COMPLETES THREE

Educational Finishes Star Series

Hollywood—Clyde Cook, Glenn Tryon and Ford Sterling have all completed special assignments for Educational, with the completion of their respective starring vehicles, "Don't Divorce Him," a Tuxedo; "Elbow Room," a Vanity; and "Foolish Forties," a Gayety.

The policy which Educational adopted on these three series; namely, that of signing up for one or more comedies a popular comedian, has proven very successful. This method afforded flexibility in selection of story material, and also provided a fine variety of star material.

SELECT ROGERS' NEXT

"Plutocrat" Will Be Will's New Comedy

Hollywood — "The Plutocrat," with Will Rogers as its star, will go into production at the Fox Studios in the near future under the direction of David Butler. The new film, adapted from a Booth Tarkington story and stage success, takes the widely traveled Mr. Rogers to Egypt for his latest adventures.

Substitutions Permissible

According to Present Contracts for Pictures in 1931-32 Production Schedule.

New York — Substitutions will not be grounds for cancellation of pictures under contracts being prepared by the major producer-distributors for the 1931-32 season. The individual company contracts, now in use and in preparation, contain clauses whereby producers may make changes in casts, stories and directors.

The producers take the stand that picture material and talent must be switched to meet changing conditions. Such announcements as are made as to elements to go into product are only tentative, the producers say, and are "subject to change without notice." Exceptions to the general rule are in cases where a book or play is designated definitely.

DEFENDS CRIME PICTURES

Films Strip Gangsters of Glory, Police Paper Declares; Law Reigns Supreme in the Story.

New York—Beliefs that crime pictures have an evil effect on the minds of youths are given a setback in the current issue of "The Police Journal," national official organ of police authorities.

The Journal says, in part: "We believe that no preacher, no court, no police official could deliver a more effective lecture to influence the youth of the nation against a criminal career than the stories told in many of these crime films which strip the gangster of his mock-heroism and show crime in all its sordidness."

The article continued to say that the demand for pictures dealing with crime is, after all, a reflection of the public interest in the problems which crime presents. Sometimes in real life the criminal gets away with his crimes and goes unpunished, the account states, but this is not true in the fiction treatment of crime reflected from the screen. "Invariably in the movies the law reigns supreme," the article continues. "The motives for the crime are solved in the action of the drama and the criminal pays the just penalties of the law."

Greater Protection

To Be Asked by Major Circuits; Cause of Lower Grosses Laid to Too Much Protection.

New York—Greater protection over subsequent run houses by affiliated first run theatres is in prospect for the new season. Decreased grosses in many instances is claimed by major circuits to be due to the fact that subsequent runs get pictures too soon after they play first run. Officials of M. P. T. O. A. declare the situation is serious.

Financial interests last year suggested that protection be curtailed so that a quicker financial turnover could be realized. C. C. Pettijohn attempted to rearrange the zones on a national basis but his plan was never put into effect.

And What Else?

There are great openings in Hollywood still. A recent Hollywood news item said, "The new star is a tall, slender girl, with a fair skin, deep blue eyes, a rather large mouth which when she smiles discloses perfect teeth and dainty feet."—Indianapolis Journal.

SEVEN FROM M-G-M

Ready for Release Before End of June

Culver City — Seven new productions, five of which are vehicles for company stars, compose the strong spring release lineup announced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the period from the middle of May to the end of June.

Among the new pictures are Marion Davies's "Five and Ten," W. S. Van Dyke's "Never the Twain Shall Meet," Joan Crawford's "Girls Together" and "The Great Lover."

The three films tentatively down for release between mid-May and the first of June are "Never the Twain Shall Meet," "Girls Together" and "Five and Ten."

TWO FROM B. I. P.

Columbia Selects Its Next Importations

New York — Columbia Pictures has selected B. I. P.'s "Young Woodley" and "Murder," both of which enjoyed successful runs at the Cohan Theatre, New York, as the fifth and sixth in the series of outstanding English photoplays that the company has secured for national distribution. The other four British productions in the group are: "Atlantic," "Night Birds," "Middle Watch" and "The Man From Chicago."

"Young Woodley," adapted from the John Van Druten stage hit which created a sensation in London and duplicated its success in New York with Glen Hunter in the title role, is a highly dramatic story of young love, presents intimate glimpses of Oxford University and its environs. An internationally famous cast was assembled for the picture.

"Murder," a tense melodrama, is an adaptation of the record-breaking English stage play, "Enter Sir John," by Clemence Dane and Helen Simpson. It presents one of the most baffling mystery stories ever presented on the screen, played against a background of a London suburb, backstage in a theatre and a circus lot.

Allied-Universal Deal To Liven Competition

New York—The purpose of the Allied-Universal deal was explained last week by Al Steffes, Allied leader. The co-operative agreement between the exhibitor organization and Laemmle is a "move to keep competition alive in the industry and to perpetuate the independent company," according to Steffes.

Allied houses agree to play and Universal agrees to supply quality product at "live and let live" prices. Lessening competition within the industry has become more alarming each year and for this reason the mutual co-operation arrangement was made between Universal and Allied, Steffes declared.

COSTLY HOLDOVER

Court Rules Exhibitor Must Pay $1,250

Buffalo, N. Y.—Decrees aggregating $1,250 were signed by Judge Adler of the United States District Court for the Western District of New York against Joseph A. Ruteck for holding over and exhibiting one Fox and four Universal pictures an additional day at his Park Theatre in Buffalo. In addition, the court awarded costs of $37.50 in each action and an attorney's fee of $100 in each action.

BUYS TITLE

However, Name Fits Another Story

Hollywood—"Gangster's Wife" will be the title of Helen Twelvetrees' next starring picture for RKO-Pathe, it is announced by Charles R. Rogers, head of the company's production.

The name is taken from a story by Ferrin L. Frazer which was published in Collier's Weekly. RKO-Pathe published the rights to the title and one situation of the story. This situation is being incorporated in the screen play which George Rosener is writing, based primarily upon Jack Lait's novel, "Put On the Spot."

Ricardo Cortez will be the leading man in "Gangster's Wife."

Another Title

Hollywood—The Victor McLaglen-Jeanette MacDonald picture adapted from the stage play "Good Gracious, Annabelle," is now titled "The Affairs of Annabelle." It has been known as "She Wears the Pants," "Two Can Play," and "Misbehaving." Harlan Thompson directed the comedy for Fox Films.

Heads Story Dept.

New York — Richard A. Rowland, who became associated with Paramount three months ago, will be in charge of stories and will make his headquarters here.

FINAL OF SERIES

Last of Buck Jones Group Ready for Release

Hollywood — "The Fighting Sheriff," final production in the present series of eight outdoor "specials" which Buck Jones, cowboy star made for Columbia Pictures, is the company's first May release. Jones is starred in the title role, with Loretta Sayers, recent Columbia "find" in the leading feminine part.

"The Fighting Sheriff" is an action drama depicting life and intrigue in the old West, played against a background of the Western plains and mountains.

EDWINA BOOTH, TOO

Another "Horn" Star in Mascot Serial

Hollywood — Nat Levine, president of Mascot Pictures Corporation, has announced that Harry Carey and Edwina Booth will head the cast of "The Vanishing Legion," his company's first all-talking serial of the coming season. Production on this picture has already been begun at the Tecart Studios in Hollywood.

Harry Carey, one of the screen's outstanding Western actors, the star of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Trader Horn," will make his serial debut in "The Vanishing Legion." Edwina Booth, who will play the featured feminine role in this Mascot serial, is featured in support of Carey in "Trader Horn."

FAVORS PRESS

Radio to Use More Newspaper Advertising

New York—The power of newspaper advertising for the merchandising of motion pictures in theatres of the United States and Canada was unanimously approved by delegates to the annual sales convention of Radio Pictures, held in Hollywood recently.

Through this approval, Radio Pictures will definitely participate with thousands of theatres in the United States and Canada in the expense of special newspaper advertising campaigns on most of its 36 productions to be released during the 1931-32 season.

This step, decided upon by Radio Pictures officials after a thorough and detailed demonstration of the power of newspaper advertising, will involve an annual expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars by theatres showing Radio Pictures, and by the company itself, according to Jos. I. Schnitzer, president.

From all sections of the country, sales representatives of Radio Pictures declared that advertising campaigns where the newspapers were used had been found to be the most effective in attracting patronage to the theatres.

Briefly, the advertising campaigns for newspapers involves special merchandising layouts especially prepared for publication prior to the opening of a film production in an individual theatre; and the entire campaign is prepared as an addition to the regular advertising space that the theatre may use during the run of the picture.

Radio Pictures' share of the extra advertising expense will be borne by the company in direct proportion to its participation in the gross receipts of each attraction in the theatre.

During the season just closing, Radio Pictures participated in the expense of exclusive newspaper campaigns on several big productions, most notable of which was "Cimarron." Outstanding results obtained during the past year in every tested locality was responsible for the decision of President Schnitzer to expand the plan.

Sign Kid Actor

Hollywood—Paramount has engaged another child actor. Five-year-old Dickie Moore has been signed for a small but vitally important role in Paramount's "Confessions of a Co-Ed," it was announced by the studio last week. Young Moore will appear in scenes with Phillips Holmes, Sylvia Sidney and Norman Foster, who are featured in the drama of college life from a modern co-ed's intimate diary.

Carl Laemmle Announces 26 Features for 1931-32

New Season Schedule Includes One More Picture Than Number in Present Sales Season.

New York—Twenty-six feature productions, one more than the number included in the present sales year, will be released by Universal during the 1931-32 season, according to official announcement made by Carl Laemmle last week. All of these twenty-six productions will be made for first-run theatres. The story material, direction, stars and production values have all been considered with this one thing in view.

Stars and featured players who will appear include John Boles, Lew Ayres, Rose Hobart, Sidney Fox, Walter Huston, Genevieve Tobin, Lois Wilson, Bela Lugosi, Charles Bickford, Frances Dade, Charlie Murray, George Sidney, Zasu Pitts, Slim Summerville, Bette Davis, Harry Beresford, Lawrence Gray, Clarence Darrow, Elliott Nugent, May Robson, Raymond Hackett, James Hall, Edmund Breese, Arthur Grange, Deerk Fairman, Allison Skipworth.

The directorial lineup includes John M. Stahl, James Whale, John Murray Anderson, William Wyler, James Flood, Cyril Gardner, Russell Mack, George Medford, Ernst Frank, Edward Laemmle.

The 26 Specials in Detail

Rose Hobart, who made her debut in "A Lady Surrenders," will star in Fannie Hurst's best seller, "Back Street." Direction will be by John M. Stahl, director of "Seed."

With "Dracula" pointing the way to big public demand for horror on the screen, Universal will make "Frankenstein," based upon the famous novel by Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley, with Bela Lugosi in the title role.

Charles Bickford and Rose Hohart will appear in "East of Borneo," under the direction of George Melford, with Lupita Tovar and Georges Renavent in featured support.

May Robson, the well-loved stage star, makes her talking picture debut in "Mother's Millions," described as the most unusual comedy-drama ever filmed. The featured supporting cast includes James Hall, Lawrence Gray, Frances Dade and Edmund Breese.

For Lew Ayres, Carl Laemmle, Jr., has very ambitious plans. The first of his new season productions will see him in uniform again, but not in war. The picture is "Eagles," an original by Jack Moffitt and Ray Shrock, and is a romance of flying machines and the men who made flying possible.

A new starring combination will be brought to the screen when Walter Houston and Genevieve Tobin appear in "Boulevard."

Edgar Allan Poe's immortal story, "The Murders in the Rue Morgue," will be the second horror story for the new season, and will be a companion piece of "Frankenstein," and its predecessor, "Dracula."

Rose Hobart will star in Arthur Somers Roche's story of the queen of the bootleggers—"A Lady of Resource," the sensationally successful Collier's serial, soon to appear in book form. Edward Laemmle will direct.

The versatile Lew Ayres will probably star in "The Spirit of Notre Dame," which is being produced with the full co-operation of the authorities at Notre Dame University, and is dedicated to Knute Rockne. It will be a story of college life and of the spirit that wins championships. The story is by E. Richard Schayer, story editor of Universal, and Dale Van-Every.

Donald Henderson Clarke, writer of best sellers, is the author of "Baby Faced Gangster," remarkable story of a youngster of the tenements, who dominates strong men.

"Barbary Coast," a romantic and thrilling story of the famous gathering place of the adventurous in San Francisco, is also on the list.

Universal's famed comedy players, Slim Summerville, and Zasu Pitts, will star in "West of Topeka."

"Lasca of the Rio Grande" will be a big special Western with an all-star cast to be announced shortly.

There will be a third Lew Ayres starring picture, title of which will be announced later.

Sidney Fox, who scored in her screen debut in "Bad Sister," will head an exceptional cast in Donald Henderson Clarke's best seller, "Impatient Maiden."

Robert E. Sherwood's Broadway stage success, "Waterloo Bridge," will be a starring vehicle for Rose Hobart.

Sixth of the famous "Cohens and Kellys" pictures will bring George Sidney and Charlie Murray together again in their perennially popular screen partnership. This time it will be "Cohens and Kellys in Hollywood."

Wadsworth Camp's thriller, "Derailed," will give Rose Hobart opportunity to display her versatility in a red-blooded melodrama of railroad men.

William Hurlbut's original play, "Lilies of Broadway," will be elaborately produced by John Murray Anderson, whose first screen achievement was "King of Jazz."

W. R. Burnett, author of "Little Caesar" and "Iron Man," is represented on the schedule by "Bullet Proof," a story of racketeers.

"Heaven on Earth," from Ben Lucien Burman's best seller, "Mississippi," will star Lew Ayres with Sidney Fox, Harry Beresford and Slim Summerville featured.

"The Great Air Robbery," a story of pirates of the air, will be one of the thrill specials on the new season program.

"Marriage Interlude," will have John Boles, Lois Wilson, and Sidney Fox in the featured roles.

Only last week Universal purchased for the schedule William Crew's play, "Nice Women," which ran at the Longacre Theatre. It is a thoroughly appropriate vehicle for Sidney Fox.

"Homicide Squad" is the twenty-fifth special for the year.

Lew Ayres will have a starring vehicle in Bret Harte's famous story, "Outcasts of Poker Flats," which will come to the screen under the title, "Man Hunt."

A special department is being created to handle the exhibition of Clarence Darrow's presentation of evolution. This is entitled "The Mystery of Life," and depicts in amazingly realistic fashion the story of man's fight for life, as told by the most eminent scientists.

Universal will produce a notable array of short subjects for the new season. These will include fifty-two two-reel comedies, starring Slim Summerville, George Sidney, Charlie Murray, Eddie Gribbon, Daphne Pollard, Lloyd Hamilton, Gene Morgan, Walter Merrill, "Steve" Brodie and others.

ROCKNE PICTURE

To be Dedicated to the Famous Coach

Universal City — With the full co-operation of the authorities of Notre Dame University, Universal will produce a feature production entitled "The Spirit of Notre Dame," dedicated to the late Knute Rockne. Lew Ayres will be the star. The picture will have an important place on Universal's 1931-32 schedule.

ADDING FOURTEEN

Universal to Include Action Pictures in Lineup

Chicago—Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, announced at the Mid-West sales convention of the company last week that in addition to the 26 quality features which Universal will produce for 1931-32, it will release fourteen action features.

Some of the action pictures will be made at Universal City. The others will be obtained from other producing sources. A contract with David J. Mountan is in negotiation, whereby he will supply a certain number for world release by Universal.

In making the announcement, Mr. Laemmle declared that Universal was taking the leadership in a much-needed movement back to the first principles of audience appeal. The fourteen action features will be produced with a minimum of dialogue, and with physical action heavily stressed.

DIETRICH IMPORT

German Film to be Released Here

New York—Associated Cinemas of America, Inc., has acquired the American rights for Marlene Dietrich's German film, "Die Frau, nach der man sich sehnt," which will be released here under the American title, "Three Loves." Foremost critics have acclaimed Dietrich's work in this production as the outstanding achievement of her sensational career.

CHATTERTON STARTS

Picture to be "Laurels and the Lady"

Hollywood — Ruth Chatterton's next picture for Paramount entitled "Laurels and the Lady," has gone into production at the Paramount studios in Hollywood under the direction of Berthold Viertel, noted European director. The picture has been adapted by Samson Raphaelson, well-known Broadway playwright, from Leonard Merrick's outstanding novel of the same name.

Supporting Miss Chatterton in the new production are Ralph Bellamy, Stuart Erwin, Francoise Rosay, Sam Hardy, Tyler Brooke and Charles Boyer.

Dawn Trail, Buck Jones—Jones in a typical Saturday night western. No wonder kids don't want to take time Saturday to take a bath when there is a western like this in town. Advertising especially good in representing action and the picture holds up to the advertising.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

The Last Parade, Jack Holt—Holt in a good gangster picture. Rather inconsistent in story but has enough action and thrills to cause them not to be too critical. Jack Holt as usual comes to a bad ending.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

The Flood, Eleanor Boardman—First time I have ever played Eleanor Boardman. She is O. K. in this picture which will please. This picture has several spectacular flood scenes. Recording is exceptionally good on disc. — J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Criminal Code, Walter Huston—Really here is a good underworld and prison picture at last. Played it two nights and it went over big. Good recording. — Roy Thomas, Community, Clear, Lake, Wis.

Shadow Ranch, Ken Maynard—These westerns may be all right in some towns but my advice is to lay off. — Roy Thomas, Community, Cear Lake, Wis.

FIRST NATIONAL

College Lovers, Jack Whiting—A football and college picture with a good cast but a poor story. Pictures like this are not made for a town without a football team because they have no interest in them. —Roy Thomas, Community, Clear Lake, Wis.

Scarlet Pages, Elsie Ferguson — A very good picture which drew a good crowd against school play. —Harold Smith, Dreamland, Carson, Iowa.

FOX

Three Girls Lost—Attractive title in that it is unusual and spots attention. Picture is very good throughout, being a story of three small town girls of different natures and dispositions who go to Chicago. Has plenty of heart interest and will pease all—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

M-G-M

Remote Control, Wm. Haines—Some more of Haines' foolishness but just the same it went over good. A good story and a remarkable cast. Play it—Roy Thomas, Community, Clear Lake, Wis.

PARAMOUNT

No Limit, Clara Bow—Very good picture which played to fair business. — Harold Smith, Dreamland, Carson, Ia.

Gang Buster, Jack Oakie—Fine. The best yet from Oakie. Wish more pictures of this type were available.—Harold Smith, Dreamland, Carson, Ia.

Tom Sawyer, Jackie Coogan — Boy, how they did eat this one up. Fine business and a fine picture.—Harold Smith, Dreamland, Carson, Ia.

TIFFANY

Third Alarm—A fire picture that didn't go over so hot for me. Photography poor. Good story, however, and well portrayed. The little boy representing the son of the fire chief killed in the fire was the knockout of the show and practically stole the picture. Recording on disc only fair.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Hell Bound, Leo Carrillo—I played this picture at my Grand Theatre, Sioux Falls, S. D., on a Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. My Monday's business was much better than the usual Monday's business by reason of the word-of-mouth advertising. We received nothing but praise on the picture and I am only sorry I did not put this picture over big and play it a week as it has merited a week's showing. I recommend "Hell Bound" to every exhibitor.—Benny Berger, Berger Amusement Co., Minneapolis.

UNIVERSAL

Cohens and Kellys in Africa, Sidney-Murray — Fairly entertaining. Some places pretty draggy. Drew fairly good.—Harold Smith, Dreamland, Carson, Iowa.

WARNER BROS.

Three Faces East, Constance Bennett—A story of two spys during the late war. It holds everyone's interest throughout. Play it and you won't be sorry.—Roy Thomas, Community, Clear Lake, Wis.

PRACTICAL IDEAS . . .

WHAT to do!
HOW to do it!
WHEN to do it!

. . . . BY
PRACTICAL SHOWMEN

Find The Best Points and Sell Them

To the men of the Fox Midland division of Kansas City, F. C. Souttar, its advertising director, frankly imparted:

"Get hold on the pictures that you are playing; no matter how bad a picture it may be from the standpoint of plot, cast or production, it has its redeeming features, and it is up to you to take these strong points and sell them.

"If every picture was a 'natural,' circuits and theatres would not need managers. Copy for the ads could be sent out of the home office and a 'punk' whd who could office and a 'punk' kid who could make out a weekly statement could run the theatres. Not all pictures are 'naturals,' so we get the smartest men available and use them to run the theatres.

"How do you open a press sheet? Do you open it with a grim look in your eyes and 'I'll bet this one is a louse' thought in your mind?

"If you do, you're all wrong, from the start. You can't sell pictures you aren't sold on. (Editor's Note: Give every picture its rightful chance. There must be some real good in it or the producer would have shelved it.) This pessimistic feeling is due to creep into your copy, into your lobby and the result is that you aren't at all disappointed when the picture flops.

"Here is an example from our own division. A manager had a picture in his second house that he was 'hot' for. He wrote into the office wanting it changed into the first house. He was positive that it would clean up. But the office experience with the picture had been just the opposite; when played in the A house it wouldn't get beans, and it wasn't doing so good in the second either. But this manager was not satisfied with being turned down once. He wrote again, pleaded and begged and cursed a little, but all of us rested the case on previous experience with the picture.

"The result was that the picture played the second house, knocked them cold with a gross about half again what the A house grossed on the same days with an attraction that had been doing big business. Now, how are you going to account for it? Simply that he was enthused over the picture. He had that feeling in his bones that here was a real money picture. That feeling crept into his newspaper copy, into his lobby, into the employees. It couldn't be kept out and WHAM!—the picture was a cleanup for him.

"Recently, after an evening screening four of us, including a district manager of a film company, discussed picture selling. For years this district manager had been the crack salesman of a company whose general run of product wasn't to be compared with the leading companies of the day. Yet, he had gone out and sold the pictures for more money than the leading film companies were getting. Not just once or twice, but time after time. And not only was he able to sell the pictures to the exhibitor once, but he could come back in again and sell the same exhibitor a second time.

"He told a story on himself. Never caring a rap for baseball, he had never attended a baseball game. Once he found that he had a baseball picture on his hands to sell. It was late in the year. The picture had come out just in time to be sold to the exhibitors before the world series opened.

"The first town he went into was a small city boasting one of those kinds of baseball teams It was a cold, wintry day, one of those dark and gloomy ones that hits up in October every once in a while, and the last day of baseball in the town, with the local team in last place; and playing the team just above them in the percentage figures.

"In the morning the picture was screened for the local exhibitor he was calling on. After the screening all the film salesman could think of, or talk about was baseball. He tried to talk the local exhibitor into going to the ball game with him that afternoon, and when he couldn't he went and saw his first ball game that day.

"To make a long story short, he sold himself, and to sell himself he had to sell a game that he didn't give a tinker's care about. The result was that he sold the picture throughout the territory like candy.

"That is an example of exceptional salesmanship. You've got to learn to sell yourself the pictures that you are playing before you can sell the picture to the public.

"There's no use kidding ourselves; there aren't enough big pictures to have one every day. Yet, every picture that we play has its strong points, its possible angles for selling and it is up to us to study that picture and that press book always with that idea in mind, and not to place ourselves in the position of a critic who must be sold the attractions."

(Editor's Note: We have to dig out the saleable angles. Sell ourselves. Then sell the public on the idea of filling the seats available during its showing.)

Cut! Cut! Cut This! Cut That!

By William Jacobs

WOULD you turn off the lights in your canopy to save money during the so-called depression?

Ridiculous? Then why even think of cutting your advertising budget at a time when it is necessary to do more energetic and concentrated selling to keep seats filled.

Depression brings home to the reckless and sloven the necessity of judicious spending.

We say, "Cut with consideration everywhere, but not the advertising budget." "Think, scheme and exert every ounce of energy to make the advertising dollar do double, triple and quadruple duty during harder times to fill extra seats."

What good are fine cars, if you can't sell them? What good are great pictures if they don't fill seats.

You're in a fast business.

You have to fill seats quickly. They're salable only a few hours each day, in most cases.

Utilize sagaciously mediums that pull and sell quickly.

You can't depend on natural theatre-going habit to fill seats. You can't wait until it's talked around that you have a good show. You can't sit and hope for ideal theatre weather to pack your house.

You have to sell, exploit and advertise in up and at 'em fashion. And that takes brains, ambition and energy backed up by a prosperous budget.

The wise spending of the last dollar has turned innumerable cases of depressions into prosperity.

As vital as to the body of man, advertising and selling is the heart of the theatre.

When the heart is affected, death moves in to soon take possession.

Cut! And cut! But not the heart!

Battling Summer Slump

The following is reprinted from a bulletin sent out by National Screen Service:

Perhaps you may be interested to know how I made a house pay, that has always lost money during the summer months. I realized I had a battle ahead of me, so I laid out a plan of attack—

Knowing that my opposition houses put on the cheapest pictures they could get and cut their advertising down to the bone during the summer, I made it a point to get at least one good picture a week, and I got behind that picture, doubled my advertising, created a special lobby display and used a special De Luxe type of trailer—

Bought palm beach suits (they cost very little) for each of my employees—had the lobby walls cleaned and the whole front of the house cleaned and touched up—(this really doesn't cost much and removes the smoke and dirt of the winter months)—filled my lobby with potted plants and flowers—made a deal with florist—gave him a screen credit—put as many green lights as possible through the lobby and house and went through the house to brighten it up in every way possible. On each side of the stage, two of the largest cakes of ice the ice company could make which they replaced every afternoon and gave credit for what was left of the one from the previous day—back of each cake was a green electric light—and a fan mounted to blow the air above each cake of ice towards the audience. Not that it helped to cool the theatre to any great extent, but it created a delightfully cool impression.

Two high school girls with pleasant voices phoned continually from 3 to 5 and from 6 to 8, telling people about the splendid program and how cool and nice it was at the theatre.

While the other theatres were laying down on the job, my efforts and advertising was that much obvious and what would have been a losing summer season turned into a profitable one.

Good Stunt on "Finger Points"

ALBERT P. KAUFMAN, manager of the Capitol Theatre, in Rochester, N. Y., introduced an exploitation stunt in connection with the showing of Richard Barthelmess in "The Finger Points" that smacks of real cleverness. In it he was aided by the Times-Union.

Kaufman had placed on posts in the downtown sections of Rochester cut-outs of a hand with pointed finger. At noon a press photographer took shots of the crowds passing the hand. The person at which the finger pointed when the camera snapped was the winner of a cash prize. Those in the immediate vicinity were eligible for seats at the theatre. The first day the Times-Union reproduced the photographs over four hundred people emphatically claimed the finger pointed at them. It was necessary to enlarge the pictures so as to prove the ones worthy of the prizes.

The stunt was worked for three days and the doubt created as to whom the finger pointed at made it highly successful, the newspaper agreeing it was a circulation builder and the theatre finding it a great aid in calling attention to the picture.

Clever Exploitation Aids "Father's Son"

AN effective piece of exploitation was worked by the advertising staff at Shea's Century Theatre, Buffalo, in connection with the recent showing of "Father's Son." It consisted in part of the reproduction from the press sheet on the picture of the endorsement given the Tarkington story by James E. West, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America. This was widely distributed among the schools and through the mails. Primarily intended for adults was a neatly gotten up proclamation entitled, "If I Were Mayor of Buffalo." It was signed "One Who Has Seen 'Father's Son' " and in advising every one to see the picture having Leon Janney, Lewis Stone and Irene Rich in its chief roles give a number of reasons for so doing.

Forty thousand of these found their way into homes and the Century's staff has every reason for believing they were helpful inasmuch as the picture had a banner week. What makes these stunts so worthy of notice is their simplicity and inexpensiveness. Other exhibitors can follow suit in this to their profit. "Father's Son" continues to earn the most superlative praise wherever it is shown. Hundreds of letters have been sent by fans to Warner Bros. thanking them for the picture, which every one will admit is the height of commendation.

"U" Signs Carrillo

Universal City — Leo Carrillo was signed last week by Carl Laemmle, Jr., to play the lead in "Lasca of the Rio Grande." This adaptation of Frank Duprez' poem will go into production some time the early part of June. It is also provided in the new contract with Carrillo that he will be featured in at least one other picture on next year's Universal list.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PICTURES

FEATURES and SHORTS

Indiscreet

United Artists—94 Minutes

Cast: Gloria Swanson, Ben Lyon, Arthur Lake, Monroe Owsley, Barbara Kent, Maude Eburne, Henry Kolker, Nella Walker. Directed by Leo McCarey.

The original title of this picture was "Obey That Impulse" and somehow we feel it would have been a better name. However, Gloria Swanson has turned out a snappy little story that registers well and can be classed as good entertainment. The star is not as serious as she was in "The Trespasser," not as dumb as she was in "What a Widow," but hits an intermediate vein which suits her personality. DeSylva, Brown and Henderson are responsible for the story, but it is not a musical even though this trio is generally identified with that class of entertainment.

The story is light but interesting and moves along smoothly. Ben Lyon is good, as are Arthur Lake and Monroe Owsley. Barbara Kent is pleasing as Gloria's sister while much of the comedy is contributed by Maude Eburne, who portrays the heroine's aunt. All in all "Indiscreet" is a good picture, but in our opinion the title is too heavy for the story.

Gloria Swanson ends an affair with Monroe Owsley and immediately takes up Ben Lyon, a writer of a book called "Obey That Impulse," who advocates the theory that a person should do what he wants to do while the impulse is still with him. Arthur Lake is the suitor of Gloria's sister, Barbara Kent, who later falls for Owsley against Gloria's wishes. It becomes necessary for Gloria to confess to Ben Lyon of her affair with Owsley and Ben leaves disgusted, but comes back for the happy ending.—Steen.

SELLING SEATS: Play up your billing around "Obey That Impulse," suggesting that everyone should obey his impulse and see the picture. Ben Lyon and Gloria Swanson are good draws in themselves and should be given considerable billing. Give prominence to the supporting cast, which is good. Play up the comedy. The title suggests a sex picture. Sex is not the predominating factor of the picture so you can safely bill it as a comedy-drama if your fans are fed up on sex stuff.

Dude Ranch

Paramount—69 Minutes

Cast: Jack Oakie, June Collyer, Eugene Pallette, Mitzi Green, Stuart Erwin, Charles Sellon, Cecil Weston, George Webb, Guy Oliver, James Crane. Directed by Frank Tuttle.

This picture is real entertainment from start to finish. There is nothing to be taken serious and will keep the audience constantly laughing. Stuart Erwin with his usual Will Rogers mannerisms is the owner of a dude ranch but the guests are dissatisfied because there is no excitement. Just like an answer to a maiden's prayer, Pallette, Green and Weston appear on the scene and from then on things start happening.

Toward the end of the picture some fast moving action takes place with the hero and his friends in a bus after some bank robbers There is a fight between the hero and the villain in a bus stopped on the railroad tracks while a speeding train is approaching—then comes the crash, but the hero is out of the way in the nick of time. What excitement! The audience will hold its breath.

The picture has a good cast. Mitzi Green as usual is very cute while Stuart Erwin, Eugene Pallette and Charles Sellon are responsible for many laughs although Oakie's name is featured. The picture is strongly recommended as a Sunday feature and is suitable for children.—Jesse.

SELLING SEATS: The picture has five popular stars. Play them up for all they're worth. Dress your lobby with a western atmosphere. Use cut-outs of Oakie as a cowboy. Advertise him as being different in this picture.

———o———

Public Enemy

Warner Bros.—83 Minutes

Cast: James Cagney, Edward Woods, Donald Cook, Beryl Mercer, Jean Harlow, Louise Brooks, Joan Blondell, Ben Hendricks, Jr., Leslie Fenton, and others. Wm. A. Wellman, director.

This picture requires lively short subjects to brighten up the program a bit, for there is no comedy relief, and it will cast a depressing mood over the audience unless entertaining shorts are run in conjunction with the picture. The story is absolutely serious from start to finish and was meant to be taken seriously by the audience. Unlike other gangster pictures, it shows nothing deliberate or smart on the part of the gangsters to provoke the audience to laughter. Neither does it bring politics or bribes into the picture at all. This is not for children for, although it is a good moral picture, they will not understand it. The gangsters are not paraded as fantastic figures, neither do they represent certain persons or characters but show conditions as they actually exist today; and portrays the basis for the life of crime which the gangsters lead.

The story opens with the early childhood of two boys, who, through bad associates, are taught the game early in life, starting as petty thieves. After the World War and after the Volstead Act goes into effect, the two men now grown, become beer racketeers, and consequently immensely rich. They are powerful figures in the racket business and force speakeasies to buy their beer or take the consequences. Then rival gangs appear and one by one they lose their lives at the hands of their competitive racketeers.

It is not a picture for small towns, but should be successful in large towns and cities. There is a lesson and daring truth in this picture, and we believe it was meant to awaken honest citizens to the gangster tyranny prevalent in large cities today.—E. S.

SELLING SEATS: Tie-up with organizations for the prevention of crime, have tags printed and placed on parked cars reading "You are the Public Enemy if you park here too long. See the 'Public Enemy' at ________ Theatre (date)." Promote an essay contest requiring contestants to write in 100 words or less what they would do to rid the country of today's greatest menace—the gangster. For the best answers award guest tickets to see the picture.

THE LAST WORD

TELEVISION---WHAT OF IT!

AGAIN there is talk of television to add to the worries of this restless industry. A few weeks ago John E. Otterson, president of Electrical Research Products, a subsidiary of Western Electric, made the statement that television, as far as its general commercial use was concerned, is at least five years off. This past week David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corporation of America, an affiliate of General Electric, declared that television would be in widespread use in a year. Two quite opposite views from two men who are in position to know whereof they speak.

There is no denying that television is on the way. Already there are several stations broadcasting television programs and some reports also state that 40,000 television receiving sets are now in home use. Undoubtedly as television broadcasting improves it will add to its followers and in time—no one can really say how soon—it may even boast as many fans as radio. But as far as its making great inroads on theatre attendance is concerned, we fail to see it as a menace to get shaky in the knees about—at least for several years, if ever at all.

Radio was a great bugaboo for showmen a few years ago. Good roads that lead from the small towns to the bigger towns also created a scare. Folks have to stay at home to listen to the radio and the roads that lead to the big cities run both ways. So the tax on theatre attendance by those alleged menaces was only of short duration. Television, too, is something that people have to stay home to get. But the great American public just isn't the stay-at-home kind; it's a "let's go places" people and, no matter how perfect television may become, good attractions away from the home will always have the greatest pull.

Quality productions of the first rank will be the industry's saviour in the face of any competition. But let that quality diminish to a low level and even tiddle-de-winks can become a menacing competition.

The astute showman knows that he must be prepared at all times for every kind of competition. He fortifies himself with good attractions, both features and shorts, makes his theatre attractive and comfortable, all of which serves as the greatest magnet to reach into the homes and bring the ticket buyers to his box office.

Contract in Test Case

Between Paramount and John De Marce; Exhibitor Charged With Failure to Play Pictures.

Judge Harold Baker of Swift County district court has taken under advisement the case of Paramount-Publix corporation against John De Marce, exhibitor, claiming breach of contract and consequent damages as a result of the latter's alleged failure to play pictures under an old standard exhibition contract executed in 1928.

After hearing arguments on both sides in district court at Benson, Minn., Judge Baker asked for the submission of briefs. S. P. Halpern, attorney for Northwest Allied group, representing De Marce, claimed that the U. S. Supreme Court has ruled a similar contract illegal and in violation of the anti-trust laws.

The action is being regarded by the trade as a test case. Minneapolis exchanges have a number of similar suits against Northwest exhibitors which will be filed if Paramount-Publix is victorious in the present action. No decision is expected for several weeks. E. J. Cinera is counsel for Paramount.

Wisconsin MPTO Meets June 16-17

Fischer in Charge of Arrangements; to Discuss Wisconsin Allied Situation at Convention.

Milwaukee, Wis. — Announcement has been made that the annual convention of the MPTO of Wisconsin will be held June 16-17 in Milwaukee. George Fischer, Milwaukee exhibitor, has been named chairman in charge of arrangements for the gathering.

One of the big topics expected to come up at that time is the matter of the Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Wisconsin, which has scheduled regional meetings for Madison, Green Bay and Wausau. Dates for the convention of the latter association have not yet been selected.

Report Interest

In New Product by Independent Exhibitors, According to Managers of Exchanges.

With the new selling season about to start, Minneapolis exchange managers report that interest in the 1931-32 product is of record-breaking proportions. Anxious to get a line on the new product, independent exhibitors have been flocking into Minneapolis the past week in unusually large numbers and exchanges have enjoyed a virtual stream of visitors.

Last week's visitors included

Gets Quota

It is claimed that the quota of 300 Minnesota and North and South Dakota exhibitors has been signed up for the Kinogram News Weekly, the allied screen advertising medium. Accounts have been solicited by Sam Cornish, W. R. Frazee, Fred Knispel and W. W. Arnold.

STAGE SHOWS OUT

St. Paul Paramount Drops Acts

Stage shows will not be reinstated in the St. Paul Paramount Theatre at this time in accordance with a St. Paul Association of Commerce, local civic body, petition, Publix officials state.

The volume of available business is not sufficient at this time to warrant the placing of stage shows in the St. Paul house during the current summer, at least, the Publix officials point out. Attention is called to the fact that Paramount-Publix, in line with a present policy of retrenchment, is now taking the stage shows out of many cities.

Publix unit shows, however, will continue at the Minnesota Theatre, Minneapolis, according to persent plans. The house will get the choice of the New York and Chicago units, taking whichever is strongest. The first of the units from the Oriental Theatre, Chicago, played the Minnesota last week and went over big.

Comedy's Influence

By M. E. CUFFEL, Editor

HAROLD JOHNSON, Educational exchange manager, says that the demand for good comedies is unusually brisk. In many towns, he finds, film fans actually are clamoring for the fun offerings to help them forget their worries and troubles.

Regardless of whether his public is making its desire in the matter felt, it would seem to us that the exhibitor who fails to build up his programs with good comedy shorts during these depressing times is overlooking a good bet and displaying poor showmanship.

If the exhibitor will take pains to inquire, he undoubtedly will find that the percentage of patrons who enjoy good comedy shorts is almost 100 per cent. And the more gloom there is outside the theatre the more welcome are the pictures that excite laughter and spread good cheer.

In this trying period, comedy shorts can be built into real business getters by the live-wire exhibitors. They are

BILLING SHORT

"Symphony to Receive Recognition

Ben Marcus, Minneapolis Columbia exchange manager, claims to have "the best short yet' in "Mother Goose Melodies," a "Silly Symphony" comedy.

Publix has bought the picture for all its houses and plans to give it feature billing and to play it up prominently in newspaper ads. It will be exploited as a "special" short.

"Indiscreet" and "Iron Man" Best Loop Draws

Minneapolis (week ending May 22)—With no especially outstanding attractions, business the past week was only fair at loop showhouses. Comparatively, the best draws were "Indiscreet," with Gloria Swanson, at the State, and "The Iron Man," starring Lew Ayres, at the RKO-Orpheum. The business done by Robert Montgomery's first stellar picture, "Shipmates," at the Minnesota, was somewhat disappointing. The picture pleased patrons, but the star did not display the expected drawing power. With Bert Lytell appearing in person with the Bainbridge dramatic stock company at the Shubert, his latest starring picture, "The Single Sin," was offered at the Grand to good returns.

Aster—The Spy (Fox), Kay Johnson and Neil Hamilton. Business: Fair. Summary: A slow moving melodrama of a young wife who becomes involved with a member of the Russian secret police. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Grand—The Single Sin (Tiffany), Bert Lytell and Kay Johnson. Business: Fair. Summary: Some gripping situations in this drama of a woman spy who falls in love with one of the enemy's soldiers. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy and sound news.

RKO-Orpheum—The Iron Man (Universal), Lew Ayres, Jean Harlow and Robert Armstrong. Business: Good. Summary: Comedy and thrills in this drama of a young pugilist who is nearly led astray by his manager's vamping wife. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, sound news.

Lyric—Stepping Out (M-G-M), Leila Hyams, Reginald Denny and Charlotte Greenwood. Business: Fair. Summary: Rather broad fun provides many laughs in this comedy of a pair of wives who set out to give their gay, philandering husbands a dose of the latters' own medicine. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Slim Summerville comedy, cartoon comedy, sound news.

Minnesota—Shipmates (Metro), Robert Montgomery and Dorothy Jordan. Business: Fair. Summary: Montgomery does good work in first stellar vehicle, a moderately amusing story of a gob who is mistaken for an oil magnate and has a love affair with a millionaire's daughter. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, sound news.

State—Indiscreet (U. A.), Gloria Swanson. Business: Good. Summary: The numerous comedy touches redeem rather trite and conventional story of a girl with a past who sets out to save her sister from the man with whom she has had an affair at the risk of her own happiness. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news; Timberg comedy, cartoon comedy.

MILWAUKEE

(Week Ending May 13)

Alhambra — Virtuous Husbands (Universal), Elliot Nugent and Jean Arthur. Business: Fair. Summary: From the play, "Apron Strings". A fairly well-acted picture. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal News, comedy.

Garden — Indiscreet (United Artists), Gloria Swanson and Ben Lyon. Business: Fair. Summary: A comedy with several really funny scenes thrown in. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Newsreel.

Majestic — The Hot Heiress (First National), Ben Lyon and Ona Munson. Business: Fair. Summary: A rather slim story, but humor helps to carry it along in an able manner. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: "Algiers," Aesop's Fables, Pathe News.

Palace — Gun Smoke (Paramount), Richard Arlen and Mary Brian. Business: Good. Summary: A "peppy" affair of its kind with some pretty good western scenery to look at. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: "Golf" with Johnny Farrell; Rythm Boys, specialty; RKO News.

Strand—A Connecticut Yankee (Fox), Will Rogers and Wm. Farnum. Business: Fair—ended second week. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: "Bum Bandit," screen cartoon; Fox News.

Riverside — Woman Hungry (First National), Lila Lee and Sidney Blackmer. Business: Good. Summary: A screen version of "The Great Divide" with some excellent acting. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville.

Warner — The Finger Points (Warner), Richard Barthelmess and Fay Wray. Business: Good. Summary: A gang melodrama with a well-told story although somewhat depressing. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal Newsreel; Looney Tune comedy.

Wisconsin—Ladies' Man (Paramount), William Powell and Kay Francis. Business: Fair. Summary: A picture with a rather stilted, artificial slant on modern life. Entertainment Merits: 85 pe rcent. Short Subjects: Fanchon and Marco Idea; Fox News.

LYTELL DRAWS

Shubert Enjoys One of Biggest Weeks

Further evidence of Minneapolis' entertainment allegiance to the movies was found in the splendid business attracted to the Shubert Theatre last week when Bert Lytell, noted screen star, appeared as a guest luminary with the dramatic stock company.

Due to Lytell's drawing power, the company enjoyed one of its biggest weeks of the entire season. Prior to the coming of the film star, business during the preceding three weeks at the Shubert had been very poor.

Lytell appeared last week in "Death Takes a Holiday." He concludes his Minneapolis engagement this week in "Up Pops the Devil." His wife, Grace Menken, is playing opposite him.

Coincident with Mr. Lytell's personal appearance at the Shubert last week, his latest Tiffany starring picture, "The Single Sin," was presented at the Grand and drew large audiences.

STYLE SHOW

Chorus Girls Model for Bathing Suits

Cliff Gill, Minnesota Theatre press agent, Minneapolis, put over a dandy tie-up with one of the leading Minneapolis loop department stores that got his theatre a ot of good publicity. Gill arranged to have the chorus girls with the Publix unit show at the house model the new style bathing suits at the store Wednesday afternoon. The store ran large newspaper display ads on the event, with prominent mention for the theatre and its stage and screen attractions.

Lou Breeze, master of ceremonies at the Minnesota, acted as master of ceremonies for the style display which attracted a crowd of several thousand people.

Another Minnesota tie-up was with the Washington Shirt stores, six in number. The stores used life sized enlargements of Lou Brooze wearing their straw hats. Three large newspaper ads were run by the concern plugging Breese, the Minnesota and the hats.

WITH RED SEAL

Koehler to be Booker at Exchange

Milwaukee, Wis.—Charles Koehler, formerly assistant manager of the local Fox exchange, has been named as booker at the local Red Seal exchange, succeeding Max Wiesner, who is manager of the Security Pictures exchange, opened here recently. The new addition to local film row is located in quarters formerly occupied by the Warner exchange.

Booth Fire

Milwaukee, Wis. — Approximately 800 feet of film burned when fire started in the projection room of the Grand Theatre, local neighborhood house operated by A. C. Gutenberg. The film operators, D. B. McKenzie and Arthur Wegner, succeeded in extinguishing the fire before the fire department arrived and further damage was prevented.

Add to Theatre

Menominee, Mich.—To provide more stage room and permit booking of road shows, if desired, an addition is being erected at the rear of the Lloyd Theatre of this city. It will be about twenty feet wide and will give an additional ten feet of room on the stage.

"Exhibitors are more anxious than ever before to get an advance line on the various new products because of the crying need that is felt for outstanding pictures," says Ben Marcus, Minneapolis Columbia exchange manager. "There is keen competition to get the pick of the pictures. Times are such, according to the exhibitors, that outstanding attractions are necessary to draw large crowds. But all the exhibitors admit that the good pictures are still able to pull paying patronage."

Columbia mailed special invitations to all Northwest exhibitors to attend the roadshowing presentation of "Dirigible" at the Century Theatre, Minneapolis, this week, and an even larger number of visitors are anticipated this week than last.

POWER OF FILMS

Bert Lytell Gives His Opinions

Talking pictures are doing a good deal to keep English speech standards high, in the opinion of Bert Lytell, prominent screen star, who has been appearing in person with the Bainbridge dramatic stock company at the Shubert Theatre in Minneapolis.

Mr. Lytell, in an interview, also stated the belief that influence of American films are "ambassadors extraordinary to the world."

"Even the English are feeling the influence of the pictures made in Hollywood," said Lytell. "School boys in that country have allowed such stars as Tom Mix and Douglas Fairbanks to replace their national heroes. Even characteristic British clothes are disappearing. In London they are trying to dress as they dress in Hollywood."

"Laughing Sinners" will be the final title of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's newly completed picturization of Kenyon Nicholson's play, "Torch Song," which formerly bore the same title as the stage production. This is a Joan Crawford starring vehicle, directed by Harry Beaumont, with a supporting cast that includes Neil Hamilton, Clark Gable, Marjorie Rambeau, Cliff Edwards and George Marion.

Comedy's Influence

an actual necessity. Men and women harrassed by business and financial cares need them to off-set the effects of the depression.

As has been remarked frequently, a good comedy will redeem a program suffering from a poor feature and will strengthen one that boasts a strong main attraction. And this is truer today than ever before.

FILM POPULAR

"No More Children" Is Triangle Release

A. W. Nicoll, manager of Triangle Film Co., 70 Glenwood avenue, Minneapolis, reports that "No More Children" is proving a sensational box-office attraction in the territory.

Its initial Northwest showing occurred at the Diamond Theatre, Duluth, where it ran for eight days, being held over for an extra day (Sunday). Despite the fact that the theatre was handicapped by having a new front under construction for a new canopy, a record-breaking business was done. Even though patrons were compelled to walk through a scaffolding to enter the theatre, the crowds came in droves throughout the engagement.

"No More Children" has been booked in the Fox affiliated theatres and in many of the other leading houses on the West Coast, including Superba Theatre, San Diego, Cal., and the Ambassador Theatre, Hollywood. It played second run to big business at Warners' Egyptian Theatre, Hollywood, after a first run at the Florence Theatre, Pasadena.

START THRILLER

"Murder by the Clock" Under Way

Hollywood — "Murder by the Clock," an unusual type of production based on a novel by Rufus King, has just gone into production at the Paramount studios in Hollywood with a stellar cast under the direction of Edward Sloman. It has been adapted bl Bartlett Cormack. In the cast of "Murder by the Clock" are William Boyd, Lilyan Tashman, Regis Toomey, Sally O'Neil, James L. Crane, Charles Trowbridge, Martha Mattox and Charles D. Brown.

Greater Demand for Comedies Reported

The depression is creating an especially good demand for comedies, according to Harold Johnson, manager of the Minneapolis Educational exchange. At a time when pessimism and gloom seem to hold sway, the laugh provokers are filling an actual need, he points out.

"Exhibitors report to me that patrons are insisting more and more that programs include good comedies," says Mr. Johnson. "The cash customers say they want and need laughs. They assert that screen fun makes them forget their financial and other troubles, temporarily at least, providing a brief but welcome escape from the many depressings things of current every day life. Cheerful pictures are like a tonic for them."

As a result of the comparatively excellent market for comedies, Educational's "drive month" of May is going along at a highly satisfactory clip and the results promise at least to equal those of a year ago, Mr. Johnson says. Volume of business thus far has exceeded expectations.

Incidentally, Mr. Johnson avers that "The Ghost Parade," Sennett comedy going into the State (Publix) theatre for a Minneapolis loop first run the week of May 29 is "one of the funniest comedies ever produced and is certain to prove a wow over the entire territory.' Another Educational release, "A Fowl Affair," with all fowl comedy actors, is proving a veritable sensation in the territory.

DIETRICH'S NEXT

"Lady of the Lions" Is Selected

Hollywood — Marlene Dietrich's next picture, to go into production shortly, will be "The Lady of the Lions". Selection of this story of the European theatre has just been made at the Paramount West Coast studios. Josef von Sternberg, who directed Miss Dietrich's three previous successful roles in "Dishonored," "Morocco" and "The Blue Angel," will direct the picture.

GROUP BUYING

Steffes Reported to be Behind Move

Group buying is under consideration by a number of Twin City independent exhibitors. W. A. Steffes, manager of the Northwest Allied unit, is one of the prime movers in the proposed plan. In a bulletin to Allied members, he says that exhibitors readily can realize that they can get better picture deals by buying as a group instead of as individuals. In the same bulletin, he states that he doesn't think business is going entirely to the "bow-wows" during the present depression, but he warns that many exhibitors will find themselves forced out of existence unless they use more discretion in picture buying.

FEELING SLUMP

But Show Business Is Better Than Others

Business in the Twin Cities and throughout the territory is considerably off, according to a MOVIE AGE survey. For the first time since the start of the depression two years ago, showhouses are starting to feel the hard times, it is indicated.

At that, however, circuit officials and independent exhibitors make it clear that the theatrical business is holding up much better than most lines of trade. Even where losses are being experienced ,they, for the most part, are comparatively small in amount, the survey shows.

In Minneapolis and St. Paul, the KKO Orpheums and several of the leading Publix houses continue to operate on a profitable basis. Most of the Publix houses outside the Twin Cities are running considerably behind a year ago, but the aggregate results, while unsatisfactory, do not involve heavy losses on the average week in and week out.

Independent exhibitors also are complaining about slipping grosses but the losses thus far have been kept within a reasonable limit.

Cutting of prices, which has been general throughout the territory during recent weeks, has not helped the situation any thus far, MOVIE AGE learns. Weak pictures still are unable to attract profitable patronage at the reduced admissions, while the strong attractions, which did well before the cuts, are unable to improve their previous box-office performances.

Trade Practices are Studied

By Government; to Determine if Agreements Made in 1927 Are Being Kept.

Washington—The Federal Trade Commission's investigation on film trade practices is being studied here by Federal authorities to determine the body's procedure in the situation. The investigation which is said to be under way is an effort to find out if the agreements made at the Trade Practice Conference in 1927 were being kept. How far the government has advanced in the investigation of the commission's report is not known but it is reported generally that an announcement will be made shortly.

The recent study on the part of the commission was concentrated in the New York territory, although the reports from other centers are being studied closely. Block booking and the tying-in of features and shorts were the principal matters for investigation and the commission endeavored to determine if block booking of a coercive nature was being resorted to.

Exhibitor leaders were asked by the commission if there was evidence "to show that the practice of block booking is indulged in by all the distributing companies as the result of an agreement between them" and "whether the compulsion to block book is the result of the distributors' take-all-or-none attitude alone or whether the coercion or compulsion is also due to the use of threats, external pressure or other methods which would be considered unfair."

PLAN DUAL BILL CAMPAIGN

To Discourage Theatre Men From Adopting Policy; to Concentrate on Independents.

New York—Major distributing organizations plan a campaign to stress to exhibitors the fallacy of double bill policies. So far only one concern has announced that it will not permit double feature contracts on the new program, but in most cases compulsion will not be exercised. Efforts are to be made through the sales forces to convince theatre owners and managers that the theory is wrong and to discourage them from the policy.

Distributors point out that during the new season there will not be sufficient product to permit double feature policies on a large scale. The educational campaign will be concentrated on the independent houses as the distributors believe those theatres have adopted the plan more extensively than the affiliated theatres.

Sponsored Shorts Exit

As Paramount Decides to Drop Them; Warners to Make Them on Orders Only.

New York — Sponsored short subjects may make an exit as quickly as they entered the motion picture field, according to reports here. It was reported last week that Paramount has decided to drop the production and distribution of advertising reels.

Warner Bros. will make screen ad subjects only for those companies that wish them, but Warners will not solicit the business, according to Sam Morris. Warner houses will play only sponsored reels produced by the Warner organization, Morris said.

The move of Paramount and Warner Bros. in regard to advertising reels is interpreted by The Film Daily, which published the first story on the subject, to mean that the two major producers of sponsored shorts are slowly easing out of the advertising field. Unfavorable reaction on the part of the public and newspapers is given as a reason for the sudden attitude toward this type of short subjects. Leading film executives also attacked the policy.

"TORCHY" AGAIN

C. C. Burr to Make New Series

Hollywood — Torchy is coming back to the screen. C. C. Burr, who made the original series of Torchy Comedies, based on the popular Sewell Ford stories, for Educational, is announced as producer of a new Torchy series to be released by Educational as part of its program of fifty-two two-reel comedies.

Ray Cooke, juvenile comedian who came to Hollywood some two years ago, and who has scored in a number of features and several short comedies, has been signed for the lead in the new Torchy series, which will consist of six two-reel comedies.

In the early Torchy Comedies, Johnny Hines, and Dorothy Mackaill played the leads, each subsequently rising to starring heights in feature pictures.

RENO COMEDY

Wheeler and Woolsey to Star in Feature

Hollywood—Reno, Nevada, citadel of the world's most efficient divorce mill, is the basis of the next Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey co-starring picture, William LeBaron, vice-president in charge of Radio Pictures, announces. The story, an original by Timothy Whalen, tentatively called "Six Weeks in Reno," will be a burlesque of marital freedom seekers and the world-famous matrimonial white spot. No director has been chosen, but Louis Sarecky will supervise. Production will follow "Full of Notions," current Wheeler-Woolsey opus.

74 Westerns

New York—At least 74 features with western backgrounds will appear on the 1931-32 program, according to a survey by The Film Daily. More may be added to current schedules. More than one-half of the westerns will be made by independent producers, the checkup reveals.

Appointed Sec'y.

Hollywood—The designation of Lester Cowan as executive secretary of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences was announced last week. This action was taken by the Academy board of directors at its last meeting.

Readjustment Needed Harold Franklin Says

New York—The motion picture industry needs a readjustment in its economic structure, Harold B. Franklin said last week in a newspaper interview, just before leaving for Dallas where he conducted a Hughes-Franklin convention.

Restoring the film business to a sensible basis to meet present conditions must start in production with negative costs coming down, he said. Although price cutting is a bad practice, Franklin pointed out that in some towns it is necessary where wages of the fans have been reduced. The success of motion pictures as mass entertainment has been partly due to the fact that it always has been within the pocketbook means of the average person, he said.

General television broadcasting is at least a year away, Franklin said, and added that it will be several years before it will have any effect on motion pictures. Radio cut into picture grosses when radio was new, and Franklin declared there was a possibility of television doing the same thing, but that the influence on attendance would not be permanent.

Make "Interlude"

New York—Confirmation comes from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer of the report that "Strange Interlude" will appear on its production schedule for the coming year. The adaptation of Eugene O'Neill's nine-act play will be prepared in the near future.

Sign Writers

Hollywood—Johnny Grey and Monty Collins, comedy scribes, were signed last week by Louis Brock, producer of short subjects for Radio Pictures, to write the first Clark and McCullough "Headliner" story. The internationally known revue stars are en route to Hollywood to appear in three two-reel comedies for Radio. Mark Sandrich will direct.

U News June 1

New York—The first issue of the new Universal-Chicago Daily News talking reporter newsreel will be released June 1. Sam Jacobson will continue as editor-in-chief with Graham McNamee doing the talking.

Columbia Plans Three Regional Conventions

New York—Plans for the three regional sales conventions to be held by Columbia Pictures the end of May have been announced. The conventions which will mark the greatest sales gathering in the company's history will consume three days each and consist of six sessions. The first gathering will take place at the Park Central Hotel in New York on May 27, 28 and 29. From there the home office executives will move to the Congress Hotel in Chicago where the Middle Western and Southern representatives will gather for a session on May 31, June 1 and 2. The final convention will take place at the Roosevelt Hotel in Hollywood on June 6, 7 and 8.

One of the important features of the three sessions will be the formal announcement of Columbia's 1931-32 program which is the most pretentious ever to be offered by the company. During the next season Columbia will present an impressive line-up consisting of 26 major productions, 104 shorts and 2 series of westerns, one of which will consist of 8 Buck Jones outdoor dramas.

BIG 4 PROGRAM

Exchange Men to Pass on Story Material

New York—Big 4 is hard at work on a carefully planned program for the season 1931-1932.

With westerns, melodramas and wholesome action films which meet the requirements of the whole family gaining by leaps and bounds, Big 4 proposes to go ahead with care in selecting pictures of this type exclusively. The decision has been made from a reflection of public taste in picture grosses.

For the series of twelve all-star Westerns the plots will be "alternating." This will lift from a highly specialized field the danger of too great similarity. An advisory committee composed of affiliated exchangemen is being formed to pass upon stories and stars to insure the fulfillment of exhibitor requirements. In this way quality and quantity are successfully combined. Titles and casts will be announced as soon as they are definitely set and information obtained from John R. Freuler, president of the company, assures a speedy selection of material.

Paul Muni has been selected by Howard Hughes for the leading role in "Scarface," the forthcoming underworld thriller by Armitage Trail.

New Projector

New York—General Theatre Equipment Corporation has developed a new projector, geared to use film anywhere between 35 to 70 mms. wide. An easily handled gear shift makes the required change. It is believed by General Theatre Equipment that the new projector will meet the wide film question even if the producers fail to agree on a standard size.

COMPLETES GROUP

Fox Finishes All 1931-32 Productions

Hollywood—Fox Film Corporation has completed all the pictures on its 1930-31 schedule which extends into the latter part of July, has finished two on the 1931-1932 program, and now has five productions in work at the Beverly Hills studio.

The productions completed and ready for release during the next two months are "Women of All Nations," "Daddy Long Legs," "Goldie," "Hush Money," "The Black Camel" and "Always Goodbye."

Twenty-Six 2-Reelers From Mack Sennett

Hollywood — Mack Sennett's program of twenty-six two-reel comedies for Educational for next season will include a group of eight special Andy Clyde starring comedies, a series of six Mack Sennett Featurettes; and twelve standard Sennetts to be released under the brand name of Mack Sennett Comedies.

In his sympathetic character of "Pop Martin," Clyde achieved wide popularity in the Sennett comedies in which he has been appearing during the past two years.

The Mack Sennett Featurettes will consist of six two-reelers, and will emulate in story interest, name, power and production value, such outstanding comedy successes as Sennett's "Match Play," "He Trumped Her Ace," "A Hollywood Theme Song," etc. In every feature except length, these Featurettes are to be identical with class feature pictures, according to plans.

The series of twelve Mack Sennett Comedies is to be a highly diversified group of laughmakers, in talent and subject matter. In this series the comedy producer will feature such popular players as Harry Gribbon, Patsy O'Leary, etc. Marion Sayers whom Sennett "discovered" at Tia Juana, and in whom he sees stellar potentialities, has also been signed for this series. She will be prominently featured.

Mr. Sennett will also continue his policy of signing important comedians for individual pictures, a policy which has proven highly satisfactory in the two years that he has been producing talking comedies for Educational.

WITH PARAMOUNT

Wm. De Mille Returns to "Old Home"

Hollywood—William C. De Mille has just signed a new long-term directorial contract with Paramount. This will bring him back to the company with which he started nearly 18 years ago, and for which he produced such memorable productions as "Clarence," starring Wallace Reid, "Conrad in Quest of His Youth," starring Thomas Meighan, and "What Every Woman Knows," starring Lois Wilson.

"U" Title Change

Hollywood — Money seems to have lost its sting as a box-office title. Universal is changing the title of "Mother's Millions," the play by Howard McKent Barnes, to "The She-Wolf of Wall Street."

CARNERA FILM

Picture to be Ready at Right Time

New York—The Vitaphone Corporation, which last week completed editing and cutting of "The Bigger They Are," its two-reel comedy novelty starring Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight contender for the world's championship, is rushing work on that short so that prints will be in all its exchanges in time for exhibitors to take advantage of the present interest in Carnera to show the film before his fight with Jack Sharkey at Ebbett's Field, Brooklyn, N. Y., on June 10. Prints are being made and will be sent by fast express and air mail to all exchanges.

In addition to the appeal to the curiosity of fight fans and the reading public, Primo's first talking picture is first rate entertainment. There is good comedy in the story built around the Man Mountain's gigantic size, and novelty in the manner in which it is presented. The heavyweight contender is introduced as a bum in a flop house with his companion, Little Billy, the midget, and then as a successful prize fighter in demand at social and charity functions. He is seen punching the bag, shadow-boxing, skipping the rope, dancing and in an exhibition of boxing with his sparing partner, Jimmy Darling. "The Bigger They Are" is timely to the minute and is released at the psychological moment for exhibitors to cash in on it.

Title Changes

Hollywood — Two changes of titles are announced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Joan Crawford's new starring film, formerly called "Girls Together," will be relased as "This Modern Age," while Ramon Novarro's new film which had been known as the "The Son of the Rajah," is re-titled "Son of India."

Gets Motor Car Men to Give Away Auto

GEORGE LANGNESS, manager of the Paramount Theatre, St. Cloud, Minn., pulled off one of the niftiest exploitation tie-ups witnessed in the territory for some time when he induced 24 Chevrolet dealers in St. Cloud and vicinity to contribute a new automobile to be given away by his theatre.

Chances on the car were given away with every ault theatre ticket purchased during a four-week period. The 24 dealers distributed plenty of publicity in their stores and garages, advertising the house and its attractions. They also carried banners on their demonstrators, calling attention to the gift. The event was advertised by them in the newspapers as well.

On the day of the drawing, the dealers cooperated in a big Chevrolet parade through St. Cloud and adjoining towns. All cars carried banners announcing the lucky ticket holder would receive a car at the theatre that night. In order to receive the gift the holder had to be present in the theatre, lobby or street outside the showhouse.

The theatre was packed to capacity at 7 p. m. on the eventful night and the huge crowd overflowed the large lobby and into the street. The drawing took place on the stage. One of the town's ex-mayors acted as master of ceremonies and drew the number.

Langness also promoted a set of four tires and auto trunk as gifts and these were given away during the week preceding the drawing for the car.

This Theatre Has a Hostess

BOB GARY, manager of the Paramount Theatre in Omaha, is successfully working the hostess idea in connection with the theatre. The idea is adaptable to the smaller towns, especially if the hostess employed is well known.

At the Paramount the hostess solicits theatre parties, offering choice reserved seats on the main floor to groups of six persons or more. The girl watches announcements of coming bridge parties and luncheons and contracts the persons giving the parties, suggesting that a theatre party follow the affairs.

A year or so ago an exhibitor in a town of 3,000 population informed this publication that he had used the hostess idea with success. The girl solicited patrons from nearby towns as well as in her own town. New fans were obtained in this way and more people got the habit of coming to the theatre.

CLARA'S NEXT

"Manhandled" Script Is Being Prepared

Hollywood—Preparation of the script of "Manhandled," which will serve as the next vehicle for Clara Bow, has started at the Paramount Hollywood studios, it is announced by B. P. Schulberg, managing director of West Coast production.

SEZ HY DAAB:

(And He's Right!)

Showmen the world over are at last fully awake to the tremendous power of that invincible weapon of merchandising—advertising.

This will be an advertising year.

Keen, shrewd, militant advertising, backing up productions worthy of the effort and the money spent upon them, will engross more than ever the attention of the big minds in the industry.

The dynamic young showmen of this industry will be given vital backing in this respect.

This will be a year of inspiration to the showmen of the industry eager and keen to serve, confident of their powers to establish new records for accomplishment, new highs for their box offices.

The Theatre Has To Fight!

By William Jacobs

THE time has come when the theatre has to fight for its share of the depression dollar.

Placing the entire responsibility of each theatre in the hands of men with the natural ability of selling is the vital action toward getting profits during the present unprofitable period; men who are really gifted in the knack of rousing, moving and bringing people to the theatre; men who sincerely, enthusiastically and thoughtfully carry forth ideas that register.

Not men who write glowing reports. Not men who play on home office officials' vanity. Not men who talk and don't act. Not men who use tieups with only the thought of giving them an opportunity for flashy photos to send the boss. Not men who put over "fast ones" on merchants or newspapers.

But men, real honest to goodness men who think and plan their campaigns ahead; who use the right idea at the right time; who know the value of an idea or an angle, who realize the importance of selling angles, who consider the possibiities of each picture or program offer in appealing to various types of audiences, who are ever alert to capitalize on events, personalities and holidays. And above all who wisely and shrewdly consider the value of each advertising dollar.

Placing this type of men at the wheel of the theatres journeying blindly through the wilderness of unprofitable receipts will soon bring them back again to the land of profits.

What the theatre needs now is to build thorough, thoughtful and powerful seat-filling organizations.

If the theatre's biggest problem today is to get its share of the depression dollar, then organized effort with an ample budget behind advertising and selling is the solution; not merely passing it off by saying, "Times are hard, let's cut it down. We'll do just as well if we spend less."

"PENROD" CAST

Players Selected for Tarkington Story

Hollywood—The cast of "Penrod and Sam," the Booth Tarkington favorite which First National is producing, is headed by Leon Janney, who appeared in "Father's Son," and Junior Coghlan, and the rest of the cast is as follows: Georgie, Billy Lord; Rodney, Nestor Aber; Mrs. Schofield, Dorothy Peterson; Mr. Scofield, Matt Moore; Mrs. Bassett, Zasu Pitts; Mr. Bassett, Johnny Arthur; Marjorie, Margaret Marquis; Mr. Bitts, Charles Sellon; Mr. Williams, Wade Boteler; Verman, Robert Dandridge; Margaret Schofield, Gladys Ford; Delia, Gertrude Howard. The cast also includes a number of youngsters who have less important parts in the picture. William Beaudine, assisted by Russ Saunders, is directing.

Public Taste is Changing, Kent Points Out

New York — Public taste in screen entertainment is swinging from the extreme of sophistication to that of clean, healthy, down-to-earth subjects, in the opinion of S. R. Kent, vice-president of the Paramount Publix Corporation.

"The public is demanding that its entertainment have a wholesome treatment," Kent asserted recently in outlining the trend which Paramount will follow during its 1931-32 production schedule.

"Sex subjects always will be treated in entertainment because that is life, but there is a right and wrong way of presenting it and film patrons are insisting upon the former.

"Religious pictures or those with a religious appeal, such as 'The Christian,' will be successful in the immediate future.

"Gangster subjects will meet with public disfavor because the nation is tired of that phase of life. The screen has overplayed the underworld, just as has the press.

"Today's trend in public taste is explained by the simple fact that when entertainment reaches one extreme, it always swings radically to the other extreme. That is the condition today.

"Heart interest instead of gunplay is the public cry. Comedy will always remain popular if it is excellent and clean. Outdoor action will succeed if it follows a gripping story instead of mere gun fights against a beautiful setting.

"Unhappy endings are wanted only in moderation and not as a steady diet. There are a few stars such as Marlene Dietrich and Greta Garbo who will remain favorites in tragedy, but such cases are few.

"The screen's greatest need today is for more stories of all types and the development of more great writers of the new talking screen technique, which differs greatly from both the stage and the silent picture.

"Many of our present plays and novels cannot be used because they are too strong for the screen.

"There is only one thing greater than personalities and that is a great story. The latter always cultivates the former. For that reason the entire industry now is seeking and developing new talent. Paramount has more such players than ever before in its history."

3 FOR HUGHES

Producer Announces His Story Material

Hollywood — Howard Hughes will embark on three new film enterprises.

After many months of research and preparation, the producer of Hell's Angels," "The Front Page," and other entertainment, has three brilliant story-properties which he will place into production within the next 30 days.

They are "Ground Hogs," an original aviation comedy; "The Age for Love," a modern romantic-drama starring Billie Dove, and "Scarface," a gangster melodrama.

Hecht Signed

Hollywood—Ben Hecht has been retained by Howard Hughes to polish off the dialogue for "Queer People," the much-talked-about story of Hollywood which Carroll and Garrett Graham authored, and which Leo McCarey will direct. Hecht, co-author of "The Front Page," will turn his typewriter on "Queer People" as soon as he completes the dialogue for "Scarface," underworld melodrama which Howard Hawks will direct for the Caddo Company.

TIGER HUNT

Scenes to be Used in Paramount Pictures

Hollywood—Ernest B. Schoedsack, adventurer and motion picture producer known for his work on such successful film undertakings as "Chang," "The Four Feathers" and "Rango," will leave Hollywood on July 1 at the head of an expedition that will penetrate the wilderness of India to film with sound cameras a Bengal tiger hunt for Paramount's audible picturization of "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer".

In this production, which calls for one of the most distant and difficult location trips in the history of motion pictures, Clive Brook and Phillips Holmes will play the two chief dramatic roles. This marks Brook's second connection with Schoedsack's work, as he was in "The Four Feathers".

Opposite Keaton

Hollywood — Anita Page has been given the feminine lead in Buster Keaton's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring film, "Sidewalks of New York," which went into production last week at the coast.

M-G-M ADDS 10

All Will Be Ready Before August

Hollywood — Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's revised release schedule includes ten feature productions definitely scheduled for release between May 30 and August, the date that marks the end of the current season and the beginning of the new one.

Joan Crawford's new starring film is "This Modern Age," directed by Nicholas Grinde. This is a May 30 release and is an adaptation of the College Humor serial by Mildred Cram.

Marion Davies' new starring picture, "Five and Ten," is the seventh picture in which Miss Davies has been directed by Robert Z. Leonard.

William Haines' new starring film, a June release is called "Just a Gigolo," and was directed by Jack Conway.

"A Free Soul" is a picture which Norma Shearer completed before leaving the studio on her present European trip.

"The Great Lover," a June release, has in its cast Adolphe Menjou, Neil Hamilton, Irene Dunn, Olga Baclanova, Ernest Torrence and Cliff Edwards.

The new Marie Dressler-Polly Moran laugh-provoker is called "Politics" and is an original story for the screen.

"Horseflesh" is the title of the Kentucky racing drama which will be a July M-G-M release.

Buster Keaton's new starring picture "Sidewalks of New York" is being directed by the two men who have made a highly successful series of all-talking dog comedies—Jules White and Zion Myers.

Another July release is Ramon Novarro's "Son of India."

"The Man in Possession" is Robert Montgomery's new starring film and is tentatively scheduled for August release.

AGAINST ADS

Nicholas Schenck Hits Commercial Screen

New York — Denouncing commercial advertising on the motion picture screen as being unfair to audiences, Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., operating hundreds of theatres in this and foreign countries, last week issued an official statement that his theatres would continue to refuse screen advertising. As president also of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, one of the leading producing companies, Mr. Schenck said that his studios would not produce films subsidized by commercial advertisers.

RADIO'S EIGHT

Busy Summer For RKO Studios

Hollywood—With eight productions in the process of screen transition, and as many being prepared for early screening, it looks like a busy summer for Radio Pictures studio. The eight include "Helga," featuring Betty Compson, Conrad Nagel and Robert Ames, and "Nuit d'Espagne," featuring Jeanne Helbling (in cutting room); "The Reckoner," Richard Dix's vehicle; "Nancy's Private Affair," starring Mary Astor; "Full of Notions," co-starring Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler (shooting), and "Strang Women," "The Sphinx Has Spoken" and "Fanny Foley Herself," set for rehearsal this week. Among those preparing are "Six Weeks in "Reno," "Consolation Marriage," "Are Those Our Children?" "Should Wives Work?" "Girl Crazy," "Frontier," "The Dove," "All at Sea," and "Pent-House."

NEW CARTOON

"Scrappy" to be Released by Columbia

New York—To add diversity to what has been called the most novel lineup of shorts in the industry, Columbia Pictures announces that it has acquired for distribution during 1931-32 an unusual animated cartoon called "Scrappy." Produced by Charles Mintz, creator of Krazy Kat for the screen, the new cartoon, which will be offered in a series of 13 single reels, introduces an entirely new angle in the animated field. Instead of the usual animal characters, featured in the current cartoon, the central figure will be a mischievous little boy "Scrappy." Most of the comedy will be pantomime, but interpolated dialogue, music and sound effects will play an important part in the short.

SELECT DIX STORY

"Homecoming" Will Be Star's Next Picture

Hollywood—Richard Dix's next Radio Pictures starring vehicle is set. William LeBaron, vice-president in charge of production, has announced that the star would appear in "The Homecoming," an original story by Bernard Schubert, playwright. The story is laid in Shanghai and San Francisco before the fire and deals with a physical brute of a man with the soul of an artist—a vigorous type of characterization. Schubert wrote the script of "The Reckoner," Dix's current picture.

THE BAROMETER

REPORTS OF RESULTS AT THE BOX OFFICE

. . . AS TOLD BY . . . EXHIBITORS THEMSELVES

COLUMBIA

The Fighting Sheriff, Buck Jones—Jones brings them in. This one is about on a par with his others.—J. R. Ullman, Orpheum, Ada, Minn.

The Last Parade, Jack Holt—My patrons all liked this one as they all like Jack Holt. A good picture.—J. M. Black, New, Cherryville, N. C.

Desert Vengeance, Buck Jones—Play this if your patrons like Buck, for he knows how to put 'em over.—J. M. Black, New, Cherryville, N. C.

FOX

Man Who Came Back, Chas. Farrell, Janet Gaynor—Just fair. A type of picture not suited to these stars.—George G. Baker, Strand, Britton, South Dakota.

Just Imagine, El Brendel—Very good. A little different from average run of pictures.—George G. Baker, Strand, Britton, S. D.

Girls Demand Excitement — A mighty thin plot. Studious boys plot to keep girls out of their college. However, the girls play sex appeal on them in a deciding basket ball game and the boys lose. However, believe it or not, it went over in great style and pleased practically 100 per cent.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Not Exactly Gentlemen — Poor title with worse advertising. The 11 x 14's on this are exceptionally poor. But anyhow I had a good crowd on it and the picture pleased immensely. It has a "land opening" rush that is certainly impressive. The picture ends up satisfactorily with intense action up to the last. Get 'em in somehow on this picture for it will sure please.—J. W. Crabtree, Clarendon, Ark.

M-G-M

Gentlemen's Fate, John Gilbert—Good acting by everyone makes this an interesting picture.—J. R. Ullman, Orpheum, Ada, Minn.

The Prodigal, Lawrence Tibbett.—A great show with some good singing. Had many compliments on this one.—J. R. Ullman, Orpheum, Ada, Minn.

Parlor, Bedroom and Bath, Buster Keaton—A good comedy except the last reel or two. Too much silly love making.—J. R. Ullman, Orpheum, Ada, Minn.

Men of the North — Played this Saturday night as I thought it would be good Saturday type picture. However, it was a mighty poor production. Had a terrible avalanche in the picture. It would have taken a tom cat about two minutes to have gotten out of it. Pleased about 30 per cent.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

PARAMOUNT

Anybody's War, Moran & Mack—Fair business but not a picture that will repeat second night—Gatie Black, Liberty, Red Rock, Tex.

Santa Fe Trail, Richard Arlen—Eugene Pallette always brings any picture out of the hole. Extra good.—Gatie Black, Liberty, Red Rock, Tex.

Follow Through, Charles Rogers—This picture pleased our customers better than any picture we have run to date. Sound extra good on disc.—Gatie Black, Liberty, Red Rock, Tex.

Fighting Caravans, Gary Cooper—This picture will please any western fan and most of the others. Business was not what it should have been because of the depression.—Gatie Black, Liberty, Red Rock, Tex.

RKO-PATHE

Lonely Wives, Edward E. Horton—An extra good comedy. Plenty of laughs. Good supporting cast. Play it.—J. M. Black, New, Cherryville, N. C.

RADIO

Millie, Helen Twelvetrees—Very fine picture that pleased.—George Baker, Britton, S. D.

Bachelor Apartment, Lowell Sherman—A very fine picture. Sherman a star.—George G. Baker, Strand, Britton, So. Dak.

Kept Husband—A very good evening's entertainment. — George G. Baker, Strand, Britton, So. Dak.

STATE RIGHTS

The White Renegade — Very good.—S. Hayashino, Lincoln Theatre, Stockton, Calif.

Chiselers of Hollywood — A fair picture. — S. Hayashino, Lincoln Theatre, Stockton, Calif.

NOTICE

TO THE TRADE!

Exhibitors throughout the United States made money in playing Columbia pictures. There isn't a showman who can honestly say that he hasn't done far better with Columbia than any other product. And Mr. Exhibitor we can promise you that the future is as bright for those wise exhibitors who continue to follow the path of prosperity with Columbia. This is ONE company that has never disappointed you with stars, directors or stories.

LET PAST PERFORMANCES GUIDE YOU

To Properly Sell Films It Is Necessary to Make Use of

NEW MERCHANDISING METHODS

Says JOE BRANDT

WITH talking pictures no longer a novelty and competition among the small exhibitors as keen as among the large circuits, new merchandising methods and greater selling effort is needed to bring the public into the theatre today, than ever before. Pictures have become a commodity as well as an entertainment and as such must be handled in the same way as any other merchandise in order to insure adequate returns.

The old ballyhoo has given way to the highly specialized methods of advertising and exploitation of Big Business. Take the department store for an example. A bargain may lie for months on the counter, prominently displayed under the public's eye, but it does not become a bargain to the customer until it is forcibly brought to his attention by advertising in the newspapers, by circulars or by signs. In a similar manner great pictures may play to empty seats unless the exhibitor brings them forcefully to the attention of his potential audience.

Eternal Force Needed

So numerous are the attractions demanding the time of his community, that a showman cannot leave the choice of his particular type of entertainment to chance. He must control the choice by the influence of a positive external force. The radio, lectures, clubs, the stage, miniature athletic developments, all tend to draw away his trade. It is true that he now offers better film productions than ever and that pictures are the ideal popular entertainment. But though his success is obviously preordained he must realize that his competition is not negligible. The average citizen must be led to his theatre. If left alone the chances are that he will choose some other attraction or stay at home. If he does go to the movies he may not choose your theatre. He must, therefore, be led to your box office by judicious advertising and exploitation.

The smaller exhibitor has never before had as great an opportunity to build up his business as the present day offers. He is on a closer personal footing with the people of his community. Unfortunately many a showman fails to realize the importance of advertising and regards it as an item of unnecessary expense or a necessary evil.

Suppose we look at it this way. Advertising instead of being an expense is an investment which, if carefully used, will return many times the initial outlay in box office receipts. Many showmen are wont to consider a picture sufficiently publicized by the marquee lights and an elaborate lobby display. They forget that such exploitation at its best can reach only the people who happen to pass the theatre. The rest of the community—all potential patrons—are left completely in the dark, whereas for a negligible charge such an exhibitor can secure sufficient exploitation material from his distributor to blanket the community. In this way, with outdoor displays, posted at a distance from the theatre, with tabloids, heralds and similar advertising novelties distributed in the neighborhood houses, and other exploitation methods more fully discussed later in the article, a strong bid can be made for the patronage of every person in the district.

A thought that seldom occurs to the exhibitor is that in spite of any business depression that may exist in the town, good business comes to his theatre when he has good pictures properly merchandised. When a production does not go across, the fault in the majority of cases does not lie with the feature but with the exhibitor because he failed to sell his attraction to his prospective customers.

Too many exhibitors try to see how little advertising they can get away with. This is just as foolish as covering a $10,000 home with a $500 fire insurance policy. The only person such a shortsighted individual fools is himself.

The history of this industry contains many examples of pictures that were considered great only because the advertising back of them made them great, whereas many potential box office bets "laid eggs" because no advertising was put in back of them. Too many exhibitors will get back of a picture only when it has cost them a lot of money and because they want to insure their investment, whereas other product, equally good in quality has been allowed to die merely because the exhibitor didn't have to hock his coat and vest in order to get money enough to pay the prices demanded for it.

Today more than ever Columbia surrounds each one of its productions with every possible selling aid. It has always been the company's policy to work hand in hand with the exhibitor in helping him put the picture over and in devising new methods of merchandising his product. A permanent staff of exploiteers paves the way for a ready-made audience. While it is obviously impossible to provide every exhibitor with an exploiteer, work done by these men in key centers attracts such great attention that the subsequent run exhibitor throughout the territory obtains direct benefit.

It is no idle boast too that Columbia pictures are surrounded by the widest line of novelties in the industry. Although we have had to stand an increase in price of our accessories, it was not passed on to the exhibitor. Our attitude has always been to do everything we could to encourage showmen to use enough advertising on each picture to insure its making money for them. That, to us, is of supreme importance, because if theatres prosper with Columbia product, they will be satisfied users and will keep on buying Columbia product.

In line with this policy Columbia is now developing a hardly touched field of exploitation, reaching almost the entire American audience through its shopping mediums and that is, the tie-up stills. It has awakened the exhibitor to the realization that he is no longer sufficient unto himself, but that he needs the co-operation of every business man in his community. He can get this co-operation by using the exploitation material which Columbia has pioneered in this industry. Grocers for example, will be glad to display the tie-up stills and mounts which not only advertise the pictures, stars and theatre, but also advertise the merchandise which they have to sell. The same is true of innumerable lines of business which we have tied up with our pictures. In this way both the exhibitor and the merchant benefit.

A Good Example

A forceful illustration of what advertising really can do recently occurred in a certain town in the South, and because one of our pictures was involved, it was of tremendous interest to me when I listened to the story told by the exhibitor in question. A little over a year ago, a man who had no previous experience in this business, invested his money in an abandoned theatre. He had been a newspaper and advertising man. Perhaps it was this lack of experience which caused him to venture in where others feared to tread, because his opposition was a powerful circuit that had erected a beautiful theatre. This circuit, however, worked on the budget system, which left the manager of the house powerless to exploit his theatre properly. This former newspaper and advertising man opened up his doors in such a way that people for several miles around knew that there was a second theatre in that particular town. The circuit house had bought all the product it had considered desirable, that there was plenty of product left for the newcomer. As an advertising man he knew the value of exploitation, and he made everyone of his pictures loom up as an important production. His advertising outlay frequently represented as much of an outlay as the cost of the picture itself, and because he was such a live advertiser, the people of his community obtained the impression that even though the opposition house was more modern, the smaller theatre showed the better pictures, reacting to the old theory that if you hear a thing often enough you believe it to be true.

Within a month the house showed a profit and continued to show a profit each week. The climax came when the exhibitor played one of the pictures in Columbia's line-up against a picture which the big circuit theatre was showing. This opposition attraction had been generally acclaimed one of the greatest of box office bets, yet the newcomer outgrossed his opposition on a three-day engagement. A few days later, as he told it, two men from the real estate department of the big circuit called on him and made him a proposition which he would have been insane to refuse, and so he sold out.

There is a moral back of that incident. It is this: It's not bad business that's hurting the box office, but bad advertising. Make each picture loom up sufficiently attractive to the ticket buyer, and even though it may mean that he'll wear that well-worn pair of shoes a little longer, he'll spend that money at your box office.

GOUDAL RETURNS

Former Star to Appear in Rogers' Film

Hollywood — Jetta Goudal is making a comeback in pictures. She has been signed by the Fox Film Corporation to play a featured part in Will Rogers' picture, "The Plutocrat". The film will be an adaptation of the Booth Tarkington story, which was also a stage play. Many of the scenes are laid in Egypt.

Several months ago Miss Goudal retired from the screen to become an interior decorator. However, the opportunity to act in a Rogers' picture was sufficiently interesting to lure her back to the movies.

Ann Harding Starts

Culver City — Ann Harding, after completing a 4,000-mile air trip in her new monoplane, has returned to RKO-Pathe studios in Culver City to start work on "Devotion," which is the tentative screen title for the Pamela Wynne novel, "A Little Flat in the Temple" and will be directed by Robert Milton, according to an announcement by Charles R. Rogers, RKO-Pathe production head.

RKO—75 Minutes

Cast: Richard Dix Jackie Cooper, Marion Shilling, Frank Sheridan, Boris Karloff, Dick Rush, Fred Kelsey, Richard Alexander, Harry Tenbrook, Wilfred Lucas, Phil Sleeman, Bob Wilber, Charles Sullivan. Directed by Fred Niblo.

Based on Rex Beach's novel, "Big Brother," this opus gets away from the ordinary underworld story. Dix as a hard boiled killer discovers he has a soft heart for the waif of his pal left in his care when the father is knocked off. Jackie Cooper as the waif with hard boiled ideas and a desire to grow up to be like his adopted big brother, is taken to a reform school and promised his release when Dix quits the racket to go straight. Dix finds that it requires more nerve to go straight than otherwise but his devotion to the boy helps him win against long odds. Dix gives a cracker jack performance and Jackie Cooper wins new laurels in a decidedly different role. The names in themselves spell box office, the picture should prove a decided smash.—Warren Stokes.

SELLING SEATS: Capitalize on Dix as the star of "Cimarron" and Jackie Cooper of "Skippy" fame. Don't overlook its human appeal to every father and mother. Tell the women folks to bring their crying towels.

Svengali

Warner Bros.—76 Minutes

Cast: John Barrymore, Marian Marsh, Bramwell Fletcher, Carmel Meyers, Lumsden Hare, Donald Crisp, Luis Alberini and Paul Porcasi. Directed by Archie Mayo.

Here is another triumph for Barrymore in a flawless performance with a very good supporting cast in a picture that holds interest to the final fadeout. He plays the part of a slovenly composer and pianist who has uncanny hypnotic powers over women. With this power he induces Trilby (Marion Marsh) to forsake her English sweetheart and go away with him. Under his influence she becomes a famous prima donna. Her sweetheart learns the truth of the matter and attempts to free her from Svengali's power. The climax comes while Svengali is leading an orchestra in Cairo and while Trilby is singing under his hypnotic influence he suddenly dies and she gives up her life with him.

No pains have been spared to make this a masterpiece, and the sets and photography are in excellent keeping with the story. While it may be termed as a class production it contains enough general appeal to get over anywhere.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Sell the star above all else. Get tie-ups with music teachers and singing societies. Play up the hypnotic angle in a discreet manner. Local newspapers should willingly co-operate on the question, "Can you be hypnotized?"

Up Pops the Devil

Paramount—70 Minutes

Cast: Norman Foster, Carol Lombard, Skeets Gallagher, Lilyau Tashman, Theodore Von Eltz, Joyce Compton, Stuart Erwin; Harry Beresford, Eulalie Jensen. Directed by Eddie Sutterland.

Amusing comedy-drama of a young budding author who is deeply in love with a girl who wants him to succeed. A stipulation in their marriage provides that in case either of them is dissatisfied with married life within a year they should separate.

The girl is so anxious for the boy to succeed that she persuades him to give up his regular position and devote his entire time to writing a novel, she to be the bread-winner meanwhile. He becomes dissatisfied with the idea of keeping house and after a quarrel leaves her.

In the intermin a former admirer of the girl, who is a friend of both of them, persuades her to marry him. However, when the moment arrives for the boy and the girl to really part, she discloses her secret, that a child is to be born, and they are reunited.

The picture has an intriguing plot, fine direction and is excellently cast. There are some good comedy situations and snappy dialogue. Norman Foster and Carol Lombard in the leading roles give splendid interpretations. Skeets Gallagher and Lilyan Tashman supply much real comedy, as do Stuart Erwin, Harry Beresford and Eulalie Jensen and a colored man who is very much like Stepin Fetchit.—H. F.

SELLING SEATS: Play up the story from the standpoint of entertainment above everything. Feature the well-balanced cast. As an effective advertising stunt distribute balloons with devils printed on them.

Ships of Hate

Monogram

First of Monogram's action melodramas reviewed in Hollywood prior to final cutting evidences plenty of well-motivated action and suspense. With excellent direction and a closely woven plot, the finished product is bound to be a piece of merchandise of which Monogram can feel justly proud. Lloyd Hughes, Charles Middleton and Dorothy Sebastian give finished performances. This picture undoubtedly will establish standard for independent field.—Stokes.

Daddy Long Legs

Fox—73 Minutes

Cast: Janet Gaynor, Warner Baxter, Una Merkel, John Arledge, Claude Gillingwater, Edwin Maxwell, Kathlyn Williams, Louise Closser Hale. Directed by Alfred Santell.

The popular story of the stage, screen and fiction returns as a talkie co-starring Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter. The picture is an intensely human tale and one of the most lovable stories ever filmed.

The story being well known to many we won't go into much detail concerning the plot. It is a delightful love story with a vivid portrayal of life in an orphanage. Janet Gaynor is cast as Judy Abbott, the orphan who was adopted by Jervis Pendleton, the wealthy bachelor (played by Warner Baxter).

Baxter does commendable work in a new type of role. Gaynor is delightful in her part and portrays the spirited rebel orphan in a way that wins the hearts of the audience. The remainder of the cast do good work in their respective roles. It is a picture for the entire family.—H. F.

SELLING SEATS: Tie up with schools and libraries as a picture they shouldn't miss after reading the book. Feature two popular stars in one picture. Hire a man to walk the streets on stilts with a sign advertising "Daddy Long Legs" at your theatre.

Short Subjects

Water Bugs

RKO—10 Minutes

Very interesting reel of the Grantland Rice Sportlight series showing Johnny Weismuller doing some extraordinary swimming and diving stunts. The reel is timely for the season. An underwater boxing match is the main feature. Pretty bathing girls are also in the picture.—G.

Wine, Women, But No Song

Columbia—11 Minutes

Eddie Buzzell is practically the whole show in this reel. Some of the gags are pretty clever, others just fairly amusing. Eddie masquerades as a butler in a girl's apartment to help her out when her uncle visits. As usual, all sorts of complications take place. Finally everything is straightened out. The reel is fair entertainment.—B. W.

Ambitious People

M-G-M—17 Minutes

Here's an excellent two-reeler of comedy and music. Herman Timberg, of course, supplies most of the show. Barbara Blair is very good as the chief feminine interest. The vocal finale is done exceptionally well.—G.

He Was Her Man

Paramount—15 Minutes

This is a real entertaining short for the Gilda Gray fans. The reel is a combination of dancing, music and melodrama, all in a manner that ought to please generally. And how Gilda can shimmy. Many people will be attracted by her name. So feature that on your program.—J. S.

Two Title Changes

Hollywood — Two changes of titles are announced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Joan Crawford's new starring film, formerly called "Girls Together," will be released as "This Modern Age," while Ramon Novarro's new picture, which had been known as "The Son of Rajah," is re-titled "Son of India." Nicholas Grinde directed "This Modern Age," while the Novarro starring film was directed by Jacques Feyder, French director now under contract to M-G-M.

EXCESSIVE PROTECTION A WASTE

EXCESSIVE protection demands by first run houses are again looming as a bugaboo to the subsequent run houses. It was thought that this matter was settled last year in most sections of the country by the adoption of the zoning plan sponsored by C. C. Pettijohn of the Film Boards of Trade. Pettijohn is opposed to granting long protection time to circuit houses as are leaders of the exhibitor organizations.

First run houses are blaming the drop in business to short protection time. They claim that they suffer a big loss in patronage when people decide to wait three or four weeks and see the same films for from 40 to 50 per cent less admission. That may affect their attendance some, but we'll wager that it is slight. Those people who make it a habit to go downtown for their motion picture entertainment don't let price figure into the matter. They like to see their films first and usually make it a practice to take in a downtown show once or twice a week. The younger set and transients, of course, figure heavily among first run patronage. And here the attraction and not the protection determines the attendance.

First run houses by virtue of the rentals they pay for the privilege of having the first showings of pictures deserve a fair amount of protection over subsequent runs. First run showings, because of the advertising the large houses generally give them, have a value to the subsequent runs. But that advertising loses its value when the subsequent run houses are forced to wait too long for play dates.

The majority of the circuit houses that seek longer protection are producer-controlled. Granting that too little protection would cut into the receipts of these circuit houses, the admitted shorter life of the talking production as compared to the silent film makes it expedient that all bookings be completed at a faster rate. In other words, it is to the producer's advantage to not permit excessive protection.

Too, it would seem that the percentage booking system would dictate in favor of short protection time. With subsequent run houses gaining from a closer follow up to the first run advertising that is done producers will gain proportionately in their share of the increased grosses.

Consider Group Buying

At Northwest Allied Convention to be Held in Minneapolis on September 9-10.

Group buying of pictures will be one of the principal topics of discussion at the Northwest Allied unit's next convention in Minneapolis, September 9 and 10.

W. A. Steffes, manager of the association, is now formulating a plan for a theatre-buying circuit and will put up the proposition to the body for acceptance or rejection at the September meeting.

A widespread demand for group buying is now making itself felt among Northwestern independent exhibitors, according to Steffes. More than 50 exhibitors have been in his office during the past three weeks urging such a circuit, he asserts.

The matter of group picture buying also was brought up at the last Allied convention in Minneapolis, but officers expressed the view then that the time was not fully ripe for it yet.

More Theatres to Close For Summer

Percentage This Year May be 30 per cent or More; Publix Plans No Closings.

Due to depressed conditions, more theatres in the territory will close down during a part of the present summer than ever before at similar times of the year, according to present indications.

Reports being received in Minneapolis indicate that in towns of less than 1,000 population particularly, shut-downs are becoming quite general. Rather than operate at a loss, smaller exhibitors say they prefer to keep their houses dark over the heated spell, reopening in September or October.

SEEKS BACK RENT

Bainbridge Players Owe $37,117 on Lease

A judgment of $37,117 for unpaid rent was returned in district court against the Bainbridge Players, Inc., lessees of the Shubert Theatre and operators of a dramatic stock company there for a number of years. The judgment was in favor of the Red River Lumber Co., owners of the theatre. The Bainbridge stock company is practically the only survivor of the flesh-and-blood spoken drama in Minneapolis, excluding the handful of touring roadshows that visit the city each season. The talkies have cut deeply into the flesh-and-blood spoken drama in Minneapolis as well as everywhere else throughout the country.

Birth Picture

"No More Children," sensational birth control film, is having its initial Twin City release at the Shubert Theatre, Minneapolis, this week, and indications point to exceptionally heavy business. The picture is distributed in the Northwest by the Triangle Film Co., Minneapolis, of which A. W. Nicoll is manager.

Uptown House

A new uptown theatre has been opened by W. Folk in Minneapolis. The house is elaborately decorated and is equipped with the new deluxe Ultraphone sound-on-film equipment.

This Show Business

By M. E. CUFFEL, Editor

WHILE the theatrical industry has started to feel the depression, it is still considerably closer to normal than most lines of business, according to all the evidence at hand in Minneapolis. It may bring at least a particle of cheer to exhibitors to realize that they are better off than the majority of merchants and manufacturers and that, perhaps, the show game isn't such a bad business after all.

If the depression had not extended beyond its anticipated length, the show business might never have felt it, appreciably, at all. It is only during the past month or so that the theatres have started suffering severely. With the end not yet in sight and the last stages being drawn out indefinitely, such luxury lines as the theatrical at last must take a dose of the medicine which other industries have been swallowing for more than a year.

Leading economists now feel confident that trade recovery will start by next fall at the latest. If that is the case, showhouses should emerge from the period of hard times

DISTRICT MANAGER

Deubach to Have Wisconsin RKO Unit

Milwaukee, Wis. — J. William Deubach, for the past three months manager of RKO's Riverside and Palace-Orpheum Theatres here, has been named district manager for the circuit in Wisconsin. Mr. Deubach's territory includes four houses in Madison, one in Racine and two in Milwaukee. Before joining RKO, Mr. Deubach was with Fox-Midwesco in Milwaukee for four years.

Lawrence Shedd, formerly manager of the RKO Theatre in Fort Wayner, Ind., has been named manager of the circuit's Palace Theatre here. He succeeds Earl Payne who is manager of Warners' Capitol Theatre in Chicago.

"Seed" Scores Heavily at Orpheum Box Office

Asher — Too Young to Marry (First National), Loretta Young and Grant Withers. Business: Fair. Summary: Clean and wholesome comedy-drama for all members of the family; slow in spots, but generally amusing, dealing with a typical small-town family and its troubles. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, serial.

Century—Dirigible (Columbia), Jack Holt and Ralph Graves. Business: Light. Summary: This thrilling and sensational picture concerning a dirigible flight to the South Pole was roadshowed here at $1.50 pirces; sure to please everybody. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Silly Symphony and travel film.

Grand — Drums of Jeopardy (Tiffany), Warner Oland, June Collyer and Lloyd Hughes. Business: Fair. Summary: An exciting and spine-chilling murder drama. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Lyric—Kiki (United Artists), Mary Pickford. Business: Fair. Summary: The amusing story of a hoydenish showgirl who wins the heart of a wealthy theatrical producer. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Minneapolis (week ending May 29)—The hot weather hurt business the past week. The best box-office showing was made by "Seed" at the RKO Orpheum. Acclaimed by the critics and patrons, this picture attracted large audiences. Matinee trade was especially good. "Dirigible" made a big hit with the reviewers and those who came to see it at the Century, but the $1.50 prices and the hot weather held down the crowds. "The Secret Six," at the Minnesota, was well liked and drew fairly well.

MILWAUKEE

(Week Ending May 21)

Alhambra — The Secret Six (M-G-M), Wallace Beery and Lewis Stone. Business: Good. Summary: One of the better types of gangster films with a well-rounded cast. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Slim Summerville comedy, Oswald Cartoon, Universal Newsreel.

Garden—The Millionaire (Warner Bros.), George Arliss and Florence Arliss. Business: Good. Summary: A comedy with extremely light material masterfully played. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Looney Tune comedy, Paramount newsreel.

Majestic — The Naughty Flirt (First National), Alice White and Paul Page. Business: Fair. Summary: If you like Alice White this picture should prove good entertainment. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Newsreel.

Palace—Kismet (First National), Otis Skinner and Loretta Young. Business: Fair. Summary: A picture which keeps one guessing with Skinner playing his role well. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: "Golf," Johnny Farrel, Havana Casino, orchestra specialty; RKO news.

Riverside—One Night at Susie's (First National), Billie Dove and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Business: Fair. Summary: A rather slow-moving melodrama with only a flair for acting by members of the cast. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville.

Strand — Strangers May Kiss (M-G-M), Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery. Business: Good. Summary: A picture with some fine dramatic bits, excellenty acted. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Charlie Chase comedy, Fox Movietone news.

Wisconsin — Kick In (Paramount), Clara Bow and Regis Toomey. Business: Good. Summary: A fair piece with the "it" girl toned down considerably. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Paul Ash in person, Fanchon & Marco Idea, Fox Movietone News.

MERCHANTS' NIGHT

Innovation at Alamo, New London, Ia.

New London, Ia. — With the opening of the newly remodeled and re-equipped Alamo Theatre here, an innovation known as "merchants' night" has been inaugurated. Hitherto, New London, in common with many other communities, has put on a band concert once a week during the summer months. This season, however, the concerts will be abandoned and, instead, the business men will have their friends and customers as their guests at the Alamo Theatre every Wednesday night. The theatre box-office will remain closed for the three shows Wednesday nights and admission will be only by tickets issued by the merchants. E. Bell, Jr., is the manager of the theatre and put over the tie-up.

Correction

Hollywood—Radio Pictures will film "The Sphinx Has Spoken" from the noel of the same title by Maurice de Kobra. "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" is an entirely different novel and is to be filmed by another motion picture company.

Summer Closing

Ordinarily from 15 to 20 per cent of the independents in the smaller towns close for several weeks or months during the summer. This year it is believed that, owing especially to the poor times, the percentage may rise to 30 per cent and over.

Because of the extremely low price of agricultural products the territory is especially hard hit. Buying power is far below normal. At that, the theatre business continues to hold up better than the vast majority of other lines, surveys show.

Up to this time, Publix has not decided upon any wholesale closing of its theatres throughout Minnesota and the Dakotas. Present plans, in fact, are to keep as many of the houses open as possible and, it is stated, these plans will not be revised unless conditions become much worse than at present. Grosses have slumped considerably in recent weeks, but operating losses thus far have been held to a minimum over the Publix Northwest circuit, it is learned.

The large number of lake resorts, wonderful roads and scenic highways and public and private golf courses provide unusually stiff opposition for the Northwest Theatres during the summer months.

Breese on Air

The abundant and diverse publicity on Lou Breese, Orchestral conductor and master of ceremonies at the Minnesota Theatre, Minneapolis, was furthered last week when he appeared on a special WRHM radio program. He was interviewed over the air by a reporter asking him questions concerning his colorful career. The radio interview was one of a series of such broadcasts featuring prominent Minneapolis persons in business, professional and artistic vocations. Breese was tied into the series by the Minnesota Theatre press department.

Close Majestic

Milwaukee, Wis. — Following the showing of Columbia's "Dirigible" on the reserved seat policy twice daily L. K. Brin will close his Majestic Theatre here about June 8. The house has been operated by Brin for the past three years and prior to that was an Orpheum circuit vaudeville house for 22 years. The house will remain dark until at least September 1, it was stated. Mr. Brin also operates the Garden Theatre, local first run.

Sign Medbury

Universal City — Universal has engaged John P. Medbury, prominent newspaper humorist and radio star for a forthcoming series of two-reel featurettes called "Dangerous Jobs."

Willmar Election

that their own town is at a decided disadvantage. Every Sunday a large number of Willmar residents travel to these surrounding towns to attend the theatres. One of the arguments being advanced is that the money should be kept at home.

A number of exchange managers from Minneapolis have visited Willmar during the past few weeks, making election speeches.

Arthur Mayer, Publix middlewest divisional director, was in Minneapolis and St. Paul last week, inspecting the local offices and theatres. Another Twin City theatrical visitor was E. M. Glucksman, director of RKO theatres, from New York City. He, too, is on an inspection tour.

without a great deal of further financial suffering. Under any circumstances, summer always is a comparatively dull period for the show business. Many theatres will close down during the next few months and thus save losses and whet the appetite of their publics for screen entertainment next fall.

It is encouraging to note that distributors of sound equipment and cooling and ventilating plants in the territory still are reporting brisk business and that failures of movie houses have been few and far between up to this time.

New Two-Operator Bill in Wisconsin

Madison, Wis. — Following the withdrawal from the assembly of a bill which would require one motion picture machine operator for each projector, a somewhat similar measure has been introduced into the senate.

The measure introduced into the senate provides that a projectionist over 21 years must be in charge of each machine in theatres in cities of over 3,000 in population. This specification was not made in the assembly bill.

The Grobschmidt joint resolution to submit the question of repealing Wisconsin's "blue law" against Sunday amusements to a referendum at the November, 1932, election has been adopted by the assembly and sent to the senate.

Gentlemen:

I want to compliment Columbia Pictures Corporation, its offices, also the local Exchange, for the service we have received during the past season, and the class of pictures made by this company.

Out of the thirteen pictures we have played we gave Columbia Pictures a large overage on ten. This speaks quite well for the product released.

Columbia Pictures executives, most of whom I know personally, are capable men. They have proven to the exhibitor that they can make good pictures. Columbia Pictures has the respect and confidence of the leading exhibitors, both large and small, throughout the country. This is a valuable asset and should be treated as such.

I hope for the coming season that Columbia will stand out as it has in the past year, shoulder to shoulder with all the biggest companies in the producing field. Some of your pictures in the past season, from a box office angle, have exceeded some of the leading pictures produced by other companies.

Very truly yours,

Columbia Announces 26 for Distribution in 1931-32

Program Also Includes 104 Short Subjects and Two Series of Outdoor Action Dramas.

New York — With the name of Columbia firmly entrenched on Broadway and throughout the country and a new era in its history beginning as a result of its greatly enlarged production and distribution activities, the company offers for the coming year an impressive line-up of 26 major productions to be known as "The Showmanship Group," supplemented by two series of outdoor action dramas, 104 shorts and eight vehicles produced in foreign language in the United States, for foreign distribution. A tremendous sum has been appropirated to bring this pretentious program to the screen.

Because of the great audience and box-office demand for several stars and directors now under the Columbia banner a number of productions built around these personalities will be included in the group of 26 major productions.

Listed among these productions are: Two vehicles starring Barbara Stanwyck, three productions starring Jack Holt alone, one feature co-starring Holt and Ralph Graves, and one super-feature to be offered as a Frank Capra production.

Barbara Stanwyck is to star in four pictures on the new program. The first of these will be "Shop Worn," which Frank Capra will direct.

Two Edgar Wallace stories are on the new season's schedule as well as two by Ursulla Parrott. The latter two are: "Love Affair" and "Secrets of Reno."

Title of Rupert Hughes' "The Rented Body," over which there is said to have been considerable discussion between Columbia and the Hays office, is being changed to "The Artist's Model." Fannie Hurst will supply "Vanity Street." Warner Fabian's "The Men in Her Life" is on the list, although cast and director have not been chosen. Jean Harlow is to star in "The Blonde Baby."

Statistics

New York — The Will H. Hays offices have been checking up on the flicker industry. The report shows some interesting figures. According to the latest canvass there are 30,000 persons employed in the studios; 10,000 in the exchanges, and 250,000 in the theatres, making a total of 290,000 men and women earning their livelihood in the field of entertainment.

According to the Hays court there are 21,284 motion picture theatres in the United States with 14,000 wired for sound. Their combined seating capacity is 12,143,761, and more than 100,000,000 persons visit them every week.

Others in the group are: "The Master Mind," "The Guilty Generation" by Joe Milford and J. Kirby Hawks, "The Half-Way Girl" by Hawthorne Hurst, "Then Hell Broke Loose," "The Final Edition," "Hollywood Sparks," "Unwanted" by Bella Muni and Aben Finkel, "The Substitute Wife" by Frank R. Adams, "Zelda Marsh" by Charles G. Norris, and two True Story Magazine adaptations.

In the group of westerns, Tim McCoy is to make eight while Buck Jones will supply the remaining eight.

Short subjects on the new schedule are: Thirteen Mickey Mouse and 13 Silly Symphonies cartoons, to be produced by Walt Disney; 13 Scrappy cartoons, to be produced by Moe Mintz; 13 curiosities and 13 Travelaughs to be made by Walter Futter, the latter featuring description by John P. Medburv; 13 Bedtime Stories starring Eddie Buzzell.

REVERSE SLOPE

Fans May Look Up At Pictures

Hollywood—Instead of looking down at motion pictures as they do now, an audience might some day be looking up at them if an idea presented to the Society of Motion Picture Engineers by Ben Schlander, New York theatre architect, is adopted.

Schlander's plan is to reverse the slope of the theatre floor, making it slant upward to the screen instead of down as it now is. The architect says the sight lines as they are fixed in the present type of theatre cause the spectator to sit with much bodily discomfort and frequently with a distorted view of the screen. Schlander said:

"Persons sitting on the orchestra floor must tilt their heads backward to see the screen. In the balcony, the seat angle makes it necessary for the patron to pitch his body forward. Study has shown that it is impossible to correct these faults without entirely disregarding the present theatre form and creating a new one."

76 ONE-REELERS

New Product Announced by Educational

Hollywood — Seventy-six subjects will comprise the Educational 1931-32 one-reel lineup, it is announced by E. W. Hammons.

Twenty-six Terry-Toons are planned, this series having developed into one of the most popular cartoon series on the market. The same trio that started the Terry-Toons, namely, Frank Moser and Paul Terry, as creators, and Phil A. Scheib, as musical director, will continue on the new group.

Thirteen Romantic Journeys will be produced by Brown and Nagel for release by Educational next season. "Honeymoon Land" and "Cross Roads," the first two in the series, were pre-released during the current season.

There will be twelve Mack Sennett Brevities, photographed via Sennett's own color process. The series will again combine novelty and beauty in vehicles that will be prepared and produced at the Mack Sennett Studios.

A new series of Lyman H. Howe's Hodge Podge, edited by Robert E. Gillaum, will have six subjects next season. Thirteen Cameo Comedies and the six novel subjects which Mack Sennett will make under the brand name of "Cannibals of the Deep," complete the program of seventy-six.

REPLACES HOLT

Huston to Play Role in "Star Witness"

Hollywood — Warner Bros. announces that Walter Huston will play the leading role of the district attorney in "The Star Witness," the story by Lucien Hubbard which is now being prepared for screen production. Mr. Huston's assignment to the role marks a change of plan, the original idea having been to cast Jack Holt in this part.

Theatres Face Admission Tax

As Rumor Floats in Washington That Government Will Make 10 Per Cent Levy.

Washington — A ten per cent tax on theatre admissions throughout the country is said to be part of the government's plan to erase the billion-dollar deficit, according to reports here.

Should the tax be imposed it is estimated that a ten per cent tax would mean the industry and the public would have to carry a burden estimated at $100,000,000 a year. It is even intimated that the government plans to take over the printing of tickets in order to keep a careful check on the receipts.

ADJUSTMENT OF INDUSTRY

Under Way; Bankers Look Upon Retrenchments as a Step Toward Rearrangement.

New York — Wall street looks upon Paramount's announcement of salary modifications and other ecenomic changes in the industry as an indication of general rearrangement in the motion picture field to conform with the general depression. In other words, the film industry is adjusting itself to the current economic order.

Bankers feel that retrenchment moves are temporary, according to The Film Daily, which gives as reasons for this belief the noteworthy manner in which the film industry has stood up in the downward cycle of the last 18 months. Bankers also believe that in due course of time there will be another upward cycle that should not only restore the situation to its last peak, but very likely to exceed it.

Paramount's action in curtailment of overhead is being widely discussed in financial circles as a salutary move that will influence other companies which have not already taken similar steps. Instead of being interpreted as an unfavorable factor, however, the majority of Wall Street commentators are of the opinion that it will strengthen the industry's foundation and place it in line for bigger returns in the next bull swing.

Franchise To Remain

Educational Reported to be Ready to Live Up to Tiffany - Allied Agreement.

New York — The Allied franchise deal with Tiffany will be lived up to by Educational, which recently took over operating control of the former company, it was reported here last week. There has been considerable specualtion over this point as the Tiffany contract with Allied called for the delivery of 26 features each year.

It is understood that E. W. Hammons, president of Educational, has agreed to abide by the Tiffany - Allied agreement, although no official announcement of the Tiffany program for 1931-32 has been made.

PUBLIC OPINION

Effective Censorship on People's Part

New York — Public opinion is the most effective piece of censorship, according to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement in The Motion Picture Monthly, published by the Hays organization.

"No censorship can be so accurate, no censorship can be so effective as the censorship of public opinion," Green declares. He further argues that the screen should be saved from becoming the "medium of class appeal."

"Thoughtless politicians who would impose admission taxes on motion picture theatres should remember two things," he says. "First, additional taxes in any form is no way to remedy depression. Second, while it may appear that it is the theatre that is being taxed, all taxes eventually come from the pockets of the people."

"Sky Devils"

Hollywood — Howard Hughes's air comedy, which is being made as a companion picture to "Hell's Angels," will be released under the title of "Sky Devils." It had been in production as "Ground Hogs."

Hits at Congo

Washington—The Federal Trade Commission has filed a complaint against Congo Pictures, Ltd., charging "false, fraudulent, deceptive and misleading advertising." Congo is the producer of "Ingagi."

The complaint alleges misrepresentation of advertising of African scenes and jungle animals. The officers of the company will be given an opportunity to appear before the commission at a public hearing to deny the accusations. If the commisison finds the defendants guilty, Congo will be compelled to discontinue its present method of advertising.

Gleason Series

Hollywood—James Gleason has started work at RKO-Pathe on the first of a series of six "Rufftown Comedies" based on the popular newspaper feature by Arthur "Bugs" Baer, well-known humorist. "I'm Tellin' Ya" is the title of his initial vehicle, and George Green is directing it.

Admission Prices Now Average of 30 Cents

New York — The general average of admission prices will, in the near future, be 30 cents against a former average of 35 cents, according to a survey of admission scale trends by the Film Boards of Trade. The new average represents a drop of less than 15 per cent in revenues on the basis of price cuts. Some sections expect to make up part of the difference through increased attendance, but the prevailing opinion is that most of the reduction will mean that much lost, although it is believed that industry economies now being placed in effect will offset the most of the 15 per cent drop.

First-run theatres in the larger cities and representing the highest admission scales are comparatively the least inclined to price-cutting.

Final Title

Hollywood — "Laughing Sinners" will be the final title of M-G-M's newly completed picturization of Kenyon Nicholson's play, "Torch Song," which formerly bore the same title as the stage production. This is a Joan Crawford starring vehicle, directed by Harry Beaumont.

NEW SALES PLAN

DeForest Equipment on Easier Scale

New York—A new plan for the marketing of General Talking Pictures' sound equipment is announced by M. A. Schlesinger, president. A similar policy is expected by other concerns, Schlesinger believes.

Under the new plan exhibitors will pay $25 a week for the first three years, $10 weekly for the next three years and for the next four years of the ten-year contract there will be no charge. Exhibitors who have paid more than the $25 rate on DeForst equipment will be given a rebate.

New Competition

New York — The elimination of sponsored shorts by Warners and Paramount may relieve the antagonism against them, but a new possibility for competition now looms. It is reported that a move is under way to extend the exhibition of advertising reels in department stores, schools and hotels. This non-theatrical situation is competition in that the reels are of entertainment value and could be a drain on matinee business when women shoppers can get picture amusement in places other than theatres and at no admission prices.

MUSICAL SHORTS

Paramount to Increase Number of Subjects

New York—Important changes in Paramount's 1931-32 program for short pictures has just been announced at the Paramount New York studio, by Larry Kent, head of short subject production.

The number of musicals is to be largely increased and the number of dialogue pictures proportionately decreased in the short subject schedule for the current season.

"This change in the short picture program was made," said Kent, "because of the predominance of dialogue in Paramount's feature productions. Paramount's program as a whole, therefore, becomes perfectly balanced by increasing the percentage of musicals in short subjects."

The change affects one-reel pictures only. Originally, the year's program called for fifty-two one-reel subjects, of which 12 were to be musical and 40 dialogue pictures. The new program divides the 52 one-reelers into 36 musical and 16 dialogue subjects.

"Our original program of 32 two-reel dialogue pictures for the 1931-32 season will be carried into effect without change," said Kent.

RKO-Pathe Completes Three Star Specials

Hollywood—Three of the twenty-one star specials announced by Ned E. Depinet, vice-president and general sales manager, at the RKO-Pathe convention, have been completed. Two are now in production.

Eddie Quillan's first vehicle of the season, temporarily titled "The Whoop-Te-Do Kid," is the latest of the personality group to be completed. Ina Claire's screen interpretation of her stage success, "Rebound," was completed last week, and Helen Twelvetrees' initial special for the new season, "A Woman of Experience," has already passed through the editorial room. Constance Bennett is in mid-production on "Common Law" and Bill Boyd has started his first scenes for "Iron Chalice."

"The Whoop-Te-Do Kid" is an original story by Lew Lipton who made the screen adaptation. Al Rogell directed. James Gleason is Quillan's chief aide-de-fun and Marion Nixon is leading lady. The cast includes Lew Cody, Paul Hurst, Fred Burton, King Baggott, Lillian Leighton, Billy Sullivan and Mike Donlin.

"Rebound," is Horace Jackson's adaptation of Donald Ogden Stewart's play produced on Broadway by Arthur Hopkins. Edward E. Griffith directed. Robert Williams and Walter Walker, two members of the original cast seen with Miss Claire on the Los Angeles stage, appear in the RKO-Pathe version. Prominent in the cast are Robert Ames, Myrna Loy, Hedda Hopper and Hale Hamilton.

"A Woman of Experience" is an original story by John Farrow who also provided the dialogue. Harry Joe Brown, now associate producer, directed. Miss Twelvetrees is supported by William Bakewell, Lew Cody, H. B. Warner, Zasu Pitts, Franklin Pangborn, Nance O'Neil, George Fawcett and Edward Earle.

"Common Law," Robert W. Chamber's famous novel adapted for the screen by John Farrow, is being directed by Paul L. Stein. Joel McCrea appears opposite Constance Bennett, and the cast includes Lew Cody, Robert Williams, Hedda Hopper, Marion Shilling, and Paul Ellis.

"Iron Chalice," a story by Octavus Roy Cohen, is being directed by Fred Niblo. Bill Boyd is being supported by Dorothy Sebastian.

SHORTS MANAGER

Stanley Waite Heads This Dept. for Paramount

New York—Stanley Waite has been appointed sales manager of short features and news for the Paramount Publix corporation, according to an announcement by S. R. Kent, vice-president in charge of distribution. Mr. Waite was formerly the western divisional sales representative for short features.

STAR RETURNS

Clara Kimball Young in Cruze Picture

Hollywood — Clara Kimball Young, veteran star of the silent screen, will have the leading role in the James Cruze-Tiffany production, "Women Go On Forever," about to go in work under the direction of Walter Lang.

With the exception of a minor role in Radio's "Kept Husbands," this is Miss Young's first part in talking pictures. She is portraying the role of "Daisy Bowman" originated by Mary Roland during the long run of the Daniel N. Rubin play at the Forrest Theatre, New York.

Subway Express, Jack Holt—Holt as a detective chief in this stage thriler. Aileen Pringle miscast in this picture. Fred Kelsey and an unnamed actress as the housewife witness practically steal the picture. Some good comedy. Entire picture in one setting.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Brothers, Bert Lytell—Sure is a good picture. This one will please practically 100 per cent. Had a return engagement on this picture and grossed considerably more than on the first showing in February. Advertising good. Recording on disc wonderfully good in every respect. A clean wholesome picture from every angle.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Aak.

Subway Express, Jack Holt — A fast moving train of laughs and tantalizing mystery. The picture will please all.—William Noble, Liberty, Oklahoma City.

FIRST NATIONAL

Father's Son—This is one of the most satisfying pictures I have played in many years. This one will reach into their hearts and feelings as few productions have the power to do. A perfect production. Continuity good and the story flows smoothly and transfers from comedy to pathos without a break in the action. This picture appeals to them all—from six to sixty. You'll be proud to play it.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Sunny, Marilyn Miller— catchy comedy drama that will sure please in any locality. Plenty of comedy, plenty of dancing and it's plenty good all the way through.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

FOX

The Spy, Neil Hamilton—A great spy picture in which is depicted the greatest of love and sacrifice possible. Everybody seeing this picture well pleased.—The Warner, Oklahoma City, Okla.

M-G-M

Inspiration—Greta Garbo in this picture is O. K., but the picture is of a type and has ending that will dissatisfy, especially in small towns. My crowd the second night on this picture was a frost.—J. W. Crabtree, Clarendon, Ark.

PARAMOUNT

Ladies' Man, William Powell—Fine direction and photography with lavish settings play their part in making this film entertainment of the higher type.—Criterion, Oklahoma City.

RADIO

Hook, Line and Sinker, Wheeler-Woolsey—The comedians in a fair comedy. Too many of these kind are not good.—Ray Thomas, Community, Clear Lake, Wis.

Kept Husbands, Dorothy Mackaill —Business the best in several weeks. Picture has good title and carries interest well through the picture.—Henry Kimmel, Rialto, Atlanta, Ga.

The W Plan, English cast—Something different in war pictures and worthy of any theatre running it. Had a good tie-up on it with the American Legion. Good business in warm weather.—Henry Kimmel, Rialto, Atlanta, Ga.

Cracked Nuts, Wheeler-Woolsey. —Pleased everyone. Big business all week. — Criterion, Oklahoma City.

Behind Office Doors—Used regular heralds on this picture. Had printed on them "For Adults Only." This picture not suitable for children or foxy grandpas with high blood pressure. The heralds are pretty hot looking. Picture drew a good crowd second night.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

RKO-PATHE

Painted Desert, Wm. Boyd.—A high class production that pleased all seeing it. Had plenty of action, scenery, pep and energy. Would bear up well for return date.—Midwest Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla.

UNIVERSAL

Seed, John Boles—Heart throbbing drama with Genevieve Tobin and Lois Wilson. The picture was big, and also was the crowds. Midwest Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Outside the Law—Edw. G. Robinson is known as "Little Caesar" in this town and his performance in "Little Caesar" helped this picture. Mary Nolan gives a creditable performance. The little boy in the picture is also very good. Recording on disc fair.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

WARNER BROS.

Doorway to Hell, Lew Ayres—A great picture with a good cast. If they were all like this we couldn't kick.—Ray Thomas, Community, Clear Lake, Wis.

Sit Tight, Joe E. Brown and Winnie Lightner—It was twice as funny as the funniest. Everybody seeing the picture will like it. No disappointments guaranteed. Capitol Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Candy Kisses Exploit "Strangers May Kiss"

A NOVEL exploitation campaign which included the distributing of candy kisses, was used by Arthur Catlin, manager of the Loew's Stillman Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio, as part of the extensive campaign he used to put over his showing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Strangers May Kiss." He was assisted by an M-G-M exploiteer.

Catlin arranged to have four attractive young ladies, attired in black velvet page costumes with black tams and white ribbon sashes across chest and back reading "Strangers May Kiss," distribute bags of candy on the downtown streets. The bags contained copy reading, "Kisses For Every One With a Pair of Red Lips—Enjoy These Sweet Kisses, then see Norma Shearer in 'Strangers May Kiss' at Loew's Stillman."

Arrangements were also made to have two young ladies carry black umbrellas with copy painted in white letters, who were stationed at the two main entrances of the baseball park where the Chicago and Cleveland teams were opening the season. These two young ladies were also used at the Public Hall, where the American Legion were staging a big fight program.

Tags Exploit "Public Enemy"

ONE of the exploitation stunts worked in connection with the run of "The Public Enemy" at the Stacy Theatre, in Trenton, N. J., was the distribution of a bright yellow tag. On it was printed:

> "Last year 17 people were killed and 502 were injured by motor vehicles in Trenton. Be careful—Don't be 'A Public Enemy.' You won't want to be one after you've seen 'The Public Enemy' at the Stacy Theatre."

The tags were widely distributed and, of course, were attached to hundreds of parked motor cars. Incidentally, it was approved of by the motor clubs. The campaign introducing the gang play designed to put an end to all gangs was particularly effective for the picture had the banner opening of the season at the Stacy.

Free Trips Offered by Railroad

THROUGH a tie-up with the Northern Pacific railroad, the RKO Orpheum Theatre, Minneapolis, is giving away a free vacation trip to Seattle, good for two persons, with all expenses, including meals and a room at the Hotel Seattle for a week, paid. The stunt costs the theatre nothing. All the railroad receives from it is screen and lobby advertising. To exploit the free trip, the theatre has an exceptionally fine lobby display, including a miniature train with sound effects. Posters, trailers and handbills also are used to tell about the chances given away with Orpheum tickets.

Publix has a similar stunt for its theatre outside the Twin Cities. Their tie-up also is with the Northern Pacific railroad and they are giving away fre vacation trips to Yellow Stone Park at no expense to themselves. As in the case of the Seattle trip, the transportation and other items are provided gratis by the railroad in return for screen and lobby advertising.

More About the Children

By William Jacobs

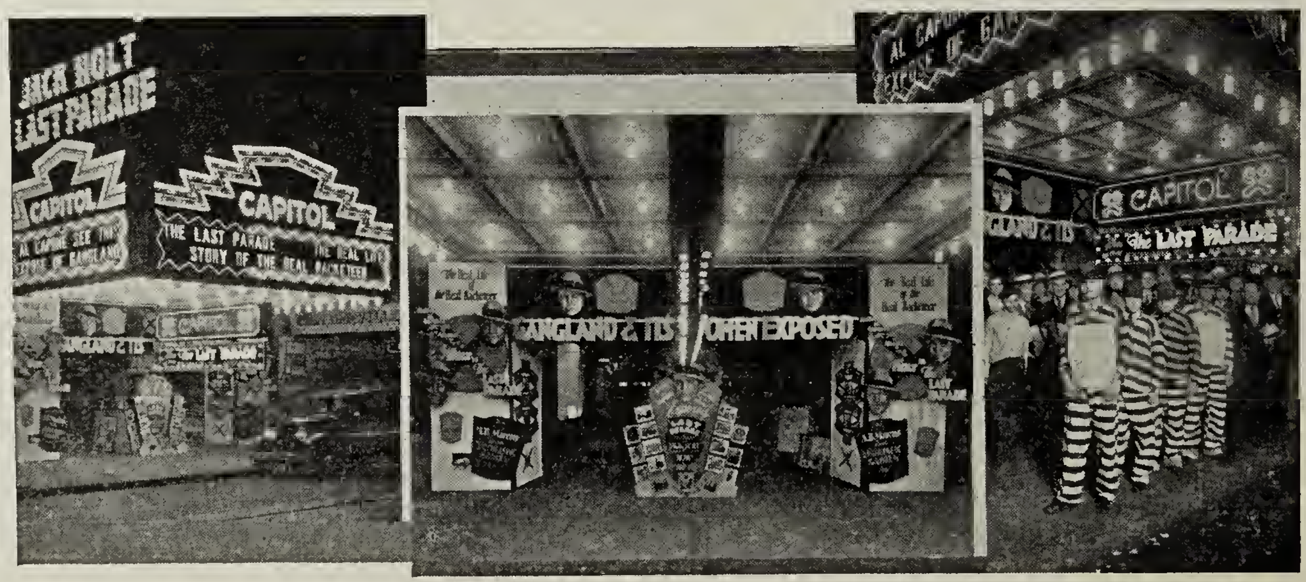
MUCH has been said recently in regard to getting the children interested in pictures. Often schools may discourage their pupils from seeing productions which in the minds of school authorities, are not proper for the younger minds. However, there are scores of pictures which are helpful and good for kids and the schools should recommend such pictures as readily as they attack the other kinds.

In the Fox Theatres' house organ, "The Last Word," is some timely advice to the Fox managers which should be heeded by all theatre owners. Here it is:

"One of your chief obligations is to keep up good school contacts. Advise principals personally when pictures with wholesome child appeal are coming. You can start such a contact on "Skippy" or "Connecticut Yankee," and keep on. In many cases it will be wise to invite teachers and principals to previews, with the good will reacting in their encouraging students to see the film.

"Newspaper tie-ups are possible in which the paper offers paid theatre tickets to kids who sell subscriptions. These tickets must not be advertised as free. The paper should buy them, or make an advertising exchange with the theatre.

"When showing pictures with appeal for children from six to twelve years old, be sure to arrange for announcements during local bedtime story hours on the radio. In many cases you can promote such announcements by an exchange of good will. In New York a continuous friendship with Uncle Robert of WHN has resulted in tremendous child circulation."



"The Last Parade" was put over with the so-called bang when that picture played at the Capitol Theatre in Atlanta recently. In addition to newspaper ads, merchant tie-ups and window displays, the house arranged for an elaborate lobby. At the right is shown a street ballyhoo of four men dressed as prisoners with signs on their backs. Three days before the opening these men paraded the principal streets of Atlanta and aided in arousing interest for the opening.

David Sarnoff, President of Radio Corporation of America Talks on TELEVISION TODAY and TOMORROW

Issued at Hollywood, Calif.

IN the city of Hollywood, where a great industry has been builded upon the fascinating art of illusion; where men and women play no small part in shaping the thoughts, the ideals, the architecture and the fashions of the civilized world; where the electrical marriage of sound and sight has produced a mighty force to carry America's good-will message to the people of all nations, it seems appropriate to discuss the most recent development in the field of electrical entertainment — television.

Where is television? When will it be ready for the home? What form will it assume? How about the necessary television transmitting stations? What are its likely effects upon the established radio and motion picture industries?

Let us, then, preface any discussion of this subject with the general statement that television, or the process of transmitting images by radio, still is in the laboratory stage. True, rapid progress is being made. The sweep of events during 1930 and the first months of 1931 has been very substantial indeed. Television has been brought definitely nearer commercial development by the research and technical progress of the Radio Corporation of America during this period.

Where Is Television?

One year ago, television was a subject of engineering conversation and a topic for technical dispute. It now has progressed beyond that point. Today, transmission of sight by radio is a matter of accomplishment, not of speculation.

It must be understood, however, that the present sporadic activities in this direction cannot be classed as a practical service. They are purely experimental, but as such deserve encouragement and merit public interest.

Its Form and Progress

The next stage—and I should anticipate its realization by the end of next year—should find television comparable to the ear-phone state of radio. At this point, the public may well be invited to share in its further unfolding.

By that time, television should attain the same degree of development as did radio sound broadcasting in the early period of the crystal set. This does not mean that the actual physical structure of the first television receiver will be similar in any way to the crystal receiver; the similarity will lie in the class and condtion of the service; the visions which first come through the air to the public will be of the same embryonic quality as the first faint sounds which sent mother hurrying to the ear-phone of the boy's crystal set in the attic.

Television in the Home Will not Interfere With Motion Pictures in the Theatre

The motion picture industry need experience no alarm over the impending advent of television.

Transmission by sight by radio will benefit not only the radio industry; it also will prove a welcome stimulant, a pleasant tonic to all the entertainment arts.

There will be no conflict between television in the home and motion pictures in the theatre. Each is a separate and distinct service. History confirms the fact that the creation of a new service for the public does not result in the elimination of an older service, provided each has something of its own to give. On the contrary, many examples might be cited to prove that the reverse is true. The telephone did not displace the telegraph. The radio did not displace the cable. The incandescent lamp did not displace the candle; more candles are being sold today than before the creation of the incandescent lamp. And television in the home will not displace the motion picture in the theatre.

Man is a gregarious creature. Granting that we can develop 26,000,000 potential theatres in the homes of America, public theatres will continue to operate because people will go there in response to instinct for group emotions, and to see artists in the flesh. These are human demands which television in the home cannot satisfy.

Television Transmitting Stations

Before television reaches the practical stage of service it is necessary that several experimental stations for the transmission of sight by radio be established.

The Radio Corporation of America contemplates building several such stations by the end of next year. One will be on top of the new fifty-story RCA building, 570 Lexington Avenue, New York City. Another will be on a still higher building in New York City. These sites have been chosen because height is an important technical factor in the successful transmission of sight by radio. These two stations probably will be located in such manner as to serve New York City and its vicinity.

A third station will be located on the Pacific Coast.

Additional experimental stations may be located in other sections of the country.

Will Help Radio Industry

The effect of television upon the present established radio industry will be beneficial. There will be no interference in broadcasting of sound and of sight. These services will supplement each other and complete the impression upon the human mind by reaching it through both ear and eye. Television broadcasting stations will operate on wave lengths different than those now used for the broadcasting of sound. An entirely different receiver will be necessary; radio sets now used for sound reception are not equipped to receive television.

In reflecting upon the entertainment arts in general, and the motion picture industry in particular, one is impressed by two essential elements which must be regarded as their life blood. The mechanical age with its new instrumentalities only serves to emphasize the importance and to increase the necessity for these two vital elements:

First, the creative element; the domain of the author, the playwright, the composer. The man or woman who has a story to tell or a song to compose will be in demand so long as the art of entertainment endures;

Second, the human interpretation of the creator's work. Someone must speak the playwright's words before they can be placed upon the screen, the radio or the phonograph record; someone must interpret the composer's music before it can come to life through any of the mechanical devices of the electrical era.

These are not the requirements of a day, or week or a year; they are the permanent elements of the entertainment arts. Television, when it arrives as a factor in the field of entertainment, will create a fresh market for this fuel; it will give new wings to the talents of creative and interpretive genius, and will furnish a new and greater outlet for artistic expression. All this will stimulate and further advance the art of motion picture production.

Its Potential Audience

The potential audience of television in its ultimate development may reasonably be expected to be limited only by the population of the earth itself.

Since the dawn of the new era of electrical entertainment, untold millions have been added to our audiences. It is interesting to compare the opportunities of this new era with those of the past. The life-time audience of Demosthenes was not as great as a one-night audience of Amos 'n' Andy. Napoleon and Kaiser Wilhelm, showing themselves in their splendid regalia before all their spectators, never in their lives were seen by as many eyes as saw Richard Dix in "Cimarron." The sound of all the guns and cannons fired in all the wars since the dawn of time did not reach as many ears as does the crow of the proud Pathe rooster on the talking screen.

What May the Public Expect?

The instantaneous projection through space, of light images produced directly from objects in the studio or the scene brought to the studio by remote control involves many problems. Special types of distribution networks, new forms of stagecraft, and a development of studio equipment and technique will be required. With these must come a new and greater service of broadcasting, both of sight and sound.

FEATURES and SHORTS

Gold Dust Gertie

Warner Bros.—66 Minutes

Cast: Winnie Lightner, Dorothy Shristie, Ole Olsen, Chic Johnson, Claude Gillingwater, Arthur Hoyt, George Byron, Vivian Oakland, Charles Grapewin, Charles Judels, Virginia Sale. Directed by Lloyd Bacon.

Adapted from the play "The Wife of the Party" this bit of screen hokum just seems to miss fire in most shots. The dialogue is neither witty nor interesting and the only thing that holds the story together is the action.

The popularity of Miss Lightner and Olsen & Johnson are the only factors that may make the picture worth while exploiting. Story concerns a manufacturer of bathing suits who believes in marriage for his employees although remaining single himself. Two of his employes (Olson and Johnson) were previously the husband of Winnie Lightner and to satisfy the boss each again marries. Winnie comes around to collect alimony and threatens to expose them. Finding that this would result in their losing their positions she plans to help them. She gets the manufacturer to allow her to exhibit a suit of her own design in the beauty parade and wins the prize as well as winning the boss.

Some good bathing beauty contest scenes are not played up enough and the final chase in speed boats furnishes most of the comedy.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Tie up with bathing suit and speed boat sales agencies. Sell the stars on past performances. Title also offers itself well for exploitation.

The Viking

J. D. Williams—74 Minutes

Cast: Charles Starrett, Louise Huntington, Arthur Vinton, Captain Bob Bartlett, with prologue by Sir Wilfred Grenfell. Directed by George Melford.

Here is one of those so-called "different" films that combines realistic adventure with a screen story to supply the romance. This is an authentic record of the Newfoundland sealers in their quest for pelts among the northern ice packs. The story woven in concerns the rivalry of two members of the sealing expedition for the love of a girl. One, a hardened oldtimer decides to do away with the other who is making his first voyage into the ice fields. The oldtimer goes snowblind after he thinks he has killed his rival and is only saved by the timely finding of the boy who has been lost by the crew on the return to the ship. After a tough journey over the ice with his blinded rival he finally makes land and the usual happy ending with the girl takes place.

The main interest is the work of the sealers which is brought out by some exceptionally fine camera work and the chances they take hold you in suspense as to the outcome. The cast is nothing to write home about but as their part is a minor one the film goes on in a highly entertaining manner. Direction is good and the photography excellent. — Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Good tieups should be made with fur dealers, and play up newspaper publicity when the "Viking" was blown up.

God's Gift to Women

Warner Brothers—74 Minutes

Cast: Frank Fay, Laura La-Plante, Joan Blondell, Charles Winninger, Arthur Edward Carews, Alan Mowbray, Louise Brooks, Tyrell Davis, Billy House, Yola D'Avril, Margaret Livingston, Armand Kaliz, Charles Judels, Eddie Lambert, Murray Smith, Jacques Vanaire, Douglas Gerrard, Ethlyn Clair, Nena Quartaro, Hazel Howell and the Sisters "G". Directed by Michael Curtiz.

Romantic comedy based on play named "The Devil Was Sick" and containing a cast of names that looks like the "Who's Who" of Warner Brothers. Story concerns a philandering Frenchman (Frank Fay) who finally meets his real love (Laura LaPlante) and her father's conditions to their marriage include a physician's council. The doctor tells him that one more kiss would cause his death, but he decides to have it with his one love in spite of the predicted results. He makes arrangements with the undertaker for his funeral and plans a final rendezvous with the girl. The expected death does not occur and it turns out that it was all a plot to test his love.

Some excellent comedy situations are brought about by the untimely arrival of his former lady friends while he is trying to convince his girl that she is the only one. With the excellent cast a better story should have been chosen and the direction was a bit draggy in spots. However, will prove a pleasing film for most any type audience.—Southwell.

The Good Bad Girl

Columbia—70 Minutes

Cast: Mae Clarke, James Hall, Marie Prevost, Robert Ellis, Nance O'Neil, Edmund Breese, James Donlan, Paul Porcasi, Paul Fix, Wheeler Oakman, George Berliner. Directed by R. William Neill.

Here is a film story of the feminine side of the gangster life that carries plenty of punch and with some smart comedy injected by Marie Prevost.

Mae Clarke as the gangster's sweetheart, who finds an opportunity to get out of the racket and marry a banker's son, wins your sympathy in her battle to go right. James Hall as the son who shows a human side to life by trying to take his wife's part when the truth comes out about her former life.

His parents convince the girl she is in the wrong environment and she leaves without letting them know she is about to become a mother. Marie Prevost as the mistress of a cafe keeper visits the parents and tells them of the child and the boy's mother goes to see the baby and offer financial help. This is refused, but after her former sweetheart is killed in her room after he has made a jail break, she decides that the baby needs its grandparents' protection from whatever gangland may have planned for vengeance. She decides to go away but the timely arrival of the boy from a trip to Paris and learning that he is a father results in the usual happy ending. Will please the average fan and rates fair entertainment value.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Avoid the gangster angle and play up the trials of a girl with a past to go straight. The baby angle has good exploitation possibilities. Ladies' wear shops might go for tie-up on Marie Prevost's lounging pajamas.

A Free Soul

M-G-M—85 Minutes

Cast: Norma Shearer, Leslie Howard, Lionel Barrymore, Clark Gable, James Gleason, Lucy Beaumont. Directed by Clarence Brown.

For sheer dramatic perfomance this picture should win high praise with audiences everywhere. There is more to this production than the looks and alluring personality of Norma Shearer. She has histrionic ability and gives a remarkable performance which tops all her previous successes. There is an excellent cast of which Lionel Barrymore as the girl's father outshines all the others. Here is a real artist.

The picture has a powerful dramatic story with plenty of heart appeal. It is about an ultra-modern girl who lives by her father's theory of life that "we do as we please," until she finally discovers the error of her life and her father's. Then comes one of the most sensational dramatic climaxes of the year wherein the father places his daughter on the witness stand to fight for the freedom of her fiance for the murder of another lover.

The feature is good entertainment anywhere and is strongly recommended as a Sunday attraction. It has a cast of names which should pull.—Jesse.

SELLING SEATS: Play up Shearer above everything. Mode shops should lend their co-operation in stressing her modish dresses. Advertise the picture as dynamic drama with a superlative cast. Stress the dominant theme of the picture in catchlines, such as "She Dared to Live by Men's Code of Ethics."

Short Subjects

Cab Waiting

Vitaphone—18 Minutes

Here's Jack Benny again in a comedy that gets over very well. At times the laughs are far between but as a whole it makes a good short. The story tells of a taxi driver who's chief hobby is correct grammar and when Benny talks to him, the driver corrects all mistakes in English. Even when Jack takes the girl home in the cab the driver contributes the correct grammar to the conversation.—F. H.

Betty Co-Ed

Paramount—8 Minutes

A collegiate short with plenty of spice and ginger. Rudy Vallee and his orchestra are featured and the dancing ball idea is used as Rudy sings a very pretty song. Okay.—F. H.

A PROBLEM AND ITS SOLUTION

THE New York end of this industry is anything but optimistic about business for this summer. One of the trade's daily publications carried the prediction that more than double the usual number of summer closings was in prospect for the coming hot months and that this to-be-looked-forward-to situation has the sales managers worried. We don't know on what this guess is based, but it is a serious situation to contemplate, nevertheless.

Why the number of closings should be greater this year than ever before is puzzling, despite the tendency to blame the country's general depression. The great number of cooling equipment installations made in recent years should have lessened the number of hot weather closings with each succeeding year. So there must be some other reason; some reason for which the industry is itself to blame.

It has been evidenced by other amusement attractions that the public is not broke, as some are prone to think. The fact that double features proved for a time to bring extra admissions to the box offices is one indication that there is still plenty of money in the country and that it can be gotten by motion picture theatres. The fact that wrestling matches, boxing bouts and baseball parks are drawing capacity audiences and that the higher priced seats are the first to be sold out is further proof that the public is willing to spend its money. This is not to say that such amusements draw capacity every day. However, that is the case when the attractions offered are big ones. When the Giants play the Cubs, you can figure on an audience of some 70,000 or more. But when the Giants play Cincinnati, which is a weak team, the fans don't turn out in such great numbers.

In recent weeks box office grosses have been big when the picture has been big. By big we don't mean epic pictures, but good substantial entertainment. Gangster pictures have been drawing heavy patronage, but not alone because they were gangster pictures—they have to be good.

There may be other causes for the contemplation of a greater than usual number of theatre closings but the principal cause is poor pictures. It has been demonstrated time and again that good attractions draw good patronage. Where a good attraction fails to draw, a poor selling campaign is probably back of it. This checks the problem that sales managers are worried about right back to their production departments. Producers can save the situation by making better attractions and by releasing as many of them as possible during the next few weeks, when they will be needed the most. Exhibitors can keep their theatres open by getting back of these attractions and plugging them for all they are worth and by injecting every bit of showmanship brains and energy into the big job that is in their hands.

Scooter-Nite

Wins Kids on Sight!

Full Description of $3 Retail Value
3-Wheel Safety Scooter

Of very newest speed design, built of first quality steel to hold any weight up to 200 lbs. Beautifully finished in red and green enamels. Has large reinforced natural wood handle-bar, balanced hinge for easy turning; 5-inch double disc steel wheels. Platform of one-piece heavy-pressed steel.

EACH boy and girl in your drawing radius will bring you 24 paid adult admissions in exchange for on of these 3-Wheel Safety Scooters.

In the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN you get these identical scooters to offer every kid in your drawing radius—and you get them at factory price of $1.12 each. This offer is open to all chain and independent theatres in the U. S. We do not sell these Scooters to retail trade, but only through our premium plans. The SCOOTER-NITE PLAN will only cost you a fraction of what you can and often do spend on exploitation stunts that have nothing like the possibilities of permanently built up business, which the SCOOTER-NITE PLAN provides. You make friends with SCOOTER-NITE.

Most exhibitors work "SCOOTER-NITE" two or more days a week. For example, if the exhibitor finds Mondays and Thursdays are his dull nights, he works SCOOTER-NITE for those days; or if he should run the same picture two days in succession, he makes Mondays and Tuesdays, or Thursdays and Fridays, his SCOOTER-NITE. The quicker he gives away these Free Scooters the more advertising he gets through the children using them and showing them to their friends, relatives and neighbors. As long as the Scooters last—and they are of steel construction so will last indefinitely—you will be getting advertising value from them; children are proud to mention that they EARNED the Scooter at your theatre.

Children won't let their parents, relatives or friends alone until they have helped fill the Record Card. The Record Card is a card bearing the name of your theatre and with twenty-four printed squares on one side, in which your cashier or doorman stamps—with rubber stamp which we furnish—a square for each adult admission brought by the child. For example, if the child brought in four adults, the child would get four of the squares stamped.

When all twenty-four of the squares are filled the child turns in his Record Card and receives one of the 3-Wheel Safety Scooters. No strings—no contest. Every child has equal opportunity. You run no risk of disappointing anyone. You issue Scooters only for completely filled cards.

Costs You Less Than 4 2-3 Cents Per Admission

To illustrate: The Scooters cost the exhibitor $1.12 each. There are 24 stamps on Record Card. 4 2/3c times 24 equals $1.12. Therefore cost to exhibitor is 4 2/3c per admission.

How to Order for Scooter-Nite Plan

Required starting order is 24 Scooters. You can best estimate the number you may require, but your first order must be at least for 24. Four Cards are furnished free, imprinted with your theatre name, for each Scooter ordered; thus on minimum order you would receive free 96 Record Cards. Heralds imprinted with theatre name, are furnished for $3.00 per thousand. A 120-ft. Trailer is loaned for two weeks only, and a deposit of $3.60 is required if Trailer is desired. This deposit is returned to theatre on return of Trailer.

Exhibitors Buy Product

Despite Campaign by Steffes, Who Urges Showmen to Lay Off, Exchange Men Say.

The campaign waged by W. A. Steffes, general manager of Northwest Allied States, is proving ineffective and the new selling season is opening up with record briskness, according to Minneapolis exchange managers.

Exhibitors are disregarding the Steffes order to do no buying until after the Allied convention in Minneapolis next September, according to the exchange managers, who say that the theatre owners seem more eager than ever to line up desirable product for next season.

Moreover, it is declared, Allied officials themselves have been among the biggest purchasers of pictures. It also became known that Bennie Berger, president of Northwest Allied, actually accompanied the Columbia sales' staff to Chicago, attending the convention there for the purpose of buying product for three houses under his ownership or supervision. Incidentally, Berger was one of the first exhibitors in the United States to buy the Columbia output last season and has made the statement that he wants to repeat this year.

Mr. Steffes last week mailed large placards to all Northwest exhibitors and exchanges. The cards read: Please hang me up in your office and read daily. Mr. Film Salesman—We are not buying pictures today on account of reduction in admision prices by producer circuits, on account of the unreasonable protection demanded by producer circuits, on account of the double feature policy of the producer circuits, and on account of the most unfair methods ever used by producers despite the general depression, widespread unemployment, closing of many theatres, poor class of products and poor business. Disregarding these adverse factors, the film com-

In Death of S. H. Ruben Who Passed Away at Age 63; Heart Disease the Cause.

In the death of Isaac H. Ruben, co-founder of the northwest's largest theatre chain, the Finkelstein-Ruben enterprise, acquired several years ago by Paramount-Publix, Minneapolis has lost one of its most prominent film personages. Mr. Ruben's death was caused by heart disease. He had been ill for more than a year. He was 63.

The funeral, held in Minneapolis last week, was attended by motion picture notables from many parts of the United States. Mr. Ruben's death followed that of his partner, the late M. L. Finkelstein, by four months. Another member of the former F. & R. concern, William Hamm of St. Paul, is critically ill.

After the sale of the F. & R. circuit to Paramount-Publix, Mr. Ruben retired to private life. A son, Edmund R. Ruben, however, Publix Lowers Scale to 10 Cents at its Subsequent Run Local Theatre; 2,000 Seats.

Even Publix has come to 10c talkies at one of its theatres of deluxe proportions, the 2,000-seat Palace, Minneapolis. Third and fourth runs are used and there are four changes of bill weekly for the grind. The former admission was 20c. At various times the theatre has housed musical comedy stock, vaudeville and burlesque. There are a number of other grind independents in the loop, several or them less than two blocks away, charging 10c admission.

Publix also has reopened the Lyndale, one of its uptown theatres, for 10c third and fourth-run talkies.

FISCHER NAMED

To Head Wisconsin Unit for Warner Bros.

Milwaukee, Wis. — Frank Fischer, pioneer Wisconsin theatre operator and former owner of a chain of a chain of theatres in the state, has been named general manager of the Warner Wisconsin Theatre, succeeding Bernard Depkin, Jr., resigned. The contact department of the Wisconsin chain has been merged with the Chicago district office.

Three years ago Mr. Fischer sold his chain of theatres to L. K. Brin, local theatre man. Mr. Brin, in turn, disposed of the houses to the Fox and Warner Brothers' organizations. Mr. Fischer formerly lived in Madison, but for the past three years he has been with Warners in Indiana and Illinois.

Incorporates

Milwaukee, Wis. — Articles of incorporation have been filed here by the Metropolitan Amusement Co., for the purpose of operating theatres. Signers of the articles are S. G. Honeck, C. T. Kragel and L. Panka.

To New Post

Milwaukee, Wis.—Joseph Kinsky, formerly manager of Fox's Plaza Theatre here, has been named manager of the circuit's Oriental. He succeeds Wallace James, who has joined RKO in New York. Kinsky has been succeeded at the Plaza by Paul Hayden.

Issac H. Ruben

(Reprinted from the Minneapolis Star)

ISAAC H. RUBEN became one of the Northwest's most successful theatre men without once losing those rare qualities which endeared him to his many friends and associates. Growth of business and access of wealth did not diminish his capacity for sympathy and generosity toward his fellow man, nor take from him the 'common touch' he retained throughout a lifetime of mounting fortunes.

Mr. Ruben's career encompassed the amazing development of motion pictures from its nickelodeon days to the advent of the sound screen. With M. L. Finkelstein and William Hamm, he created the Northwest's first large theatrical chain and rose to affluence.

His charities and benevolences were the natural expression of a personality unwarped by riches and success.

Business Picking Up in Minneapolis First Runs

Minneapolis (week ending June 5) — Business picked up somewhat the past week, but still was below normal. "The Lawyer's Secret," at the Minnesota, was well liked and did fairly well. "White Shoulders," at the RKO Orpheum, also won favor and attracted good-sized crowds. Another pleasing picture was "A Tailor Made Man," starring William Haines, at the Lyric. Patronage was a little better than average at this latter house. "The Finger Points," newest Barthelmess picture, was a fair card for the State, while "The Lady Who Dared," at the Aster, also attracted some attention.

Aster—The Woman Who Dared (First National), Billie Dove. Business: Fair. Summary: The story of a beautiful woman spy and her thrilling adventures. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Lyric — A Tailor Made Man (M-G-M), William Haines. Business: Good. Summary: A clean and amusing comedy of a young man whose vision and confidence in his own ability carry him up the success ladder and enable him to win the girl of his heart. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Minnesota — The Lawyer's Secret (Paramount), Clive Brook, Richard Arlen, Charles Rogers and Fay Wray. Business: Fair. Summary: A gripping drama dealing with the subject of a lawyer's confidences and revolving around a murder for which an innocent man faces execution. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, sound news.

RKO Orpheum — White Shoulders (RKO), Jack Holt and Ricardo Cortez. Business: Good. Summary: A thrilling melodrama built about the efforts of a two-fisted man to obtain revenge against the woman and man who wrecked his life. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, sound news.

State—The Finger Points (First National), Richard Barthelmess. Business: Fair. Summary: The exciting story of a newspaper reporter who gets mixed up with gangsters. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

MILWAUKEE

(Week Ending May 27)

Alhambra—A Tailor Made Man (M-G-M), William Haines and Dorothy Jordan. Business: Fair. Summary: A substantial comedy with Haines toned down considerably. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Oswald Cartoon, George Sidney and Charles Murray in "Divorce A La Carte," Universal Newsreel.

Garden—The Millionaire (Warner Bros., George Arliss, Florence Arliss and David Manners. Business: Fair (ended second week). Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Looney Tune Comedy Paramount News.

Majestic—Mr. Lemon of Orange (Fox), El Brendel and Fifi Dorsay. Business: Good. Summary: Brendel's Swedish accent, his comic face and Eddie Cantor's dialog are the chief items of interest in connection with this picture. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Shorts, Newsreel.

Palace — Young Donovan's Kid (Radio), Richard Dix, Jackie Cooper and Marion Shilling. Business: Fair. Summary: A fair production making rather too strong a bid towards arousing the audience's sympathy. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: RKO News, and Short.

Riverside—Laugh and Get Rich (Radio), Edna May Oliver and Hugh Herbert. Business: Good. Summary: A thoroughly amusing story concerning a boarding housekeeper and her husband. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville.

Strand — Strangers May Kiss (M-G-M), Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery. Business: Fair (ended second week). Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Charley Chase Comedy, Fox Movietone News.

Warner—Party Husband (First National), Dorothy Mackaill and James Rennie. Business: Fair. Summary: A photoplay concerning a wife who believes in experiments in marriage until she tries them. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: "Lady of the Lake," Universal Newsreel.

Wisconsin — Young Sinners (Fox), Hardie Albright and Dorothy Jordan. Business: Fair. Summary: A picture concerning the younger generation, taken from the stage play by that name, but revamped so that it loses somewhat of its zest. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon & Marco Idea, Fox Movietone News.

Birthday Club

Madison, Wis. — The Capital Times-Strand Theatre Birthday Club has been formed here through the co-operation of Fox's Strand Theatre. The club is open to any child in Madison who is 12 years of age or under. Membership is free. Those celebrating their birthdays at the Strand are allowed eight guests, all of whom are admitted free.

Managers Meet

Madison Wis. — Managers of Midwesco Theatres from Madison, Beaver Dam, Janesville and Beloit met here May 27 in conference with S. L. Segelbaum, state manager, and Charles Loewenberg, state supervisor. Similar meetings were held at Oshkosh on May 28 and at Green Bay on May 29.

CONVENTIONEERS

Back From Sales Meeting "All Pepped Up"

Back from the Chicago convention, Ben Marcus, Columbia exchange manager, and his five salesmen are all pepped up and ready to step on the gas and speed away on the new selling season to a banner year. Marcus is thoroughly sold on the idea that Columbia has the greatest lineup of pictures for the new season in its entire history. Incidentally, he announces that "Dirigible," following its $1.50 roadshowing at the Century Theatre, Minneapolis, will be released throughout the territory in the same manner as "Trader Horn," playing all spots on guarantees and percentages.

ULTRAPHONE BUSY

Karatz Announces Many Installations

There are no signs of a depression around the Ultraphone quarters, 34 Glenwood avenue, Minneapolis. Business is rushing. Sales of new sound-on-film equipment have been of record-breaking proportions during recent weeks, it is reported by Ted Karatz, manager.

Charles Perrizo closed his Lyric Theatre, Cass Lake, for four days last week to install a new de luxe Ultraphone sound on film equipment. At the same time he redecorated the theatre.

Among other theatres where the new de luxe Ultraphone sound on film equipment already has been installed or is about to be installed are the Strand Theatre, Dickinson, N. D., owned by Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Knutson; the Auditorium Theatre, Kildeer, N. D., owned by E. H. Maier; New Theatre, Beulah, N. D., owned by Frank E. Marshall and associates; S. R. Cook's Althea Theatre, Dunseith, N. D., Bert Parson's State Theatre, Springfield, Minn. (Mr. Parson has had Ultraphone equipment in his Garden Theatre, Renville, Minn., for almost six months); R. G. Risch's Scenic Theatre, Appleton, Minn.; J. E. Johnson's Lyceum Theatre, Deer River, Minn.; Blackmore Brothers' Diamond Theatre, Duluth, Minn.; F. T. Welter's Grand Theatre, Wausau, Wis. (a $500,000 house seating 1,500 people); R. Schaber's new theatre, Ashley, N. D.; new theatre at Blackduck, Minn.; W. M. Traxell's Moon Theatre, Wilbur, Neb., and H. H. Hall's Strand Theatre, McGregor, Ia.

$1,300 Loot

Sheboygan, Wis.—Robbers entered the Sheboygan Theatre here May 31 and escaped with receipts for three days totaling $1,300. Police who investigated the robbery reported that four doors of the theatre were left unlocked by the employes and it is believed that the robbers entered through one of these doors. Frank Dau is manager of the house and Glenn Ryan, assistant manager.

3 From RKO

Mike Frisch is elated over the fact that three of his RKO pictures in a row go into the RKO Orpheum, Minneapolis. They're "White Shoulders," "Young Donovan's Kid" and "Everybody's Rosy," each and every one of them a box-office knockout, according to the RKO exchange manager.

Exhibitors Buy Product

panies have again, for the tenth consecutive season, announced an increase in film prices. Therefore we will not buy pictures until after the Allied's convention in Minneapolis, Sept. 9 and 10."

In connection with the admission reduction clause, film row is recalling that Mr. Steffes was one of the first Minneapolis exhibitors to reduce admission prices at his North Side house, forcing competing houses to do likewies.

Exhcange managers say there are a few exhibitors who always follow Mr. Steffes' instructions implicitly, but they are very small in number. Most exhibitors are actually taking the initiative in going after new season product, it is declared. They realize they will need pictures to keep their theatres open and that their box-office success depends upon the calibre of product obtained, it is pointed out.

The Paramount exchange has broken records in number of contracts signed and business is going along at an unprecedented pace. The company's salesmen find most exhibitors hopeful that the new season will bring prosperity in its wake. The present dullness, it is recalled, is seasonal.

Mike Frisch of RKO says he has no cause for complaint—that business is going along in normal fashion with indications pointing to one of the best seasons yet for RKO in Minneapolis.

The Columbia selling season is just starting, but the number of inquiries already received indicate record sales, according to Ben Marcus, exchange manager. He says many exhibitors have indicated a willingness to negotiate at this time for new product.

Similar reports come from other Minneapolis exchanges where business is proceeding at a fine pace with results everything that can be desired, exchange managers declare.

Open Camden

The new Camden Theatre, Minneapolis, an uptown house, independently operated, was opened last week. The house seats 350 and is equipped with Ultraphone. L. Kopman is owner and manager.

One of the biggest novelties in Minneapolis last week and one which excited considerable attention and talk was a checker tournament in the RKO-Orpheum Theatre lobby. The theatre engaged Bert Titus, state checker champion, who met all comers during the week. The public was invited from the theatre screen and in newspaper ads to take Mr. Titus on.

PRESS TIE-UP

Minnesota and Tribune Co-operate

Cliff Gill, Minnesota theatre exploitation head, engineered a big tie-up with the Minneapolis Tribune when that newspaper introduced its new comic strip, "Popeye the Sailor."

The theatre named its organ novelty after The Tribune feature and a song was composed about the sailor. A lobby display consisting of a demonstration on the making of a comic color page also was given the paper.

In return for the organ novelty and lobby display, The Tribune gave the Minnesota Theatre four large ads totaling 150 inches. These ads ran in both the morning and evening editions and carried a small amount of copy on the comic strip, the balance of the space being devoted to a plugging of the Minnesota show. The Tribune also carried news stories concerning the Minnesota program and tieing up their feature in the show.

NORMA QUITS

Contract Called for Two More Pictures

Hollywood — Norma Talmadge asked for and was granted her release by Samuel Goldwyn from her contract with United Artists. The agreement called for two more pictures. The reason, according to Mr. Goldwyn, was that Miss Talmadge desired the privilege of choosing her own stories, which request is at variance with the policy which the producer has established.

Novel Matinee

Madison, Wis.—An ice cream matinee was recently staged at RKO's Capitol Theatre here which was a huge success. The attraction on the screen was "Young Donovan's Kid" and the ice cream, furnished by a local dairy, was dispensed to the hundreds of kiddies by Roundy, local newspaper columnist.

To Start Western

Hollywood — Shooting having been completed on Columbia's Buck Jones big outdoor special, "Branded," production on "Ex-Ranger," temporary title of the company's next vehicle for the rugged westerner, will begin as soon as a suitable supporting cast has been signed. The picture is the second production in the new Buck Jones series under the cowboy star's recetn long term Columbia contract.

PITY TO CLARA

Sylvia Sidney Says Star Is Too Generous

Clara Bow is "a pathetic little girl," according to Sylvia Sidney, motion picture star, who is visiting in the Twin Cities.

Miss Sidney knows Miss Bow intimately, having worked on the lot with her and visited at her home. She broke into the Hollywood limelight as a star when Clara suffered a nervous breakdown after her legal battle with her former secretary, Daisy DeVoe. When Miss Bow went to a sanatorium, Miss Sidney was assigned to take her place in the stellar role of a picture under production at the time.

Placing Miss Bow in the Hollywood 'maelstrom' was like sending a baby out to make its own way," says Miss Sidney. "Clara is and always has been the victim of her own warmheartedness and generosity. She can't defend herself against any kind of an appeal."

A career in the talkies means a high strung life and plenty of hard work, according to Miss Sidney. There are innumerable trials and tribulations for the young women who enter the profession, she says.

Convention!

Milwaukee, Wis. — The state Mickey Mouse convention was held June 6 at the Wisconsin Theatre in this city. Delegates from 17 Wisconsin cities attended the meeting, which included a show at the Wisconsin and a banquet at the Hotel Schroeder.

Mickey Mouse Clubs now have a membership in the state of 25,000 children under 14 years of age. Fox operates houses in all of the 17 cities from which the delegates hailed.

Pictures Moved Up

Hollywood—Howard Estabrook will begin the screen adaptation of "Frontier," a Richard Dix starring vehicle, when he completes adaptation of "Are These Our Children?" Wesley Ruggles' next assignment. William LeBaron announces that "Frontier" has been moved up on the producing schedule to satisfy public demand for Dix in another vigorous American role such as he had in "Cimarron."

Sign Muni

Hollywood—Paul Muni has been selected by Howard Hughes for the leading role in "Scarface," the forthcoming underworld thriller by Armitage Trail.

Isaac Ruben Dies

is divisional director for Publix in the Northwest.

Mr. Ruben was noted for his many benefactions. His charities were numerous and widespread. He was held in high esteem both in and out of the theatrical profession.

Starting to earn his livelihood as a newsboy on the Syracuse, N. Y., streets, Mr. Ruben worked his way up to a position of the highest standing as well as affluence in his profession and community. The F. & R. theatre chain was started with a small capital. The motion picture industry then was in its early and experimental stages and the venture involved considerable risk. When the partners opened their first theatre, the Princess in St. Paul, they spent $15 on a film and charged 10 admission.

From this small start of one theatre, the enterprise expanded to a point where, at the time of its sale to Paramount-Publix, it comprised more than 150 theatres, employed 2,000 persons in 27 northwest towns and cities and paid out $5,000,000 annually overhead expenses.

Before entering the motion picture busines, Mr. Ruben, who came west as a youth, was employed in mercantile and clothing houses in Chicago. He later moved to Des Moines, Ia., and opened a clothing house. Foreseeing the possibilities in the movie field and regarding the Twin Cities as fertle ground, he came to St. Paul and interested Mr. Finkelstein, then a jeweler, in the Princess Theatre enterprise. The success of the Princess was instantaneous and the partners branched out by leasing the Grand Theatre in Minneapolis. Expansion proceeded slowly until Mr. Hamm joined the enterprise 12 years ago when it began to branch out rapidly. Paramount-Publix is reported to have paid in excess of $6,000,000 for the circuit.

Douglas Pratt, RKO home office representative from New York, was a Minneapolis visitor last week, conferring with Mike Grisch, Minneapolis RKO exchange manager.

After a serious illness, Morris Abrahams, Metro-Goldwyn veteran exploiteer. is back on the job again. The boys all are saying "You can't keep a good man down."

* * *

Among exhibitors who came to Minneapolis film row last week to book pictures were Klug & Klug, Zumbrota, Minn.; M. Joffee, Liberty Theatre, Kenyon, Minn.; E. H. McDonald, Hammond, Wis., and and Baldwin, Wis., and H. B. Smootz, Little Falls, Minn.

NEW YORK'S GREATEST CRI

William Boehnel, World-Telegram

"Dix has topped his work in 'Cimarron.' Has all the ingredients a popular film should have—laughter, tears, and thrills. Excellently played and directed. It's worth seeing."

Regina Crewe, N. Y. American

"Richard Dix does it again! . . . offers a gripping characterization which equals his best efforts. Ideal combination of thrills, tears and laughter . . . about the acme of popular motion picture entertainment. Highly hilarious sequences fill the Mayfair with long, loud laughter . . . furtive kerchiefs dab at tears that just won't stop flowing. Our congratulations to Radio Pictures on 'Young Donovan's Kid.' It's a winner."

Irene Thirer, Daily News

"Here's one to make you laugh and cry. It's a tear-jerker . . . all of its sentimentality rings true. Loads of action and a big kerchief full of tears. You'll go strong for 'Young Donovan's Kid' if you're human—and who isn't?"

Don Hancock, Film Daily

"Jackie Cooper gives remarkable performance in tear-producing drama. Great audience appeal. Tear-jerker par excellence . . . sure-fire audience getter."

TICS WRITE THIS TITAN AD:

Julia Shawell, Evening Graphic

"Gangster vehicle for Richard Dix worthy of 'Cimarron'. Dix and Jackie Cooper give outstanding performances...had every audience sobbing yesterday. Dix is grand. Packs an appeal that should make it a smash hit in the program variety. Best attraction the Mayfair has had in many weeks."

Motion Picture Daily

"Highly dramatic and entertaining talker. Human interest story which packs a wallop throughout."

Pare Lorentz, Evening Journal

"Great performance given by Jackie Cooper ... a youngster who will tear your heart out ... a child actor with enough appeal to melt the heart of an undertaker's assistant. He's great. That lad could perform 'Macbeth' and I'd like it."

Marguerite Tazelaar, Herald Tribune

"Strong human interest film ... directed with admirable speed. Dix a melodramatic performer of the first water ... Jackie Cooper a moving and convincing actor."

Exclusive Service for RKO-Pathe Stars

Hollywood — The RKO - Pathe stars are going to appear exclusively under its banner, according to Ned E. Depinet, vice-president and general sales manager of the company. The six stars composing the Personality Group are Constance Bennett, Ann Harding, Helen Twelvetrees, Ina Claire, Bill Boyd and Eddie Quillan. In addition, six feature Westerns will be produced.

RKO - Pathe is making excellent progress on its schedule of 21 star specials in the Personality Group announced for the new season. Already four specials have been completed and two are in production. Chas. R. Rogers, vice-president in charge of production, has his studio functioning at top speed.

Ned Depinet

Constance Bennett will be starred in four productions, the first of which is "Common Law," by Robert W. Chambers. Paul L. Stein recently completed the direction of this feature which is said to far surpass Miss Bennett's recent vehicles, "Born to Love" and "Sin Takes a Holiday," which enjoyed box-office success.

Helen Twelvetrees is now making the second of her quartette of vehicles. "A Woman of Experience," the star's first release, is a dramatic story by John Farrow which was directed by Harry Joe Brown, associate producer at the RKO-Pathe studio. William Bakewell plays opposite Miss Twelvetrees in a cast that includes Lew Cody, H. B. Warner, Zasu Pitts, Franklin Pangborn, Nance O'Neil, George Fawcett and Edward Earle. Helen's second release, which is being made under the title of "The Mad Marriage," is a Jack Lait story.

Ann Harding will start her season's quartette with a Pamela Wynne story temporarily titled "Devotion."

Ina Claire's appearance in the Personality Group is in "Rebound," a talking picture version of the Donald Ogden Stewart play produced by Arthur Hopkins in which she scored on the stage. Edward H. Griffith, director of "Holiday," guided the star in this vehicle.

Eddie Quillan has completed "Sweepstakes," first of his four specials. Marion Nixon plays opposite Eddie and James Gleason is chief aide in fun-making.

Bill Boyd has started his four he-man specials with a dramatic story by Octavus Roy Cohen, being made under the tentative title of "The Iron Chalice."

Production on the two-reel comedy program is well apace with the feature output. An ambitious part of the company's plans for next year are its short subjects. The high spot of the shorts will be "Floyd Gibbons' Supreme Thrills," supervised for the Van Beuren Corporation by A. P. Waxman and Michael Mindlin.

JUNE RELEASES

Para. Announces Some New Product

New York—Charlie Ruggles' first starring picture and Charles Rogers' first dramatic characterization will constitute the highlights on Paramount's June release schedule. Ruggles, who has been stealing pictures ever since his appearance as a screen comedian, gets his big chance in "The Girl Habit," in which he is supported by Sue Conroy and Tamara Geva. Rogers' role as the cowardly young spendthrift in "The Lawyer's Secret" is a powerful one which he plays in a manner which will astonish those who have seen him in nice boy parts, according to reports.

The June release schedule is as follows:

June 6: "The Lawyer's Secret" featuring Clive Brook, Richard Arlen, Charles Rogers, Fay Wray and Jean Arthur and directed by Max Marcin and Louis Gasnior.

June 13: "The Vice Squad," featuring Paul Lukas, Kay Francis and Helen Johnson and directed by John Cromwell.

June 20: "Newly Rich," featuring Mitzi Green, Jackie Searl, Edna May Oliver and Louise Fazenda and directed by Norman Taurog.

June 27: "The Girl Habit," featuring Charlie Ruggles. The cast includes Donald Meek, Sue Conroy and Tamara Geva. Direction by Eddie Cline.

June 27: "I Take This Woman," co-featuring Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard and co-directed by Slavko Vorkapich and Marion Gering.

Resume Chimps

Hollywood — After a long layoff, the popular Tiffany Talking Chimps resume work again on 'Cinnamon," a burlesque on the current western super feature of a similar name. "Africa Squawks" is the most recent chimp talker completed.

WITH COLUMBIA

Medbury Remains Under Strict Contract

New York—Because of rumors current in the press to the effect that John P. Medbury has been signed to do a series of shorts for another company, Columbia Pictures makes the following announcement:

John P. Medbury is under an exclusive film contract to the Walter Futter organization, to make a series of thirteen featurettes to be known as Columbia "Travel-laughs." Mr. Medbury will write the dialogue and supply the offstage voice as well. According to the terms of the contract, Medbury is prohibited from writing for any person or corporation with the exception of the King Features Syndicate, which organization has distributed his columns, "Mumble and Mutter" and "Maybe I'm Wrong," for a number of years.

Extend Contracts

Hollywood — William LeBaron, vice-president in charge of RKO-Pathe Pictures production, has announced the extension of four important contracts. The new long term agreements are with Lowell Sherman, actor-director; Herbert Brenon, director; Hugh Herbert, actor-writer-director; and Ivan Lebedeff, now being featured in his own story, "Strange Women." Lowell's first acting-directing vehicle, under his new contract, will be "Honor Be Damned," an adaptation of Willard Mack's stage play. Brenon's next story has not been selected.

Operators Agree to Rebates

During Summer Months; Plan Affects Only Major Circuits; 427 Units Agree to Plan.

New York—Although so far the plan does not affect the independent theatres and small circuits, it is understood that projectionists' unions throughout the country have agreed to a plan by which their members employed by six major circuits throughout the country will rebate part of their summer wages. The plan was proposed by William Canavan, president of the I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. O. Results of the national vote on the subject taken by 685 locals indicates that 427 units have agreed to the idea.

The plan, which is said will relieve big exhibiting organizations during the hot months, was instituted June 8. Projectionists receiving $60 a week or less will rebate five per cent while those getting more than $60 will turn back 7½ per cent. Circuits involved are Publix, Loew, Warner Bros., Fox, RKO and Universal.

SCREEN ADS TO REMAIN HERE

Despite Recent Reports to the Contrary; Sponsors Haven't Cancelled Their Appropriations.

New York — Despite the fact that sponsored shorts have been reported dropped by several producers, advertising appropriations have not been cancelled by national advertisers, it is reported here.

Several of the national advertisers believe that, although some of the major circuits have dropped the idea that the move is a temporary one and that the sponsord short will again gain popularity with the coming of fall and winter.

According to Bernard Lichtenberg, chairman of the Association of National Advertisers and vice-president of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, advertisers will turn to vaudeville acts as a publicity medium. He believes such a movement would reopen thousands of dark vaudeville houses.

It is also reported that Fox Theatres are considering the possibilities of local ad-film tie-ups with merchants.

Pictures Not Blamed

For Poor Attendance at Theatres, According to B. P. Schulberg, of Paramount.

Hollywood—Poor product is not the cause of poor theatre attendance, according to B. P. Schulberg, in charge of Paramount studios, who says the reason for the falling off of business is because the people haven't the money.

"We have learned that pictures are not a necessity, although we long had held the belief that the world could not do without films," he said. "There never have been better pictures than in the last year."

In speaking before the Academy of Motion picture Arts and Sciences last week, Schulberg said that negative costs must be cut from 20 to 40 per cent to conform with the lessened buying power. Discusing production costs the Paramount studio chief said he could not understand why 140,000 feet of film should be shot to make a 6,000-foot picture. "Too much time is wasted on unnecessary shots that never go into pictures," he declared.

SCREENS TO AFRICA

Circuit Now Has 73 Vocalite Surfaces

Roosevelt, N. Y. — The Beaded Screen Corporation has just shipped nine additional Vocalite beaded sound screens to African Theatres, Ltd., at Johannesburg.

This brings the total installations of Vocalite to 73 screens, or a total of 20,121 square feet, for this circuit of theatres.

Other recent installations among the major theatre circuits include a Vocalite beaded screen at the Paramount-Publix Kingston Theatre, Kingston, Pa., and another at the Publix Broadway Theatre, Newburgh, N. Y.

The Vocalite beaded screen is fast becoming the industry's recognized projection surface.

URGES "REPEATS"

Paramount Suggests Return of "Skippy"

New York—Due to the tremendous and continuing popularity of "Skippy," Paramount has issued an eight-page broadside calling the attention of exhibitors to the profits possible with repeat bookings of the picture.

The broadside, which is illustrated and of press book size, points out that school is or will soon be out and that children who missed the first showing of the picture should have another chance to see it. It also contains reports of the business done by "Skippy" and outlines plans for publicizing repeat showings.

This is the second repeat-booking broadside ever issued by Paramount. The first was distributed to boost return engagements of "With Byrd at the South Pole."

Tarzan Story

Hollywood — Edwar Rice Burroughs, author of "Harzan of the Apes' 'and its various sequels of African adventure, as well as many other novels bordering on the weird and fantastic, has been commissioned by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to prepare an original screen script woven about the character of Tarzan. No title is yet announced for the story.

Starts Thriller

Hollywood — "The Mystery Train," a melodramatic thriller, will be the next story to be produced in the series of feature pictures Larry Darmour is making for the independent market.

Innocent Exhibitor Favored by Ruling

New York—A decision on exhibition contracts, which is expected to have universal effect, was made in the supreme court, New York county, last week when Judge Valente ruled that in event of a dispute over the right to a picture, the second exhibitor to buy the product constitutes an innocent party in the situation and as this party must not be injured, he is entitled to the film.

The decision was rendered in a case wherein Coy Operating Co. asked an injunction against Tiffany and RKO and the Long Island Operating Co. to prevent the latter from playing "Hell Bound" ahead of it. Judge Valente denied the petition and dismissed the complaint.

The petitioner claimed that by virtue of contract, it had prior right to play the picture at the Merrick Theatre, Jamaica. The defendants declared that the picture Coy had bought was specified as James Cruze production Number 190 and not "Hell Bound."

New Title

Hollywood — "Transgression" is the new title that supersedes "The Next Corner," Herbert Brenon's latest production for Radio Pictures.

TO COMPLETE 12

Fox Has Good Start on New Program

Hollywood—Twelve of the 48 pictures on the 1931-32 Fox Film program will be completed before the beginning of the new season on August 9. New improvements at the Fox Film studios have enabled work to progress at greater speed than ever before.

"Young As You Feel" and "The Plutocrat," both starring Will Rogers, are two of the twelve productions. Others are "Transatlantic," with Edmund Lowe, Lois Moran, Greta Nissen and Myrna Loy; "Merely Mary Ann," with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell; "Wicked," with Elissa Landi, Victor McLaglen and Allan Dinehart; 'She Wanted a Millionaire"; "Over the Hill," with Mae Marsh; "The Brat," with Sally O'Neill; "Sob Sister"; "Riders of the Purple Sage"; "Skyline," with Thomas Meighan, Maureen O'Sullivan and Hardie Albright, and "Bad Girl," with Sally Eilers and James Dunn.

Quillan's First

Hollywood — Eddie Quillan's first vehicle on the new season's RKO-Pathe schedule will be "Sweepstakes," a comedy melodrama of the race tracks in which Marion Nixon and James Gleason are the chief support.

FOX

Body and Soul, Charles Farrell—Business poor. No drawing card for a small town. Lost money on it.—L. J. Parent, Gem, Winthrop, Maine.

M-G-M

Parlor, Bedroom and Bath, Buster Keaton—Keaton in a laugh fest that will knock them cold. Good for two nights anywhere. Picture could stand a little censoring in spots. Plenty of funny action. Advertising good. Recording on disc fair but they won't hear half the talk anyway on account of the laughter.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Billy the Kid, John Mack Brown —A good six reel picture stretched into a poor 11-reel feature. Draggy in many places. Has some spots of good action. Will please about 50 per cent. Too long for Saturday Nights. Advertising good and will draw them in.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Never the Twain Shall Meet, Leslie Howard — Business was fair. Good photography and good acting. Weather okay.—J. W. Bishop, Ansonia, Wadesboro, N. C.

Gentleman's Fate, John Gilbert, Louis Wolheim. Made the big mistake of playing this on Saturday night. It is 10 reels too long. John Gilbert O. K. as to voice. Just no story to work with and what little there was dragged out about 4 reels too long. Ending by Gilbert getting killed. As one patron said, "Wish they had croaked him in the first." Gilbert pulled off a cry scene when he found his girl had married someone else that made the house laugh heartily. Don't believe this picture will please over 25 per cent in small towns. Recording on disc spotty. Advertising poor, especially the 11 by 14's.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

PARAMOUNT

City Streets, Gary Cooper—Fast moving, highly entertaining gangster picture with a great ending. Good business in fair weather.—J. W. Bishop, Ansonia, Wadesboro, N. C.

RKO

Cimarron, Richard Dix—A great picture, pleased everyone. Doubled our box-office receipts.—Elma Theatre, Elma, Iowa.

STATE RIGHTS

Clearing the Range, Hoot Gibson —Did good business. Good outdoor western drama. Will appeal to small town audiences. Weather fair.—Half Moon Bay Theatre, Half Moon Bay, Calif.

Clearing the Range, Hoot Gibson —We greatly enjoyed having Hoot Gibson back on the screen again in a good clean comedy and action picture. The star always draws the crowds and pleases everyone.—Broadway, Burlingame, Calif.

Ten Nights in a Bar-room, Wm. Farnum—Unusually fine entertainment. Audience reaction great.—C. C. Brown, Majestic, Kankakee, Ill.

Primrose Path, Helen Foster.—Picture good but business bad. We think title was bad for us.—Roxie, Reno, Nev.

TIFFANY

Caught Cheating, Charles Murray and George Sidney—This picture is far below what the critics said for it. They said plenty of laughs. Audience walked out unpleased. Don't do any extra advertising on this one.—C. F. Bonner, Community, Pine Bluff, Ark.

UNIVERSAL

Resurrection, John Boles — Business poor and on a Saturday night, too. Don't waste money on it. Poor for small towns.—L. J. Parent, Gem, Winthrop, Maine.

Fingerprints, serial. Here is a real serial, one that will keep'em guessing and bring them back. Exciting suspense, action, good story. Only kick is that the heroine is as ugly as the proverbial mud fence. Hard to get any enthusiasm up over a sister like that. The girls all feel sorry for the poor hero for falling for a dame like that, and the boys wonder why in the h— he don't let her drown so he could pick a nifty looker. However, the action and story are so good that you can overlook some things. On fifth episode and every one has been more than good. Recording on disc good. It will make money for you.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

Shorts Importance Stressed by Roach

Hollywood—Importance of playing up short features in advertising is stressed by Hal Roach in commenting upon the new M-G-M short product line-up. Roach declared exhibitors are finding it profitable to give name comedies "the advertising space they deserve."

"The important thing now," he said, "is for the small exhibitors as well as the men in the big city to increase their profits by proper exploitation of shorts.

"I suppose many exhibitors don't realize the difference between ordinary program fillers and comedies which, from every production angle, must be looked at the same as feature productions. For many years our aim has been to make our comedies short features in the exact meaning of that phrase. We are selecting stories and casting for type exactly as we would do for full length pictures. We are leaving no stone unturned to produce dialogue comedies differing from longer features only in the matter of footage.

"Some theatre managers have had the idea that a feature must be plugged even if it is a bad one, just because it is a feature picture. I can't agree with that. If a grade A comedy is placed on a program with a grade C feature picture, is it fair to disregard the comedy in billing and thus overlook a chance to build up the weaker feature picture?"

Forty comedies are on the 1931-32 production schedule at the Roach studio, now under way. These include eight Laurel-Hardy pictures, eight releases in the new Zasu Pitts-Thelma Todd series, eight Charley Chase comedies, eight "Our Gang" films and eight Boy Friends releases.

Feminine Trade

A "WOMAN'S Page" clip sheet, edited by Eve Bernstein of RKO-Pathe, is being sent to editors as an added accessory in the exploitation of the company's women stars. Sheet carries fashion stories, recipes, style descriptions and other items of interest to the feminine public.

Newspaper Extra For "Finger Points"

HARRY MARTIN, manager of the Brown Theatre, in Louisville, Ky., startled people in his city by preceding the showing of Richard Barthelmess in "The Finger Points" by issuing a newspaper "extra" dealing with the "Murder of a Well-known Reporter." The extra was issued late in the evening, loud lunged newsboys carrying it into all sections of the city.

The pink issue had all the earmarks of a genuine newspaper and created a lot of excitement. Martin followed the "extra" with a midnight showing of "The Finger Points," crowding the theatre to the limit and getting the biggest opening gross the Brown Theatre has known.

Here's Inexpensive Exploitation

J. W. CRABTREE, manager of the Metro Theatre, Clarendon, Ark., put over a dandy, inexpensive stunt for "Behind Office Doors," the total cost of the compaign being $4.35 and this was for newspaper space.

Crabtree borrowed an office door and put it between two 3-sheet boards, giving the effect of an entrance to an office. Silhouette figures of a man and a woman embracing were pasted on the glass door. An electric light was put behind the door and the whole thing placed in the lobby.

A sign was placed over the door which read: "For Adults Only. This picture not suitable for children or foxy grandpas with high blood pressure." One-sheet boards were placed on each side of the display. The total expense of this display was NOTHING. The office door was secured for two passes.

In addition to this display Crabtree used 500 heralds, three one-sheets, one set of 11x14's, two 3-sheets and one specially made sheet using clippings from press sheet.

According to Crabtree, the lobby display "attracted attention and plenty of it."

The Theatre Seeks the Patrons

By William Jacobs

REAL ability now takes its rightful place.

The bluffers, braggarts, credit grabbers and lobby showoffs have had their day at advertising.

During the days of prosperity they bloom in artificial glory. In periods of depression they die miserably.

When every family had an overflowing surplus, it was no problem to fill seats. The chief worry then was to build theatres with huge capacities so that one could see and hear from any point.

People sought the theatre then. They stood for an hour or more in lines formed four abreast on sidewalks. They then waited in lobbies, crowded and rushed down the aisles for choice seats. They cut their dinner and lunch hours short in order to beat the crowd. They studied schedules. They climbed long stairs to balconies as a last resort in order to seek seats to enjoy most ordinary shows.

Depression has changed this dream of paradise. Patrons no longer seek the theatre. The theatre must now seek the patrons.

Sitting back and waiting for the producers to make box-office pictures, will not solve the problem. Presenting two mediocre pictures for the price of one will not consistently turn red figures to black. Cutting prices to a ridiculously low point will not increase receipts when the short-lived novelty wears off.

The theatre chain has to make up its mind to build a powerful seat-selling organization with efficient, enthusiastic and deservedly compensated manpower.

The individual operator has to make up his mind that he can no longer merely announce his attractions. He has to sell hard in his own individual way.

At one time Henry Ford's cars just naturally sold themselves. Now Henry has to spend millions in advertising to keep from losing his leadership.

The theatre still has a certain amount of lure.

Attention~~

To the left is a story of how one exhibitor made an attractive lobby display at no cost. Have you done something similar? Let's hear about it!

Women of All Nations

Fox—72 Minutes

Cast: Victor McLaglen, Edmund Lowe, Greta Nissen, El Brendel, Fifi Dorsay, Marjorie White, T. Roy Barnes, Bela Lugosi, Humphrey Bogart, Joyce Compton, Jesse De Vorska, Charles Judels. Directed by Raoul Walsh.

This snappy story of the U. S. Marines might be called a sequel to "The Cockeyed World," but does not pack quite the punch the former story had. Follows the adventures of these two hard-boiled characters who are continually trying to outsmart each other in their affairs with the ladies.

McLaglen as Sergeant Flagg continues in the Marines, while Lowe as Sergeant Quirt takes a fling as a beauty parlor manager. He gets in wrong with the police who raid the beauty shop and Quirt takes refuge in the recruiting office in charge of Flagg. Seeing a chance to get even and win himself an extra week's furlough, Flagg agrees to cover him up provided he signs up for another enlistment with the Marines.

Then follows a good-will cruise with the two sergeants continuing their rivalry for the beauties in the various ports with the windup occurring in a Turkish harem with both of them making a play for the favorite wife and the unexpected return of the master.

Some good comedy is injected by El Brendel and his timely sneezes which has the sound of the so-called "raspberry". Plenty of names that mean money at the box-office and good direction and photography put it over well.—Southwell.

The Maltese Falcon

Warner Bros.—80 Minutes

Cast: Bebe Daniels, Ricardo Cortez, Dudley Diggs, Una Merkel, Robert Elliott, Thelma Todd, Otto Matieson, Oscar Apfel, Walter Long, Dwight Frye, J. Farrell McDonald, A. Borgato. Directed by Roy Del Ruth.

This is a type of picture any audience should enjoy. It is a detective mystery which will hold the audience's interest until the last reel. Many surprising incidents take place and the ending is totally different from other pictures of this type.

About three-fourths of the picture is taken up with the murder of four men and there is so much going on that the audience will be confused trying to keep up with any clues of the murderer. Anyway, it keeps them guessing.

The picture has comedy and burlesque woven in when necessary to relieve the tense melodramatic monotony. Good performances are given by Bebe Daniels and Ricardo Cortez, but the picture is mainly Cortez. Dudley Diggs is excellent in a character portrayal.—Jesse.

Up For Murder

Universal—67 Minutes

Cast: Lew Ayres, Genevieve Tobin, Purnell Pratt, Richard Tucker, Frank McHugh, Louise Beaver, Frederick Burt. Directed by Monta Bell.

A pleasing murder story—not big and not mediocre—but enough suspense and entertainment to satisfy the average fan. Genevieve Tobin is especially good as the society editor of the newspaper and who is the sweetheart of the publisher, Purnell Pratt. Lew Ayres delivers a fairly convincing performance and should get over very well.

Ayres is the young reporter who falls for the society editor. When he learns of the affair between the newspaper owner and Miss Tobin, he gets into a fight with the publisher and the latter is killed from a fall. The boy is put on trial for murder, but the girl comes to his rescue when she tells her story and Ayres is released.

"Up for Murder" has its good points and should please generally.—S. F. D.

The Lawyer's Secret

Paramount—63 Minutes

Cast: Clive Brook, Charles Rogers, Richard Arlen, Fay Wray, Jean Arthur, Harold Goodwin, Francis McDonald, Syd Saylor, Lawrence La Marr, Robert Perry, Wilbur Mack. Directed by Louis Gasnier and Max Marcin.

A murder story well handled which gets over nicely. It has some good names in the cast and several exciting situations. Rogers is seen in a different kind of a role and makes the best of it. Others are well cast and the direction is convincing.

The story concerns the killing of a gambler and shows how Rogers and Richard Arlen are swept into the case by circumstantial evidence. Clive Brook as the defending lawyer knows that Rogers is the son of a wealthy family and in his defense endeavors to keep his confidence from coming into the testimony, because of his love for the boy's sister. There is suspense in the story and it should please the majority.—S. F. D.

The Foolish Forties

Educational—20 Minutes

There are some good laughs in this Gayety comedy in which June MacCloy and Ford Sterling are featured. Sterling, long a favorite in the comedy field, again displays his comic talent and helps to put over a good comedy. June MacCloy is good as the feminine lead.

PLACING THE BLAME WHERE IT BELONGS

DURING the past week announcement was made of the closing of the Rialto Theatre, one of Broadway's leading long run stands. The closing, which is for an indefinite period and the first for this house in fifteen years, is attributed to shortage of meritorious product. A shameful situation to be announced publicly and especially for a house owned jointly by Paramount and United Artists. It seems to us an awful slur against the industry's production forces that one theatre, which ordinarily plays but from twelve to fifteen pictures a year, that such a small number of worthwhile attractions should be available. However, there may be another way of looking at the situation.

Broadway in New York is little different from Main street in Kansas City insofar as the first run theatre situation is concerned. A few years ago New York had but five or six first run houses, now there is double that number. In Kansas City the first run situation has also doubled, as it has in Indianapolis, San Francisco or any other key town that you care to name. When the producers first began their invasion of the theatre field, building houses with seating capacities of from 2,500 upward, a warning of overseating was sounded throughout the industry. But no heed was paid to it. The building campaign went merrily on and in the larger cities it even extended itself into the neighborhood districts, where now in most any large city will be found several handsome theatre structures with large seating capacities, which are not only drawing trade away from the downtown first runs, but also increasing the flow of red ink.

"Bigger and better theatres" was for several years the slogan of the producer-exhibitor as well as of some independent theatre operators. But it seems to have been carried too far. While some of these newer theatres have closed two and three smaller opposition houses, the seating capacities have increased to abnormally high proportions. With so many large theatres competing for trade the average good picture does not suffice as a drawing attraction. Super entertainment seems to be required.

Statistics will reveal the fact that there are more people attending motion picture theatres today than in its earlier prosperous days. But the attendance is distributed among so many houses, which, because of their large capacities, are only partially filled, that box offices are suffering. Every now and then a picture comes along that does big business all along the line. But that doesn't happen often enough to keep the bigger houses on the right side of the ledger. Every picture can't be a winner, no matter who is its producer. But, when there is only so much public money that is being spent for entertainment, it seems logical to follow that concentration of that revenue through fewer box office windows, with the attendant elimination of duplicated operating costs, is the solution to the problem.

Quality product is vitally necessary to this business. But, if the super-attraction is the only thing that will make for this industry's continued prosperity, it is, indeed, in a sad plight. A whittling down of over-seated situations to the normal requirements of each and every town will do more to pull the theatre end of this business out of the red ink than will the maximum number of supers it is possible for all the producers to make.

Strict Censorship Looms

As William Anderson Is Elected Mayor of Minneapolis; Wins by a Landslide.

The Minneapolis rialto is harassed by bears of movie censorship as a result of the election of William A. Anderson, reform candidate, as mayor. Backed by union labor and the Scandinavian church element, Anderson, who has the reputation of being very straight-laced and who has announced his intention of closing the town tight, won by a landslde over Former Mayor George E. Leach, a liberal, after a hot campaign.

In Minneapolis the mayor is virtually the police chief and possesses broad censorship powers, being able to order changes in pictures or theatrical presentations on pan of license revocation. The Woman's Co-Operative Alliance, reform organization, is very active in its fight against pictures which it regards as objectionable on sex grounds, but during the past 10 years, through the administrations of Leach and W. F. Kunze, present mayor, who was defeated for re-election in the primaries, has received little encouragement or sympathy at the city hall.

Both Leach and Kunze were vigorously opposed to censorship and very broadminded in their attitude toward screen and stage entertanment. In numerous instances they refused the request of the alliance and individual reformers to order changes in movies or plays or to ban them entirely and always were friendly toward the theatrical interests. These latter interests regard Anderson's election as a considerable blow.

In case of another strike by union theatrical employes, there also is a question as to what the new mayor's attitude would be in affording showhouses protection against strikers. During the Leach administration considerable disorder marked a strike of stage hands, but the theatres received

Exchanges Report Western Demand

From Exhibitors in N. W.; Good Business on This Type of Pictures; Managers Declare.

Minneapolis exchanges report a record-breaking demand for western pictures.

Small-town exhibitors are clamoring for this type of picture, exchange managers assert. There is no depression in the market for westerns, they declare.

The exhibitors' demand reflects the demands of their patrons. The westerns are doing the business and the public is actually requesting them, according to the exchange managers.

With a line-up of eight Buck Jones' pictures, Columbia has been doing a rush business. Announcement is made that the new product will include 16 westerns, divided among eight Buck Jones and eight Tim McCoy pictures.

"We have been doing an exceptionally fine business with our westerns and the big problem has

Testing Contract

In Valley City, N. D.; Case Is Between John Tiller and United Artists Corp.

The second of the test case to determine the validity of standard film contracts is being tried at Valley City, N. D. United Artists are the plaintiffs, and John Tiller, local exhibitor and member of Allied States, the defendant. Samuel P. Halpern, Allied States' attorney, is assisting in the defense of the case.

United Artists allege that Tiller has failed to fulfill his contract in the playing of its pictures. As a defense, Tiller claims conspiracy between himself and the film company in the framing of a contract without legal standing. It also is claimed that the contract is in-

SUNDAY VICTORY

Willmar, Minn., Theatres to Open on Sabbath

Willmar, Minn., is to have Sunday movies for the first time in its history. One of the last of the large Minnesota towns to capitulate to the Sunday shows, it voted in their favor by a several hundred majority at the recent special election. As soon as the majority's wishes are ratified by the city council the Sunday shows will start.

Two previous elections resulted in victories for the anti-Sunday movie forces. Publix, which opperates the only theatre in the town, financed the recent election. Among those who spoke for the Sunday shows was Harold Johnson, Educational exchange manager in Minneapolis.

It was stressed during the campaign that surrounding towns all have Sunday shows and draw people from Willmar. Speakers pointed out the advantage of having this money remain at home.

Hits Daylight

Madison, Wis.—A bill concurred in by the senate will outlaw daylight savings time in Wisconsin if approved by Gov. Phil La Follette. The measure provides that no person operating a place of business "shall use another than the standard time." It carries a penalty of $25 to $500 and ten to thirty days.

Westerns in Demand

By M. E. CUFFEL, Editor

THE reported large demand for westerns, coupled with the big business which "Skippy," "Tom Sawyer" and other such pictures are doing throughout the territory, would seem to be rather strong evidence that the Northwest public, particularly in the smaller towns, is rather tired of the sex and gangster fare which has been fed to it so freely during the past year. Apparently, there is a desire for more clean, wholesome pictures fit for all members of the family.

Good westerns fill the bill as far as clean, wholesome entertainment is concerned. They provide the sort of thrills and excitement which have a universal appeal. There is hardly a red-blooded person who can resist the

First Run Business Shows Increase; All Films Draw

Minneapolis (week ending June 12) — Business showed considerable of a pick-up the past week. "Laughing Sinners" at the Minnesota and "Donovan's Kid" at the RKO Orpheum were especially good drawing cards and boosted patronage at their respective houses considerably. Another magnet was "Gun Smoke," the only western in the loop, which drew well at the Lyric. "It's a Wise Child," highly praised, attracted good-sized patronage to the Aster. Cool weather aided trade at all the theatres.

Aster—It's A Wise Child (M-G-M), Marion Davies. Business: Good. Summary: Amusing comedy of a young woman who feigns pregnancy in order to rid herself of an unloved fiance. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound, News, comedy screen vaudeville.

Grand—Caught Cheating (Tiffany), Charlie Murray and Geo. Sidney. Business: Fair. Summary: A vulgar farce comedy, laugh-provoking in spots, with Murray and Sidney in their familiar Irish and Jewish characterizations, stepping out on a gay party. Entertainment Merits: 60 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy, screen vaudeville.

Lyric — Gun Smoke (Para.), Richard Arlen and Mary Brian. Business: Good. Summary: Plenty of thrills in this swift-moving drama of the West wherein cowboys triumph over New York gangsters. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, comedy screen vaudeville.

R K O Orpheum — "Donovan's Kid (RKO), Richard Dix, Jackie Cooper. Business: Good. Summary: The story of an outlaw's reformation; frequently moving. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, comedy and sound news.

State—Gold Dust Gertie (Warner Bros.), Winnie Lightner and Olsen and Johnson. Business: Fair. Summary: Rowdy farce comedy concerning a divorcee and her alimony defaulting ex-husbands. Entertainment Merits: 70 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal News; Mermaid comedy; travelogue; cartoon comedy.

Minnesota — Laughing Sinners (M-G-M), Joan Crawford. Business: Good. Summary: An interesting drama of a cabaret dancer's regeneration; sophisticated fare for adult audiences. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, sound news and fashion reel.

MILWAUKEE

Alhambra — Shipmates (M-G-M), Robert Montgomery, Ernest Torrence. Business: Good. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Lloyd Hamilton comedy; Universal Newsreel; Burton Holmes Travelogue.

Garden—Hell Bound (Tiffany), Leo Carillo, Lola Lane. Business: Fair. Summary: An average picture in which one more gangster is glorified because he happens to have a sentimental streak in his make-up. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Comedy and newsreel.

Majestic—Dirigible (Columbia), Jack Holt, Ralph Graves. Business: Fair. Summary: An air and ice spectacle with plenty of thrills enhanced by good acting. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Newsreel.

Palace—White Shoulders (Radio), Jack Holt and Mary Astor. Business: Fair. Summary: Taken from Rex Beach's "Recoil," the story has a novel twise which makes for suspense. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: RKO news; comedy.

Riverside—Beyond Victory (R-K-O-Pathe), Bill Boyd and James Gleason. Business: Fair. Summary: A war picture done in the interests of peace which furnishes fair entertainment. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: RKO vaudeville.

Strand—Dude Ranch (Para.), Jack Oakie, Stuart Erwin, Eugene Pallette. Business: Fair. Summary: A light picture capably acted, directed and staged. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjectsc: Fox Movietone News; Boy Friend Comedy.

Warner — The Maltese Falcon (Warner Bros.), Bebe Daniels and Ricardo Cortez. Business: Good. Summary: A genuine flavor of adventure and mystery has been injected into this Dashiell Hammett novel. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Bobby Jones episode; Universal Newsreel; Laurel & Hardy comedy.

Wisconsin — Laughing Sinners (M-G-M), Joan Crawford, Neil Hamilton. Business: Good. Summary: A picture based on the play "The Torch Song" which Miss Crawford playing first the dancing daughter type of role and melodramatic role. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon and Marco Idea; Fox Newsreel.

ALONG FILM ROW

S. Lesserman, assistant division manager from the New York home office of Warner Bros.-First National, was a visitor at the Minneapolis exchange last week. He reported that Warner Brothers and First National are closing up a record number of new contracts for new season product.

Walter Feist, manager of the Tower Theatre (Publix), St. Paul, is in Miller hospital, suffering from a broken nose and other injuries. He was hurt when the steering gear on his automobile broke during a heavy rainstorm and he smashed into a telegraph pole.

Bob La Piner, office manager for Publix in Minneapolis, is at the U. S. Veterans' hospital for another series of operations which he has undergone since the World War. He sustained numerous wounds and other injuries in active service.

No signs of hard times around the RKO Orpheum Theatre executive offices these days. The entire staff is boasting new spring outfits. In their new suits, Morgan Ames, division manager; Emil Franke, house manager, and Dick Gilbert, exploitation head, are attracting considerable rialto attention.

The Minneapolis Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer exchange has a new staff of bookers. It consists of Casper Chouinard, head booker; Frank Jelinko, assistant booker, and Mort Joes, short feature booker.

The RKO Orpheum theatre claims for its newsreel the distinction of having taken the first moving pictures of the new mayor-elect of Minneapolis, W. A. Anderson. The pictures were "shot" during election day afternoon when Anderson's victory was assured and were shown on the theatre screen the same night. So big has the newsreel been going over that a number of neighborhood houses are reported to be seeking it for second runs. Morgan Ames, division manager, is considering the offers.

* * *

Harvey B. Day, from the Educational home office, New York, visiting the Minneapolis exchange on a nation-wide tour, reported himself as very well satisfied with the results being obtained by Educational throughout the country. He is optimistic regarding the future outlook.

* * *

Another postponement of the Western Electric's breach of contract suit against W. A. Steffes, general manager of Allied States in Minneapolis and operator of a neighborhood showhouse, carries the case over to the September term of district court in Minneapolis. Western Electric has been endeavoring to get the case tried, but Samuel P. Halpern, counsel for Steffes, succeeded in getting the additional delay. Western Electric claims that money still is due to it on its contract for the installation and servicing of sound equipment in Steffes' theatre. Steffes is contesting the claim.

* * *

Minneapolis theatrical circles are elated over the manner in which the Minneapolis Tribune is opening up to theatre exploitation and publicity. The sheet formerly was death on this sort of stuff with the chiefs of staff among the most hard boiled in the country. Now, however, the newspaper is showing a willingness to play ball with the theatres, as evidenced by tie-ups which have given Publix considerable free display and news advertising and publicity in return for theatre screen and lobby advertisement for various of the newspaper features. As a case in point, the Minnesota Theatre last week called its organ novelty "Pop Eye, the Sailor" to advertise a new comic strip which the Tribune now is using. In return, the Tribune ran a number of large display ads on "Laughing Sinners," the Minnesota feature picture, gratis.

Warner Brothers landed two of their pictures in the State Theatre, Minneapolis, one of the two leading Publix loop houses, in sucessive weeks. "Gold Dust Gertie," starring Winnie Lightner, held forth last week, while "The Public Enemy," noted gangster picture, is this week's attraction.

The Minneapolis Film Board of Trade has tentatively selected June 19 as date for its annual golf tournament. The place will be Oak Ridge golf club, where last year's tournament was held. Robert Workman and Tom Burke comprise the committee which is making arrangements for the affair.

Among Minneapolis Film Row visitors of the past week were W. R. Hiller, State Theatre, Alexandria, Minn.; C. E. Windgreene, Capital Theatre, Bismarck, N. D., and Julius Edelstein, Grand Theatre, Nashwauk, Minn. They were arranging bookings and looking over new product.

* * *

Bert Titus, state checker champion, proved such a good lobby attraction that the RKO Orpheum Theatre, Minneapolis, held him over for a second week. He meets all comers, playing three games simultaneously, and victors receive free guest tickets to the theatre.

* * *

Dick Gilbert, RKO exploitation head in Minneapolis, doubles as a cameraman, taking movies for the RKO Orpheum weekly newsreel. The chief cameraman for the service is George Ryan, a University of Minnesota student.

* * *

The rapidly growing business of the RKO Minneapolis exchange has necessitated larger quarters. The exchange will be moved from 36 Glenwood avenue, its present address, to 1100 First avenue, the former First National exchange, where it will have considerably more room and be able to render better service than ever. Mike Frisch is the Minneapolis exchange manager.

Blue Law Vote

Madison Wis.—The question of whether Wisconsin's blue laws should be repealed will be presented to the voters, during the November, 1932, election. A resolution introduced by Assemblyman John Grobschmidt, Milwaukee, after his measures for repeal of the statutes were blocked by the 1931 and 1932 legislatures, has been concurred in by both the assembly and senate.

Hamm, Third Partner of F&R Chain, Dead

William Hamm of St. Paul, third partner in the firm of Finkelstein & Ruben, operators of the Northwest's largest theatre chain prior to its sale to Publix for a reported price of more than $5,000,000 three years ago, died in St. Paul Wednesday, June 10. He was 72 years old.

The death of Mr. Hamm followed that of I. H. Ruben, another member of the firm, by less than a month. M. L. Finkelstein, who, with Mr. Ruben, founded the F. & R. theatre chain, died four months ago. In all three instances death was due to heart disease.

Mr. Hamm was a former brewer. Finkelstein and Ruben induced him to enter their theatrical concern prior to the advent of prohibition. He had heavy real estate holdings in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Glass Tie-Up

Dick Gilbert, RKO Orpheum press agent, tied up loop traffic and got some advertising in front of large loop crowds for the theatre, by a frame-up stunt. He stalled a Ford automobile on the busiest corner and had one of the performers jump on the running board and loudly demand that his "wife" leave the machine. "What are you doing with my wife in your car?" loudly demanded the performer, as he pounded with a cane on the glass. When a crowd gathered the shades of the car were pulled down. Then they were lifted disclosing a sign advertising shatter-proof glass and the theatre. A local company contributed the machine.

Incorporation

Milwaukee, Wis.—Articles of incorporation have been filed here by the Waldemar Amusement Co. Signers of the articles are F. Scharbach, August Bellack and E. Bellack.

FILE RUBEN WILL

Bulk of Estate Goes to the Widow

An estate valued at "more than $250,000" was left by I. H. Ruben, veteran Minneapolis theatrical man and partner and co-founder of the Finkelstein & Ruben theatre chain. The will, filed in Minneapolis probate court, leaves the bulk of the estate to the widow, Rose G. Ruben, for whom a trust fund is created. Mrs. Ruben is to receive $25,000 a year for 15 years from the income of this fund. The remainder of the income is to be divided into five equal shares for his five children for the same period. Smaller amounts are to be paid out of income to other relatives.

At the end of 15 years, the investment principal is to be divided, one-half to go to the widow, if still living, and the other half to be divided among the four sons and a daughter.

Mr. Ruben was noted for his charities and philanthropies during his lifetime. A number of charitable bequests also are provided by his will. Two former employees, Carl Ferguson and Homer Showaller, also are remembered in the sum of $500 each. Bequests ranging from $200 to $1,000 and totaling $3,700 are left to various friends. The five children are left $5,000 each and eight grandchildren receive $2,500 each.

Westerns in Demand

lure of these action melodramas of the open spaces. And they especially help to build up kiddie patronage. The youngsters, it must be remembered, are the grown-ups of tomorrow, and if the boys and girls in a community are developed into film fans a part of the local exhibitor's problems are solved.

From what Movie Age is able to learn the feminine fans, as well as those of the male persuasion, are boosters for the westerns. Male fans always have been strong for these outdoor action pictures. With the fair sex converted to them in the territory a great season appears in prospect for the westerns throughout the Northwest.

BIG CAMPAIGN

Minnesota in Tie-up With Baking Co.

The Minneapolis Publix advertising and managerial staff saw their "perfect commercial tie-up" realized when the huge campaign, sponsored by the Minnesota Theatre, Minneapolis, and the Continental Baking Company took form this week. The tie-up was built purely upon entertainment for the audience and direct advertising for the showhouse. The baking company underwrote the entire large cost involved.

Pivoting around the booking of a special added act for the stage show, "The Happy Wonder Trio," an act lent the theatre gratis by the Continental Bakers and one which has built a wide following as a radio attraction, the tie-up found advertising support in practically every exploitation medium. The act was introduced from the stage as a "discovery" of Lou Breese, master of ceremonies.

One of the big pieces of publicity on the attraction was a full-page co-operative ad in the Minneapolis Journal. This ad, which broke on the day before the opening, was headed by an especially written crayon drawing of Breese and his "finds" and carried the line across the top: "Lou Breese introduces the Happy Wonder Trio." Then, across the eight columns ran the line: "Together with 'The Front Page,' a Screen Triumph, etc." There were 1,600 copies of this page pasted in windows of stores handling the Wonder Bread products.

Counter cards, selling both the special act and the picture, "The Front Page," also were spotted in the 1,600 stores. All of the 66 bakery trucks carried banners with like copy. On the day before the opening, this army of trucks, headed by Lou Breese in his own car and by a police escort, paraded the loop streets.

Large insert leaflets, devoted almost entirely to the picture attraction, were wrapped around 80,000 loaves of bread delivered to dealers during the week. Full-size loaves of bread also were presented gratis to the first 1,500 women entering the Minnesota Theatre Monday.

No Two Operators

Madison, Wis. — A bill to force exhibitors to employ an operator for each machine in the projection booth, recently introduced into the state senate has been killed. A similar measure was introduced earlier in the session in the assembly but was withdrawn.

M. P. T. O. Hits at Allied

Bulletin Attacks Allied States for Taking Credit for Service Charge Reduction.

New York—M. P. T. O. A. is pointing its guns at Allied States Association and is accusing the latter organization of taking the credit for bringing about a reduction of service charges. In the June issue of the M. P. T. O. A. bulletin it is pointed out that a comittee discussed the matter with C. W. Bunn of Electrical Research Products several days before a committee of Allied men made a similar visit to Bunn. The initial move for the reduction, according to the bulletin, was made by Jack Miller of Chicago at the M. P. T. O. A. convention four months before the first conference with Erpi.

The bulletin further criticizes Allied for its favorable attitude toward sponsored advertising.

INDEPENDENTS' BEST SEASON

Says H. D. Edwards, Who Declares Next Year Offers Golden Opportunities for Producers.

Hollywood — Independent producers can look to the next season as one offering the greatest opportunities, according to H. D. Edwards, pioneer production executive, who is to make "Pagan Lady" for Columbia release.

"For the last several seasons the independent producer has felt that each year would be 'the best,' but each time something disrupted the forecast," says Edwards. "Just when everything seemed right, along came the talkers. With the major companies having first call on all the recognized equipment, none being available to the indies until such time as sufficient equipment had been manufactured and set up in the major studios, it was practically impossible for the independent producer to make the right kind of talking pictures. Stars and featured players of the right kind for talking pictures also were cornered by the major companies. But now the best in equipment, acting talent, directors and stories are available to the independent. This is exemplified in my forthcoming production of 'Pagan Lady,' which will be directed by John Francis Dillon with a cast including Evelyn Brent, Conrad Nagel, Chas. Bickford, Roland Young, Wm. Farnum, Gwen Lee, Leslie Fenton, Lucille Gleason, Wallace McDonald and Walter Percival."

Wants Fairer Zoning

M. P. T. O. Claims Circuits Are Asking Too Much Protection; Asks For New System.

New York—The M. P. T. O. A. is urging that new and fairer zoning plans be adopted and is claiming that the big circuits are demanding "terrific protection, out of all reasonableness and unheard of in the business at any time." Officials of the national organization point out that the committees that organized the first zoning plans, which were never put into effect, could be called into service to draft a new national system.

PATHE WINS

Supreme Court Decision on Old Contract Film

Buffalo,—Judge Hinckley in Special Term of the Supreme Court on Friday, June 12, denied an injunction sought by La Hay, Inc., operating the Lafayette Theatre, to prevent RKO-Pathe Distributing Corp. from permitting the showing of the Constance Bennett picture, "Born to Love," in Shea's Buffalo Theatre. Plaintiff sought to obtain the picture as one of those under the old agreement with the old Pathe company. The court rejected this theory.

FAVORS MERGERS

Government Friendly to Consolidations

__Washington—The favorable attitude of the government toward the consolidation of Standard Oil Co. of New York and the Vacuum Oil Co. is interpreted to mean that the government is doing its part to aid constructive business enterprises. The step by the government is looked upon as a means of opening up the possibilities for an okay on the Warner-First National case, Fox-Loew situation and lessening of interference being enlisted by the minority opposing the RKO-Pathe merger.

Unknown Cast

New York—D. W. Griffith will produce a talking picture in the east with a cast of comparative unknown players, it was reported last week. The veteran director expects to uncover new talent. The necessary finances have been secured and production will get under way in July.

KLEINE PASSES

Pioneer Film Man Dies in New York

New York—George Kleine, one of the pioneers of the motion picture industry in the exhibition and importing branches, died last week at his home here. Kleine was instrumental in the building and development of early projectors and was active in the formation of the Motion Picture Patents Co.

Fox Reorganized; New Directors are Elected

New York — Reorganization of Fox Films was completed last week when eight new directors were elected. The reorganization began a year ago when William Fox relinquished control after financial difficulties had brought about his retirement from active interest in the organization.

In a 15-minute perfunctory session of stockholders held in the theatre atop the company's new headquarters, the change in directors was effected without a dissenting vote.

The new members are Albert H. Wiggin, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Geo. M. Moffett, Frank O. Watts, Philip R. Clarke, David K. E. Bruce, Edwa Tinker and Samuel W. Fordyce.

The old directors who were reelected are Harley Clarke, the president; Matthew C. Brush, Winfield Sheehan and Charles W. Higleywn.

At a meeting prior to the stockholders' session directors placed the class A and class B stocks on a $2.50 basis by the declaration of 62½-cent dividends. Mr. Clarke said it was hoped the company would be able to return to the $4 basis in the third quarter.

TWO NEW TITLES

Radio Changes Names of Two Pictures

Hollywood—"Transgression" is the new title that supersedes "The Next Corner," Herbert Brenon's latest production for Radio Pictures. Kay Francis and Ricardo Cortez are featured, with William Welch, Adrienne d'Ambricourt, John St. Polis, Wilfred Noy and David Dunbar.

PAPA SILVER

New York — A daughter was born last week to Gertrude and Milton Silver. Mr. Silver is advertising manager of Universal.

Silver, in announcing the event to P. D. Cochrane, sent the following wire:

"Exclusive story immediate release—Gala world premiere Jeanne Ritchie Silver, first appearance anywhere—eleven thirty p. m., June third—Finest production of kind ever played this house—Booked for indefinite run."

World Confab

London—A World conference of all branches of the motion picture industry is being planned here. Representatives from America and other parts of the world will be invited. The event will take place in London next year if the plans are carried out.

THRILL-O-DRAMAS

With Kenneth Harlan and Josephine Dunn. The first picture of its kind. Action in the sky, revolving around the dramatic story of a new development in police patrol. Climaxed by a magnificent battle in the air!

"AIR POLICE"

With Rex Lease and Dorothy Gulliver. The rugged virile ghost of the rowdy old West makes a hectic entree into the new, and then how the cactus does fly! Hard riding, hard fighting, woven 'round with a golden thread of romance.

"IN OLD CHEYENNE"

With Charles Delaney, Vera Reynolds and Carrol Nye. Rival auto racers, competing for a pretty girl's favors, run the gamut of incredible thrills. A sensational race reaches its climax in a death-rending crash! Action galore!

"HELL BENT for FRISCO"

From a magazine story by Michael L. Simmons. Ready for production. A stirring epic of the daily life and adventures of an ambulance surgeon. The clang of the gong takes this romantic figure thru a maze of heroic action and startling drama! A smashing exploitation special!

SIGN SETH PARKER

Radio Favorite Will Do RKO Talker

Hollywood—"Seth Parker" will soon reach the screen. William LeBaron has wired eastern headquarters of Radio Pictures that he has approved the feature story written by Jane Murfin for Phillips Lord, famed creator of the "Seth Parker" series of broadcasts.

Lord has arranged to arrive in Hollywood July 20 with twelve members of his famous troupe.

As "Seth Parker" Lord is heard in millions of homes every Sunday evening through facilities of the National Broadcasting Company. From the hear of New York, center of the sophisticates, Phillips Lord sends forth his programs replete with home-spun philosophy which touches a sympathetic chord in the hearts of a legion of listeners.

Another for Holt

Hollywood—Jack Holt has been signed to portray the big role in Columbia's forthcoming de luxe "special," "Fifty Fathoms Deep." The picture, a tense drama of danger and adventure of those who seek treasure at the mysterious sea bottom brings Mr. Holt back to the Columbia lot after a brief vacation at his Las Vegas, Nevada, ranch. Richard Cromwell, who starred in "Tol'able David," his initial screen role, will depict the juvenile lead.

Buys Two Plays

Hollywood — Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer has acquired talking picture rights to two well-known dramatic properties, "Turn to the Right" and "Three Wise Fools." "Turn to the Right" was written by Winchell Smith and J. E. Hazzard, ran for three season's in New York City and later proved an extremely popular play with repertory and stock companies. "Three Wise Fools," Austin Strong's play, was produced in New York by John Golden, and after a season on Broadway played throughout the country, with many subsequent revivals.

Boardman With Cooper

Hollywod — Eleanor Boardman, now making her debut as a Paramount contract player, will appear opposite Gary Cooper in "A Farewell to Arms."

RADIO TIE-UP

Novel Exploitation on "Public Enemy"

As an exploitation stunt for "The Public Enemy" at the State Theatre this week, a radio tie-up was arranged which created considerable talk. The stunt consisted of special radio announcements at regular intervals throughout each day. These announcements were in the nature of "police alarms." The shriek of a siren came first and then a statement to the effect that "The Public Enemy" was in town. Listeners-in were notified that if they brought in the "magic word" mentioned during the broadcast they would be the theatre management's guests. The radio hook-up was secured without cost to the theatre.

Another stunt used to exploit the picture was that of having loop newsboys shout "Public Enemy" in connection with special editions pertaining to gangsters. The management obtained the boys' goodwill by having them as guests at a special showing.

good police protection. Theatre operators here indicate they would close their showhouses immediately in case of a strike, instead of trying to operate with non-union help as on other occasions.

"SWEEPSTAKES"

To Be First RKO-Pathe 1931-32 Release

New York — Ned E. Depinet, vice-president and general sales manager, states that RKO Pathe will start off the 1931-32 schedule with the release of "Sweepstakes," a comedy drama of the race track, on July 10. Eddie Quillan is the star who inaugurates the release of the Personality Group which presents Constance Bennett, Ann Harding, Helen Twelvetrees, Ina Claire, William Boyd and Quillan.

Depinet states that "Sweepstakes" was moved up a month on the schedule because of its timeliness to the racing season which permits exhibitors opportunity to tie-in with the interest in the turf created by the Kentucky Derby, Epsom Downs' Derby and other classics. He further believes that an outdoor action picture is an excellent anecdote to counteract the competition of open-air attractions now getting under way, particularly since the Quillan vehicle has plenty of exploitation and ballyhoo angles.

MOUSE CLUB MEETS

30 Wisconsin Cities Are Represented

Milwaukee, Wis.—Fox's Mickey Mouse convention held here June 6 with approximately 4,000 kiddies attending, was a decided success. The delegates from clubs in 30 Wisconsin cities were first entertained at Fox's Wisconsin Theatre, the feature of the show being Fanchon and Marco's Mickey Mouse Idea.

At noon the delegates were feted at a banquet at the Hotel Schroeder, prior to which a parade was staged through the downtown sections of the city. Seven bands were included in the parade and floats of a number of the sponsoring firms made up the line of march.

TOM KEENE

Is RKO-Pathe's New Western Star

Tom Keene has been selected by Charles R. Rogers, production chief, as the star of RKO-Pathe Western features. The new star will be seen in six pictures a year.

Tom Keene is not a newcomer to the screen. He has already established himself with the fans under his own name, George Duryea. However, it was decided that Tom Keene was more in character with his new specialized line of acting. It was under the Rooster banner that he made his screen debut as the hero of Cecil B. DeMille's dramatic spectacle, "The Godless Girl."

"FINN" STARTED

Second of Mark Twain's Under Way

Hollywood — "Huckleberry Finn," the second screen version of a Mark Twain story to go into production as a talker, has just started before the recording cameras of the Hollywood studio of Paramount under the direction of Norman Taurog, who rose to fame recently for his work with "Skippy." Taurog, who has just finished directing "Forbidden Adventure," which is the new title for Sinclair Lewis's latest story, "Let's Play King," will have under his guidance some of the youngsters who were with him in the Lewis story.

Others who resume their original parts are Mitzi Green as Becky Thatcher, Jackie Searl as Sid Sawyer, Clara Blandick as Aunt Polly and Jane Darwell as the Widow Douglas.

Western Demand

been to obtain sufficient prints to supply the demand," said Ben Marcus, Minneapolis excange manager. "Our western prints have been working continuously and there has been a veritable flood of inquiries regarding the new product."

With 12 westerns this year and 12 slated for next year, Celebrated Exchange, 70 Glenwood avenue, Minneapolis handling the Big 4 product, is sitting pertty. M. O. Mugridge, exchange manager, says his business has left nothing to be desired. Throughout the entire past 12 months, bookings have held up splendidly and the depression has been felt but little, he says.

Mr. Mugridge is enthusiastic over the new western serial, "The Vanishing Legion," starring Harry Carey and Edwina Booth of "Trader Horn" fame, which he soon will release in the territory. His other western serials, starring Rin-Tin-Tin and Tom Tyler have been going over big. A big card in the "Vanishing Legion" serial is Rex, king of wild horses."

"Fair Warning," "Not Exactly Gentlemen" and 'The Big Trail" are the outstanding Fox westerns, with George O'Brien a favorite among lovers of these action pictures. "Cimarron," the RKO epic, is one of the greatest of all outdoor action films, of course, and still one of the biggest cards in the territory.

Pathe is proud of Bill Boyd's "The Painted Desert," which is going over splendidly everywhere. The local exchange wishes it had more of these westerns. The Minneapolis Universal exchange is eagerly awaiting westerns among its new product.

Paramount has an unusually strong line-up of westerns which exhibitors in the territory are buying eagerly. The line-up includes: "Dude Ranch," "Gun Smoke," "The Santa Fe Trail" and "The Conquering Horde," all of them sure-fire box-office, it is said.

Metro-Goldwyn comes to the front with "Way Out West," starring William Haines, and "The Great Meadow," with John Mack Brown.

"In Old Cheyenne" is a Sono-Art Western that has been cleaning, while Tiffany's "The Two Gun Man," "Headin' North" and "Rogue of the Rio Grande" are outstanding magnets everywhere, it is reported.

The Orpheum had a tie-up with "Action Twins" which gave it a big newspaper advertising lay-out without any expense. The "Action Twins" are used to exploit radiator ornaments for automobiles.

Educational to Have 128 Short Subjects

New York — Educational will have one hundred and twenty-eight subjects on its 1931-32 schedule, of which fifty-two will be two-reel comedies, and seventy-six, one-reel subjects.

Mack Sennett, who has been producing short features exclusively for Educational since his entry into the sound field, will make twenty-six two-reel comedies next season, and two different one-reel novelty stories. Sennett's two-reel comedies will be divided into three groups; there are to be eight Andy Clyde comedies, six Mack Sennett comedies featurettes, and twelve Mack Sennett comedies.

The Sennett comedy featurettes are to be made on a large production scale. It will definitely be a "class" series, with stories and settings that are essentially modern, without being so sophisticated as to jeopardize its appeal universally. In every feature, except length, they are to resemble important seven-reel pictures.

The complete Educational lineup is as follows:

Two Reel Comedies

Eight Mack Sennett-Andy Clyde comedies starring Andy Clyde; six Mack Sennett-Comedy Featurettes; twelve Mack Sennett comedies with such players as Harry Gribbon, Patsy O'Leary, Marion Sayers; eight Vanity Comedies, Al Christie Productions; six Torchy comedies featuring Ray Cooke; six Mermaid comedies, fast action, rough and tumble comedies; six Ideal Comedies, featuring important stage and screen players.

One-Reel Subjects

Twenty-six Paul Terry-Toons; twelve Mack Sennett brevities; a novelty series in color, introducing such interesting activities as those to be found at Agua Caliente, Reno, etc.; thirteen Cameo Comedies, fast action slapstick comedies; thirteen Romantic Journeys, novelty series combining romance, beauty, travel and adventure, with Claude Flemming, famous world traveler as narrator and guide; six Cannibals of the Deep, new thriller series showing rare specimens of the sea; six Lyman H. Howe's Hodge Podge, interesting shots from everywhere, with complete commentary and sound effects.

Grant Withers has the starring role, supported by Phyllis Barrington, Marjorie Beebe, Donald Keith, Wheeler Oakman, William Desmond, Paul Panzer, and George Cheesboro.

56 RADIO SHORTS

Darmour, Van Beuren and Brock to Produce

Hollywood—Fifty-six short subjects are to be released by Radio Pictures for the season 1931-32. Included are 24 two-reelers to be filmed by Louis Brock and six two-reelers by Larry Darmour. In addition, Amedee Van Beuren is to contribute 13 one-reel cartoons and 13 one-reel novelties.

Included in the 24 two-reelers to be produced by Brock will be six "Headliners"; six Ned Sparks; six Rosco Ates; six Chic Sale's.

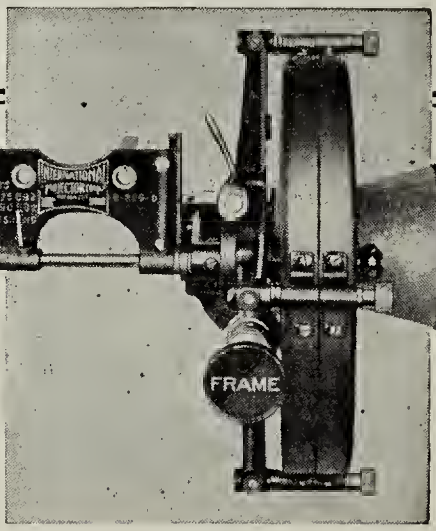
A big saving on a Standard Accessory

YOU can't hold the crowds these days without better sound than you gave them last year or the year before. Projection equipment must be up-to-date. In three important ways your National Branch will help you keep a little ahead of the competition: (1) They always have the latest and best improvements first. (2) They won't approve or sell new items unless they actually are improvements. (3) Their prices—even on standard accessories—are usually lower. The new Simplex Rear Shutter is a good example of National Economy. It originally appeared on the market at $190. Because of the great sales volume it received through the coast-to-coast organization of National Theatre Supply Company, it has been possible to reduce this price to $145. . . . Just another of the many purchasing advantages that are constantly coming to National Customers.



The new Simplex Rear Shutter provides for a greatly increased screen illumination and reduces heat at the aperture by approximately 75%. . . These advantages will bring your projection up-to-the-minute and add noticeable improvement to Sound-on-Film features. A service man from your National Branch is ready to install your set of Simplex Rear Shutters at any time.

Banner Exploitation on New Jones Series

BUD BURMESTER, owner of the Hollywood Theatres Corporation of Fort Worth, Tex., used an extensive campaign in putting over the new Bobby Jones shorts released by Warner.

Enthusiastically sold on the shorts himself, Burmester determined to sell the public on them. Beginning four weeks in advance of his booking date on "The Putter," Burmester got out fifty twenty-four sheets. These he posted at strategic points leading to the various golf courses in and around Fort Worth. He had twenty-five one-sheets backed, using seven for window tie-ups in Fort Worth and sending the others for display on the golf courses. There were distributed three thousand heralds printed in color at the golf clubs and during the two weeks preceding the showings fifteen thousand throwaways were enclosed in local laundry packages.

An athletic equipment shop made a colorful display in the lobby of the Hollywood Theatre, showing the type of clubs Bobby Jones used in his tournaments and this attracted much attention. To the players on the miniature golf courses, who made a hole in one was given the privilege of buying two tickets for the price of one. Specially designed cards were gotten up for the hotel lobbies.

The exhibitor got up a 150-foot talking trailer showing Bobby Jones making the rounds on the green, and every street car carried a Bobby Jones banner on its fender. At all the luncheon clubs announcement of opening of the Bobby Jones series was made and the Kiwanis Club gave space to the series in its official organ.

In the local and suburban papers Burmester played up the series in big feature fashion, taking considerable space. As a final stunt on the Saturday of the opening of the series he dressed all his ushers in regulation plus fours, each sweater containing the name Bobby Jones across its front. Of course, there were a few other stunts after the opening such as an early forenoon showing for all the professional golfers in Fort Worth and another early forenoon showing for all the caddies employed at the local links. If he overlooked anything in putting over the Bobby Jones series Burmester would like to be told of it.

Soap Tie-up Gets Good Results

THE advertising staff of the Strand Theatre in Birmingham, Ala., is responsible for adding some new wrinkles to an old exploitation stunt. In connection with the showings of Warner Bros. production of "Fifty Million Frenchmen" the Strand management made a deal with the manufacturer of a toilet soap whereby he was to buy five hundred admission tickets to the picture. These he was to turn over to a department store to be used as prizes for purchasers of the soap. Part of the plan called for the department store to advertise the picture in all its Saturday and Sunday ads. The scheme went through, the store devoting 125 lines double column to "Fifty Million Frenchmen" in all of its week-end ads.

Two Stunts on "Public Enemy"

IN putting over "The Public Enemy" for its run at the Earle Theatre, in Washington, D. C., the Warner theatre staff got out two pieces of exploitation material that bear all earmarks of cleverness. One of these was a small pamphlet designed to interest and appeal to feminine fans. It was printed in two colors, profusely illustrated and impressive pictorially and typographically. One of its articles was titled, "Why Do Women Love Brutes?" and another was "The Letter of a Gangster to His Sweetheart." The feminine appeal throughout the pamphlet was direct.

The second piece of exploitation matter consisted of a pictorial announcement on the coming of "The Public Enemy" to the Earle and was designed to interest fans in general.

Thousands of the pamphlets and announcements were distributed and were effective as was proved by the fact that the special midnight opening of the picture attracted a turnaway audience.

3 Ways to Sell "Dude Ranch"

DUDE RANCH" can be classified as a different kind of a western and consequently needs a different kind of a campaign to sell it. According to Gabe York, writing in "The Last Word," Fox Theatres publication for house managers, there are three ways to sell this picture to the public. You can take your choice.

Quoting Yorke on his suggested campaign:

"If the western angle means money to your theatre, sell it as a western. But on the other hand, if you do best with gang pictures, sell this one as a gang picture. Or you can take a third angle and sell it as a society picture, with wealthy and thrill-hungry society looking for action in the west, and finding it. In any case, don't forget to include comedy angle.

"'Dude Ranch' is a comedy. It never gets serious. If you advertise it from the comedy angle alone, you might find some excellent catch lines in the dialogue of the picture. Screen the picture and copy some of the dialogue between Oakie and Pallette, in their take off of Black Dan and Cowboy Gilroy. If caricatured, these two would make good comic posters.

"If you want to ballyhoo this picture, you can go the limit. Use comic cowboys on horseback, bannered '"Dude Ranch." I never saw a cow.' It doesn't matter whether the fellow can ride a horse or not. In fact, if you can get a trick rider that can fall off a horse and get back on in a comic manner, get one. That is what Oakie does in the picture.

"Railway companies are now advertising summer vacations on 'Dude' ranches. It might be possible to obtain window displays in railway offices. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Great Northern are featuring such trips. They have offices in the larger cities in the East.

"Arrange for window displays in local stores of riding habits, camp kits, and outdoor equipment. Sporting goods stores can make attractive windows with camp kits, small tents, fire-arms, kettles and tripods.

"Use cut-outs for window displays, lobby and other available spots. All the paper is done in the comic vein. There are other ballyhoos which could be used. For instance, you might have a cowboy in full regalia, chaps, gun, and everything, big spurs if possible, riding a broom horse, or stick with horse's head. They can be purchased in any toy shop. Put the banner on his back. Use the line, 'It's all in fun, see "Dude Ranch" at the Fox Blank Theatre.' Another stunt that could be used would be to have a cowboy in full regalia, riding a hobby horse, saw horse, or horse used by contractors and carpenters. This could set on the outer edge of the sidewalk.

"Call out the local pony brigade. Offer prizes for the best cowboy suit and best looking pony. Call it 'The "Dude Ranch" round-up,' and offer prizes for the best Indian costume for boys and also for the girls. Best cowboy costume for boys and best cowgirl. Tie up with your local stores during the contest, with displays showing suits for the contest.

This picture should be well exploited. And it is one that will please children. We would suggest that you use the children angle in exploiting wherever possible.

Money Draws for "Millionaire"

IT occurred to Jack Rosenberg, manager of the Plaza Theatre in San Diego, Cal., that the title of the George Arliss picture, "The Millionaire," suggested money. As he was about to show the picture he decided that he would make money in some form figure in the advertising of it. One of his stunts was to distribute what looked like cartons of twenty dollars in fifty-cent pieces. The regulation paper was used so that the rolls looked as if they had just come from the bank. On removing the brown wrapper a silvered piece of wood was exposed. On the inside of the wrapper was printed an announcement of the showings of "The Millionaire". The package of "half dollars" created a lot of amusement and everyone wanted them. The stunt turned out profitably for it brought a lot of real money to the Plaza box-office.

REPORTS OF RESULTS AT THE BOX OFFICE

. . . AS TOLD BY . . .
EXHIBITORS THEMSELVES

COLUMBIA

Dawn Trail, Buck Jones — Just like the rest of Buck's pictures—extra good. If your fans want action, romance, hard riding and some good gun play, book "Dawn Trail." It will please them.—C. F. Bonner, Community, Pine Bluff, Ark.

Tol'able David, Richard Cromwell—Here's one that will please. It is different in story. Acting and sound extra good. I did good business on this one and I believe others can, too.—C. F. Bonner, Community, Pine Bluff, Ark.

FIRST NATIONAL

Too Young to Marry, Loretta Young—The title is misleading although it fits the picture. This is a homely story that will please the whole family. Plenty of good clean comedy and wholesome clean story in every way.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

M-G-M

It's a Wise Child, Marion Davies—Enjoyed by those who saw it but criticized in the churches.—Mrs. D. B. White, Ritz, DeFuniak Springs, Fla.

Stepping Out, Reginald Denny and Charlotte Greenwood—This is the best comedy of the season. Charlotte Greenwood is a scream. Pleased 100 per cent.—Ritz, Hale Center, Texas.

Trader Horn, Harry Carey—This is one of the best African pictures to date. Went over in fine shape. It should get the money and please the patrons.—Ritz, Hale Center, Texas.

Paid, Joan Crawford—A satisfying production from every angle. A really good story full of action, comedy and thrill. Joan Crawford is well liked here. She takes the part of a sales girl railroaded to prison as an example to the other girls relative to stealing. Her prison experience hardens her. She joins a gang of crooks and marries the son of the man that sent her to prison, as a revenge. Oh, yes, ending okay.—J. W. Crabtree, Metro, Clarendon, Ark.

PARAMOUNT

Up Pops the Devil, Carole Lombard—A very good comedy with a fine cast and clever dialogue.—Ritz, Hale Center, Texas.

SONO ART

Air Police, Kenneth Harlan—This picture is a good air thriller and has some good fights. Sound on film not extra good.—C. F. Bonner, Community, Pine Bluff, Ark.

STATE RIGHTS

Ten Nights in a Bar Room, Wm. Farnum—Good show that pleased. Fair attendance—Princess, Elwood, Ind.

TIFFANY

Aloha, Ben Lyon—Tiffany has put out another good one. I played this one to good business. Everybody was pleased with this picture but did not like the ending. Raquel Torres kills herself in the end. This does not ruin picture. Book it.—C. F. Bonner, Community, Pine Bluff, Ark.

UNITED ARTISTS

Indiscreet, Gloria Swanson—This picture pleased about 95 per cent. This type picture more popular than heavy drama.—Mrs. D. B. White, Ritz, De Funiak Springs, Fla.

WESTERN AND ACTION FEATURES

Current~ Coming

MEET FAMILY NEEDS

With Virile Productions RKO-Pathe Plan

"Youth passes, but romance lives," says Ned E. Depinet, vice-president and general sales manager of RKO-Pathe. And he continues:

"The old fashioned western pictures entertained youngsters from eight to 80 and we believe their charm has not decreased. Their disappearance from the screen may be attributed to a passing change in public taste, but the public still wants the thrills that only westerns can offer.

"More than that, with sound and the modern perfection of photography, there will be more beautiful scenic effects, naturally, with more realism from every standpoint.

"To help bring back the family trade and thus aid exhibitors in one of their box-office problems, RKO-Pathe is producing for the new season six feature length westerns in addition to two series of four action pictures starring Bill Boyd and Eddie Quillan.

"This series will be designed to appeal to the entire family and regain for exhibitors the patronage of the younger generation. They will appeal to all classes. They will be western action pictures with plenty of romance and adventure staged in the atmosphere of the West of the wild and wooly days of the picturesque past.

"Charles R. Rogers, who guided the destines of two of the screen's most popular heroes, Ken Maynard and Harry Carey, will supervise these RKO-Pathe westerns."

MANY ACCESSORIES

Available on Columbia's Buck Jones Series

A great variety of attractive accessories designed for both adult and juvenile appeal, are offered exhibitors for the exploitation of Columbia's lineup of the Buck Jones outdoor productions.

In addition to the usual one, three and six sheets, window cards and lobby cut-outs, the list of accessories includes: Lobby Hanger heads of Jones size 10¾ x 13 ins., in gray and red on 6-ply card; felt pennant, suitable for lobby hangers, size 18 x 27 ins. in red, blue and white; heralds in red and

ACTION PLENTIFUL

In Sono Art's Series of "Thrill-O-Dramas"

In the second group of ten Thrill-O-Dramas, produced by Geo. W. Weeks, for Sono Art is a type of entertainment for which there has been a crying need since the advent of the "talkie." Pictures of action, dynamic thrills, pictures redolent of the great out-doors, the mastery of the air, water and the frozen tundras of the North by indomitable men. The chase and quest of romance and red-blooded adventure, pictures which have ever appealed to all ages and classes.

Four in this series of thrillers have already been completed, of which are "Swanee River," a story staged in the idyllic locale which inspired the internationally famous melody. The cast is headed by Grant Withers and Thelma Todd.

"Air Police," with Kenneth Harlan and Josephine Dunn. The first picture of its kind. Action in the sky, revolving around the dramatic story of a new development in police patrol.

"In Old Cheyenne," with Rex Lease and Dorothy Gulliver. The ragged virile ghost of the rowdy old West makes a hectic entree into the new, and then how the cactus does fly!

"Hell Bent for 'Frisco," with Charles Delaney, Vera Reynolds and Carrol Nye. A story of rival auto racers competing for a pretty girl's favors.

Preparations are now being made for the filming of the fifth in this series titled, "First Aid," from a magazine story by Michael L. Simmons. An action story of the daily life and adventures of an ambulance surgeon. This is to be followed by "Mounted Fury," an outdoor drama revolving around the virile traditions of the Northwest Mounted police; "Hell Skipper" a tale of a dare-devil sea captain who terrorizes a crew of primitive hate-maddened men; "Casey Jones, Junior" in which danger, the constant companion of railroad men, guilds the scene of this roaring romance; "Neck and Neck," a drama of the race track; and "Is There Justice?", a searching probe into society's clamor for revenge, via the electric chair.

brown, with space for theatre imprint, containing an action photo of Jones with the name of the current film inserted, and autographed portrait of Jones, suitable for framing; repeating revolvers of wood, containing the Columbia seal and Jones' name, with ample room for the theatre imprint; attractive revolvers of paper, containing the name of Jones, the Columbia seal and title of the current picture; 8x10 photos in black and white; and Columbia's Studio News Service, published in connection with the Western star's current releases which contain reproductions of stills from the pictures and interesting anecdoes on Jones and his supporting cast

NATIONAL TIE-UPS

Through Chain Stores for Big 4 Westerns

A nation-wide exploitation tie-up has been effected by the Big 4 Film Corporation with the Federal Puritan and National Clothing Stores, jointly operating 176 clothing apparel shops throughout 38 states and the District of Columbia.

This tie-up covers three distinct campaigns. The first is an eight-page four-color magazine, fashioned after Sunday newspaper sections, and contains two fiction stories and five pages of the chain's merchandise advertising. The cover carries a head of Nena Quartaro, a full-length picture of her and one of Nick Stuart, and a scene from their latest picture, the Big 4 melodrama "Trapped," with credits. A full-page story on the stars ties in with the company's merchandise. These mailing pieces have been sent to 85,000 customers of the concern and will be distributed at about the same time as the top-runs of the picture are playing.

The second phase is a "Wally Wales Window." A ten-gallon hat of this Western favorite is being routed from town to town, where his pictures are showing, the display appearing in each window for a week. With the hat there will grouped some stills from a current Wales' release.

The third is a follow-up on the mailing piece and consists of the cover of the magazine, mounted as a window-card and surrounded with six stills from "Trapped." These will be displayed simultaneously in their stores in seventy-six cities, all of which are located on the main streets.

Radio broadcasts are planned in some of the cities. Numbers from Big 4 releases and stylist hints by their players will be offered in conjunction with an orchestral program.

SERIAL PLAYS

Perennial Action Films Now in the First Run Class

Action is the very keynote of the chapter or serialplay and those exhibitors desiring to round out a program with action pictures learned away back in the very beginning days of the continued thrillers that the great movie public liked and wanted them. Serialplays have usually been spotted on the Friday and Saturday night programs of most theatres, these nights being generally designated as "Family Nights". Consequently, as a family patronage builder, the serial, next to the western production, is a pioneer.

Within the last year, motion picture serials have attained a new importance in all types of theatres throughout the country. Not even in the heyday of serials, when Pearl White and Helen Holmes were at the height of their world-wide popularity, have serials been a more important element in the programs of all theatres than they are today.

There is a two-fold explanation of this new importance of serials. First and foremost is the fact that the decline of serials deprived theatres of a large percentage of their juvenile patronage, a patronage that is essential to every exhibitor who will realize the utmost out of the possibilities of his business. Secondly, outstanding exhibitors have learned that the new type of serials has a definite appeal to adult audiences. Roxy played serials at his great New York theatre last year.

Mascot Pictures Corporation, Nat Levine's organization, reports that full-well runs in first-run houses are no longer unusual. He points to the fact that Publix theatres are playing many of his chapter plays for extended engagements, instead of the special Saturday matinees, which is a short-sighted practice of some exhibitors.

"There is a moral in these facts," says Mr. Levine. "If such theatres as the Roxy and the Publix first run houses need serials, it is evident that no theatre, however large or small, can afford to omit them from its program."

For the new season, Mascot, specializing in serials and releasing through independent exchanges throughout the country, lists four serials, namely, "The Vanishing Legion," featuring Harry Carey and Edwina Booth as well as well as Rex, the King of Wild Horses, "The Galloping Ghost," starring Harold E. (Red) Grange, "The Lightning Warrior" with Rin-Tin-Tin and "The Shadow of the Eagle. Universal has four serials: "Fingerprints," starring Kenneth Harlan, "Heroes of the Flames," starring Tim McCoy, "The Indians Are Coming," starring Tim McCoy and "The Spell of the Circus" with Francis X. Bushman, Jr., and Alberta Vaughn. Syndicate Pictures, releasing through independent exchanges, has "The Mystery Trooper," featuring Robert Frazer and Blanche Mehaffey.

ANDY SHUFORD

New Cowboy Juvenile in Monogram Series

"Western and action pictures are builders of family trade," says W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram Pictures Corporation. "This type of production has the interest of juvenile as well as adult and its general wholesomeness of story with its clean romance and adventure is bound to strike great favor with the majority of audiences."

The newly formed Monogram Pictures Corporation, realizing the importance of this type of feature in bringing back and keeping up family attendance has included in its new program a series of eight out-of-door productions known as the "Bill and Andy" series, featuring Bill Cody and little Andy Shuford, the clever cowboy juvenile of "The Big Trail," "The Great Meadow" and "A Rider of the Plains." Andy is only 12, but he is one of the fastest of riders, an expert marksman and can give a performance that puts you in hysterics one moment and in tears the next. The "Bill and Andy" series will be clean, light, out-of-doors western dramas which will appeal to young and old alike.

Serials That Supply Action

GUARANTEED PICTURES—("Bud" Pollard)—Jack Hoxie serial, synchronized.

MASCOT—"King of the Wild," Walter Miller; "The Lone Defender," Rin-Tin-Tin; "Phantom of the West," Tom Tyler. Coming: "The Eagle's Shadow," "Galloping Ghost," Red Grange; "Lightning Warrior," Rin-Tin-Tin; "Vanishing Legion," Harry Carey.

SYNDICATE—"The Mystery Trooper," Robert Frazer.

UNIVERSAL—"Heroes of the Flames," Tim McCoy; "Indians Are Coming," Tim McCoy; "Finger Prints," Kenneth Harlan; "Spell of the Circus," Francis X. Bushman, Jr. Coming: "Air Mail Mystery," "Battling With Buffalo Bill," "Danger Island," "Heroes of the Law."

HOOT GIBSON

Featured in New Series by M. H. Hoffman

Hoot Gibson is an old stand-by that exhibitors can always count on when they want outdoor action pictures to please their audiences. Knowing this M. H. Hoffman, veteran independent producer, secured the services of Gibson and is making a series of six features starring this popular delineator of cowboy roles.

The first of this series, "Clearing the Range," has received the plaudits of trade paper critics and is termed sure-fire entertainment. Sally Eilers appears in support of Gibson in this one. "Wild Horse" is the title of the second production, based on a Cosmopolitan Magazine story by Peter B. Kyne. Alberta Vaughn and Stepin Fetchit appear in support of Gibson. "The Hard Hombre" is the title of the third and "The Gay Buckaroo" will be the fourth. The fifth release is another Peter B. Kyne story. The sixth is to be selected by exhibitors from their vote on several stories by well-known authors.

Associated with Mr. Hoffman in the production of these Hoot Gibson productions is M. H. Hoffman, Jr., who, as general manager of Allied Pictures Corporation, is the youngest producing executive in the industry, and who, through his keen sense of production values, is proving a veritable "chip off the old block."

KEN MAYNARD

And Bob Steele Featured in New Tiffany Program

Tiffany announces that Ken Maynard and Bob Steele will both appear in series of action westerns on the company's new production program.

The first four in this group of out-door thrillers that have been successfully introduced to the trade are "Fighting Thru," "The Two Gun Man," "Alias the Bad Man" and most recently "The Arizonan." Carefully selected supporting casts have been chosen for each feature.

Trem Carr, who completed a group of Bob Steele westerns for Tiffany on last year's program, will continue with the organization producing a new series for the company's new schedule.

"Near the Trail's End," the first in this series, has been completed and is now in the course of editing while preparations are being made for the second, tentatively titled, "South of Santa Fe," to be followed by "West of the Rockies," "The Galloping Romeo," "The Man from Hell's Edges," "Riders of the Desert," "The Nevada Kid," "Texas Buddies," "Law of the West," and "Son of Oklahoma."

FEATURES and SHORTS

Gun Smoke

Paramount—66 Minutes

Cast: Richard Arlen, Mary Brian, William Boyd, Eugene Pallette, Charles Winninger, Louise Fazenda, Brooks Benedict, William Arnold, Carroll Nash, Stanley Mack, Guy Oliver, James Durkin, William V. Mong, Dawn O'Day, Willie Fung. Directed by Edward Sloman.

This is a combination racketeer and western action story that satisfies. The story concerns a gang of criminals forced to leave the big city where their activities have been discovered. They journey west and settle in a small town posing as capitalists. Gold is found by an old prospector and the gang decides to take over the town until they can pan out the wealth and make a getaway. There is considerable cold blooded slaughter when the racketeers take things over. The cowboys get hep to the racket and the sure-shootin' broncho riders decide to show the racketeers where shootin' was invented. The result is a peaceful western town with the hero and the heroine taking the final embrace.

The photography is excellent throughout and the direction top notch. With audiences hungry for outdoor action drama they should eat this one up.—Warren Stokes.

SELLING SEATS: Advertise gangland subdued by sure-shootin' riders of the range. Stress the fact that it is a modern type of Western full to the brim with romance and glamorous action. If the stars mean anything to your patrons spot their names. Above everything else sell ACTION! Your audience will get plenty of it here.

The Vice Squad

Paramount—78 Minutes

Cast: Paul Lukas, Kay Francis, Helen Johnson, William B. Davidson, Rockcliffe Fellowes, Esther Howard, Monte Carter, G. Pat Collins, Phil Tead, Davidson Clark, Tom Wilson, James Durkin, William Arnold. Directed by John Cromwell.

Here is a daring expose of the methods alleged to be used by the so-called vice-squads in the larger cities of the country. Paul Lukas as a member of a foreign embassy staff is caught in a parked car with the wife of his chief and when approached by a detective for questioning the lady drives over and kills the officer as he is taking her registration. Lukas is arrested but the detective sees a chance to use him as a stool pigeon so bargains for his freedom. This work necessitates Lukas giving up his former social acquaintances which includes Kay Francis, who is the sister of a magistrate and to whom his engagement was about to be announced. Disgusted with his work as a police stool pigeon he takes to heavy drinking and in a fit of moodiness is about to throw himself in front of a subway train but is caught in time by a daughter of well-to-do people who is living in Greenwich Village to get atmosphere for her writings. She nurses him back to health and soon after becomes the object of the ambitious detective's framed arrest for vagrancy. This time the stool pigeon reports there is no evidence and the detective makes the arrest anyway. The girl is taken to court and gets a continuance. In the meantime the stool pigeon has been discovered by his former fiance who discovers his story and through her brother, the magistrate, he learns that the detective has been using him illegally. He finds out about the girl in jail, although his fiance renounces him, he goes to her aid and his evidence sets her free, which starts a grand jury investigation into the activities of the vice squad working through the medium of paid stool pigeons. A pleasing fade-out comes as he starts for a taxi ride with the girl who saved him and whom he afterwards saved from jail.

Cast is superb and direction all that could be asked for. Helen Johnson as the girl in the case gives a fine performance. This should prove a good box office magnet in any house.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Don't get too sensational in your copy. Follow the general idea of newspaper headlines with discretion. Get members of local police department to write opinions on the picture. Dress lobby as a magistrate's bench with the scales of justice on top with one pan containing a card marked "Stool Pigeon Evidence" and the other card reading "Innocent Victim of Circumstance," with the former in the heavy end of the scale.

Laughing Sinners

M-G-M—72 Minutes

Cast: Joan Crawford, Neil Hamilton, Clarke Gable, Marjorie Rambeau, Guy Kibbee, Cliff Edwards, Roscoe Karns, Gertrude Short, George Cooper, George F. Marion, Bert Woodruff. Directed by Harry Beaumont.

Joan Crawford with a new type of role and new color of hair in this screen version of the former stage play "The Torch Song." She plays the part of a cabaret dancer who has a wild love affair with a traveling salesman (Neil Hamilton) who finally marries the daughter of his employer and leaves her flat. She attempts to commit suicide but is saved by a Salvation Army worker (Clarke Gable) and she dons the bonnet and cloak of that organization to start life anew. She later runs into the former lover in a hotel and discards the garments of the Salvation Army to renew her old life with him.

Her downfall lasts just over night as in the early morning hours the boy from the Salvation Army brings her back to earth and she again becomes a worker alongside of him and the final fadeout finds them together in the park making the poor children happy.

The cast is well chosen and fine directorial work by Harry Beaumont puts this one over in a highly entertaining manner.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Good tie-ups can be made with sheet music stores on the song used and also tie up fashion display with department stores. Sell the star for all she is worth.

The China Plate

Columbia—12 Minutes

Unusually clever Silly Symphony minus the usual animal characters. This time the players are Chinese folks and a romance is woven in to give it a plot. A close-up of an Oriental-designed plate shows a Chinese river scene which suddenly becomes animated and the story gets under way. This will amuse all classes.—Steen.

THE ETERNAL FAMILY ENTERTAINMENT

THE building up of family patronage has been a question before the industry ever since sophistication came into the talkies and stayed so long that this "bread and butter" trade dropped off to alarming proportions. The so-labeled kid pictures released during the current season are doing their share in attracting family trade, but they have their limits and they come and go in cycles. However, one type of picture that goes on forever—which is always geared for the entire family—is the western and outdoor action picture. It was this type that first popularized the movies and, even though the talkies cut down its production, when the mechanism for making them were new and unperfected, it is showing itself this season to greater and better advantage than ever.

Action is a vital requisite to good motion picture entertainment and the supplanting of much draggy dialogue with swift-moving action is filling a public want that never wanes. The current popularity of a number of the gangster stories may be attributed to the picture public's demand for action in their film fare that has been almost totally absent from the majority of feature releases. But here, too, a cycle exists, and it is a quickly passing one, in addition to the fact that pictures of this type are not for the entire family.

At the beginning of the sound era the so-called "horse operas" were dropped from the programs of the leading producers. But not for long. Now, with mechanical obstacles overcome, the western and action picture is once again a dominant part of practically every company's program and, with judicious use of sound and dialogue, their popularity is destined to grow to new heights. Motion pictures made their first big appeal through supplying the entertainment-seeking public with action that the stage productions could not give. The outdoor pictures not only give momentum but they also supply added value through the scenic beauty of nature's great outdoors.

The independent producers and distributors are supplying the greater part of the western and action picture output. Their productions are featuring proven stars and strong supporting casts, aiming directly at the box office. Exhibitors, seeking to rejuvenate their boxoffices and to bring back in greater numbers their lost family patronage, should find in these productions the needed stimulus. However, these pictures should be backed with proper advertising and exploitation to assure their greatest possible success.

Exchange Business Good

Branch Managers of Minneapolis Report No Holding Out on Buying of Product.

Expenditure of considerable extra energy by Minneapolis film distributors and exhibitors is bringing surprisingly good results despite the general business depression and unfavorable seasonal conditions, a MOVIE AGE survey reveals.

Spurred on by a realization of the necessity of herculean efforts to combat the malign forces of bad times, movie folks have been putting their shoulders to the wheel in earnest, with the result that seemingly insurmountable odds have been overcome and a measure of actual prosperity achieved.

Even in the fact of the dictum of W. A. Steffes, general manager of Allied's Northwest unit, to buy no pictures at this time, Minneapolis exchanges continue to chalk up new sales' records on the 1931-32 product which they now are marketing.

Each additional week brings reports of brisk business booked by the exchanges. Exchange managers themselves have been out in the field working day and night. Salesmen are working harder than ever before, too, because of the general feeling that this is necessary in order to achieve results. And it is this vigorous go-getting policy by all the exchanges which undoubtedly deserves a large share of credit for the good sales to date, although, of course, strong products in nearly every instance and a belief among exhibitors that the coming fall will witness a return of profitable grosses also are important factors.

Columbia's new selling season started last week with a rush. Ben Marcus and his men chalked up an impressive total of sales at the very outset and all indications point to a record-breaking year

Child Patronage Is Profitable

RKO Orpheum Finds Juvenile Shows Boost Attendance Without Extra Expense.

The Minneapolis RKO Orpheum Theatre is finding it profitable to go after kid patronage hard, according to Morgan Ames, divisional manager, and Emil Franke, house manager.

Increased attendance resulting from the drives to bring youngsters into the showhouse swells grosses several hundreds of dollars a week, on the average, according to Ames and Franke.

The added juvenile trade is obtained with practically no boost in expenses for the theatre, they point out. It, therefore, is all profit.

"Many of the youngsetrs bring their parents or some elders along, too," Mr. Ames points out. "So that we gain that way.

"Moreover, young boys and girls are the most enthusiastic boosters of shows, if they enjoy the enter-

In Northwest Is Opinion of Film Men Who Say Family Films Draw Best.

Gangster and sex dramas still are in disfavor among Northwest film patrons, according to information gathered by Minneapolis film salesmen and managers.

The present demand in the territory continues to be for good comedies and outdoor action pictures, exhibitors are telling the distributors.

"Gangster and sex stuff is fading," says J. E. Garrison, Universal exchange manager. "Exhibitors inform us that their patrons want cheerful and wholesome pictures that are suitable entertainment for the entire family, including the children.

"Comedies are especially desired

NEW MANAGER

Williams Heads R K O-Pathe at Omaha

Omaha—Ralph B. Williams has been appointed branch manager at Omaha by General Sales Manager Ned E. Depinet. Williams joined RKO-Pathe early this year as salesman in Memphis.

After graduating from high school, Williams started his working days with the Harris-Lipset company at Dallas. He then traveled for the C. G. Spratt Advertising Company of Corey, Pa. His entrance into the General Film Company marked the beginning of his motion picture career and he's been selling film ever since. Upon leaving General he joined the Geo. Kleine organization in New Orleans and remained with them until the company's demise.

Williams then went with Universal, with whom he served as a salesman, exchange manager and division manager for fifteen years. It was at the termination of his Universal connection that he joined RKO-Pathe in Memphis.

Optimistic

After a swing around the territory, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Segal of the Northern Theatre Supply Co., 19 Glenwood avenue, Minneapolis, report that despite present poor business due largely to seasonal conditions, most exhibitors are optimistic regarding the fall outlook and expect patronage to stage a very good come-back the coming autumn and winter.

Business Ahead!

By M. E. CUFFEL, Editor

IT IS encouraging to find at Minneapolis film exchanges and theatres that there's still business to be had if you have what the public wants and you go after it properly.

Probably the going-after process is about as important as anything else just now, if experience in Minneapolis film circles the past several weeks is any criterion.

Going after the business in this instance simply meant hard work intelligently directed. Everybody about Minneapolis film exchanges and theatres literally have been working their heads off the past fortnight. And the results have been surprising. These results have proved that business is not entirely dead by a long shot, but can be had for the vigorous trying in many cases.

“Page” Gives Minnesota Big Week; “Rosie” Good

Minneapolis (week ending June 19)—Business continued good the past week. “The Front Page” was the outstanding card. It built steadily and gave the big Minnesota Theatre its best week in a long time. Critics and patrons raved over this picture. “Everything’s Rosy” starring Robert Woolsey also proved a good card for the RKO Orpheum where the crowds were large the entire week. ““The Public Enemy” at the State was a good business-getter, too.

Aster—Party Husband” (First National), Dorothy Mackaill. Business: Light. Summary: The oft-told story of the husband and wife who agreed to let each other go their separate sex ways and then regretted it. Enteretianment Merits: 65 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news; comedy; and screen vaudeville.

Minnesota—The Front Page (U. A.), Adolphe Menjou, Pat O’Brien and Mary Brian. Business: Big. Summary: Laughs and thrills galore in this slam-bang newspaper story of a reporter who is torn between love and duty. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show, fashion reel and sound news.

Lyric—Tarnished Lady (Paramount), Clive Brook and Tallulah Bankhead. Business: Light. Summary: Conventional drama of a woman who marries a man for his money while in love with another chap who can’t support her; much of dialogue unintelligible due to mounting and accent of cast. Entertainment Merits: 65 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news; comedy; screen vaudeville.

RKO-Orpheum — “Everything’s Rosy” Robert Woolsey. Business: Good. Summary: Plenty of amusing wise-cracks in this yarn about a medicine man who does fortune telling and general grafting on the side. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, sound news, comedy.

State—The Public Enemy (W. B.), James Cagney and Jean Harlow. Business: Good. Summary: Fine characterization of a gangster by Cagney redeems drama which is crude and unconvincing in too many spots. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, Laurel-Hardy comedy cartoon comedy, newscasting.

MILWAUKEE

(Week Ending June 11)

Alhambra — Stepping Out (M-G-M), Charlotte Greenwood, Reginald Denny and Leila Hyams. Business: Fair. Summary: A story lightly and well told, diverting throughout. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal Newsreel; Comedy.

Palace — Everybody’s Rosie (Radio), Robt. Woolsey and Anita Louise. Business: Fair. Summary: With only half of the popular team of Wheeler and Wooley functioning, the result is only approximately fifty per cent likewise. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Newsreel; Comedy.

Wisconsin — The Lawyer’s Secret (Paramount), Clive Brook, Charles Rogers, Richard Arlen and Fay Wray. Business: Good. Summary: A photoplay with more than usual plot and an excellent cast. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon & Marco’s Mickey Mouse Idea; Fox Movietone News.

Strand — Trader Horn (M-G-M), Edwina Booth and Harry Carey. Business: Good. Summary: An exciting combination of the real and the faked. First showing here at popular prices. Entertainment Merits: 95 per cent. Short Subjects: Fox Movieone News; Comedy.

Riverside — The Royal Bed (Radio), Lowell Sherman and Mary Astor. Business: Fair. Summary: A comedy offering concerning what happens when the beautiful princesh of a mythical kingdom falls in love with the son of a plumber. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: RKO Vaudeville.

Davidson—Ten Nights in a Barroom (Goetz Film), William Farnum and Tom Santschi. Business: Fair. Summary: The old stage show has been put into the talkies with a minimum of too obvious melodrama. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent.

Majestic—Dirigible (Columbia), Ralph Graves, Jack Holt and Fay Wray. Business: Fair (ended second week at roadshow prices). Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent.

Garden—Father’s Son (Warner Bros.), Lewis Stone and Leon Janney. Business: Fair. Summary: A pleasant and human screen story basd on Booth Tarkington’s “Old Fathers and Young Sons.” Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Newsreel; Comedy.

Warner — The Public Enemy (Warner Bros.), James Cagney and Jean Harlow. Business: Fair. Summary: A gangster film without sentiment, vividly and excelently photographed, directed and acted. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal Newsreel; Looney Tune Comedy.

ALONG FILM ROW

When the manager of the Savoy Theatre, Minneapolis independent grind loop house, came upon two burglars attempting to open the safe, the intruders locked him in his office and fled. They later were captured.

A Minneapolis visitor of last week was Mort Singer of Chicago, in charge of labor relations for the RKO circuit. Mr. Singer, who at one time managed a burlesque house in Minneapolis and later became one of the head Orpheum circuit officials and directors, was en route back east after a west coast inspection tour.

Harry Dryer. owner of the Savoy Theatre, Minneapolis, is taking a girl-model show on tour along with the Tiffany picture, “Damaged Love.” The attraction is being booked at present into northern Michigan houses.

Closing of the RKO Orpheum Theatre, Des Moines, is just for the summer months, according to Morgan Ames, district manager with headquarters in Minneapolis. The house played vaudeville and talkies.

* * *

Bob LaFevre, manager of the Lyric Theatre, Minneapolis, is back on the job again. He was away on a combination honeymoon-vacation. Congratulations are in order.

James Gilosky, St. Paul’s first motion picture theatre operator, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday last week. Thirty of his old friends gathered at his home for the celebration.

Eddie Kippers of the State Theatre, Minneapolis, had a tie-up with the local naval recruiting office to exploit “Women of All Nations” this week. Throughout the Minneapolis loop district, the “A” boards, carrying the Navy advertising, were turned over to the showhouse for one sheets on the attraction and on the opening day a bugler was posted outside the theatre by the recruiting office to blow taps at regular intervals.

* * *

Don Alexander, exploitation man for the Paramount Theatre, St. Paul, arranged to get a lot of free display newspaper and other advertising for his showhouse in return for running pictures of a Chicago & Northwestern R. R. celebration as a cut-in on the regular news’ reel. The railroad paid for five 2x8 newspaper display ads and sent out 2,000 announcements to employees, calling attention to the picture.

Karatz Reporting Good Sound Business

The Minneapolis Ultraphone branch, 34 Glenwood avenue, put over a big contract for the installation of Ultraphone sound equipment in several Iowa theatres of the Harold Finkelstein circuit. The first installation was completed in the new Royal Theatre, Spirit Lake, Ia., according to Ted Karatz, Ultraphone manager, who made the deal.

A number of other Ultraphone installations have been completed recently. The Strand Theatre, McGregor, Ia., reopened June 14 after installing the de luxe Ultraphone sound-on-film equipment. The J. P. Adler Theatre Co., of Marshfield, Wis., just has contracted for its third Ultraphone track equipment which will go into the Adler Theatre, Marshfield. Houses at Waupaca and Neilsville, Wis., already have been equipped with Ultraphones.

William Bogart of the Orpheum Theatre, Park Velley, Ia., has contracted for de luxe Ultraphone sound-on-film equipment. Installation will be completed July 3. Andy Gutenberg will install sound-on-film equipment in his Grand and Hollywood theatres in Milwaukee, Wis.

Product-Buying Under Way

Without Opposition, it Is Revealed by Survey of Seven Film Exchange Centers.

With one exhibitor faction advising independent showmen to lay off product-buying for the present, and another side of the exhibitor ranks instructing theatre men to buy if the prices are right, the average independent is up in the air as to which advice to heed.

Several distributors have announced that they are asking and getting more rental for their pictures this year than last, believing that the quality of their product is higher than ever before. Exhibitors, on the other hand, claim that their overhead has not been reduced sufficiently and that patronage has not increased enough to warrant the payment of higher rentals and percentages.

But regardless of which side of the fence is right, a survey of seven exchange centers in the United States reveals the fact the exhibitors are buying new product as rapidly, and in some cases more rapidly, as in former years. Exchanges in these seven centers report that there is little holding out on contracts and that buying is going along without much opposition.

FILM ADVERTISERS CONTINUE

To Form Plans for Sponsored Shorts; Must Be of High Calibre and Handled Properly.

New York—The attitude of major film companies will not affect materially the future plans of screen advertisers, said W. D. Canady, vice-president of Lehn & Fink, in an address before the Talking Motion Picture Advertising Group at the Advertising Federation of America's annual convention here last week.

Only 18 per cent of the country's 13,000 sound film houses are affiliated with the circuits, said Canaday, and therefore "any harm which may have been done by the circuits is only of a temporary nature. 'Movies' have been used for advertising purposes in both circuit and independent theatres for upward of 20 years and they will continue to be used in the modern form—the 'talkies.'"

"There is a danger that the sponsored pictures may be subject to criticism if they are not of the highest calibre," he continued, "and if the advertising is not handled in a subtle and unobtrusive manner. The most successful sponsored films are the short, humorous sketches, romantic skits and travelogues."

The cost of production, he said, varies according to the producer and the type of film. The average cost runs from $5,000 to $15,000.

Fewer Houses Closing

This Summer Than in 1930, According to Survey by Film Boards of Trade.

New York—Theatre closings this summer are less this year than last according to a report by the Film Boards of Trade. During the last month only 232 theatres have gone dark against 551 in the same period of 1930 and 331 in the corresponding month of 1929. In addition the 232 closings of last month are offset in part by 108 openings and re-openings. During the two preceding months there were 408 closings. The report covers a survey of the entire United States.

Studio News

Los Angeles—Joe Blair has been appointed studio representative for Associated Publications and will contribute each week a page devoted to current production news from Hollywood. Blair for several years was west coast representative for Theatre Management and other trade publications. His first page of studio gossip appears on page 12 of this issue.

MAY DROP REEL

Allied Asks For Opinion on Ad Film

Washington—In a bulletin issued by Allied States, the organization asks its members for their opinions on advertising newsreels. The statement reads: "Allied undertook to procure the issuance of a newsreel containing a limited amount of advertising as an offset to the advertising, open and concealed, carried by certain producers. There has been some suggestion that in view of the action of Paramount and Warner Bros. in renouncing screen advertising Allied might properly take the same position. Allied leaders throughout the country are asked to give their views on this as well as the views of their members."

GROSS SALES UP

RKO Reports 200 Per Cent Increase

New York—A 200 per cent increase in gross sales is reported by Charles Rosenzweig, general sales manager for RKO pictures. The increase amounts to $2,500,000. According to Rosenzweig, the upward trend is due to concerted action on the part of the entire sales force, better pictures for which more substantial rentals and percentages may be charged and a high percentage of RKO pictures being sold to individual exhibitors and circuits.

FOX SETTLES

Sheehan Wins $310,000 Law Suit

New York—A full settlement out of court has been won by Winfield Sheehan, Fox Films general manager, in his law suit against William Fox over $310,000 which Sheehan said was due him as proceeds for certain stock placed by him in Fox's hands for sale.

Fox claimed he had invested the proceeds on Sheehan's behalf and that the investment resulted in a loss, and he counterclaimed against Sheehan for $190,000. Under the settlement, which came about just as a jury was being selected for a trial in the Supreme Court, in addition to paying more than a quarter million dollars and turning over certain stock to Sheehan, Fox also withdrew the $190,000 claim.

SAAL TO TIFFANY

Publix Theatres Man to Head Sales

New York—William Saal, former director of Publix theatre management in the south and southwest, has been appointed director of sales and distribution for Tiffany.

New Contracts

Hollywood—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has signed new contracts with George Kelly and Charles MacArthur, playwrights, and also with Jean Hersholt. Kelly and MacArthur are now at work at the Culver City studio, each being busy on an original screen story. Hersholt's last role was in John Gilbert's "Cheri-Bibi."

Tax in Doubt

Washington—Steps have been taken by Allied to investigate the rumors that an effort will be made to impose an admission tax on motion picture theatres at the next session of Congress. So far nothing more concrete has been developed than general expressions in favor of a special sales tax by Congressman Will Wood, of Indiana. When and if tangible evidence of such a move is obtained, proper representations will be made and Allied members will be asked to join with the national headquarters in opposing the move.

"BUY NOW," SAYS M. P. T. O. A.

New York—In a statement issued to its members, the M.P.T.O.A. advises exhibitors to "buy now, providing the terms of purchase are fair." If terms are unreasonable, the association declares, the exhibitor should hold off until prices come to a more reasonable basis.

"Buying at a fair figure now means that product can be played when it is new, but this advantage is offset if the deals are at exorbitant figures," the statement reads. "Each exhibitor must stand on his own rights, but in all cases the element of fairness is essential. It is imperative that exhibitors buy on a reasonable basis. Otherwise they should wait until the prices are right."

Re-Elect All Officers In Wis. MPTOA Unit

Milwaukee, Wis.—All officers of the M. P. T. O. A. of Wisconsin were re-elected at the concluding session of the convention held June 16 and 17 at the Hotel Pfister in this city. Officers for the ensuing year are as follows: Fred S. Meyer, Alhambra Theatre, Milwaukee, president; A. C. Gutenberg, Grand Theatre, Milwaukee, vice-president; James Boden, South Milwaukee, secretary, and Ernest Langemack, Colonial Theatre, Milwaukee, treasurer. Steve Bauer, Milwaukee, was renamed business manager.

The board of directors includes in addition to the officers, W. L. Ainsworth, Fond du Lac; George Fischer, E. W. Van Norman, A. D. Kvool, J. H. Silliman, Frank Fischer, Milwaukee; George Huebner, Oconomowoc; A. C. Berkholz, West Bend; Martin D. Thomas, Iron Mountain, and Max Krofta, Racine.

Legislation, zoning and protection, advertising and the matter of Allied States all occupied a place on the convention. In pleading for support from each and every exhibitor in the matter of legislation, A. D. Kvool, Fox Midwesco, chairman of the legislative committee, stated that theatres may face a government tax of 10 per cent on admissions.

Zoning and protection were ratified by the majority of the exhibitors present and they voted to authorize the new board of directors to meet with the film board of trade in arranging a suitable zoning plan for the coming year. Exhibitors were told that the power to attract patrons by "fabulous adjectives" has passed and that "cold, sober logic" must now prevail. As a result the convention adopted a resolution in opposition to all salacious and misrepresenting advertising.

In the matter of Allied States it was voted that insofar as the type of co-operation and guidance which the state organization could expect from the national was not forthcoming, it considered itself barred from Allied and would continue to operate as a state association until such time as the national organization stood ready to offer the type of cooperation expected.

Fred S. Meyer in his address stated: "We're in the midst of an economic crisis, but we must remember that an inferior product is costly at any price. Cuts in admission are foreseen but about this we must all be consistent, not panicky." Mr. Myer then proposed a "public relations" speaker, capable of addressing all types of audiences on "What's Right With the Movies."

Judge E. J. Henning, New York, special counsel for five motion picture companies, spoke of the movies as "the world's greatest molder of public opinion." Archie Middlemas, Milwaukee building inspector, asked for the cooperation of the erhibitors in abiding by the building code relative to fire hazards.

The banquet on the evening of June 16 was addressed by Mrs. Agnes Charbonneau, only woman member of the legislature, and Frank B. Metcalfe, president of the Milwaukee motion picture commission who stated that censorship doesn't fit in the American idea of freedom but that since movies have passed the stage of mere entertainment and have become able to shape social forces, some supervision is necessary.

Ernesto Russo, Milan, Italy, now studying economics in Washington, D. C., gave the theatre men a caustic word picture of what he sees in America. W. L. Ainsworth, Fond du Lac, acted as toastmaster at the banquet. Entertainment included Fanchon & Marco's Olympic Games Idea furnished through the courtesy of Fox's Wisconsin Theatre; RKO vaudeville, courtesy RKO's Riverside Theatre here, and Johnny Davis' orchestra furnished the music. Over 300 exhibitors attended the banquet.

Business Ahead !

What has been accomplished in Minneapolis probably can be accomplished in many other places. The lesson to be learned in this case is not to give up without an effort, as so many are doing, but to defy the depression by working harder than ever before. Isn't it worth at least a try?

Business Good

ahead for the Minneapolis exchange.

W. H. Workman of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer says that business thus far leaves nothing to be desired. Asked if the Steffes' order to desist from buying has hurt, he replied: "They need pictures to keep running, don't they? Of course, they're buying."

Paramount's sales to date are said to have set a new record in the territory. Universal is getting an especially big play, according to J. E. Garrison, exchange manager. With L. E. Goldhammer, exchange manager, himself out in the territory the past several weeks, Warner Brothers-First National has closed up more contracts than for any similar period in several years.

Exceptional business also is being done by Pathe, Tiffany, Educational and Fox, exchange managers report.

In the past two weeks, business also has picked up remarkably at Minneapolis loop showhouses, particularly the Minnesota, State and R. K. O. Orpheum. With "The Front Page" last week, the Minnesota had the biggest week in months. "The Public Enemy" at the State played to a larger gross the opening three days than any picture at the house in more than three months. The RKO Orpheum, with "Donovan's Kid" and "Everything's Rosy," has had two very big weeks.

Part of the splendid box-office results in the aforementioned instances has been due in part, of course, to the strength of the screen attractions. But a considerable part also may be attributed to the extra hard licks of work which the managerial and exploitation staffs of the showhouses in question have been putting in.

There have been more exploitation and publicity stunts and tie-ups in the past month than ever before in local theatrical history. By means of these tie-ups the theatres have been getting considerable newspaper and other advertising without cost to them. They also have been enabled to make valuable free gifts to patrons, such as worth-while vacation trips, and all this undoubtedly has aided business considerably.

Child Patronage

tainment. And their word-of-mouth advertising is a great help for business.

In order to get the kids started at the RKO Orpheum immediately after vacation, Manager Franke booked in the semi-annual kiddie revue, staged by a local dancing academy without expense to the theatre, last week. He also started a kid club, issuing cards to the youngsters with rules of conduct. There are 11 such rules and one is punched each week. Youngsters having cards punched 11 times are to be admitted to the theatre free the twelfth week of vacation.

Crime Films N. G.

right now. Customers tell the theatre owners they want to come to the theatres to laugh and forget their business and financial troubles."

Other exchange managers report similarly. Exhibitors are asking for melodramas, westerns, kid pictures and comedies. They assert that the producer cannot make too many such pictures.

W. H. Workman, Metro-Goldwayn-Mayer exchange manager, asserts, however, that he does not find a demand for any one particular kind of picture.

"What the exhibitor wants and demands is what his patrons want and demand—the good picture," says Mr. Workman. "Subject matter or type is relatively unimportant. But the quality must be there. 'Give us outstanding product and we'll do business, depression or no depression,' the exhibitors tell us."

Steffes Reported to Be Forming Circuit

No confirmation can be had of reports that W. A. Steffes, general manager of the Allied northwest unit, is trying to form an independent theatre chain instead of a mere buying organization. Mr. Steffes himself is out of the city and his assistants state they have no authority to speak on any subject. Independent exhibitors in and about the Twin Cities and other Allied officials profess ignorance regarding the alleged plans for the merging of 50 to 150 independent theatres in the Northwest into a single corporation. It is believed in distributor circles that the whole thing is a "pipe dream" which originated in the fertile brain of a trade paper reporter.

The story, appearing in a trade paper, gives no concrete details and is built about "reports." It states that plans for the corporation are being kept secret and that mystery surrounds the entire proposition. But sufficient has leaked out, the story states, to enable the trade paper in question to inform a breathless world that the corporation will own 51 per cent of the stock and the independent managers, present owners of the showhouses involved, 49 per cent. The story does not state what the present owners will receive for their present 51 per cent holdings other than outside control and direction. According to the yarn, 50 theatres already have been acquired and the goal is 150.

NEW DEVELOPEMENTS in THEATRE EQUIPMENT

New RCA Model for 500-Capacity Houses

HAVING attained unprecedented results from the recent introduction of a new all AC operated sound reproducing equipment designed for theatres up to 1,000 seating capacity, RCA Photophone, Inc., has perfected still another apparatus of similar type for theatres having capacity up to 500 seats, which is being offered to exhibitors for $1,600, it was announced last week by Sydney E. Abel, general sales manager.

New Terms

New and attractive terms of payment have been arranged. The special equipment may be acquired by responsible exhibitors by the down-payment of $100.00 and additional weekly payments of $25 for a period of two years. The weekly payment includes rental, insurance, finance charges and service at the rate of one call monthly which, under this plan, fixes the service charges at $32.50 per month. At the expiration of the two-year period, the exhibitor may continue service.

Belt Driven Design

The new RCA Photophone special size equipment sound head is of the new belt driven design with AC operated exciter lamp. This design provides extreme simplicity and satisfactory performance. With careful consideration of the requirements that would insure ample volume in an auditorium containing up to 500 seats and having a cubical content up to 75,000 cubic feet, the RCA Photophone engineering department has designed an amplifier that is twenty-four inches wide, eleven inches high and eight inches deep. It occupies so small a space that it can be placed on the wall of the projection booth between the projectors. The apparatus is operated with 110 volt, 60 cycle and 50 cycle AC and 115 volt DC power supply, with slight increased cost for Powers projectors or DC power supply. No batteries or motor generators are required and because of the compactness of the entire unit, it can be installed in exceptionally small projection booths. The new loudspeaker and directional baffle, which have been so successfully employed in all recent RCA Photophone installations, are supplied with special size equipment.

For Small Houses

"We believe we will have solved the small exhibitor's problem with the introduction of this new special size equipment," said Mr. Abel. 'Our engineers have turned out a splendid unit for houses of not more than 500 seating capacity and we believe our new policy, offering exceedingly liberal terms, will meet with even a more remarkable response than that which followed the announcement of our standard apparatus for theatres up to 1,000 seating capacity. In my opinion, this newest achievement of our engineering department will bring about the reopening of many small theatres that have been forced to close and will stimulate business during the coming summer months. Summer is the best time to prepare for fall openings and we look forward to constantly increasing activity."

Mr. Abel said that installations of the standard size equipment and the larger models had far exceeded the corporation's expectations. He added that the special size equipment had undergone rigid tests to insure its successful operation and that deliveries would be made as rapidly as contracts could be approved at the executive offices.

NEW SEAT PHONE

Fortiphone Device For Hard-of-Hearing

UNDER the name of "Fortiphone," a new seat phone for the hard-of-hearing, is being put out by Fortiphone Corp. of New York. Two types are being offered by the firm, the Simplex, for those slightly deaf, and the Universal, which is equipped with a sound regulator that may be adjusted to various degrees. It can be used with or without the patented Sonomax amplifier, used in cases of extreme deafness, according to claims of the company.

ALL-GEAR UNIT

Sound Service Requires No Belt

SOUND Service Co. of San Francisco is offering a complete sound and motor drive in one unit, all gear and chain driven, requiring no belts and made for Powers, Simplex and Motiograph projectors.

Two exciter lamps are provided with the unit for emergency use, balanced by two heavy flywheels, tone waver eliminated by a spring floated filter and a hold back sprocket to prevent flutter. It is declared that its silent, smooth running, balanced features insure the best of reproduction from the new silent recording.

Complete, all-alternating current sound equipment is also being marketed by the company.

A. C. AMPLIFIER

Operadio Co. Markets a New Device

OPERADIO Manufacturing Co., of St. Charles, Ill., is marketing a new completely alternating current operated amplifier said to have been especially designed for sound-on-film use.

Having an output of 15 watts and suitable for use in average theatres having a seating capacity of 300 to 800 people, the device, it is said, is not only completely AC-operated, but also furnishes all power required for the associated apparatus that is used in conjunction with sound-on-film reproduction. This includes furnishing the voltage for the photo-electric cell, as well as the filament supply for the exciter lamp.

The unit being small and compact, with all controls easily accessible and plainly marked, can be readily placed between two projectors on the front wall of the projection booth. It can also be adapted for use with sound-on-disc, the company claims.

A unit for larger houses is also being put out by the company.

ACOUSTICAL AID

Tests Made by White With Mohair

EXPERIMENTS recently made by Dr. William Braid White, of Chicago, nationally known authority on acoustics, showed that mohair velvet is especially effective in absorbing or failing to reflect the high-pitched noises, the ones most disturbing to the human ear.

The relation of mohair velvet to good acoustics is being further demonstrated in research conducted by the American Seating Co. Their engineers have found that the use of mohair definitely increases the sound absorption and its effect is so marked that there is a ten per cent increase in absorption when the mohair velvet seats are in the down position instead of the raised position.

Mohair velvet upholstery's aid to acoustics is particularly noticeable when the theatre is only partly filled. If the seats are unoccupied and are covered with a hard, sound-reflecting material, there is a marked increase in the amount of reverberation or echo which disturbs patrons. Seats upholstered in mohair, on the other hand, absorb sound whether occupied or not, hence the empty seat is not an annoying factor when covered with mohair.

TRIPLE LENS TURRET

International Is Reporting Good Results

GOOD results are being reported by the International Projector Corp. on the tripple lens turret. One lens of the proper focal length may be used for silent or sound-on-disc prints, the second for sound-on-film and the third for Magnascope or similar types of effect.

Each of the three lens mounts may be separately adjusted both vertically and laterally and each may be separately focused, it is declared. These lens mounts also accommodate all makes and focal length of lenses either half or quarter size. It is only necessary to insert, adjust and focus three lenses of the desired focal lengths, after which anyone of the desired three may be instantly swung into the optical axis.

FILM RESTORER

New Method Claimed for Rejuvenating

A METHOD of cleaning and rejuvenating used films so that the original quality of the sound track is retained, is said to have been perfected by Fred Mast, president of Rex Film Cleaner, of Cleveland.

Under the system, which incorporates the use of Waxolene, all-surface dirt and oils accruing from use are removed without injuring the film, it is said. A blotting system replaces a rubbing system for absorbing surplus oils. In addition the film is subjected to treatment which restores those elements in it that are destroyed by the strong lights to which it is subjected in its passage through a projection machine.

THIS WEEK in HOLLYWOOD

By JOE BLAIR
Studio Representative,
Associated Publications, Inc

IN conducting this page weekly, it will be the air of this writer to render a service unequalled by any other publication. There is only one policy "BETTER MOTION PICTURES FOR THE EXHIBITOR AND THE INDUSTRY."

Any criticism, constructive or complaining, will have only one view in mind, i. e., better motion pictures. So here we go . . .

Bob Lynch of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in an advertisement the other day, registered a complaint against the way exhibitors manage their theatres.

I'll say this much—any exhibitor running his theatre by the methods employed by 90 per cent of the producers in operating the studios in Hollywood, would go broke in 30 days. Practically every studio in the business is a nest of political schemers. Anyone who wishes to advance, cultivates favors by bribery, trickery and frameups. Those who diligently try to make good motion pictures are fired and railroaded out because of their intelligence and ability.

If one-tenth of the business principles most any exhibitor uses in the management of his theatre were employed by the executives of the studios, the exhibition end of the business would be a more profitable and pleasant occupation.

No, Bob, don't find fault with exhibitors—make a trip to Hollywood sometime and I'll show you evidences of mismanagement no exhibitor would tolerate.

Now let's see what happened in Hollywood this week.

Warner Brothers-First National studios laid off several hundred employees and Radio Studio suspended preliminary work on six forthcoming pictures and laid off 300, including cameramen, assistant directors and other employees. Both studios will remain practically idle for several months, it is declared. New money needed again, I guess.

Oh, for a good housecleaning within the ranks of those who think they know how to make motion pictures.

Tay Garnett, ace RKO-Pathe director, has returned from Catalina Island where he completed exterior scenes for "The Mad Marriage," which features Helen Twelvetrees, Ricardo Cortez, John Garrick, Paul Hurst, Frank Conroy and others. Garnett is one of the most capable directors in the business and is expected to have a winner in "The Mad Marriage."

* * *

WHEN C. Graham Baker resigned from Warner Brothers-First National this week, this firm lost one of their most capable executives. Baker's experience dates back from the early days of the industry and his record is one of many successes. He has served as associate producer and scenario chief.

* * *

Larry Darmour has signed a formidable cast of well-known players for his feature talker, "The Mystery Train," which Phil Whiteman is directing. Marceline Day, Nick Stuart, Hedda Hopper, Bryant Washburn and others of equal prominence are the players already signed.

* * *

Hugh Herbert, Radio's superb character actor, has been cast for a featured role in "Consolation Marriage" which Paul Sloane is scheduled to direct for Radio Pictures. Herbert recently completed a featured role in "The Sphinx Has Spoken."

* * *

John M. Stahl, whose fine pictures, "Seed" and "The Lady Surrenders," made a lot of money for Universal, is expected to score three in a row with "Strictly Dishonorable," which goes into production this week.

* * *

School vacation days and the fact that the "kid" picture is the popular entertainment of the day, are causing Larry Darmour to increase his schedule on the production of the Mickey (himself) McGuire comedies. Instead of the scheduled one picture per month, Mickey and the Toonerville Kids are making two during June. "Mickey's Rebellion" has just been completed, and "Mickey's Wildcats" is starting production.

At the Mack Sennett Studio I witnessed several interesting scenes being filmed on an Andy Clyde picture entitled "Ex-Husbands," which A. Leslie Pierce is directing. "Ex-Husbands" should be a very amusing comedy.

GEORGE O'BRIEN's next picture for Fox Films will be "Riders of the Purple Sage" which Irving Cummings is scheduled to direct. Cummings turned in a winner with O'Brien in George's last picture, "The Holy Terror."

* * *

Joe Rock, independent producer, is planning a series of 12 novelty multi-color featurettes, starring Makato Toyoshima, Japanese actress. The pictures will deal with legends of Japan and all will be filmed in the native land.

REPORTS OF RESULTS AT THE BOX OFFICE

. . AS TOLD BY . . . EXHIBITORS THEMSELVES

COLUMBIA

Charley's Aunt, Charles Ruggles—One of the best comedies of the year. Good for Sundays. This one beats the old silent version and the stage play.—V. E. Joslin, Majestic, Heron Lake, Minn.

FOX

Six Cylinder Love, Spencer Tracy—Very clever. Drew large crowds who expected to see more of El Brendel. Good box office medicine. M. J. Nathan, Danby Theatre, Danbury, Iowa.

Seas Beneath, George O'Brien—First reel and last two reels okay. But the middle part was slow. Was disappointed in this one. — Mrs. Ethel Smith, Strand, Rogers, Texas.

FIRST NATIONAL

Scarlet Pages, Grant Withers.—Book this for any day of the week. Good comment from the fans.—H. M. Schenecker, Liberty, Webster, S. D.

M-G-M

It's a Wise Child, Marion Davies—A show which was liked by all. Not a dull minute in it. You can recommend it. — Mrs. Ethel Smith, Strand, Rogers, Texas.

The Great Meadow, John Mack Brown — This was different from anything we had shown lately and was okay in every way—Mrs. Ethel Smith, Strand, Rogers, Texas.

Trader Horn, Harry Carey—We showed this to four times average business for entire week. My house seats 200 and it's in a town of 5,000 with opposition theatre changing three times during the week. Use plenty of 24-sheets, put it on for a week and see it make money.—W. H. Brenner, Cozy, Winchester, Ind.

PARAMOUNT

Royal Family of Broadway, Ina Claire.—Good entertainment. This is an excellent society picture, with pathos and comedy well blended. Story is interesting—Charles Hyde, Grand, Pierre, S. D.

Right to Love, Ruth Chatterton—Busines was fair. This production does not do Ruth Chatterton justice and failed to please. Weather was fair.—J. A. Bittles, Granada, Greencastle, Ind.

STATE RIGHTS

Phantom of the Desert, Jack Perrin—Good western with recording on film good. Everybody pleased and had good comments.—Elfrida Mass, Princess, Aberdeen, S. D.

Beyond the Rio Grande, Jack Perrin—Poor story, no action, fair recording, no new ideas. Weather fair and cold.—R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

TIFFANY

Love Trader, Leatrice Joy, Henry Walthall—Weak story, fair acting, poor sound. Pathe comedy "Give Me Action" good. Stormy weather. —R. C. Peniston, Majestic, Jetmore, Kas.

UNIVERSAL

Iron Man, Lew Ayres — Robert Armstrong stole the picture. A good show and pleased everyone.—M. J. Nathan, Danby Theatre, Danbury, Iowa.

Iron Man, Lew Ayres—This picture is one of the kind that will not hold up two days. Business was good the first night. Weather fair. J. A. Bittles, Granada, Greencastle, Ind.

WARNER BROS.

Fifty Million Frenchmen, Olsen and Johnson—Cleverest picture I've had for 2 years. Dialogue snappy. Picture a constant riot of laughs. Wonderful crowds.—M .J. Nathan, Danby Theatre, Danbury, Iowa.

CO-OPERATION

To co-operate fairly with The Barometer means doing a good turn. The best judgment of a picture's value is the exhibitor's judgment. Co-operate with your brother-showmen in this department devoted to an exchange of opinions on current product.

Co-operative Ads Aid Bobby Jones Series

EXHIBITORS all over the country are taking advantage of the numerous avenues for tie-ups with merchants and others in exploiting the Bobby Jones series of Vitaphone shorts on "How I Play Golf." Few pictures have ever furnished so many opportunities for exploitation as has the Jones series. Unusual advertising has been the rule since the introduction of the series. For instance, the manager of the Strand Theattre in New Britain, Conn., was able last week to put over a co-operative page of advertising in the New Britain Record in which 90 per cent of the page was taken by golf schools, and country clubs. He had no need of interesting merchants or utilizing any of the sources that line the beaten track of most co-operative advertising.

On the other hand the manager of the Cameo Theatre, in Bristol, Conn., came across last week with a page of co-operative advertising in connection with the showing of the Jones pictures by lining up exclusively with merchants and sporting goods dealers, leaving the country clubs and golf schools for future use.

There have been so many of these full-page cooperative ads run in connection with the Bobby Jones series that the answer seems to be that merchants, sporting goods dealers and country clubs are eager to take part in them.

Due to the exploitation that has been and is being used in putting over the Bobby Jones golf pictures it is not at all surprising that exhibitors are hailing the shorts as one of the best bets that has ever fallen into their hands at this season of the year.

Tell Them "It's Cool"

By William Jacobs

THE fair ones have stored their fur and spring coats. They have donned the sleeveless low-neck dresses. Men have changed to linens and cool cloths.

The family is seeking the cool spots in the parks. The family car is raced along the highways and boulevards to create temporary cooling breezes. Swimming pools and beaches are drawing the sweltering crowds. Drug store curbs are lined with cars whose occupants pause to refresh themselves.

These human reactions are the natural results of the thermometer registering from 85 to 95 degrees.

But what have these natural reactions to do with the theatre?

Just this to our surprise:

In looking over the daily advertisements on the amusement page of an important key city newspaper, we discover to our amazement that out of the fourteen important houses equipped with modern cooling plants only one, and it timidly, refers to the refreshing coolness of its theatre.

Is this cause the result that managers take it for granted that everyone knows it's cool in a modern theatre? Or is it thoughtless oversight in selling?

We believe it is careless consideration to natural and timely selling angles. We further believe this obviously indicates that newspaper ads are not given the time, thought and enthusiasm their cost should command.

If these theatre heads were asked why their receipts were low they would shruggingly reply, "We haven't the pictures." "The weather is too hot," or "They are not going to shows now."

Our answer is "You can fill seats in these times if you utilize every opportunity to overcome natural human resistance."

Kids Help Street Ballyhoo

WHEN Columbia's "The Lone Rider," featuring Buck Jones, was recently shown at the Joy Theatre, Smackover, Ark., the manager got out a big street ballyhoo with kids which helped put over the picture in a big way.

A truck was secured and on each side were banners announcing that the gang was going to Buck Jones. Each kid was supplied with a noise-maker and with the truck touring the principal streets of the town there wasn't anyone who didn't know where Buck Jones was being shown.

This stunt proved its effectiveness and can be used on the others of the Buck Jones subjects, or any western. A special matinee for the kids is the best method to get them properly lined up in your town.

Buyer's Guide Boosts "Avenger"

FOR the opening of Columbia's "The Avenger," starring Buck Jones at the Liberty Theatre, Seattle, the manager put over a ten point strike when he copped the best position on a special "buyer's guide" gotten out in this territory.

This buyer's guide was a regular four page newspaper in two colors and contained ads of all the leading merchants. The manager of the Liberty Theatre offered two tickets for the price of one, and on page one of this paper secured a bold streamer clear across the top, as well as the lower half of the first page for his ad, which was run in two colors.

Educational Exploits Terry-Tooners Club

THE Terry-Tooners Music and Fun Clubs, sponsored by Educational Pictures as a move to bring back the kids to the theatre, officially got under way with Sam Hyman, owner of twelve theatres in Philadelphia starting actual work on the organizing of the Terry-Tooners Club for each of his twelve houses.

Mr. Hyman's Cameo was the first in his string of theatres to start the club, Saturday, June 20, being the date scheduled for the first meeting of the club.

Joe Rivkin, Educational exploiteer, has developed a tremendous campaign to put the clubs over on a big scale, nationally. The Hohner Company, which has had an exclusive tie-up arrangement with Educational for a number of years, is cooperating on the new idea, with harmonicas and other children's instruments.

The toy symphony, a new idea in rhythm, which has been adopted by many schools of music and experimental schools throughout the country, has become tremendously popular, and will be one of the principal features of the club. Children with no previous musical training may join the toy symphonies. Endorsed for its inestimable value in teaching children rhythm, the club will have the support and strong backing of schools and other educatioanl associations.

A full line of accessories to be used by the exhibitor inaugurating a club at his theatre is being made up by Educational. Already membership buttons bearing the club name and a special design by Paul Terry, creator of the Terry-Toons, are being distributed among club members.

Mr. Hyman has booked a new Terry-Toon into the Cameo for the first meeting.

Made for Love and Kisses, She Was Left to Weep Alone

Caresse O'Neill was rightly named. She was made for caresses and kisses and yet—

Ted Branard, the ne'er-do-well son of the town's most opulent banker—jilted her on her way to the altar.

The small town gossips filled her life with tears and humiliation. Her mother was banished from the "Ladies' Aid Society," and Caresse was deserted by even her closest friends—

Because Ted Brenard came back repentant, and Caresse listened to her heart, instead of to her mother.— An impromtu party ends in plans for an elopement—but fate intervened, and Ted's roadster was wrecked.

Again gossips ostracized Caresse from any community event, claiming that she too was under the influence of liquor. Even Lee Deering, musical composer, who had come from the city to work in solitude, and forget Edythe Leight, failed to give Caresse the benefit of the doubt. Just when things looked darkest came a vindication of Caresse and her mother, and the story ends with her marriage to the man she loves.

"Kisses," by Ruth Teylor, the story of Caresse O'Neil, is the story of a modern girl which every mother should read, and which she will enjoy reading. Every emotion will have its play. She will weep with the ostracized Caresse and her mother—she will rejoice in their vindication. She will despise, yet pity the weak Ted Brenard, she will revolt with the modern girls from the tirades of the gossipy "Ladies' Aid" members, she will find solace in the quiet of Lee Deering's life at Riverton.

Caresse's story, which awakens the whole run of emotions in the reader is told by Ruth Teylor in an inspiring novel of modern girl's problems—"Kisses"—which begins in the next issue of the Buyers Guide, May 28th. Don't fail to begin this enthralling story. You will not miss an installment, so engrossingly is the story told. Remember—

RCA on Ships

New York—Following negotiations that have been pending for nearly a year, announcement was made last week by Van Ness Philip, manager of the foreign department of RCA Photophone, Inc., that contracts had been signed by the White Star Line for the installation of RCA Photophone sound reproducing equipment aboard the Majestic, the Homeric and the Olympic, the three largest liners in the White Star Atlantic fleet of passenger steamships.

ZUKOR DECORATED

Hungarian Medal to Paramount Head

New York — Adolph Zukor, president of Paramount Publix Corporation, who was born in the town of Ricse, Hungary, was decorated last week by the Hungarian government.

Count Laszlo Szechenyi, Hungarian minister to the United States, assisted by George de Ghika, consul general of Hungary, presented to Mr. Zukor the decoration of Commander in the Hungarian Order of Merit, awarded by Admiral Horthy, Regent of Hungary.

Original Title

Hollywood — "Safe in Hell," which became "The Lady From New Orleans," is now titled "Safe in Hell" once more. This change, according to advices from Warner Bros.' West Coast Studios, where the picture is in production, is definite and final.

MIX WITH "U"

Cowboy Star to Make Six Westerns

New York—Tom Mix and his horse Tony, almost as famous as his master, will make six western pictures for Universal this year. Arrangements have just been concluded in Tom Mix's private car with the Sells-Floto Circus at Bridgeport, Conn.

The arrangement for Mix's services naturally permits the screen star to complete his circus contracts. He will not take up his quarters at Universal City until the latter part of October.

Carl Laemmle, in announcing the engagement of Tom Mix, said: "It is with a great deal of pleasure and a great deal of pride that I am announcing to exhibitors that we have secured Tom Mix for six western pictures. I have always regarded Tom Mix as the greatest of all western stars. I have always wanted him for Universal. I am greatly gratified at the successful outcome of these negotiations which assures him for six Universal pictures."

MANUAL ON SHORTS

RKO-Pathe Issuing New Book

New York — RKO-Pathe is issuing a fifty-two page exhibitor manual covering all its shorts series with the exception of the Masquers all-star two-reelers and the Floyd Gibbons' Supreme Thrills, each of which will have special press sheets, according to A. P. Waxman, advertising counsel.

The manual devotes four pages each to Aesop's Sound Fables, Grantland Rice Sportlights, Vagabond Adventures, the seven two-reel comedy series—Jimmy Gleason, Benny Rubin, Frank McHugh, Mr. Average Man, Traveling Salesman, Gay Girls and Manhattana—and Pathe News and Pathe Review.

The material covers feature, news and play-date stories, sales angles, ad cuts, slugs and scene cuts and novelties available for special promotion. The book has been made up simply, without any bunk and is intended for use and not show.

Howard Signed

Hollywood—Leslie Howard has been signed to appear opposite Ann Harding in "Devotion," her first feature on RKO-Pathe's new program. The Harding picture has a Barriesque slant, combining highly dramatic situations with whimsicality and comedy. It was adapted by Horace Jackson and Graham John from Pamela Wynne's novel. Robert Milton is directing.

FEATURES and SHORTS

Big Business Girl

First National—80 Minutes

Cast: Loretta Young, Frank Albertson, Ricardo Cortez, Virginia Sale, Joan Blondell, Frank Darien, Dorothy Christy, Mickey Bennett, Bobby Gordon, Nancy Delver and Oscar Apfel. Directed by William Seiter.

Here is a fast-moving screen story of modern youth that proves to be highly entertaining for any type audience. Story concerns a boy and girl who upon their graduation from college decide to seek their living in their own way, with the boy leading an orchestra in Paris and the girl going to work in an advertising agency in New York. The girl keeps her marriage to the boy secret and her employer makes love to her. The boy returns unexpectedly from Paris and discovers her with the boss. She is displeased with him for returning before he had made good and they have several misunderstandings which culminate in actions for a divorce arranged by her employer. She discovers that framed-up evidence is to be gotten against the boy and hastens to him to stop it, and when explanations are made, a happy reunion is brought about. The cast is excellent and direction fine.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Title furnishes best angle for exploitation. Timely Tie-ups with schools and colleges with newspaper contest on the question "What Will I Choose for a Career," or "Shall I Become a Big Business Girl."

———o———

Affairs of Annabelle

Fox—79 Minutes

Cast: Victor McLaglen, Jeanette MacDonald, Roland Young, Sam Hardy, William Collier, Sr., Ruth Warren, Joyce Compton, Sally Blane, George Andre Beranger, Walter Walker, Hank Mann, Jed Prouty, Louise Beavers, Wilbur Mack. Directed by Alfred Werker.

This bright piece of screen farce is an adaptation from the stage musical known as "Good Gracious Annabelle" which after several changes of title arrived as "Affairs of Annabelle," which seems to cover the situations. Excellent direction of a very capable cast has turned out as nice a piece of nonsense as could be desired.

The story which concerns the attempts of a young girl to get back some mining stock which her husband, whom she had hastily married and as hastily left, had given her and suddenly proved to be very valuable. It had fallen into the hands of her husband's business rival through her pledging it for $700. She poses as a cook in the rival's household and during one of his many periods of gross intoxication she steals the stock from him. Her husband turns up and with his beard shaven off she does not recognize him, as he makes love to her under the assumed position as captain of the rival's yacht.

The story is merely used as a background for some very amusing situations. Victor McLaglen does exceptionally good work as the husband and Roland Young as the inebriate rival equally shares honors with him. Miss MacDonald sings one number in a pleasing manner without slowing up the action and her part as the girl in the case could not have been better chosen. Give us more of these breezy comedies and the screen fans will be sure to render thanks to the producers.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Stars are the best bet for exploitation. Sell on the comedy angle. Title lends itself to mysterious affairs that will not hurt any after you get them in.

———o———

Ships of Hate

Monogram—66 Minutes

Cast: Lloyd Hughes, Dorothy Sebastian, Chas. Middleton, Lloyd Whitlock, Ted Adams, Constantine Romanoff, Gordon LeMain. Directed by J. P. McCarthy.

This is he-man melodrama staged aboard a ship of questionable character and a villainous crew of no character whatsoever. The ship is forced to sail clear of civilized ports, and the crew, all wanted by the law, destined to obey the threats of a paralytic captain who keeps them in tow with a snake whip and gun.

It is strictly melodrama with deliberate action suited to the word, marking a decided change from the conventional screen fare. The very nature of the offering makes it hold the undivided attention of the onlooker, serving well the fundamental purpose of entertainment, that of escape from the routine activities of every day life. It will undoubtedly take hold of the audience and stay with them after the final fade out due to its perfect melodramatic treatment. If patrons of the picture palaces are in search of two fisted entertainment to awaken their emotional reactions they will get their money's worth.

Monogram promised a mighty melodrama and they have delivered it. Lloyd Hughes and Dorothy Sebastian, to put it in melodramatic parlance, acquit themselves as the hero and heroine while Charles Middleton as the villainous captain portrays a difficult character with excellent skill.—Warren Stokes.

SELLING SEATS: Bill it as a two-fisted melodrama of the mighty deep and hail Charles Middleton as a Lon Chaney in your press stories.

———o———

Always Good Bye

Fox—66 Minutes

Cast: Elissa Landi, Lewis Stone, Paul Cavanagh, John Garrick, Herbert Bunston, Frederick Kerr and Lumsden Hare. Directed by Kenneth McKenna and William C. Menzies.

A mediocre film that has just enough entertainment value to satisfy most fans but not enough to make it outstanding. Elissa Landi in a most convincing role does all she can with it. Lewis Stone carries off what honors there are. Story concerns the girl who is used as a dupe by a clever crook (Paul Cavanagh). She poses as his wife, innocently, until she finds he is an imposter and when a love affair develops between her and the man he is trying to cheat (Lewis Stone), she crosses him up and when he falls into the toils of the law she falls into the arms of the man she loves. Miss Landi's work gives us assurance of what she is capable of doing if given a really strong part. Direction fairly well handled and photography of the best.—Southwell.

SELLING SEATS: Sell the stars as their names mean money. Something might be done with the finger print angle. Build up your program with good comedy shorts.

———o———

Forbidden Adventure

Paramount—85 Minutes

Cast: Mitzi Green, Edna May Oliver, Louise Fazenda, Jackie Searl, Bruce Line, Lawrence Grant. Directed by Norman Taurog.

Here is a picture which is real entertainment for the entire family trade with plenty of kid interest to appeal to parents and adults, as well as to every red-blooded American boy and girl. Mitzie Green and Jackie Searl supply most of the kid interest and Edna May Oliver and Louise Fazenda create plenty of laughs as their quarrelsome mothers.

Briefly, the story is about two uvenile movie stars and a boy ing, visiting in London, all of whom want to be regular kids and lay like the average boy and girl but can't. Finally they run away ogether, discarding their fine lothes for rags so they can be ike the other kids with whom hey play. Then a lot of excitement starts to happen when two oughs recognize Jackie and kidnap him. All of the kids in the neighborhood come to his rescue and beat up the two men and the owner of the warehouse where Jackie is being held prisoner. So while it lasted the kids experienced some real adventure, but with the police on their trail they are all brought back to their parents and, thus ends the picture with the kids reminiscing over their joyful times together like regular kids, and mournful that they will be separated.—Jesse.

SELLING SEATS: Every name in the cast should mean something at the box office. Play them up and advertise the new comedy team of Oliver and Fazenda. You should have no trouble getting the kiddies' cooperation. Tie-up with various juvenile organizations and play it up as a picture they shouldn't miss.

———o———

The Real Estaters

Paramount—11 Minutes

A few old gags slipped through on this one, but all in all it's a pretty funny comedy. Smith and Dale are featured and they get off some good ones. A woman comes into their office and they think she is a prospect as a purchaser for their bum property. After a number of wisecracks they discover she is checking up on their income tax which they haven't paid. And they had bragged about how much money they had made. This will brighten any program.—Steen.

———o———

Ambitious People

M-G-M—15 Minutes

Herman Timburg in an amusing skit in color which gets over very well. Timburg is the fellow who hires the talent for a new show and in selecting the feminine star, gets in dutch with the producer. There are songs and dances which go together to make up a nice short.—Steen.

THE LAST WORD

RIGHT YOU ARE, MR. HAMMONS!

THE American public want to laugh now more than ever; they are also avid for 'the something new in entertainment.' " So says Mr. E. W. Hammons, president of Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., in an announcement the past week. Right you are, Mr. Hammons. There has been too much of the drab and heavy stuff in features of late and those exhibitors going in for double featuring have just doubled the dose instead of balancing the bill with something in the lighter vein.

Of course Mr. Hammons' reference to providing the public with entertainment that will make them laugh concerns his company's short-length comedies. But there's a thought in this, not new by any means —simply forgotten, that will provide theatres with all the attractiveness that double feature programs seem to offer and, more than likely, serve to be twice as magnetic at the box office for those who want quantity entertainment and at the same time give them quality and be far more enduring.

The main value of the double feature at first blush was that it enabled the exhibitor to advertise two attractions instead of one. If two well-known stars were featured separately in each feature, he had a double advertising value there. But the difficulty of balancing two features on one program as a regular thing soon kills the value such a program may have at the beginning.

Exhibitors have long been guilty of negligence in exploiting to the full and thus deriving the full benefit afforded by the short subjects. In the featured roles of the majority of the two-reel comedies are names that have drawing value. Giving more play to the "added attractions" in newspaper advertising, in the lobby, on the screen and on the marquee will undoubtedly have an attraction value that will exceed most any double feature bill. What's more it has a permanent value at the box office. Don't hide the comedies on your programs under the guise of "added attractions"; SELL them for what they're worth; SELL the names that are in them; SELL their entertainment merits and you'll fill a lot of empty seats and please a lot of customers.

PRICE CUTTING

FOR several years we have kept a small clipping under the glass on our editorial desk that says the following about price cutting:

> Never did anyone any permanent good . . . Is an admission that the first price was too high, anyway . . . Is unnecessary if your customers are getting a fair deal . . . Is a poor way to establish public confidence in your business . . . Is easy to start and hard to stop . . . Is Inefficiency's last resort . . . Is the first step toward a receivership.

There's some good food for thought in those pithy lines. If you're contemplating a cut in your admission prices, think twice before you make the move. There are instances, of course, where admissions have skyrocketed beyond the "popular price" scale. We consider any admission above fifty cents too high. These should be cut. But all situations are not alike. If you can definitely and permanently increase your receipts through a lower admission, it's a good move. But, if there is any doubt in your mind, hold off.

"American Tragedy"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD—A dramatic smash with an involved tale that receives simple and effective screen treatment. Von Sternberg's direction is sincere, never allowing the spectacular to intrude upon the keynote of simplicity. In all respects the production is in good taste. Phillips Holmes contributes a splendid performance as Clyde Griffith who, for the love of a new girl, murders the old. Study in repressed adolescence is neatly achieved. Sylvia Sidney and Frances Dee reach new heights, and sterling characterizations are given by Irving Pichel and Charles Middleton as opposing attorneys. The audience evinced an enthusiastic reaction at the preview. Looks like a winner despite the tragic theme and death sentence ending, and is sure to receive high critical praise.

Who aroused the independents? . . . Why the sudden splash of advertising copy? . . . Have you become strictly an advertising medium for independent product? . . . Suddenly we learn that the independents have some real action product, what happened?

These and hundreds of other questions have been hurled at us since the appearance of our June 16 issue. Our answer is simply this:

The independents have been aroused by the need of action product. While this product, realizing the necessity of advertising, they analyzed the situation for the purpose of reaching the trade to the best advantage. National coverage plus local appeal resulted in their deciding upon ASSOCIATED PUBLICATIONS.

Film Trade Topics; Movie Age; The Reel Journal; Motion Picture Digest; Michigan Film Review; Exhibitors' Forum; The Ohio Showman; New England Film News; Motion Picture Times; Weekly Film Review carried their message to the entire industry and to each individual exhibitor through his Home Town Paper—That's why A. P. editors have been besieged with the above exhibitor questions—the message of the Independents has been read—and how!

In regard to the question as to whether or not we have become strictly a medium of advertising for the Independents, it should be understood that no journal, paper or periodical rejects or places a ban on any legitimate advertising, the pages are open for the distribution and diffusion of all such messages.

The main object in advertising one's wares is to place the copy through a medium commanding maximum attention at minimum cost.

In this particular instance the medium proved to be ASSOCIATED PUBLICATIONS.

Few Summer Closings

In Northwest Despite Expectations to Contrary; Approximately 25 Per Cent.

Contrary to earlier expectations, there has been no wholesale closing of theatres throughout the territory for the summer on account of the depression.

Reports received by the Minneapolis Film Board of Trade indicate the number of showhouses to shut up shop during the past several weeks has not been any larger than for the corresponding period a year ago, according to Mrs. Mable Dietz, secretary of the board.

Each summer about 25 per cent of the theatres close for portions of the summer, Mrs. Dietz points out. This percentage has not been exceeded so far and there are even indications that the number of closing may not run so heavy as in 1930, she says.

The Film Board of Trade figure and by no means complete, but they are thought to give a pretty good line on the general situation.

With business in practically all trade lines badly off, it was figured that many showhouses, ordinarily open throughout the summer, would not care to combat the depression along with the heat, but, instead, would quit operation temporarily. But patronage throughout the territory has been holding up fairly well, all things considered, and this has induced many owners to keep their theatres open.

Publix has closed houses only in the usual isolated instances. Where any chance whatsoever exists to break nearly even on operating costs it has preferred to keep theatres open in order to afford continued employment to members of the house staffs and to help local sentiment.

Annual Film Board Golf Tourney

Honors go to Don Woods, Barney Benfield and Clyde Cutter; 85 Members Present.

Don Woods, Barney Benfield and Clyde Cutter are the movie golf champions of the Northwest They carried off the laurels at the annual golf tournament of the Minneapolis Film Board of Trade at Oak Ridge golf course.

Mr. Woods is city salesman for Paramount. He won the first flight for the championship, garnering the highest laurels of the day.

Mr. Benfield, Morris, Minn., exhibitor, captured the exhibitors' medal trophy, putting up his usually pretty game. The exchange medal trophy went to Clyde Cutter of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer who shot in fine form.

George Fosnick of RKO showed nice form with the sticks in finishing first in the second flight.

In attendance and all-around good time for everybody present, the meet was acclaimed the best

Disappointment

Expressed by Loop Theatres Over Knights Templar Convention; Business Off.

The Knights Templar convention proved a distinct disappointment as far as Minneapolis showhouses were concerned. Instead of helping business, as expected, it hurt, if anything.

In the first place, the attendance did not begin to approach the advance estimates. In the second place, the clear, hot weather kept the visitors outdoors.

A huge outdoor pageant staged by "Buzz" Bainbridge, managing director of the Shubert Theatre, for the Templars' entertainment, under the organization's sponsorship, kept home folks as well as visitors away from the loop theatres. It was the one big success of the week, drawing capacity crowds of 17,000 at each of the

New Wis. Unit

Milwaukee — Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Wisconsin has become affiliated with Allied States Association, following a meeting of the group last week. Frank J. McWilliams of Madison was made president of the group and was appointed national director of Allied States for Wisconsin.

McWilliams has been one of the leaders of the independent group which broke away from the M. P. T. O. of Wisconsin. The independents have planned a series of regional conferences, the first of which will take place this week at Rice Lake. Other meetings will be called every two weeks.

NEW COOLING PLANT

Alhambra at Milwaukee Has $50,000 System

Milwaukee, Wis. — Universal's Alhambra Theatre here was dark from June 19 to 25 to allow the installation of a $50,000 refrigerating plant as well as new drapes and carpeting. The theatre reopened June 26 with Universal's "Seed." Fred S. Meyer, president of the M. P. T. O. of Wisconsin, is managing director of the theatre.

The Davidson Theatre, local legitimate house which has been showing sound pictures for the past several weeks, closed for the summer June 20 with the completion of the showing of "Tabu." The house will reopen early in September, according to J. A. Higler, manager.

Fire Drills

By M. E. CUFFEL, Editor

MOVIE AGE does not believe that chain or independent exhibitors should permit themselves to grow-careless in the matter of holding fire drills. If its information is correct, there has been a tendency toward carelessness in this regard. It seems that even some of the chain houses are not holding fire drills regularly.

Most Northwest theatres are of fire-proof construction and the possibilities of a conflagration probably are slight. Nevertheless, such possibilities exist and the astute theatre owner or manager will be prepared to meet every sort of a contingency. It does not matter that theatre fires have been few and far between.

"Daddy Long Legs" and "Hell Bound" High Cards

Minneapolis (week ending June 27)—The Minnesota and RKO Orpheum, as usual, got the bulk of the trade the past week. Both houses did well, in spite of the Knights Templar convention rather than because of it.

"Daddy Long Legs" was a fine card at the Minnesota, pulling especially big matinee business. Critics and patrons raved over this offering.

With strong vaudeville and good ganster picture, "Hell Bound," the Orpheum drew well. "Kick In" at the Lyric and "Dude Ranch" at the Aster were good offerings and attracted fair patronage.

Aster—Dude Ranch (Para.), Jack Oakie. Business: Fair. Summary: A light but pleasing comedy about a cowboy who puts some city bad men to rout and wins the girl. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound News, screen vaudeville and comedy.

Minnesota — Daddy Long Legs (Fox), Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter. Business: Big. Summary: A pleasing little romance that is tip-top entertainment for every member of the family. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Stage show and sound news.

Lyric—Kick In (Para.), Clara Bow. Business: Fair. Summary: Miss Bow as the wife of an ex-convict who tries to go straight despite obstacles thrown in his path by former gangster pals and the police. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news; comedy; and screen vaudeville.

RKO Orpheum — Hell Bound (Tiffany), Leo Carillo. Business: Good. Summary: A well-knit gangster drama with thrills and Carillo's good characterization to compensate for various implausibilities and false notes. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville, sound news.

State—Women of All Nations (Fox), Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen. Business: Light. Summary: More adventures of Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirt with the fair sex in various climes; only moderately amusing. Entertainment Merits: 75 per cent. Short Subjects: Sound news, cartoon comedy, "Strange As It Seems."

MILWAUKEE

(Week Ending June 18)

Alhambra—Many a Slip (Universal), Joan Bennett, Lew Ayres. Business: Fair. Summary: A melodramtic offering in which the comic relief fails to click properly. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal newsreel; comedy.

Davidson—Tabu (Paramount). Business: Fair. Summary: A film bearing unusually fine photography and a musical score second to none of its kind. Entertainment Merits: 95 per cent. Short Subjects: Newsreel and comedy.

Garden—My Past (Warner), Bebe Daniels, Ben Lyon. Business: Fair. Summary: A love story which progresses by jerks. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Newsreel, comedy.

Palace—Transgression (Radio), Kay Francis, Ricardo Cortez. Business: Fair. Summary: An interesting play concerning a woman whose husband goes on a mining expedition and who herself goes to Paris for excitement. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: RKO newsreel, comedy.

Riverside—The Good Bad Girl (Columbia), Mae Clark, James Hall. Business: Fair. Summary: A gangster story concerning what happens when they try to go straight. Entertainment Merits: 80 per cent. Short Subjects: Vaudeville.

Strand—Trader Horn (M-G-M), Harry Carey, Edwina Booth. Business: Fair (ended second week). Short Subjects: Fox Movietone Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. News and comedy.

Warner—Big Business Girl (F. N.), Loretta Young, Frank Albertson. Business: Fair. Summary: A mildly good affair which concerns the sweet young college girl who goes into business. Entertainment Merits: 85 per cent. Short Subjects: Universal newsreel and comedy.

Wisconsin—Five and Ten (M-G-M), Leslie Howard, Marion Davies, Irene Rich. Business: Fair. Summary: An exceptional photoplay because of its cast, in which Miss Davies strikes the modern atmosphere perfectly. Entertainment Merits: 90 per cent. Short Subjects: Fanchon & Marco Idea, Fox Movietone News.

Business at Normal Summer Season Gait

Northwest exhibitors continue to get results by putting their shoulders squarely to the wheel, Minneapolis exchange managers report to MOVIE AGE after trips through the territory.

Despite the depresison, business is going along at most spots as just about the normal summer gait.

Exchange managers emphasize the fact that theatre operators, no more than people engaged in other lines of industry, cannot expect to make money all the time. Some losing weeks during the hottest part of a depressed summer are to be expected, it is pointed out. It is the results for the year as a whole that count.

By working harder than usual, many managers in towns throughout the territory are succeeding in holding up patronage almost to normal proportions, the exchange managers say. More pains are being taken in arranging programs and there are more exploitation tie-up in the small towns than ever before, according to the exchange managers.

"Business seems to be close to normal in most of the spots which I have visited during recent weeks," says Mike Frisch, RKO exchange manager in Minneapolis. "Moreover, as far as RKO product is concerned, at least, the exhibitors show a disposition to sign up at this time for the new season's pictures. Our product is going over exceptionally well."

Exchange managers have been spending an unusually large amount of time in the territory during recent weeks.

Golf Tourney

ever held by the board. There were 85 members of the movie industry present, including managers and salesmen and exhibitors.

The Film Board is planning another big time for late July when an outing will be held by it at Detroit Lakes, Minn. There will be swimming, bridge and other events at this outing, in addition to golf. Exhibitors also will be invited again. Tentative plans for the event were discussed at the board's weekly meeting. The exact date for the outing will be announced shortly, according to W. H. Workman, president.

NO PRICE CUTS

Five Circuits Plan No Admission Slashes

New York—Five major circuits, Publix, Fox, Loew's, Warner and RKO, announced last week that no cuts in either box office scale or programs are contemplated for the coming months. This announcement sets at rest current rumors to the effect that circuits were planning drastic price cutting.

Outlook for industrial improvement as a result of the better international situation, together with the fact that theatres in many sections have so far held up fairly well for this time of the year, are cited as the principal constructive forces in forestalling any further reductions in box office prices. With the business outlook indicating a revival by fall, amuesement business has only a few more months to go before its good season sets in, and it is felt that the customary upswing at that time will be accelerated by better conditions.

Another view elicited in the survey is that the restoration of prices from their present low levels, where cuts have been made, will not be a difficult matter provided sufficiently strong attractions are forthcoming.

ANOTHER PUZZLE

$40,000,000 Represented in Motor Cars

Maybe the times aren't so bad as a lot of theatrical and other people have been led to believe.

The Minneapolis Star calls attention to the fact that police estimate that 50,000 to 60,000 automobiles were parked just outside the Minneapolis loop during the Knights Templar parade. The value of these cars is estimated at $40,000,000.

"Another puzzle for pessimists" is the way The Star captions its editorial reference to the matter.

RAILROAD TIE-UP

Great Northern and Para. Cooperate

Don Alexander, live-wire publicity head of the Paramount Theatre, St. Paul, has a nice tie-up with the Great Northern railroad on Glacier National Park.

The theatre is boosting the park on the screen in a series of songs gotten together by Leonard Leigh, the organist, including such numbers as "Moonlight in the Rockies," etc., and sung by audiences.

In return the railroad is running 150 inches of display advertising in the newspapers, boosting the theatre and its attraction, "Daddy Long Legs." It also has sent out 2,000 bulletins to employes, calling attention to the Paramount and the latter's program. It also has a window display at its loop ticket office for the theatre.

BOSTICK HERE

Former Pan Manager Is Living in Seattle

A Minneapolis visitor is E. C. Bostick, erstwhile popular manager of Pantages Theatre during the last two years before its closing. Mr. Bostick now is associated with A. G. Bainbridge of Minneapolis in the operation of the Moore Theatre, Seattle, which, under their joint direction, recently concluded a successful season of dramatic stock and which will reopen with the same policy in the fall. With his wife, Mr. Bostick is visiting the Bainbridges for a few week and renewing local acquaintances.

Here's Luck, E. W.

E. W. Jonhson will open a new theatre at Floodview, Minn., on July 4. He is at present engaged in the drug business at Floodwood. Mr. Johnson's subscription to MOVIE AGE was received this week. He evidently feels that a good trade paper is as much an essential in his new line of business as films and tickets. We hope that he gets many helpful suggestions from our columns and wish him the utmost luck in his enterprise.

Expect Stars

Breezy Point Lodge, Minn., the famous Fawcett hostelry, again this summer promises to be a popular vacation spot for screen folks. One of the first of its Hollywood visitors will be the popular Fifi Dorsay who will be entertained at the lodge by the Fawcetts early in July. Miss Dorsay is now on a vaudeville tour. Other screen celebrities are expected from time to time throughout the summer, the same as in previous years.

Fire Drills

A panic and a consequent loss of life in any theatre fire which might occur could do the show business irreparable harm. If employes are properly drilled they can manage any panicky situation in such a way as to avert injuries or loss of life. Moreover, it is a good advertisement for a theatre to have it known that fire drills are held regularly. It adds to patrons' sense of security and gives them confidence in the theatre's management which they likely will hold in higher esteem.

It even has been suggested that fire drills be held with the patrons participating. In the case of larger houses in the bigger cities, this probably would be impractical, but it even might work out as a good advertising stunt for some of the smaller theatres in the smaller towns.

BUYS GOLF SERIES

Publix to Show Bobby Jones Subjects

L. E. Goldhammer, Warner Brothers' exchange manager at Minneapolis, has closed with Publix for the latter to take the Bobby Jones' golf shorts series for the entire Northwest circuit. The series comes in 12 installments.

Mr. Goldhammer reports that Warner Brother-First National business on the new season product is running far ahead of the corresponding period last year in the territory, despite the depression and the efforts to induce independent exhibitors to do no buying.

"Adventures in Africa," the Warner Brothers' serial, is going over especially big in the territory, according to Mr. Goldhammer.

HAPPY OVER MIX

Garrison Glad "U" Has Signed Star

J. E. Garrison, Universal exchange manager, is elated over the signing of Tom Mix for six Universal westerns. This is good news, too, for Northwest exhibitors, he asserts, because Mix always has been a great card in the territory and there is a big demand at present for outdoor western action pictures. Mix is sure to help in getting the kiddies back into the showhouses for all the youngsters love this cowboy hero, he points out.

Two of the recent Universal pictures continue to clean up everywhere in the territory, according to Mr. Garrison. They're "Seed" and "Dracula" and both are going great guns, he says.

Hollywood—Harry Carey, star of "Trader Horn," and one of the veteran favorites with the fans, has been assigned one of the leading character roles in "The Mad Marriage," Helen Twelvetrees' latest starring production now being made at the RKO-Pathe studios.

STAFF CHANGES

Managers Shift in Racine Houses

Racine, Wis.—Two changes in management have been announced here. Owen McKivett, formerly manager of Warner's Western Theatre, has returned as manager of the house. He succeeds Bryn Griffith, who will be transferred elsewhere on the circuit.

Robert M. Ungerfeld, who has been manager of Fox's State Theatre here for the past two years, has been succeeded as manager of the house by Mickey Gross. Mr. Gross was formerly publicity man for the RKO theatres as well as manager of the circuit's Orpheum and President theatres in St. Paul.

HOT FOR TALKIES

RCA Installation at Coldest Spot

Even in the furthermost nook of the north, where the temperature falls to 75 and g0 degrees below zero in mid-winter, talking pictures are the vogue now.

The Minneapolis branch of RCA sound equipment has received an order for new sound equipment to go into a new 400-seat theatre being built at The Pas, a little town in the extreme northern part of Manitoba. The Pas has the reputation of being one of the coldest spots in America, but it is said they're all ready to warm up to sound films.

New RCA sound equipment also has been installed for the new State Theasre and was opened by Beck & Sorenson at Chamberlain, S. D., June 14.

Recovers

Bennie Berger, president of the Northwest Allied unit, has recovered from his recent illness and is back on the job again. He was treated at the New Asbury Hospital, Minneapolis, for ulcers.

Disappointment

three performances. The 17,000 seats also were completely sold out on the morning of the big parade.

The rialto in common with the hotels and restaurants had been led to believe that the conclave would draw a crowd of 250,000 visitors. This initial extravagant estimate later was revised to 50,000. The actual number of Knights registered was less than 7,000. It is not believed that there were more than 10,000 transients here on the peak day, Tuesday, when the parade was held.

The parade along with the outdoors' pageant, however, was a lure for local residents, it being estimated that fully 150,000 watched it throughout Tuesday morning and afternoon. Theatres complained that the dread of large crowds kept many of their patrons away during the week. All in all, the results were exceedingly unsatisfactory.

TWO MAGNETS

"Long Legs" and "Yankee Get Big Money

Fox has the distinction of having among its product two pictures which rate as the best drawing cards that the Minnesota Theatre, ace and largest house of the Publix Northwest circuit, has had in many months. The pictures are "Daddy Long Legs" and "A Connecticut Yankee." They vie with "Skippy," a Paramount picture, for giving the house its biggest weeks of the current year. All three pictures afford clean, wholesome entertainment for all members of the family.

"Daddy Long Legs" was on view at the Minnesota last week. Although record-breaking heat was in evidence during the week, it drew packed houses during the seven days. "A Connecticut Yankee," on view several months ago, also was an outstanding magnet.

Refund 5 Per Cent

Milwaukee, Wis.—A plan is being worked out by the local stage hands' union whereby the stage hands will refund 5 per cent of their salary to the theatres during 10 weeks this summer. It is hoped that the plan will help to alleviate the summer slump and it is also hoped to arrange a smilar movement among the motion picture operators.

The plan is expected to be put into effect within two weeks and will affect approximately 115 stage hands in this city.

Columbia's Studios Working at Capacity

Hollywood—The Columbia Hollywood studios are working at capacity with four major productions before the cameras, six in preparation for early filming and six featurettes in work. The unit making "Arizona" has returned from locaton at Palm Springs Calif. Laura La Plante, John Wayne, June Clyde, Nena Quartaro Forrest Stanley Loretta Sayers and Susan Fleming have outstanding roles. George B. Seitz is directing this adaptation of the Augustus Thomas stage play.

"Fifty Fathoms Deep," with R. William Neill directing has Jack Holt in the stellar role with Richard Cromwell, Loretta Sayers and Mary Doran prominent in the support.

Shooting started last week on "Pagan Lady," adapted from the stage play by William DeBois. Evelyn Brent portrays the title role. John Francis Dillon will direct.

"Ex-Ranger," tentative title of Buck Jones' second production under his new Columbia long term contract, is being directed by Louis King. James Mason and Frank Rice are leading the cast.

"Branded," another Buck Jones feature, is in the cutting room, as is "The Miracle Woman," the roadshow production adapted from the stage success by R. R. Riskin and John Meehan. "The Miracle Woman" serves as Barbara Stanwyck's second Columbia starring vehicle. Frank Capra directed and an imposing cast in support of Miss Stanwyck includes: Sam Harday, Beryl Mercer, David Manners, Russell Hopton, Charles Middleton, Eddie Boland, Thelma Hill, Harry Todd, Al Stewart and Aileen Carlyle.

Robert Riskin is completing the adaptation on a new Holt-Graves vehicle as yet untitled, while Jo Swerling is working on a forthcoming Frank Capra - Barbara Stanwyck vehicle. Dorothy Howell, Douglas Doty and Arthur Rosson are working on three vehicles, the titles of which will be announced shortly.

Among the featurettes in production are: "Screen Snapshots" No. 8; "The Delivery Boy," a Mickey Mouse cartoon; "The Busy Beavers" a Silly Symphony; "Soda Poppa," new edition of Krazy Kat; "Curiosities" No. 22 and a new Eddie Buzzell "Bed Time Stories for Grown-ups."

Select Cast

Hollywood—The four principal roles in the second of the series of human interest dramas to be produced by Headline Pictures Corp., have been assigned to Marion Nixon, Lloyd Hughes, Theodore Van Eltz and Burr McIntosh, according to an announcement from Mortimer D. Sikawitt, president of Headline. Shooting has already started under directorial supervision of Charles Hutchison. RCA recording will be used.

Start "Reno"

Hollywood—"The Road to Reno" has gone into production under the direction of Richard Wallace at the Hollywood studio of Paramount, with Charles Rogers and Carman Barnes heading a stellar cast. Others in the cast of "The Road to Reno" are Tom Douglas, Lilyan Tashman, Judith Wood, Irving Pichel, Skeets Gallagher, William (Stage) Boyd, Wynne Gibson and Leni Stengel.

EIGHT COMEDIES

Educational Announces July Releases

Hollywood—Consistent with its policy of maintaining a high degree of activity throughout the summer, Educational has scheduled for release in July, eight new subjects, of which four are two-reel comedies, and four one-reelers.

Releases scheduled for July 5 include "Movie-Town," a Mack Sennett comedy, featuring the comedy dean himself, Marjorie Beebe, Frank Eastman and Luis Alberni; "The Lure of Hollywood," the third in the group of Hollywood Girl Comedies, with Virginia Brooks, Phyllis Crane, Rita Flynn and George Chandler in the principal roles; and "Dream World," the third in the new series of Romantic Journeys.

Another Mack Sennett Comedy, a baseball opus, featuring Daphne Pollard, Tom Dugan and Wade Boteler, and titled "Slide, Speedy, Slide," is scheduled for July 19 release. On that day a new Hodge Podge titled "Jungle Giants," will also be released.

"What a Head," the last in the series of Educational Tuxedo Comedies, will be released on July 26. This comedy features Jack Duffy, Ronnie Rondell and Frances Lee. It was directed by Robert Hall.

"By the Sea" and "Her First Egg," two new Terry-Toons, will be released July 12 and July 26 respectively.

Star Returns

Hollywood—After fifteen years of voluntary retirement, Rita Stanwood, wife of H. B. Warner, returned to the screen last week to make her talking debut in RKO-Radio Pictures, "The Sphinx Has Spoken," being directed by Victor Schwertzinger.

STAR SYSTEM O. K.

Edgar Selwyn Says Star Is Most Important

Hollywood — "The star system on stage and screen is increasing in strength with each passing year. The reason for the system's vitality is exactly that which is behind the public's purchase of trade - marked and advertised goods. The name of an accepted personality over the marquee of a stage or screen theatre is taken by the theatregoer as an immediate guarantee of quality."

With this statement Edgar Selwyn, noted stage producer, recently turned director for Metro-Goldwn-Mayer, plunges headfirst into the controversy which has waged for years as to the merits and demerits of the "star system."

"If you will follow any group of people in the theatrical district you will find that they are interested, first, in the productions which are headed by recognized stars. You may, with a little argument, be able to induce them to attend a very good show, in which there are players they never heard of—but you will have to argue," he concluded.

BICKFORD SIGNED

To Have Male Lead in "Pagan Lady."

Hollywood — Charles Bickford, well known screen leading man, has been teamed with Conrad Nagel in the principal male role of 'Pagan Lady," Columbia's adaptation of last season's sensational stage play of the same name by William Du Bois. Evelyn Brent s featured in the title part, with John Francis Dillon directing.

"Buy Now" Campaign Starts

Within the Industry Although Allied States Points to Plan as Being "Hysterical."

The motion picture industry is in the midst of a "Buy Right - Buy Now" campaign which when interpreted means that exhibitors should make contracts immediately but make sure the prices are right.

Exhibitor leaders of opposing organization factions are divided in their opinions regarding the movement. It is natural that the distributing forces should campaign heavily for the idea because it means more business for them. However, the dollars and cents angle is not the entire reason for their enthusiasm as they point out that while some exhibitors are holding out on buying, others are stepping in and getting the better breaks.

Allied States Association looks upon the campaign as being "hysterical" and gives reasons why the "buy now" program should not be taken too seriously at this time. Allied points out that, because of general business conditions, exhibitors are unable to know how much they can pay for product next season. The organization also declares that distributors are not certain what the nature of their product will be and that because of the financial conditions of some, there is no certainty that the product promised will be delivered.

On the other hand other exhibitor leaders look upon the movement as a stimulant to business with the belief that by waiting too long available product will be gobbled up.

In any event, distributors report that sales this year are ahead of the corresponding period last year and that the "buy now" campaign is heading toward success.

Allied Aims

Washington—Allied leaders list the aims of their organizations as follows: Fair copyright laws, elimination of protection beyond prior run, lower service costs on sound equipment, end of block booking, lower trailer costs and better contract conditions.

"Prospective legal action may go far toward solving the protection problem," leaders of Allied declare.

9 FILM BOARDS OF TRADE OUT

As Hays Organization Institutes an Economy Move, Necessary by Outlawing or Arbitration.

New York—Nine Films Boards of Trade will be discontinued after July 1, it was announced by the Hays office last week. Under this arrangement the remaining 23 offices in key cities will take over the territories of those which have been closed. This action has been instituted as an economic movement necessitated primarily because of the outlawing of the arbitration and credit systems.

Boston will handle the territory covered by the New Haven office as well as its own district. Cincinnati will be disbanded with Cleveland handling its work. The Buffalo branch will assume duties of the Albany office. Closing of the Des Moines office will transfer its functions to the Omaha board. Chicago will extend its jurisdiction to cover the closed Indianapolis office. St. Louis will handle the Kansas City activities and Seattle do likewise for Portland. Salt Lake City will take over the Butte territory.

Under the plan each disbanding Film Board will name one of its members to function as laison officer between local exchanges and exhibitors and the board which is taking over its duties. Discontinuance of the nine offices means saving through office, stenographic and secretarial costs.

Ten Thousand Indies

Now Operating, Says Abram F. Myers, Who Declares They Hold Balance of Power.

Washington—Of the 15,000 theatres now open, 10,000 are being operated by independent theatre owners, Abram F. Myers, president of Allied States, declares. Myers looks for many of the houses now dark to open this fall, the theatres having closed because of poor business. Poor product and depression have caused circuits to close more theatres than ever before, the Allied president states.

Myers declares that the independent theatre owners control the balance of buying power in the film business. It is his hope that the independents will marshal this buying power in getting prices adjusted to their particular wants rather than to accept arbitrary allocations by home offices.

The remedy for closed theatres is better product, Myers says, and adds that silent film technique should be applied to talkers.

Sign Alice White

Hollywod—Alice White, after a long absence from the screen, will stage her come-back under the Tiffany banner, reports Phil Goldstone, chief studio executive.

HELP DRAFT BILL

M. P. T. O. A. to Sit in on Copyright Revision

New York—M.P.T.O.A. representatives will sit in on the revision of the copyright bill in the fall before the matter comes up for discussion at the next convening of Congress in December. The object of this move on the part of M.P.T.O.A. is to prevent duplication of copyright levies and overcharges. Those who will work on the situation are M. A. Lightman, M. J. O'Toole, Julian Brylawski and Sidney Lust.

The national organization is definitely opposed to paying a music tax on the ground similar assessments have already been paid by the producers in the making of talkers and that picture houses popularize compositions.

UPHOLDS SUIT

Federal Judge Sustains Court Rulings

New York—Federal Judge Coleman has sustained decisions of a number of U. S. District Courts in issuing an opinion to the effect that distributors may sue for copyright infringements under the Copyright law. His decree was entered in a case in which Tiffany, RKO, Columbia and Warner Bros. sued Dewing & Bishop of Greensboro, Md., for showing unlicensed pictures.

Judge Coleman held that it was immaterial as to whether or not there had been a contract, the plaintiffs having a right to sue under the Copyright law. He awarded them $250 for each of the six violations and in addition a counsel fee of $1,000 and court fees. He also ruled that the plaintiffs were not required to arbitrate before suit.

Quit Gang Films

New York — Winfield Sheehan, Fox vice-president in charge of production ,has announced that production of gangster stories has been discontinued by his organization.

Bureau Appeals Rule on Copyright Law

New York—The Copyright Protection Bureau has appealed the decision of Federal Judge Morton in District Court, Massachusetts, who ruled the copyright law does not apply to motion pictures. The bureau has several decisions in its favor upholding the contention that unlicensed films violate the copyright law.

The decision of Judge Morton in the case brought by Educational and M-G-M against the Bijou Theatre Co., Holyoke, Mass., is the only one on record in any court where a contrary view of the subject has been expressed.

The decision was not made after a trial but upon a premliminary mtion made after the actions were instituted.

Gabriel Hess, attorney for the distributors, declares that Judge Morton based his decision upon the fact that motion pictures were unknown commercially in 1909, when the copyright law was enacted. However, according to Hess, Judge Morton has overlooked the fact that motion pictures were not copyrightable before 1909, but that court decisions previous to that year had sustained their right to copyright, cuting two cases, one in 1903 and one in 1905.

National Cuts Prices On Staple Supplies

National Theatre Supply Company announces a substantial reduction in prices on many staple supply items, effective July 1, 1931. The decrease in cost to the consumer ranges from 10 per cent to 33 1-3 per cent, the reductions applying to standard supply items such as are used regularly in all theatres.

It is emphasized by the company officials that the immediate lowering of costs to the consumer is not a temporary slash in prices to remain effective only for a limited period but is in reality a definite move for a downward revision in prices of theatre supplies, brought about by manufacturing and distributing economies which have been effected and in keeping with the company's often expressed policy to lower costs whenever and wherever possible.

When interviewed on the subject, J. I. Roberts, sales manager for the company, had this to say: "Our sales during the past six months have held up remarkably well. In a majority of our branches a marked increase in sales have been shown. Such economies have been effected in both manufacturing and distributing costs that, with a substantial general increase in volume of business, it is now possible for us to pass along to the exhibitors the benefits of permanently lower prices on a number of staple supplies and accessories."

Concurrent with this move for adjustment in consumer cost, the company also announces the completion of distributing arrangements on several new lines of theatre equipment, the demand for which they claim, will materially augment their sales volume and thus tend to make further price revisions probable.

No. 11 Ready

New York—A master print has been received at the Brooklyn Vitaphone studio from the Warner Bros. Coast Studios, of "Beasts of the Wilderness," the eleventh of a series of twelve two-reelers entitled "Adventures in Africa," by Wymant D. Hubbard, noted authority on African wild life and Fellow of the American Geographical Society. Mr. Hubbard and his party spent two years in Northern Rhodesia and Portuguese East Africa filming the scenes incorporated in "Adventures in Africa."

Pulverman Announces New Sound Systems

New York—The Pulverman Corporation, manufacturers of Royal Amplitone sound equipment, has taken over the Safety Projector Co. of Duluth, Minn. The Duluth concern has been making the Zenith portable and professional projectors for the last 16 years and has recently converted its silent projector into a complete sound-on-film equipment. It will be known as the Royal "Z." The manufacturers claim the device is sturdy and dependable. Due to its simplicity and design, the system can be used for stationary or portable use. It is all AC, requires no batteries or generators and is especially adaptable to exceptionally small projection rooms.

The Pulverman company also announces a new model sound-on-film device especially designed for theatres of small seating capacity and known as the "5S." It sells for $1,250 for two Simplex projectors with a ten-day trial money back guarantee.

GROSSES 4 MILLION

"Hell's Angels" Expected to Hit Record

Hollywood—"Hell's Angels" has already grossed more than $4,000,000, according to figures just released by Howard Hughes' auditors.

Officials of United Artists, handling the world-wide distribution of the air spectacle, estimate that "Hell's Angels" will ultimately take in more than $7,000,000, a new world's box-office record.
